Mr. G. P. Huntley as Mr. Hook, the distiller, must be congratulated on an altogether fresh and delightful study of character. That it will become one of the most popular impersonations of this clever comedian is quite certain. Miss Isabel Jay was a very dainty representative of Sally, the distiller's daughter, and scored both as actress and vocalist. Her songs, "Little Miss Wooden Shoes" and "Flying kites," were both received with rapturous applause. Miss Gracie Leigh as Mina gave a charming performance of a Dutch maiden, scoring with her song-version of the legend of the Flying Dutchman, and a ditty called "My petticoats." Mr. George Barrett gave a humorous portrayal of Simon Slinks, and his song, "The lot of the lazy loafer," was one of the numerous hits of the evening. Mr. Herbert Clayton rendered good service as Captain Paap; posesssing a baritone voice of excellent quality, he shared in the vocal successes of the performance. Mr. Harry Grattan was comical as Ludwig Schnapps, and Mr. B. S. Foster as Lieutenant De Coop and Mr. Walter Hyde as Van Vuyt, the latter taking part with Miss Jay in the duet, "The sleepy canal," both did admirable work. Mr. Morris Harvey was effective as an old policeman. Miss Gladys Ivery as Clara Voos deserves a word of praise, and favourable mention should also be made of Miss Phœbe Mercer as Miss Voss, Miss Gwendoline Brogden as Freda Voos, Miss Eva Kelly as Gretchen, and Miss Alice Coleman as an old market woman.

AT a meeting of the Theatre Royal, Dublin, held on the 23rd ult., Mr. D. Telford (chairman of the company) in proposing the adoption of the report and accounts, said the meeting would be gratified to learn that, with one single exception, the year 1906 was the best they had ever had. The directors proposed to pay the usual dividend of 6 per cent. on the company's share capital, to place a further sum of £1,000 to reserve fund, and to carry forward a balance of over £2,000 to next account. The earnings would have justified a larger dividend but for the fact that they had decided to spend a large sum of money in the erection of winter gardens on the site of the annexe. Mr. Mouillot (managing-director) seconded the resolution, and announced for the forthcoming season a phenomenal list of attractions, which included visits from many of the leading London artists. The retiring directors and auditors were re-elected.

LIVERPOOL is reverting to the stock system, which in the old days prevailed there for many years. The Royal and Paddington have already abandoned variety, and gone in successfully for the two-houses-a-night drama; and now the Park Palace is about to follow suit, under its present management.

THE King and Queen honoured Le Voyage de M. Perrichon at the Royalty Theatre with their presence on Wednesday. The same evening saw the Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by Prince Edward of Wales and Princess Victoria, and attended by their suite, at Drury Lane, where they witnessed the performance of Sindbad. On Thursday evening the Queen, accompanied by Her Royal Highness Princess Victoria, was present at the Adelphi Theatre for the representation of The Bondman.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

SIR CHARLES WYNDHAM is making only a brief sojourn in Egypt, the climate of which is proving less genial than was anticipated, and will return to London in about two weeks' time. The middle of April will find the eminent actor installed in his old home at the Criterion, when he and Miss Mary Moore will begin what it is hoped will be a long stay in London with a new play specially written for these admirable artists by Mr. Hubert Henry Davis.

MR. CHARLES WARNER must have had a very pleasant evening on the 19th ult., when, from a seat in the private box in the Liberty Theatre, New York, he viewed his son, Mr. H. B. Warner's performance of the part of the Man in Salomy Jane, a drama of Western life founded on Bret Harte's story, "Salomy Jane's Kiss." Mr. H. B. Warner made a distinct success.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE entertained his schoolfellows at the Playhouse on Wednesday, when the audience consisted of Old Carthusians, who gave their old comrade a rousing welcome. Many Carthusian touches were introduced into Toddles, notably when Lord Meadows appeared in pyjamas of the school colours. In the course of a neat speech at the end Mr. Maude said the three houses he had been thinking most about lately were the workhouse (after the accident to the theatre), the Playhouse, and Charterhouse. The audience joined as in school days in the "Floreat," and Mr. Maude added that he felt as proud as if he had made a century against Westminster. He was indeed entitled to "wear his cap swagger," the height of ambition to every Charterhouse boy.

THE wisdom of Mr. Maude's plan of numbering all the seats in his new theatre was fully justified on Monday, when not a single note of opposition against the new system was sounded. The public is proverbially erratic, and what they would not permit the late Sir Henry Irving to attempt they have allowed Mr. Maude to accomplish without demur. Numerous letters, moreover, have been received thanking the popular comedian for having effected the innovation at the Playhouse.

MISS ELLEN TERRY was most affectionately greeted by a crowded audience when she made her entrée in New York on Monday. The eminent actress appeared as Lady Cecily Waynflete in Captain Brassbound's Conversion, and asserted all her customary charm, the opinion being everywhere expressed that she is as brilliant as ever. In answer to continued recalls, Miss Terry came forward, and, with a wining smile, said: "I don't want to make a speech. I'd rather just say thank you."

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER will on Feb. 11 give a "flying" matinée of The Morals of Marcus, now approaching its 200th London performance, at the Prince's Theatre at Bristol. The complete London cast will appear, returning to town in time for the evening representation at the Garrick. By a happy coincidence, Mr. Bourchier's specially selected provincial company, headed by Mr. and Mrs. Nye Chart, and Miss Hilda Antony, will open at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, on the same date.

THE annual general meeting of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, it is well to remind our readers, will be held on the stage of His Majesty's Theatre on Tuesday next at 12 noon, to receive the report of the Committee and accounts for the year 1906. Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree will occupy the chair. The attendance of subscribers is requested, and all those interested in the work of the fund are invited to be present.

MR. BEN ALBERT, who has been meeting with great success as Bill Atkins in the Stratford pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, was too unwell to appear on Monday and Tuesday nights, and a younger brother, who has been assisting him during the pantomime, stepped into the breach at quite a moment's notice, and played the part with the most satisfactory results, not omitting Mr. Albert's speciality numbers.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY has had every encouragement to again embark on three-night visits to different towns, for since the 21st ult. he has drawn crowded audiences at Eastbourne, Oxford, Leamington, and Coventry. Indeed, at the last-mentioned place, despite weather conditions by no means pleasant, if seasonable, the popular actor played to some of the largest audiences the Opera House has known. To-night sees the conclusion of an experiment which has met with the utmost success, and on Monday, at the Theatre Royal, Hull, the customary week's sojourn will be reverted to.

ON Thursday night the new setting and production of Hamlet will be used for the first time. Provided with this special scenery—modelled precisely on Mr. Harvey's original scheme, but so planned as to suit some of the less commodious stages—the Shakespearean tragedy will hold a very prominent place throughout the present spring tour. Not only in Hull, but in the towns next to be visited, namely, Southport and Middlesbrough, there is much scholarly anticipation concerning the revival.

A SURPRISE awaited the audience at the Berliner Theatre the other day. The house was well filled for a performance of Sherlock Holmes; and, a few moments before it was time to commence, Herr Bonn, the manager-actor-author, stepped in front of the curtain and addressed himself to the astonished audience. He said they had come to see Sherlock Holmes, and so they should, but in another character. He would present to them Der Hund von Baskerville (The Hound of the Baskervilles). Herr Bon declared he wanted the public's opinion of his new play on its first production, and he begged them to remain as his guests—the tickets taken for Sherlock Holmes holding good for a future performance. The audience took Herr Bonn's proposition with good humour, and received the new piece with much cordiality. The full title is Der Hund von Baskerville, a three-act Drama from the Scotch Highlands, freely adapted by Ferdinand Bonn from Sir C. Doyle's novel.

MR. LEWIS WALLER accomplished a noteworthy achievement on Monday, when he paid a flying visit to Bristol, 120 miles from London, and gave a matinée of Monsieur Beaucaire at the Prince's Theatre there, returning to town in the evening in time for the performance of Robin Hood at the Lyric. The party left Paddington by the Great Western Railway's 9 a.m. express, and returned from Bristol at 4.45 p.m., reaching Paddington at 6.50 p.m. Luncheon and dinner were served en route in the train.

MR. AND MRS. KENDAL'S spring tour begins on Monday at Croydon, the distinguished artists' répertoire including The Ironmaster, The Housekeeper, The Elder Miss Blossom, and A Tight Corner. In addition to the new play The Melcombe Marriage, which will be produced at Brighton in the second week of the tour, a new piece by Miss Clotilde Graves will also be put into rehearsal during the itinerary. This play, which has not yet been named, is said to provide Mrs. Kendal with a strong emotional part. In The Melcombe Marriage Mr. and Mrs. Kendal will be supported by Messrs W. M. Rutherford, Bassett Roe, E. Hendrie, Metcalfe Wood, F. Chas. Pool, C. E. Talbot, R. Burnett, and F. J. Cole, Mrs. A. B. Tapping, Miss Marie Lohr, and Miss D. Fellowes.

SIR SQUIRE BANCROFT will take the chair at the sixteenth annual general meeting of the Actors' Association, which will be held at the Playhouse, Northumberland-avenue, on Tuesday, Feb. 19, at 2.30, to receive a report and accounts of expenditure and receipts and liabilities and assets, to elect one president, twelve vice-presidents, and fourteen members of the council, and an auditor or auditors, and to transact any other business of the Association brought before the meeting by the council, or by any member who shall have given to the secretary seven days' written notice thereof. Any two members of the Association whose subscriptions for the current year are paid may, within seven days prior to the said meeting, give to the secretary a notice or notices signed by them, nominating any qualified member or members of the Association as a candidate or candidates for the council. Such notice or notices must contain the name and address of the proposed candidate or candidates, and be signed by him or them.

MR. W. H. KENDAL has generously forwarded five guineas for the benefit of poor Frank Celli's children. Mr. C. T. H. Helmsley, the popular business manager at St. James's Theatre, has also very kindly sent a guinea.

MISS DOROTHY GRIMSTON, the talented daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, has been selected by Mr. George Alexander to play Miss Irene Vanbrugh's part, Nina, on the Northern tour of His House in Order, which he is sending out on Monday. It will be remembered that Miss Grimston only quite recently achieved a marked success as Lady Isabel in the evergreen play, East Lynne.

MR. J. BANNISTER HOWARD brings Aladdin at the Crystal Palace to a brilliant conclusion to-day (Saturday), when a record for pantomime in a first-class theatre will be obtained by the presentation of three performances. The first will take place at twelve o'clock, and is intended primarily for the benefit of the 2,000 children who are to be the guests of the Playgoers' Club, though the general public will also be admitted. The dramatic season begins on Monday with Bluebell in Fairyland, matinées of which will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

MR. GEORGE GOODES has been appointed Professor of Elocution at the Academy of Dramatic Art presided over by Sir Squire Bancroft. Mr. Goodes, who is a member of the Board of Management of the Shakespeare Schools, has attained great popularity as a reciter.

A MEETING of the Actors' Day Advisory Board was held at 10, King-street, Covent Garden, on Monday, Jan. 28, at which the following were present:—Messrs. Blake Adams, Henry Ainley, George Alexander, Oscar Asche, Cecil Barth, A. E. Bishop, Arthur Bourchier, C. Hayden Coffin, Kenneth Douglas, C. T. H. Helmsley, Laurence Irving, Walter Maxwell, H. Beerbohm Tree, and Sydney Valentine. Mr. Laurence Irving was elected chairman of the Board and Mr. Sydney Valentine deputy-chairman. Vacancies were filled and the constitution of the Board completed. The Organising Committee submitted a report, and after discussion the meeting was adjourned until to-day (Saturday), at 11 a.m.

IT was inadvertently mentioned in these columns last week that Miss Mabel Love would appear in Peter's Mother at the larger suburban theatres and provincial cities, starting on Feb. 4 at the Coronet Theatre, under the management of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison. The piece mentioned should have been The Freedom of Suzanne, in which Miss Mabel Love has made such a remarkable and striking success.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS is to have its Shakespearean Commemoration Festival this year, when Mr. Norman V. Norman, by arrangement with Mr. Chas. Carey, the lessee of the Opera House, will produce a series of Shakespearean plays. Mr. Norman will have the support of Miss Beatrice Wilson and a specially-selected company. Mr. Norman, it will be remembered, had the direction of the Shakespeare Commemoration week at the Crystal Palace last year, when he produced As You Like It with the most conspicuous success, Miss Wilson making a great hit as Rosalind.

MR. JOHN HASTINGS BATSON, who is at present touring with Mr. Percy Hutchison's Freedom of Suzanne company, gave his promised recital of Everyman on Saturday afternoon at St. Michael's Parish Room, West Croydon. It was a rare elocutionary feat, and when it is said that Mr. Batson succeeded in holding the attention of his audience for over an hour and a half without a break his claims as a reciter are obvious. His rich, powerful voice was impressively employed in the delivery of the speeches allotted to Death and the Deity, while the lighter passages were given with a quick change of tone that betokened the art of the experienced actor. At the close Mr. Batson was warmly applauded, and obtained a very hearty recall.

MR. OSCAR BERINGER, one of the most distinguished professors at the Royal Academy of Music, will next month deliver at the institution a lecture entitled "Fifty years' experience in pianoforte playing and teaching." Mr. Beringer has been associated with the R.A.M. since 1885.

THE British Empire Shakespeare Society have enlisted the services of a number of eminent artists for their readings of As You Like It at the Passmore Edwards' Settlement to-morrow (Sunday) evening, when Mr. George Alexander and Mr. Arthur Bourchier (both of whom are vice-presidents of the society) will appear as Orlando and Jaques respectively. Miss Lilian Braithwaite will sustain the rôle of Rosalind, Miss Dorothy Grimston will be Celia; Mr. Charles Fry, Adam; and Mr. Acton Bond, Touchstone; and Messrs. Athol Stewart, Cecil Cameron, Stanley Drewitt, Ben Field, Eric Maxon, J. Fritz Russell, Alfred Bristowe, and Douglas Vigors, and Miss Claire Greet and Mrs. Lenthal Cheatle will also be in the cast. The reading will be under the direction of Mr. Acton Bond. It should be added that seats have already been allotted by the Warden of the Settlement for the available space.

MR. FRANK BERESFORD has received from Mr. Leonard Rayne a tempting offer to revisit South Africa to play Robin Hood, Brigadier Gerard, and other leading parts. During the eight years Mr. Beresford has been associated with Mr. Rayne he has played, amongst other rôles, those of D'Artagnan (Three Musketeers), the Rev. Frank Thornhill, Harold Armytage, and leading parts in most of the Drury Lane dramas. Mr. Beresford's versatility has been displayed in such rôles as Jack Barrington in What the Butler Saw, Wibsey in Public Opinion, and Dr. Sheppard in Oh, Susannah! while Mark Antony, Laertes, Bassanio, &c., have revealed his talents in Shakespearean characters.

MR. RICHARD TEMPLE has been appointed Director of the Dramatic Class and Professor of Elocution and Diction at the Royal Academy of Music. Mr. Temple, a finished artist both as vocalist and actor, used to be one of the pillars of the Savoy opera, but was not available for the present revival, being engaged to support another Savoyard, Miss Isabel Jay, as Burchill in The Vicar of Wakefield at the Prince of Wales's. His selection as professor at the R.A.M. will be a popular one, and will add valuably to the excellence of the staff of that great institution.

MISS JESSIE MILLWARD, who is now the leading lady of Mr. H. A. Jones's play, The Hypocrites, in New York, was married on the 25th ult. to Mr. John Glendinning, who also takes one of the plincipal parts in the play. Mr. Glendinning is well known on the English stage, and is popular in America as the creator there of the Laird in Trilby. Miss Millward, whose long association with the late William Terriss, at the Adelphi Theatre, in many melodramas will be recalled, went to America soon after the assassination of Mr. Terriss, and remained there a number of years. Her return to England at the beginning of last year was marked by her appearance in the comedy, The School for Husbands, which had a brief run at the Scala Theatre in March.

MEMBERS and friends of the Managers' Club, Savoy Mansions, should note that another of those delightful "socials" for which the club has become renowned takes place to-morrow at 8 o'clock. This time the programme is organised by Mr. E. Graham-Falcon, who is also the chairman of the occasion. A large company is expected.

THE Commissioners' Committee of the Actors' Association held their thirteenth meeting on Monday last, when there were present Mr. Brandon Thomas (chairman), Mr. Burton Cooke (Council), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman of Council), Mesdames Rose Mathews and Lucy Sibley, Messrs. Cecil Barth, Clive Currie, Ralph Roberts, Edmond T. Sayers, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). The rules and regulations in connection with the Ramsgate centre were considered and approved and referred to the Council for confirmation. Miss Phyllis Relph and Mr. Ralph Roberts were elected members of this committee.

THE usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Association was held on Tuesday last, when there were present: Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy-chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. sol.), Mesdames Kate Bishop and Beatrice Lamb, and Messrs. Cecil Barth, J. Cooke Beresford, Clarence Blakiston, Acton Bond, W. Graham Browne, Burton Cooke, F. Cremlin, William Devereux, Quinton McPherson, Spencer Trevor, Frank Vernon, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary).

THE hon. solicitors reported they had advised a member. Vera George, Mary Thorne, Alma Murray, Aubrey Mather, Wm. Hy. Berry, Fred. Farren, Stanley Brett, Madge Devereux, Frank C. Pool, Clara Denman (for reinstatement), and Valerie Salberg were nominated for election. A former member was reinstated.

A CASE of alleged insanitation of a provincial theatre was considered, and the explanations to hand not being accepted, the secretary was instructed to place the matter in the hands of the hon. Medical Officer of Health. The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received, as also was the report of the Commissioners' Committee, and the rules and regulations in connection with the Ramsgate centre, which had been drawn up by that body, were submitted to the Council and approved. Miss Gracie Murielle was elected as hon. secretary to the centre. Dr. Joseph Dixon, of Whitehaven, was elected an hon. medical officer to the A.A. The accounts for the year 1906, which will be placed before the members at the sixteenth annual general meeting to b held at the Playhouse on Tuesday, the 19th inst., were laid on the table, and referred to the Finance and General Purposes Committee for their consideration.

THE Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday last, when there were present Mr. Acton Bond (chairman), and Messrs. J. Cooke Beresford, A. E. Drinkwater, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). The accounts for the year 1906, as audited, were considered, and instructions given to the secretary in connection therewith.

MESSRS. MILTON BODE and Edward Compton are this (Saturday) afternoon entertaining at the Royal Opera House, Leicester, 500 old folk and children from the scattered homes, the former being regaled with snuff, tobacco, and packets of tea, and the latter with oranges, cakes, sweets, &c. This is the first time for a considerable period that a Leicester manager has shown such generosity, and Mr. Henry Dundas, the business-manager for Messrs. Bode and Compton, has received a letter expressing the warm thanks of the Guardians and their appreciation of Messrs. Bode and Compton's thoughtful kindness.

MISS HELENA MILLAIS, the clever and promising young actress, has been engaged by Mr. C. F. Cooke to play lead in the tour of The Trumpet Call, which opens on Feb. 11 at the Theatre Royal, Cardiff. During last year Miss Millais appeared in a dozen or more important characters, including Isabel in Mrs. Gorringe's Necklace, Polly Eccles in Caste, Lucy Lorimer in A Pair of Spectacles, Maud Chesterton in The New Clown, in Hamlet, and as Sam Willoughby in The Ticket-of-Leave Man.

MISS FLORENCE BAINES furnishes the following agreeable example of the good feeling existing between resident and travelling managers. At the conclusion of the week's business at the Theatre Royal, Stockport, Mr. Charles Revill, who had contracted with the company to pay them on a sliding scale according to the business done, was so satisfied with the result that, notwithstanding the receipts were a few pounds short of the amount required, he very generously gave the company the benefit of this deficiency, and paid the rate higher than he really contracted for. During the week, by the way, Miss Baines distributed 5000 copies of the words and music of both her "Country" and "Baby" songs.

FAREWELL to the Grand at Islington was paid on Saturday, when, with the conclusion of the pantomime, Jack and the Beanstalk, the house closed its career as a temple of the drama. In reopening as a variety theatre some time hence it will be returning to a former state. The Grand was of old known as the Philharmonic Music Hall, and was converted to the purposes of the drama in 1870, Miss Emily Soldene opening the house in Chilperic. Twice has the building been destroyed by fire—once in September, 1882, and again in the December of 1887. The Grand is an admirably-appointed theatre, and during its career has been visited by many distinguished players—among them the late Sir Henry Irving. Latterly the experiment of drama at two houses a night was made by the lessee, Mr. Samuel James, but was discontinued after a brief trial.

AT the pretty little church of St. Cuthbert's, Cotherstone, last week Mr. A. R. Feather, acting-manager of the Hyde Theatre Royal, was married to Miss Laura Elizabeth, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Porter, of Cotherstone. The bride was tastefully attired in a gown of copper-coloured colienne chiffon over copper-coloured silk, trimmed with lace to match, the yoke being of spotted Brettonne net, with lace appliqué of gold and Valenciennes lace, with hat to match, and was accompanied by five bridesmaids. After the breakfast Mr. John Robson proposed the health of the bride and bridegroom. On his return to Hyde after a short honeymoon at Southport, Mr. Feather entertained the whole of the theatre staff to dinner. During the post-prandial proceedings Mr. Feather was presented, on behalf of the staff, with a silver toast rack, egg-stand, salts, and massive silver flower-stand and biscuit barrel.

A CHOICE souvenir of the Playhouse was presented by Mr. Cyril Maude to each member of the audience on Monday in the shape of a portfolio, elegantly bound in rose-coloured cloth, and containing an interesting series of portraits of Miss Winifred Emery and Mr. Cyril Maude in their best-known parts. It is a gift fit to grace any collection, and furnishes a worthy memento of an auspicious occasion.

IN aid of the Jamaica disaster relief fund Mr. Harris Fineberg, the esteemed proprietor of the Star Theatre, Liverpool, organised a matinée benefit on Wednesday, and the event, which was under the patronage of the Lord Mayor and Town Hall Committee, proved a great success. In addition to an act from Lucky Durham, which drama is being played there to packed houses, many artists from all the local theatres put in an appearance.

A PROMISING young singer made her début at a concert at the Town Hall, Southsea, on Saturday, in the person of Miss Elena Garsin, an accomplished soprano, who has recently returned from the Milan Conservatoire, where she was a pupil of Alberto Leoni. Miss Garsin has decided gifts as a vocalist, and her singing of the "The lass with the delicate air," and of the difficult ballad, "Nobil Signor," was in each case warmly encored. Miss Garsin, it may be added, is a grand-daughter of Mrs. H. T. Craven, widow of the late author, and a grand-niece of Miss Carry Nelson.

MR. DACRE BALDIE, who died on Wednesday, aged 70, will be interred in the Actors' Acre at Woking to-day, at the expense of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, which has assisted him to a considerable extent for some years past.

THE Dot Stephens Fund will be closed on Feb. 16. Managers of pantomime companies are urged to get their cards filled up, and return by that date to the hon. treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, The Era office.

MR. RICHARD A. GREENE, who is just concluding a very successful six months' engagement with The Breed of the Treshams, has written a four act romantic drama, the rights of which have been acquired by Messrs. Alec Flood and Aubrey Fitzmaurice for immediate production. The plot is concerned with Napoleon's Russian campaign of 1812, and was in a measure suggested by the late H. Seton Merriman's novel, "Borlasch of the Guard."

UNDER the management of Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison, Miss Mabel Love will appear at the Coronet Theatre next week in The Freedom of Suzanne, the successful comedy from the Criterion Theatre. The cast will include Mr. Percy Hutchison. Miss Mabel Love will also appear during the next few weeks at Fulham, Crystal Palace, Camden, and Kennington Theatres. Mr. Percy Hutchison will produce at the Coronet Theatre on Monday a new one-act play by Miss Rosemary Rees, entitled Her Dearest Friend.

MISS LENA ASHWELL, who has enjoyed only indifferent health during her visit to America, is now thoroughly ill and confined to her apartments in Chicago. It is said that it will be impossible for her to return to the stage for a long time, and her tour, which was to be continued for five weeks longer, has been given up. Miss Ashwell will return to London as soon as she is able. It is confidently hoped that the popular actress's return home will ensure a speedy restoration to health.

MR. ARCHIE SELWYN has been engaged by Mr. J. B. Mulholland to play Jack Strange during the tour of The Electric Man, commencing on Monday at Wolverhampton.

MR. DACRE BALDIE died on Wednesday at his residence, 25, Regent-square, W.C., at the age of seventy. Mr. Baldie was in the sixties a well-known and recognised leading tragedian, having played all the Shakespearean and legitimate parts in the principal provincial cities of Great Britain. He also played seconds, and shared alternately the lead with most of the great actors of his time. He was for many years the stock leading man at the old Grecian Theatre, London, under the original Conquest management. Mr. Baldie was for several years leading man at the Royalty Theatre—then the Soho—under the management of the late Mr. Thomas Mowbray. He was also a clever light comedian, and amongst his most popular parts were Charles Surface, Bob Acres, Don Ceazar, &c. Of late years he played small parts under Mr. Tree and Sir Charles Wyndham. His funeral will start from the London Necropolis Company, Westminster Bridge-road, this morning, at 11.45, for Woking.

CHURCH and stage are certainly becoming more closely linked every day. One of the latest examples of this aggreeable rapprochement was provided on Sunday last week, when the Rev. H. A. C. Townsend, preaching to a large congregation, reproved his flock sternly for not helping forward the movement for refinement in the theatre by supporting the introduction of really good plays when they are brought to their towns. The company so approvingly alluded to in the sermon was that of Mr. J. Maundy-Gregory, presenting Mr. H. B. Irving's latest success, Lights Out.

MISS GEORGIE DE LARA, after concluding two years' stock seasons at the Elephant and Castle, Terris, and Standard Theatres respectively, has been engaged by Mr. Walter Melville for her original character of Peggy Munroe in his latest success, The Soldier's Wedding, the tour of which begins on Monday at the West London Theatre.

MR. ALLAN WILKIE has secured the services of Mr. G. Alexander Marsh and Miss Carrie Baillie until 1912, and in his autumn tour the company will be increased to over 25 artists. New scenery is being executed by Mr. G. Bernascerie, and the printing is being specially designed and cut by Messrs. David Allen and Sons. Last week Mr. Wilkie played to record business at the Carlton Theatre, Birmingham, and he is now playing to packed houses at Jersey, this being his second visit and fifth week in nine months.

"MISS LANCASHIRE, LIMITED," the farce with music, which Miss Florence Baines is touring with such conspicuous success, is in the happy position of having only one vacant date in the whole year, and that at the Whitsuntide holiday. One of the features of advertising this popular play is that the company travels its own 40 h.p. motor-car. As an example of the generosity of the management it may be recorded that all the artists were not only paid in full for the Christmas holiday, but received, as a present, a whole week's salary each.

THE directors of Howard and Wyndham, Ltd., Glasgow, have recommended their shareholders to accept an offer to purchase their theatres for the sum of £146,000. The theatres embrace the Royal and Royalty at Glasgow, the Lyceum and Royal, Edinburgh, and the Tyne, Newcastle. The Syndicate from which the offer emanated owns the Marlborough, London; the Grand, Glasgow; the King's, Edinburgh; and theatres in Greenock, Dundee, Coatbridge, and other Scotch towns. An extraordinary general meeting to approve the directors' recommendation has been called for Friday, Feb. 15, at Edinburgh.

MR. GEORGE DANCE has brought the Queen's Theatre, Swindon, which he intends to run as a combined theatrical and variety house. The place will be opened on Easter Monday.

In the King's Bench Division on Monday, before Mr. Justice Darling and a common jury, Miss Gertie Millar brought an action against Messrs. Ralph Dunn and Co., printers and publishers, for defamation in publishing certain picture postcards representing her. The defendants admitted the publication of the postcards, but denied that they defamatory. They had procured some old photographs of Miss Millar, and had "faked" the pictures by putting Miss Millar's head on to another lady's body. The following were the photographs complained of: a picture of a lady in her night-dress with a candle in her hand: upon the body Miss Millar's head and face were placed; a picture of a young lady draped in a peculiar way, with Miss Millar's head attached; and a figure of a lady, with the plaintiff's face, crawling out of an eggshell. The case was continued on Tuesday, when the verdict was given for the defendants.

MR. H. F. MALTBY tells an amusing story with regard to his one-act musical comedy, Fannikin. Mr. Maltby was playing this piece in a town in the North of England, and, the local amateurs becoming enamoured of the play, it was arranged that an amateur production should take place. The secrtary was very loud in his praises of the piece. "But," he remarked, "I have found one mistake in it." "And what is that?" asked Mr. Maltby. The secretary turned over the leaves of the scrip until he came to the finale, the first four lines of which run:

"Now, when you're run down from a year in town,
And by dissipations tried,
And dinners so chic, seven times a week,
Play the deuce with your inside."

"There," said the secretary, with a triumphant smile, "you can't make 'chick' rhyme with 'week,' you know!"

MR. STANLEY BRETT, who so admirably supports his brother, Mr. Seymour Hicks, in The Beauty of Bath, organised a "Bal du Papillon" at Prince's Galleries on Thursday night, which was graced by the talent and beauty of the light opera world. Supper was served in the restaurant, and dancing was enjoyed till the approach of dawn.

MISS SOPHIE HARRISS, whose performance of Mrs. Crocker in the Baron Harriss No. 1 Prince of Pilsen Company on tour, is one of the finest things she has done in the course of her stage career, is a lady of considerable versatility. The excellence of the present production is entirely due to her gift of stage management—the interpolated numbers with their ingenious business are the outcome of her acute perception for stage effect, whilst every dress in the play has not only been designed, but actually made under her personal supervision.

THE incorrect statement published on Tuesday that the matinée of The Red Lamp, to be given at His Majesty's Theatre (by kind permission of Mr. Beerbohm Tree), on behalf of St. Mary's Hospital for Women and Children, Plaistow, was to take place on the following Thursday has caused a great deal of trouble and inconvenience. We are asked to state that the matinée will take place, as originally intended, on Thursday, February 28. The committee announce that all the boxes have been disposed of, one having been taken by Her Majesty the Queen, who has given her immediate patronage to the performance. The stalls and balcony stalls have also been entirely sold out, and a number of pit stalls at 10s. 6d. each have been arranged for.

MR. GEORGE F. REYNOLDS, who recently returned from managing Miss Madge McIntosh and Mr. Lumsden Hare's company, Mollentrave on Women, on tour, has been engaged as acting-manager for Mr. Oscar Asche and Miss Lily Brayton's forthcoming tour.

SHAKESPEARE was established in the People's Palace, Mile-end, on Thursday, when The Merchant of Venice inaugurated a series of performances at prices ranging from 3d., under the auspices of the English Drama Society. The piece was given without scenery, but the costumes were rich and appropriate. Mr. Nugent Monck, the secretary of the Society, directed the performance and played the part of Launcelot Gobbo. Shylock was enacted by Mr. Arthur Goodsall, and Portia by Miss Isabel Roland; a lady impersonator of Lorenzo was found in Miss Margot de Helinska, and the rest of the characters were in the hands of Messrs. Edgar Playford, Eric Mascon, Kenneth Bruce, Robert Bottomley, Richard Meville, Edward Bloodworth, George Hayes, Leslie Boothby, Leo. Goodwin, and Ernest Chandler, and Misses Hilda Bruce Potter, and Katherine Stuart.

QUAINTNESS is preserved throughout in the costumes of Miss Hook of Holland, the Dutch musical incident, produced at the Prince of Wales's Theatre on Thursday. The frock worn by Miss Isabel Jay as the heroine, Sally, in the first act is a dainty creation of butter-coloured voile, the tight bodice opening over a white vest, edged with a terra-cotta pink and gold galon. A pretty corresponding note of colour in an otherwise unrelieved dress is the pink châtelaine bag and pincushion, which Miss Jay wears at her side, while her Dutch cap, with its gold ornaments, gives a fitting finish to the gown. For the fête at the distillery the heroine wears a charming gown of pale blue, with a white sailor collar and blue cap, coquettishly turned up with white, and finished with blue choux.

MISS PHŒBE MERCER clothes Miss Voos in a Dutch frau's gown of stiff black silk, with discreet touches of purple, and a white cap under the espiègle high-crowned hat makes a delicious confection. Another frock worn by Miss Mercer takes the form of a quaint gown of puce brocade, with its velvet bodice and daring tablier of apple green satin trimmed with very wide insertions of écru lace, the brilliant touch of cherry-pink in her cap completing the effect.

THE Dulwich Philharmonic Society will give their third concert of the season in the Crystal Palace Concert Room on Saturday next. The programme includes a concert performance of Mascagni's one-act opera, Cavalleria Rusticana, and Parry's "Blest Pair of Sirens," for double chorus and orchestra. Elgar's cycle of songs, "The Sea-Pictures," will be sung by Miss Gwladys Roberts, and the orchestra will play the two famous Hungarian dances by Brahms, as orchestrated by Barlow, with other items. Other soloists will be Miss Marie Titiens, Miss Aimee Ferdinand, Mr. John Bardsley, and Mr. Andre Kaya. Mr. Arthur Fagge will conduct.

THE Santley Jubilee Testimonial is meeting with hearty support in the most influential quarters. The Prince and Princess of Wales, and almost every member of the Royal Family, have promised their patronage to the concert, which will be held in the Albert Hall in May. The Duke of Norfolk, in accepting the chairmanship of the General Committee, wrote that, as "twenty Albert Halls would not hold all the friends of Charles Santley, he begged to enclose a substantial subscription as the nucleus of a testimonial fund." The Earl of Kilmorey is hon. secretary of the movement, Sir Douglas Straight, hon. treasurer, and Mr. Landon Ronald, hon. musical director for the concert. The following gentlemen will constitute the executive committee:—Sir Francis Burnand, Sir Frederick Bridge, Mr. John Hare, the Hon. Spencer Lyttelton, Sir Alexander C. Mackenzie, Sir Hubert Parry, Mr. Landon Ronald, Sir Charles Villiers Stanford, General Stracey, Sir Douglas Straight, Mr. Beerbohm Tree, and Sir Charles Wyndham.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Mr. Tree and Mr. Maude.

One of the most pleasant evidences of the amity which reigns between our leading London managers was the cordiality with which the friendly rivalry of the new Playhouse was regarded by Mr. Beerbohm Tree, and the kindly speech delivered by that gentleman after Mr. Maude, in his most amusing speech, had been poking harmless fun at the archæology at His Majesty's. The presence of Mrs. George Alexander, looking remarkably well, in a private box, gave the occasion a cachet which it would otherwise have lacked.

Coughs and Colds.

The Théâtre-Français company felt the effects of the English climate during their visit, and have probably gone home complaining of catarrh. When Le Demi-Monde was played last week, says the Daily Mirror, M. le Bargy had a cough, Mlle. Dorziat a bad cold; and less serious coughs and colds were the lot of almost all the other members of the company. The blowing of noses and clearing of throats audible on the stage was only equalled by the same incessant sounds in the audience. Much of the play was drowned by the coughing, but what was heard gave the keenest pleasure to those who heard it.

The Scala.

Chevalier Distin Maddick's Scala Theatre, of which we are just now hearing so much, was opened on Dec. 19, 1904, by Lady Bancroft. Of the old Prince of Wales's, which stood on the site of La Scala, nothing remains but the porch, which the London County Council allowed to be incorporated in the new building as the stage entrance. Erected in 1760 by Signor Pasquali, the old Prince of Wales's house was first known as "The West London," then "The Regency," and reverted to its first title until the accession of William IV. It then became "The Queen's," and later still "The Fitzroy," until the advent of Lady Bancroft, who named it the Prince of Wales's Royal Theatre. Amongst the actors and actresses who trod its boards were Charles Mathews and Madame Vestris, John Hare and Ellen Terry, the Kendals, Wilson Barrett, and Madame Celeste. During the Bancroft management the house was visited by Napoleon, D'Orsay, Dickens, Thackeray, Gladstone, Lord Beaconsfield, Ruskin and Leighton, Tennyson, Lytton, and Wilkie Collins.

Rural Plays.

Engaged in the production in the little drill-hall of Hildenborough, Kent, on Tuesday night of a new drama in three acts, called Back to the Land, by Mr. John Johnson and Mr. Dagney Major, were a blacksmith, a cycle repairer, a poor cripple, a grocer's assistant, a dairyman, a coachman, two gardeners, a carpenter, and two cricket-ball makers. Cricket-ball making is one of the few village industries left—there is a small factory at Wateringbury; and in the play a German finds it out, and absorbs it actively.

French and English.

"Parisians," says M. André Messager, the new director of the Paris Opera House, in a talk with a Daily Express correspondent, "do not go to the opera or to concerts nearly as much as Londoners. It is not merely a question of fashion—I fancy that fashion follows the crowd in the five-shilling seats as often as it leads them. It is a question of taste. . . . The one thing that is wanted in Paris is the chorus material. Unfortunately, the ladies of the chorus in France are not of the same quality as those we get in London. There they are intelligent, fairly educated ladies. Here— And there is no discipline in France, either in the theatre or anywhere else. English management is far, far superior to anything that we do here in Paris. French people are too sophisticated in things theatrical to love the theatre really and to spend money on it. Parisians do not go to the theatre nowadays unless they can go for nothing. The upper classes are too critical, and feel that they know all about any play they see before the first act is over, and the middle class folk are kept out of the theatres by the cheaper amusements." So we have something to be thankful for after all.

Miss Millward and Henry Irving.

Miss Jessie Millward, who has just been married to Mr. Glendinning in America, got, says the Daily Mirror, practically her first great chance from the late Sir Henry Irving. He wanted her to understudy Miss Ellen Terry and to play ingénue parts as well. Miss Millward was somehow very much afraid of Irving, and when he made her this magnificent offer, as it seemed to her then, she sat trembling with fear, expecting him to say that, considering what fine parts he was about to offer her, she would have to be content with a small salary—perhaps only the ten shillings a week which she had received when her stage career began. "What salary have you been receiving?" said the great man. And she replied, trembling more than ever: "Five pounds a week." Irving nodded. "Ah," he said, I should not dream of giving you that." Now, thought Miss Millward, he is going to offer me ten shillings. "For the first year," Irving went on, "I will give you twelve, and for the second year fifteen." Miss Millward began fearfully to explain that twelve shillings was not perhaps very, very much, when Irving smiled benevolently at her and said: "You don't quite understand." "You—you don't mean pounds?" He meant, indeed, twelve pounds a week!

A Mauve Voice.

Miss Constance Collier has been telling an interviewer how when rehearsing Calypso once with Mr. Tree, he said to her, "Now, I want you to play this part with a mauve voice." "When I was playing Roma in The Eternal City," says Miss Collier, "Mr. Hall Caine was anxious to get a particularly powerful effect in a certain strong scene with poor Robert Taber, and was in a vein of reminiscence. 'I once saw,' said Mr. Caine, 'a very striking piece of business in a scene. The man picked up the woman and threw her over his shoulder.' We looked at each other in consternation, as I am rather a heavy person to throw about. However, we did our best, but our unsuccessful efforts were interrupted by Mr. Tree. 'That reminds me,' said the actor-manager, 'I saw a play in Italy once in which the hero caught hold of the heroine by the legs and banged her head on the floor.' 'Splendid—a magnificent idea!' interpolated the enthusiastic author. 'What was the play?' 'Punch and Judy,' replied Mr. Tree."

The Glovers.

A correspondent writes:—"I am most anxious to find out the connection between the following families. In Dibden's 'Annals of the Edinburgh Stage' it is stated that John Bland, of the Theatre Royal, was an ancestor of William Glover, the painter (whose father was Edmund, son of the famous Mrs. Glover, and proprietor of the Prince's Theatre, Glasgow, who died in 1860). John Bland was of an old Irish family, half-brother of Mrs. Jordan's father, Captain Francis Bland, and before he took to the stage had been a cornet of dragoons, carried the colours of his regiment at Dettingen, was taken prisoner at Fontenoy, and served also under Colonel (afterwards General) Honeywood in suppressing the Jacobite rising in 1745. He was for many years treasurer of the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, and died in 1808. I want particulars of his wife's family and of their children, and their connection with the Glovers—in fact, all the information I can get." Perhaps one of our readers can oblige.

THE PLAYHOUSE OPENING.

Mr. Cyril Maude's opening of the Playhouse on Monday was indeed a delightful ceremony. The beauty of the theatre itself was assisted in effect by a very brilliant and distinguished audience, which included the Duke and Duchess of Fife, the Earl and Countess of Plymouth, the Earl and Countess of Dunraven, the Earl and Countess of Buchan, Viscount and Viscountess Hood, Hon. Percy and Mrs. Wyndham, Lady Emily Wyndham-Quin, Lady Agnew, Mrs. Arthur and Lady Muriel Paget, Sir Edward and Lady Pamela Pennant, Hon. Miss Violet Pennant, Right Hon. George Wyndham, the Countess of Grosvenor, Lord and Lady Elcho, Right Hon. Arthur Balfour, Right Hon. Ailwyn and Mrs. Fellowes, Hon. Charles Bateman Hanbury, Lady Maclean, Mr. Mortimer Menpes, Sir Edward Moss, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Gilbert, Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Shaw, Right Hon. Lord Lurgan, Captain Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. John Hare, Sir Bruce Seton, Lord Northcliffe, General Sir George and Lady Barker, and Colonel Sir Edmund and Lady Antrobus.

After Mme. Clara Butt had sung the National Anthem, there was performed Mr. Austin Strong's thrilling one-act drama,

"THE DRUMS OF OUDE."

Capt. Hector McGregor ..Mr. Kenneth Douglas
Lieut. Alan Hartley .....Mr. Charles Maude
Sergeant McDougal .....Mr. Allen Thomas
Stewart .....Mr. A. G. Onslow
Abdul .....Mr. John Harwood
Karim .....Mr. King Fordham
Mrs. Jack Clayton .....Miss Nancy Price

This palpitating little piece kept the nerves of the audience strung to the fullest tension up to the exciting climax, when the hero, having lighted a fuse communicating with a powder-magazine, in preparation for a "blow-up," stamps on it at the approach of rescue in the shape of a party of British soldiers. Mr. Kenneth Douglas, who is steadily growing into an actor of real power and resource, showed unmistakable ability as Captain Hector McGregor; and Mr. Charles Maude played Lieut. Alan Hartley in really artistic style. Mr. Allen Thomas hit off happily the character of Sergeant McDougal; and Mr. A. J. Onslow gave a quite satisfactory embodiment of Stewart, Mr. John Harwood and Mr. King Fordham doing excellent work as the two natives. Miss Nancy Price played Mrs. Jack Clayton with her usual ease, ability, and expressiveness.

The incident of the evening, however, was the prologue, specially written for the occasion by Mr. Bernard Shaw. It was really a very clever and amusing duologue. The scene was set with a small reading-table and a couple of chairs. Miss Winifred Emery, looking radiantly pretty in a light blue silk gown and crescent diamond ornaments, came on, and, assuming an air of embarrassment, pleaded with the audience on behalf of Mr. Maude, who, she said, was so nervous about his speech, alluding to him as "Cyril," because she was "really married to him, you know," and it was merely "force of habit." She owned that she herself was nervous, too, but thought a little applause would encourage her. Of course, she got it. "You don't know what a week I've been having at home," continued Miss Emery, "with Cyril learning his speech. I've heard him repeat it four times in his sleep. He's in a fearful state of nervousness. The least sound will upset him, so please don't applaud."

All this was spoken in the most arch and winning way imaginable, the delivery being adorned with all Miss Emery's most exquisite airs and graces. The audience fully entered into the fun of the thing. Then Mr. Maude appeared, manuscript in hand, and looking very uncomfortable. "Courage, dear!—Courage!" whispered Miss Emery, to the intense amusement of the house. As he placed the MS. on the raised reading-desk, it collapsed with a bang, which gave him excuse for saying "Good heavens! I thought it was the station!" And so the vein of humour was worked out, Mr. Maude announcing his intention of dealing with the history of the Avenue Theatre, from the time of the Doomsday Book, and being warned by Miss Emery of the danger that the audience might "lose its last tram, and come back and sleep in the theatre." Then there was business with the orchestra, the conductor of which, having been previously requested by Miss Emery to play some incidental music at any pathetic point of the speech, moved his bâton when Mr. Maude, rambling on, said, "It is now twenty years since I and my dear wife——" On being told that the orchestra was "supporting" him, Mr. Maude went off in a dudgeon, leaving Miss Emery to deliver the following agreeable address:—"Ladies and Gentlemen,—You see, what my husband and I have been trying to do is a very difficult thing. We have some friends here—some old and valued friends—some young ones, too, we hope—but we also have for the first time in this house of ours the great public. We dare not call ourselves the friends of the public: we are only its servants; and, like all servants, we are very much afraid of seeming disrespectful if we allow ourselves to be too familiar, and we are most at our ease when we are doing our work. We rather dread occasions like these, when we are allowed, and even expected, to step out of our place, and speak in our own persons of our own affairs—even for a moment, perhaps, very discreetly, of our own feelings. Well, what can we do? We recite a little verse; we make a little speech; we are shy; in the end, we put ourselves out of countenance, put you out of countenance, and strain your attitude of kindness and welcome until it becomes an attitude of wishing that it was all over. Well, we resolved not to do that to-night, if we could help it. After all, you know how glad we are to see you, for you have the advantage of us—you can do without us; we cannot do without you. I will not say that because that is not true, and it never has been true. The drama's laws have a higher source than your caprice or ours, and in this Playhouse of ours we will not please you except on terms honourable to ourselves and to you. But on those terms we hope that you may spend many pleasant hours here, and we as many hard-working ones, as at our old home in the Haymarket. And now, may I run away and tell Cyril that his speech has been a great success after all, and that you are quite ready for Toddles? Thank you." Miss Emery went off smiling.

'The drama's laws the drama's patrons give,
And we, who live to please, must please to live,'

Then followed the 174th performance of that tremendous success,

"TODDLES."

The cast of Toddles remains practically the same as when the piece was produced at the Duke of York's Theatre on Sept. 3 last year. Mr. Maude's irresistibly easy and amusing embodiment of the hero has lost nothing by frequent repetition, and is as smooth, suave, and quaintly comic as ever. Miss Lottie Venne repeats her smart and characteristic impersonation of Mrs. Joblyn; and Miss Rosalie Toller is very sweet and natural as Constance Joblyn, the part originally sustained by Miss Alice Crawford. Miss Gertrude Kingston is still irreproachably acute and alert as Lady Dover; and Miss Nancy Price's altogether delightful reading of the rôle of Mrs. Bowler retains all its original merits.

After Toddles on Monday came the diverting duologue, Sixes and Sevens, in which Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh created, as usual, great amusement; and then, about midnight, the curtain was again raised to display Mr. Beerbohm Tree in evening dress, and lovely masses of beautiful flowers arranged along the footlights.

Mr. Tree, in a neat and appropriate speech, said:—"Ladies and Gentlemen,—The hour is so late that I am sure you will agree with me that it will be well to dispense with the three-act tragedy we had prepared for your delectation to-night. I appear before you only as the chorus—a chorus of praise and congratulation. I speak for myself, and I hope I may speak on behalf of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Maude's well-wishers—and their name is legion—in saying what a delight to us all it is to know that Cyril Maude should have come into his own. There are many reasons why a man should be kept out of his own, but the most provident could not foresee that he would be barred by a railway arch. It must have been a painful surprise to our friend to see his stalls filled by Charing Cross Station. Had his ambition been in the direction of spectacular drama, he might have seized the opportunity of putting on a historical play, with a realistic scene of the ruins of Rome. Instead, he had to persuade the South-Eastern to move; and everybody knows that that is not an easy task. The philosophy of life is to make capital out of one's misfortune, and Mr. Maude has indeed succeeded in turning his misfortune into capital. I do not know whether this happy issue is more largely due to the popularity of our hosts or to the large-minded and large-hearted view taken by the railway board. It is true that we find a spirit of altruism in individuals more to-day than at any other time, but this feeling has not hitherto reached communities and nations. Committees, too, have hitherto been exempt from harbouring sympathetic and human leanings. It is the more creditable, therefore, that the Board of the South-Eastern Railway should have tempered their justice with a fine sense of honour, and recognised an obligation not strictly legal. But good-fortune, like ill-fortune, comes not in single spies, but in battalions, and I may to-night betray what is perhaps after all an open secret—and in making my statement I do so without prejudice to a case which is still sub judice—and I defy the respected head of the Local Government Board to have the boldness to deny my statement. We citizens have often wondered why untenanted steamers meander up and down the Thames. We have been surprised at the tramcars that have been laid down along the Embankment. It has puzzled many why those empty tramcars should be there. To-night the secret is out. Mr. Cyril Maude has been in secret communication with the County Council. These tramcars and these steamers have been sent to carry to these very doors the countless numbers that will flock to visit Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Maude in their new playhouse. Misfortune is at once the touchstone of character as it is the test of friendship. We all know with what pluck our friend met the misfortune which befell him, and his troops of friends rejoice to-night to know that the misfortune has only turned to favour and to prettiness. True artists both, tried and trusted by the public as they have long been, trusted (and sometimes tried) by their friends—this audience of friends will, I am sure, join me in wishing them God speed upon their prosperous way. May Cyril Maude long remain his own landlord and his own tenant. In the words which are spoken nightly in another place, 'Upon thy sword sit laurel victory, And smooth success be strewn before thy feet.'"

But this was not the end of the most eventful and agreeable evening. Surrounded by their company, Mr. and Mrs. Maude appeared, and Mr. Maude made a few concluding remarks, thanking Mr. Tree, his dear friend Mr. Charles Frohman, and the public. The old Avenue Theatre, he said, used to be known as "the Seagulls' Rest," it was so chilly and draughty. But now he had for days been wandering up and down trying to find a draught, without any success. He ended by declaring his wife and himself "the obliged, faithful, and affectionate friends and servants" of the public.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The first concert of the spring term was given on Wednesday evening, the programme commencing with Mendelssohn's "Capriccio Brillant," neatly executed by Miss Clotilde S. Hart, her professor, Mr. Norman P. Cummings, playing the second piano. Miss Kathleen Morson, in her violin solo of Tours' "Second Romance," played somewhat timidly, but with good expression and intonation. In Cowen's song, "The Swallows," Miss Ethel Huntley showed evidence of careful training, but a slightly harsh quality of voice; and Miss Beatrice Dunn played Barnett's piano solo, "Valse Caprice," with a light and delicate touch; while Miss Millie Flower proved successful in her solo pianoforte, "In der Nacht," by Schumann, which she performed with evident appreciation of the charming music. A song by Signor Zardo, "Flower and Star," had a careful exponent in Mr. Frank Brook, and Miss Elsie Coe received much applause for her singing of "At the mid hour of night" and "The Birthday," by Cowen; but Miss Nellie Nutt was hardly well suited in Parry's "The Ballad of Meshullemeth." Miss Bessie Timms executed Mylnarski's "Mazurka" for the violin with considerable freedom and ability, and Mr. C. Charles Wells had some success in the once popular melody, "The Yeoman's Wedding Song." A pleasing recitation by Miss Nellie Lake (a pupil of Miss Kate Rorke) of "How Jimmy tended the Baby" caused much amusement, Miss Lake being particularly happy in her imitation of a boy's voice. The accompanist was Miss Jenny Hyman.

GRAND OPERA IN ENGLISH.

An incident occurred at the Opera House, Cork, with one of the Moody-Manners' Opera Companies, reminding us of the experiences artists meet with in South America and elsewhere, of jewels, &c., being showered on the stage. A gentleman was so delighted with the performance of The Bohemian Girl last Saturday night, and the magnificent singing, he said, of the chorus, that he hoped that they would accept a £5 note to do with it what the majority of the chorus liked, as a little memento of his delightful evening. The chorus unanimously agreed to send the money to the Actors' Benevolent Fund. The following are the names of the ladies and gentlemen composing the chorus:—Mesdames Weste, Garland, Wingfield, Terrence, Rigby, Burns, Irving, Carter, Watt, Kelly, Vernon, Keating, Alvord, Wilkinson, Harrow, Baker, Weir, Worsey, Arnold, Penville, Alexander, Stewart, Thane, Jeffries, Manners, McInnes, Macdonald, Freeman, Goodwin, Orgelist, Bailey, Towers, Mrs. Gordon, Mrs. Carter; Messrs. Anderson, Allison, Bailey, Brindle, Brodo, Lumb, Tattersall, Carver, Knight, Heaps, Davies, Beeson King, Murray, Cornwall, Johnstone, Hume, Perry, McDonagh, Thompson, Walton, Mawdesley, Halpin, Alexander, G. King, Morris, Renshaw, Bennett, G. Gordon, B. Gordon, C. Gordon, Rowe, Gulland, Moppett, Carter, and Cliffe.

"WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD."

Farce, in Three Acts, by Charles Marlowe, performed for the first time in London, at Wyndham's Theatre, on Tuesday, Jan. 29.

Mr. James Welch is one of the most original of our comedians, and possesses a quaint personality and eccentric method which are difficult to describe and define, but are obvious to all who see him on the stage. First came his appearance with Mr. Wilson Barrett in The Golden Ladder at the Globe in 1887; and who can forget his performance in My Friend the Prince at the Garrick in 1697, and his remarkable rendering of the amiable young aristocrat in The New Clown at Terry's Theatre, in 1901? Such experiences as being chosen as successor to Dan Leno in the Drury Lane pantomime of 1904, and that of being cast for the funny part of Mr. Hopkinson in the piece of that name at the New Theatre in 1905, have helped to modify Mr. Welch's style, though they have not greatly affected it. His latest London exploit, the representation of the chivalrous shoemaker in Mr. H. A. Jones's Heroic Stubbs at Terry's, showed him at his best in the mixture of humour and pathos, which is really his strong point; though he can, when he chooses, "drop into" the most extravagant comedy. There is, indeed no actor on the stage who can "play the fool" with more delicious abandon, with gayer irresponsibility, and with a more evasive touch of underlying pathos, than Mr. Welch can. The gifts of this "great little" comedian would have redeemed a far worse farce than When Knights were Bold, by "Charles Marlowe," produced at Wyndham's Theatre last Tuesday evening, after a successful tour in the provinces.

When Knights Were Bold, which was first seen at the Theatre Royal, Nottingham, on Sept. 17, 1906, and approached as near London as Croydon in the following October, belongs to the order of "dream plays." The scene of the first act is the Knight's Room, Beechwood, in 1906. Sir Guy de Vere is the very modern and rather degenerate scion of a long line of notable ancestors, with whom he is very constantly compared, to his own disadvantage and irritation, by his cousin, Lady Rowena Eggington, to whose charms he has long been a captive. She does not look upon his suit unfavourably; but she is in love with everything appertaining to "the days of old," and urges Sir Guy to live up to the ideals of the past. Sir Guy is too nonest and straightforward to pander to Rowena's folly; but a certain impecunious Irishman, Sir Brian Ballymote, who has an eye on the young lady's fortune, does not hesitate to take advantage of her passion; and, fired by the stories he tells her of his ancient lineage and personal deeds of valour, she is more than half inclined to listen to him. Sir Brian is aided and abetted in his plans by a Jewish financier, Sir Isaac Isaacson, who wishes to secure Sir Guy for his daughter Sarah. In a dream, Sir Guy finds himself back in the "days of old," with all his old friends and companions; but the incongruity—and, consequently, the laughter of the audience—arises from the fact that, whereas the others have entirely adopted the dress, manners, and ideas of the twelfth century, Sir Guy remains the "slangy" little lordling of the present day. The original plot of the play is very cleverly interwoven and repeated in the dream, Sir Guy and Sir Brian being still rivals for the hand of the fair Rowena. Sir Guy is challenged to mortal combat, and vanquishes his enemy with his fists, having discarded his armour. On his awakening, his mind is still so impregnated with the spirit of the "days of old" that he attacks all and sundry, and he proves to Rowena that Sir Brian is a coward, and that the olden times were in no way preferable to modern days.

Mr. Welch did not spare his efforts on Tuesday; and, working his hardest in the part of Sir Guy de Vere, created a vast amount of fun. Mr. Welch, who seems to be droller and quainter than ever, is irresistibly funny as Sir Guy, and keeps the audience chuckling with delight whenever he is on the stage. He is very seldom off, and if laughter be the criterion of success, Mr. Marlowe's play will be certain to please and amuse the patrons of Wyndham's. Mr. Arthur Grenville contributes a clever character-study of a modern Jew. Mr. Grenville's performance is a very excellent piece of work; the gestures, the tricks of posture, and slight thickness of utterance show careful study and minute observation, and there is a very pleasant absence of exaggeration. Mr. Gordon Tomkins enacts the Butler and the Seneschal with genuine ability; Mr. Charles Weir makes the most of the rather poor part of Sir Brian Ballymote, his "brogue" being capital; and Mr. Guy Lane plays Sir Peter Pottlebury with due clerical smugness and unction. Mr. Henry J. Ford is good as the Hon. Charles Widdicombe, his song and dance in the second act being loudly applauded; Mr. George F. Tully plays Wittle with a good deal of humour; and Mr. Leopold Profeit is a haughty and impressive herald. We are glad to welcome Miss Audrey Ford back to London in the part of Lady Rowena; artistically she makes a capital foil to the Sir Guy of Mr. James Welch. Miss Ford is an actress who deserves a permanent place on the London stage, and we cannot spare her to the provinces any longer. Miss Emma Gwynne plays the Hon. Mrs. Waldegrave very naturally; and the three hoydens—Lady Millicent, Lady Marjorie Egginton, and Kate Pottlebury—have pleasant representatives in Miss Estelle Winwood, Miss Enid Sass, and Miss Vivienne West. Miss Annie Chippendale is very good as the maid, Alice Barker, her elocution being noticeably excellent.

The piece is embellished with some pretty tableaux of mediæval knights and damsels. Mr. Percy Greenbank deserves credit for the song above alluded to, which is in his best style; and Mr. Brigata Bucalossi's incidental music is worthy of the pen of that gifted and experienced conductor and composer. The scenery, by Mr. Bruce Smith, is very pretty and suitable, and the piece is exceedingly well dressed. Every endeavour has evidently been made to make When Knights Were Bold acceptable to the public; and Mr. Frederic Norton's capital monologue, which serves as a prelude to the farce, is a most agreeable item of the evening, and is well worth the attention of all early visitors to Wyndham's.

"THE LADY DANDIES" AT DALY'S.

Mr. George Edwardes has been careful to explain to an interviewer that he never quite agreed with the title adopted for the Sardou-Felix opera on its production at Daly's, and with additions to the score written in the vein of musical comedy and some additional fun he has renamed it The Lady Dandies. In Les Merveilleuses Sardou conjured up a departed and almost forgotten world—strange, eccentric, feverishly excitable, melancholy and gay by turns, turbulent but dazzling. Many of these qualities remain; but from the point of view of the box-office the piece has been strengthened, and the introduction of Mr. Huntley Wright into the cast brings back to the theatre a comedian of whom Londoners never tire.

Mr. Wright's reception on Wednesday night was one of which any stage favourite might be proud, and his estimable qualities as a dispenser of humour have been exactly gauged in some cleverly written new numbers by Basil Hood, of which the music is by Mr. Lionel Monckton. He opened with "A Lady with a Dowry," but a greater success followed in "Publicity," by the same author and composer. The annexed verse taken from it will show that "period" imposes no responsibilities on the muse of musical comedy:—

"There's a curious word, 'Corelli,' means to blush behind a fan,
On which is plainly printed, 'Recognise me if you can!'
While another word to 'Winston' means to push yourself until You're as plain before the public as a church upon a hill!"

This was vigorously encored, and new verses will most likely crop up. Mr. Wright—of course we ought to mention it—plays St. Amour, the prefect without pluck—a part which Mr. W. H. Berry took up on the first night in place of Mr. Graves. This clever comedian is now seen in the character of Tournesol, and gives a very clever and diverting sketch of the police agent of Carnot. Mr. Fred Kaye is screamingly funny, too, as Malicorne, and the scene between Malicorne, St. Amour, and Tournesol is now worked up to a very droll pitch, the duet between the two members of the "force" being also a very funny affair. Miss Evie Greene is interesting to watch and a delight to hear. Her broad sense of fun, her striking individuality, and her superb appearance dominate each situation in which she appears. Lodoïska has a very pretty opening number, in which she sings "Grace and beauty can be seen by you!" Exactly so; and the gauzy robes that the charming actress wears only accentuate the beauty of her contour. She revels in the character, and her success therein is of the most pronounced character. Miss Denise Orme's success as one of the Little Michus naturally suggested to Mr. Edwardes her choice for the part of Illyrine, played in the Parisian production by no less an artist than Céline Chaumont. Miss Orme has a poetic charm of manner, and nothing could be sweeter or more tender than her rendering of "Cuckoo," one of the musical gems of the piece. Another peculiarly happy inspiration of the composer is the duet "It might have been." The success of this is shared by Mr. Robert Evett as Dorlis, the young Republican officer who returns from the Napoleonic campaign in Italy to find his bride appropriated by another. Mr. Evett obtains another triumph in his solo "Illyrine."

Miss Elizabeth Firth as Liane has been endowed with a new number in "Lovers, make your pretty play-time happy as the day is long," the words being by Basil Hood and the melody by Eustache de Lorey. She does the melody complete justice. Mr. Louis Bradfield puts a deal of gaiety and lightness into the rôle of Lagorille, and acts and sings with complete success, being especially happy in his rendering of "The Merveilleuses Brigade." Miss Gabrielle Ray dances prettily as Eglé, and her pas de deux with Mr. Willie Warde, who plays Des Gouttières with a quiet sense of fun, is one of the best things in the piece. Mr. V. O'Connor and Mr. Gordon Cleather fulfil their responsibilities cleverly as the dandies Valcourt and Melval; the Merveilleuses have the most fascinating representatives possible in the Misses Nina Sevening, D. Dunbar, M. Erskine, P. Barker, and Mabel Munroe; and adequate aid to the general efficiency of a brilliant cast is furnished by Messrs. A. J. Evelyn, J. Murphy, N. Greene, and J. Boddy. The costumes and appointments are superb, and the scenery, by Hawes Craven and Joseph Harker, most artistic. Mr Willie Clarkson's wigging is, of course, of the best. Mr. Barter Johns conducts the performance most ably and directs a fine band and chorus.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

An important event of last week was the production of Smetana's Die Verkaufte Braut, on Thursday, Jan. 24. This opera, which is the only really popular one written by the composer, was originally produced at Prague in 1866, and first heard in London in 1895, when the Saxe-Coburg Company performed the opera at Drury Lane. Smetana, the Bohemian composer, was born in Leitomischl, on March 2, 1824, and became in time a pupil of the famous Liszt. He had written several humorous operas before his chief success, The Bartered Bride, and it is worthy of remark that this work was written while the composer was quite deaf. The story of this lively and amusing work is quite simple. Marie, the daughter of a peasant, is in love with Hans, but a marriage broker offers her father, Kruschina, the choice of a richer son-in-law in the person of a son of Micha, named Wenzel, and the broker exerts all his persuasive powers to get young Hans to give up the lady. Hans at last consents, but on condition he receives the sum of 300 crowns, and that Marie shall only wed the son of Micha. The reason of this condition appears when it is found that Hans is a long-lost son of the rich Micha, and of course then all ends happily. One of the principal features of this opera is the delightful and animated overture (admirably played by the London Symphony Orchestra), the characteristic choral dance in the first act, and the original "Furiant" dance in the second. The plaintive music allotted to the part of Marie is not without charm, and very amusing was the stuttering song of Wenzel, Micha's somewhat silly son. The opera was well mounted and capitally interpreted. Frau Bosetti made a most charming Marie, using her bright soprano voice most effectively; while the Hans of Herr Franz Naval was good, both vocally and dramatically. The comic character of Kezal, the marriage-broker, and the stuttering Wenzel were also excellently performed by Herr Karl Marx and Herr Hans Bussard; and Frau Minnie Nast gave a sparkling rendering of the part of Esmeralda, prima donna of the strolling players. In the minor part of Agnes, Fräulein Rosa Olitzka was very successful, and, indeed, all concerned worked hard to secure the spirit of fun and merriment so characteristic of the opera. Herr Franz Schalk made a skilful conductor, and mention must also be made of Mr. Harry Brook's pretty scenery. There was a moderate audience, and it is extremely doubtful if Die Verkaufte Braut ever becomes really popular in this country. The cold reception accorded to the clever Barber of Bagdad, given in last summer's season at Covent Garden, and Donizetti's graceful Don Pasquale evidently shows that light opera is not very welcome there.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Compton (Miss Miriam Holt) terminate a long engagement with The Breed of the Treshams at Swindon on Saturday next. Past engagements have included parts in Monsieur Beaucaire, Our Flat, The Private Secretary, &c.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA. 1850—1900.

(COPYRIGHT.)

In these columns it is proposed to give a strictly alphabetical arrangement of the titles of plays produced during the last fifty years. It will be the most complete list ever published, and should prove invaluable to authors desiring to discover whether a certain title has ever been used, and when. To members of the dramatic profession it will be useful in determining the dates of plays in which they have achieved successes. Our readers are politely requested to advise us of any omission or inaccuracy which they may notice.

This list as soon as complete will be published in cheap book form.

DUCHESS, BALHAM.

Mr. Ross has been successful in securing a most capable company here for this week, who, throwing their whole heart and soul into their work, have the satisfaction of knowing that their efforts to amuse are appreciated to the utmost. The programme contains many items of interest, and it is plainly evident that the unearthing process has commenced. The ball is set rolling in no uncertain manner by Miss Kitty Malone, who unfortunately is the possessor of a very nasty cold. Dressed as a Gibson Girl, she has a capital song about this much-talked-of person, which is set to most tuneful music, and it was a pity that she did not feel well enough to give another. A most interesting sketch is that which is being presented by Sylvia Cavalho and Co., entitled Lulu. The scene is an actress's dressing-room behind the stage of a London theatre that a successful provincial author has taken to present his piece, which has been all the rage in the provinces. Instead of giving the part of the leading lady to the person who had created it, and whom, posing as a single man, he has betrayed, he engages some well-known star. Unknown to him, she, however, gets wind of this, and comes to London, accompanied by her aunt, to see the great star act. She goes round to the back to interview her paramour, and whilst in the midst of a stormy scene with him word is brought that a motor accident will prevent the star from appearing. Placed between the devil and the deep sea, he induces the girl, by professing his great love for her, to take the part. At the end of the first act, on returning to her room she finds a lady there who is unknown to her. She turns out to be the actor-manager's wife, and, more extraordinary still, not a bit interested in theatrical matters, and who, unknown to anyone, has come round to the actress's room simply to congratulate her. The actress, who had never suspected this, succeeds, however, in keeping her relations with the other woman's husband a secret from her, and at last persuades her to depart. Then enters the husband himself, and she confronts him with what she has just discovered. The infuriated, yet heartbroken woman is at last reminded that she is due in the second act, but she absolutely refuses to go on. However, after much persuasion, she is induced to do so, as by so doing she is told that she will greatly assist the poor, with whom she is a great sympathiser. The part of Lulu, the betrayed woman, is in the hands of a most capable actress, who fairly carries the audience with her, and she is ably backed up by the rest of the cast. The Three Consol Girls present some neat and clever dancing; and Jack Charman has a very entertaining act, entitled "Folks That Live the Longest," in which he appears to great advantage. Richard Finburg, a character actor of considerable ability, is giving some capital impersonations. Amongst others may be mentioned Svengali from Trilby, Charles Warner's Coupeau, in the death scene from Drink, and Shakespeare's Henry the Fifth before the warriors of Harfleur. Miss Sybil Montague is singing a couple of numbers which are much appreciated. One in an Irish song, and the other "Cuckoo," and in the latter especially her voice is well suited. Another turn well out of the ordinary is that presented by the Czar's Russian Dancers. Four in number, they prove themselves past masters in the art of terpsichore, and their quaint and original manner commends itself to all. E. Cranston and company are presenting the racing sketch entitled Terry, in which the hero, a stable boy, in charge of a horse backed to win a fortune in a race on the following day, is tried to be got at, and thus clear the way for the confederates to drug the horse. As is only to be expected, the scheme fails, and the hero comes out on top. Miss Nora Royston, with a couple of capital numbers, is a welcome addition to the bill. She scores best with her "Good-night, Mr. Brown, I'm out," the chorus of which is readily taken up by the house. Another sketch which is on the bill is Princess Katchi, in which is appearing Miss Queenie Lawrence. This is a very entertaining sketch, which also includes some very tuneful songs. The part of Gwendolen is undoubtedly the most important, and is in the hands of an able comedienne, whose clever dancing earns for her a most hearty encore. All through she acts her part with a quaint yet droll manner, and succeeds in getting the maximum of humour from her part. The performance would nowadays not be complete without some pictures on the Bioscope, and those that are being shown this week are certainly of a very novel and up-to-date kind.

THE FORESTERS'.

Frequenters of the Foresters' were this week regaled with a programme of exceeding strength and variety, which gave lively satisfaction to Mr. Frank Macnaghten's loyal patrons. An elaborate production of a melodramatic sketch, entitled Sexton Blake, formed the basis of the bill. The sketch, details of which were given in our last issue, deals with the adventures of a detective, whose exploits prove quite as exciting as those of the famous Sherlock Holmes. Mr. C. Douglas Carlile, who goes about his work in immaculate evening dress, exhibited all the necessary aplomb and coolness as the "private inquiry agent," and acted with acuteness and skill. Mr. Chas. A. Carlile represented the head of a secret brotherhood in a way that accurately answers to the description of "Master Criminal," which is allotted to the character; and an impressive piece of acting was done by Miss Carlotta Do Yonson, as a lady, who is aided in her fight against the brotherhood by the dauntless detective. Mr. Lee Gilbert was a comic exponent of the resourceful Tinker; Mr. M. Langdale deserved commendation as a Russian conspirator; and the other parts were suitably sustained.

Two additional sketches, one grave and the other gay, were also to be found in the bill. The first was the episode, Under the Seal, which deals dramatically with a priest's successful endeavour to preserve the secrecy of the confessional. In the part of the Rev. Father David, Mr. Herbert Harden was kindly and dignified, as becomes the rôle, and acted with force and conviction; and Mr. Morrice Seaton was duly rough and uncouth as a brutal criminal; while Miss Margaret Parker created a diversion by her skilful rendering of the hoyden Bet. The second playlet consisted of the comedy duologue, Saucy Maud, which is exploited by the Brontes. The piece is chiefly notable for the impersonation by the lady of the duo of a plump and pert "slavey," whose eccentricities extend so far as to lead her to impersonate an actress and make love to her admirer. The sketch appealed powerfully to the ludicrous perception of the audience, who followed its progress hilariously.

Extremes meet in the case of Henry Cot, the French Giant, and Prince Colibri, the Russian Midget. The former, aged 21, is 8ft. 7in. in height, weighs 390lb., and is still growing, and the latter is 1ft. 11¾in. high, scales only 8¼lb., and has passed his twenty-fifth birthday. Quite a mild excitement is caused by the appearance of the oddly-assorted pair in the auditorium, where a general handshaking is indulged in all round, the mighty grip of the giant contrasting vividly with the timid grasp of his puny companion. Miss Florence displays her talents for mimicry in imitations of Miss Victoria Monks and Happy Fanny Fields, the dance of the latter artist being faithfully represented. The clever young lady is on less sure ground in her representation of Mr. Harry Champion, but with the aid of a brown hat and a close copy of the quick comedian's methods, she provides a marvellous likeness, the double-shuffle at the end being also reproduced. The comedienne is recalled again and again.

Imitations are also given by Mr. Arthur Croxon, who burlesques a village quartet singing, "O, Zephyrs Blow," in which he sustains all the parts. Travesties of a little girl, and of a husband and wife indulging in a "quarrelling duet," wedded to the airs of popular songs, both gain unlimited approval and an enthusiastic demand for an encore. The Rhoda Brothers do marvellous tricks on flying rings and slack wire, which one of the partners supports with his teeth, and they also excel as balancers. Swift bears out his name by executing a rapid oil-painting of a basket of flowers, besides sketching with lightning speed portraits of eminent men; and the Sisters Beatrice please all in duet and dance; the programme being concluded by the ever-acceptable Raymond's Bio-Tableaux.

ROYAL STANDARD.

Up to the time of writing the Royal Standard has not been disturbed by the commotion in the music-hall world, and probably this fact, coupled with the excellent programme provided, accounts for the overflowing audiences which have this week gladdened the managerial heart. The name which Mme. Sims Reeves bears is one which will always ensure the possessor a respectful hearing from a London audience, and that is quickly changed into enthusiasm by the lady's splendid rendering of various popular ballads, her interpretation of "Come back to Erin" being an especially delightful performance. Rel and Butt are two comedians whose eccentric dancing and tumbling are provocative of much merriment, while their patter is characterised by pleasing freshness. The Mayvilles, in their Lilliputian music hall, introduce a sort of glorified marionette entertainment, the heads of the lady and gentleman being superimposed upon pigmy bodies. Their character singing is extremely amusing. Hughes and Elliott prove themselves to be excellent exponents of the art of sand-dancing; and Mr. Laurie Stuart's comicalities create much laughter. Miss Dorothy Vell is received with acclamation for her rendering of "I want no other girl but you, Loo"; and Miss Irene Molden is an engaging and attractive comedienne.

In the persons of Tom Bryce and company an extra turn is added to an already lavish bill. Their farcical sketch, Why the Piano Was Not Tuned, is greeted with roars of laughter, the characters of the Yorkshire-Glaswegian, the amorous Hebrew, and the embarrassed lady whose piano required tuning being all represented in an intensely funny fashion. Mr. Carter Livesey and Miss Lilian Rosebery are presenting their successful skit, The Would-be Actors Rehearsing a Drama. Few sketches on the variety boards to-day contain such an abundance of humour. Mr. Carter Livesey is indeed a droll fellow, with his slow Yorkshire enunciation; and the assumption of seriousness on the part of the two stage aspirants is well sustained by Miss Rosebery and Mr. Albert Mason. Miss Ethel Arundel is endowed with considerable personal and vocal attractions, but these are not seen and heard to their best advantage in the ditty detailing the loves of a Chinaman and an English maiden. The fault, however, is in the lines, and not in the singing of them. The versatile Mr. Phil Ray gives us his amusing parody on "The Village Blacksmith" and "Who's that a-calling?" and ample evidence of the position he holds in the estimation of his hearers is furnished by his being recalled again and again.

It is an interesting romance that Mr. Albert Ward and company treat us to in The Profligate King, which can be said to reach a dramatic altitude rarely attained on the music hall stage. Mr. Ward is supported by a capable company, in which Mr. F. R. Besley figures as the libertine monarch, Mr. Frank Leslie as the bold, bad traitor minister, Miss Dora Mansell as the graceful heroine, and Miss Frances Alleyne as the stately Duchess of Pellitsa. Mr. Ward himself is a manly representative of Leandre Caselli, whose daring resolution eventuates in the confusion of his enemies and his own happy union with his lady love. The scenery is of an unusually elaborate character, and the costumes are of a picturesque sumptuousness. Miss Helena Sleath and Mr. Charles Aldin give an entertaining operatic scena, entitled Under the Shamrock, their vocalisation being of a high order. A coloured comedian of much originality and quaintness is found in Mr. Kit Keene; and the pictures shown by the Edisonograph are unmistakably clear and of first-rate quality.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

On the occasion of our visit to this establishment on Wednesday there was a crowded house enjoying the good things provided. Miss Edith Sylvesto again exhibited her extraordinary skill as a contortionist; and Mr. Geo. Westland's Scotch ditties were as effective as clever. Mr. Bates Maddison's company, in Charley's Uncle, caused much fun. A comely, but untidy lady, Dolly, appears on the stage minus her dress, having lost the key of the wardrobe. To make matters worse, the husband's uncle, Charley, with a penchant for order and tidiness, appears on the scene. The uncle, a retired Custom House officer, is an eccentric "who shivers in the presence of a lady." The husband departs to attend to a patient, and the Uncle Charley fills in the moments by cross-examining a somewhat erratic and garrulous domestic. Anon Dolly appears, still minus her dress, a friendly shawl doing duty for the missing frock. A lively tête-à-tête ensues, in which the usual misunderstandings occur; but, anon, all ends happily. The sketch is capitally played, but a doubtful allusion or two might be deleted with advantage. The Minnesota Quintette evidence their ability to play a variety of instruments, their manipulation of the same being highly interesting. The orchestra give a really admirable rendition of The Prince of Pilsen, the various airs recalling the memories of the opera. Another sketch follows, entitled Captain Cupid, V.C. The old story of a marriage prearranged is again the motif, and very cleverly is it handled. Captain Cupid really doesn't worry very much, and when the first lady appears he instantly makes love to her as Mr. Sam Weller would call at "40-horse power." Having "proposed," he allows the lady five minutes to make up her mind. Miss Lovell, No. 1, having retired to debate matters, her sister next appears, whereon the gallant Lothario promptly proposes to her, and is accepted. Anon, Miss Lovell, No. 1 appears, both claiming the naughty captain, and finding he has been playing a double game, they proceed to chastise him. Then a brilliant, if not altogether original idea, occurs to the wary captain. He will feign madness, get a refusal from both, and thus satisfy the parental edict. His scheme succeeds, and the curtain rings down to a dual refusal. Mr. G. C. Doughty worked tremendously hard in the title-rôle, and was efficiently supported by the fair members of the company, whose names should, in justice to everyone, appear on the programme. Little Don, as a miniature, but bibulous son of Mars, caused a lot of fun; his business is clever, his dancing grotesque, and his patter droll. It is the age of living statuary, and Mlle. Clasen's Living Art Bronzes may be classified among the most successful now before the public. Two ladies and four gentlemen are engaged in the representation. The grouping of the various tableaux is excellent, and the poses admirably sustained. The Bioscope concludes a fine show.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

T. F.—Little Mary, by J. M. Barrie, was produced at Wyndham's, Sept. 24, 1903.

R. C. J.—His Excellency the Governor was produced at the Court, June 11, 1898, and was revived at the Criterion, Feb. 14, 1900, where it ran about three months. On March 12, 1904, the piece was revived at the Duke of York's, with Miss Irene Vanbrugh, Mr. H. B. Irving, and Mr. Dion Boucicault in the principal parts.

J. D.—Carmen, with an English libretto by Henry Hersee, was produced at Her Majesty's Theatre on Feb. 5, 1879, with Mme. Selina Dolaro as the heroine. Other versions have since been produced.

H. N. C. — (1) Mr. Frederick B. Chatterton, the theatrical manager, died in 1886. (2) He was lessee of Drury Lane Theatre from 1866 until 1879.

Mac.—Miss Nelly Bromley was the original representative of Dolly Mayflower in Burnand's Black-Eyed Susan, produced at the Royalty Theatre on Nov. 29, 1866. It ran until Sept. 23, 1868.

Percy Smith.—We have not been able to ascertain whether "Gentleman" Smith ever played the part of Ironspark in The Silver Palace, but no doubt the picture has reference to that actor.

Lita Smith.—(1) We believe not; consult Southey's "Life of Lord Nelson." (2) The most probable explanation is that the programmes printed on good paper were sold in the higher-priced parts of the house. (3) We can find no record of her death.

C. B. Kendall.—We do not know of any; you might obtain some information by making inquiries at any one of the local public halls where entertainments are given.

F. H. P.—We have no knowledge of the lady and gentleman mentioned.

Charles Sheard and Co.—Arthur Lloyd died on July 20, 1904, the day after his friend, Herbert Campbell. Both dates are given in the Dramatic and Musical Calendar of The Era Annual for 1907, which may be obtained at our offices, 3, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

J. W. Thompson.—We think you are mistaken. Anyhow, we have failed to find any record of their appearing together in the play mentioned.

BIRTHS, MARRIAGES, & DEATHS.

The charge for inserting in "The Era" an announcement of a Birth or Death or an "In Memoriam" notice, not exceeding twenty-four words, is One Shilling and Sixpence, every additional word One Penny.

The charge for a notice of Marriage, not exceeding forty words, is Two Shillings and Sixpence, every additional word One Penny.

As a guarantee of good faith, the name and address of the sender must accompany each notice.

MARRIAGES.

Newlands—Goddard.—On Monday, the 28th Jan., at St. Paul's, Covent Garden, by the Rev. E. H. Mosse, George, second son of the late Joseph Newlands, of Carluke, Lanarkshire, to Elizabeth, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Goddard, of Maiden Lane, Strand, and Shillingford, Oxon.

DEATHS.

Chappell.—Jan. 30, at his residence, Dorsett House, Marine-parade, Great Yarmouth, James Chappell, in his 79th year.

Davies.—Jan. 30, at 9, Manor-road, Stoke Newington, William Davies, aged 47, the well-known composer of Welsh songs, and for twelve years a member of St. Paul's Cathedral, also professor at the Guildhall School of Music.

Hall.—Jan. 20, at Bradford, Albert Hall, songwriter, aged 43.

Marsh.—Died on Wednesday, 30th, at her residence, 164, Mitcham-lane, Streatham, Maria Marsh, aged 76, mother of Mrs. Percy Delevine. Deeply regretted.

Klobt.—Jan. 29, the beloved faithful wife of Wm. B. Bostock, after six hours' illness, passed away at our home, 18, Brighton-street, Oxford-road, Manchester. Sadly mourned by her broken-hearted husband.

Poole.—Jan. 18, at Newbury, of heart disease, Frederick Poole, of Poole's Myriorama, and theatrical proprietor.

For Sympathy.

Mrs. James Manders and family wish to thank all kind friends for their deep sympathy in their great loss and sad bereavement; also those that sent beautiful wreaths and letters and telegrams of condolence. Letters too numerous to answer. In the midst of life we are in death.

In Memoriam.

Rezene.—In loving and affectionate remembrance of my dear wife (Miss Polly Cusick), Mrs. Chas. Rezene (Rezene and Robini), who departed this life Jan. 31, 1903. May her soul rest in peace.

Reardon.—In affectionate remembrance of Eleanor Reardon, the beloved wife of Edward L. Garside, who passed away Jan. 31, 1907.

Taylor.—In ever-loving memory of Will Taylor, who died Jan. 29, 1901. Never forgotten by his wife and family.

At the City Hall, Cork, on Sunday afternoon, the four city brass bands gave a concert to raise a band fund. Mr. Charles Manners and Mr. John Child contributed. Mr. Manners sang "Nazareth" in magnificent style, and as an encore gave "Father O'Flynn" in spirited fashion. Mr. Child rendered "The Star of Bethlehem" with great beauty of expression and responded to an encore with "Songs of Araby." The hall was filled to overflowing. Herr Richard Eckhold played the accompaniments.

In connection with the Belfast branch of the British Empire Shakespeare Society, A Midsummer Night's Dream was read on Monday evening last in the Ulster Medical Institute, Belfast. The play was cut according to the late Sir Henry Irving's edition, and was interspersed by Mendelssohn's beautiful vocal and instrumental music. The different parts were admirably sustained, and the reading was thoroughly successful.

COVENT GARDEN BALL.

Covent Garden presented its usual animated appearance on the evening of the 25th ult., on the occasion of the fortnightly dance. The attendance was quite equal to the average. A beautiful white satin dress with panels depicting Poppy Land, and named "The Garden of Sleep," took the first prize—a handsome sable muff. The second prize, an inlaid mahogany writing-table, was won by the costume "Dixie the Land of Cotton." Mr. W. Clarkson gained fourth prize for "All the latest," which depicted many topics that have come prominently before the public recently. A large swan skin represented the Arctic weather, and there were pictures of Kingston and the late and present Shah, as well as allusions in millinery and trimmings to the Berlin crisis and the music-hall strike. An earthquake head-dress completed this up-to-date costume. Another of Mr. Clarkson's designs which caught the eye was a Magpie Toreador in black and white; and "True Friends" consisted of a skirt of the national colours, an admiral's coat and cocked hat, and panels illustrative of England's friendship to various nations. The entire costume was draped with English and American flags. Special prizes were won by the following dresses:—"A Modern Cleopatra," "Far from the Madding Crowd," "The Polar Regions," "Two Roses," "Rule Britannia," and "Winter." Mr. Dan. Godfrey's band delighted the company with selections of popular music. The next ball is to be held on Shrove Tuesday, the 12th inst., when a handsome souvenir is to be presented to each lady.

"VENGEANCE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I notice a sketch was produced last week at the Palace, Hammersmith, under the above title. Allow me to state that I produced a Mexican-Indian episode, entitled Vengeance, at the People's Palace, Portsmouth, on Feb. 6, 1905, and played it for one week. As I have sold the sketch, I wish you would kindly publish this in fairness to the gentleman who has bought it, and intends playing it in London shortly.—Yours faithfully, WILFRED H. BENSON.
Dundee, Jan. 29.

MR. EDITOR.—Sir,—In your Devonport notice last week you spelt our names Carr and Carr. They should have been, yours faithfully, CARL and CARR, comedians.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,

BY ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

ACTORS ABROAD.

An important and eagerly expected event of the coming season will be the appearance of Mr. BEERBOHM TREE at the New Royal Opera House, Berlin, in Antony and Cleopatra. The wide-embracing mind of the German Emperor has followed the revival of the play in London with great interest; and the KAISER will honour the first performance with his presence. At frequent intervals performances take place at the German theatres of pieces translated from the English. Mr. BERNARD SHAW'S You Never Can Tell was done in German at the Kleines last year; and so were a play based on Sherlock Holmes and a version of A Wife Without a Smile. But a visit from a leading London actor is an unusual occurrence; and Mr. TREE'S opening on April 12th will be a brilliant and momentous one.

Mr. TREE has been preceded in his exploration of the Fatherland by Sir CHARLES WYNDHAM, whose success in Berlin was complete, as Mr. EDGAR PEMBERTON tells us in his excellent biography of the admired actor. It was in 1887 that Sir CHARLES translated David Garrick into German, and in that language, and—with the exception of Miss MARY MOORE—supported by a German company, he successfully carried out the bold experiment of playing it, first at Liegnitz and then at Berlin. The trial performances at Liegnitz were given with anxious hearts, and for the following reasons. The German engagement was made in the summer, on the reputation of the great London success; but when the Liegnitz manager read the translation in the autumn he took the strongest objection to its being played. It was his first season in management, and he was so alarmed at the possibilities of failure that he tried all sorts of inducements to persuade CHARLES WYNDHAM to abandon the engagement. The English manager would have been very pleased to do so, relying on the German manager's experience of German audiences, had the engagement not been widely announced in the English newspapers. It was impossible for him, therefore, to withdraw. The Teuton then made the curious decision to tell everybody, critics included, that he feared he had made a mistake, and that the piece, which he had taken simply on its reputation, was not up to the level of German requirements. When CHARLES WYNDHAM suggested to him that it was very bad policy, seeing that he was bound to go on with it, he confessed that he had done so because that was his first season, and he wanted to preserve his reputation as a wise one in his selections. Manager and actor, however, were very friendly together, and at last the great night came. All the élite of Berlin were there, including the British Ambassador and his staff. The English actor's wife and daughter had accompanied the traveller and Miss MOORE to Germany. They were among the first to be seated in the house, and as his daughter understood German, she was very much mortified to hear, in her neighbourhood, somebody telling a friend that they had "come to see the English clowns." Such was the impression made by the manager's forewarnings. As David Garrick is rather a short play, the manager was producing a new one-act German piece, to which he had taken a great fancy, and to which he had given extraordinary preliminary praise in all the newspapers. He cast it with his leading lady and some of the best members of his company. To the surprise of everybody, and to the trepidation of the anxious CHARLES WYNDHAM, the curtain fell on it with a pronounced condemnation of hisses and abuse. David Garrick had not been playing more than eight minutes when its further progress was stopped by the audience recalling Miss MOORE on to the stage after her first exit; and from that moment the piece went on triumphantly, CHARLES WYNDHAM and Miss MOORE being the recipients of an extraordinary compliment at the end of the second act, when the Press sent round an unanimous expression of congratulation. At the end of the piece, Miss MOORE, CHARLES WYNDHAM, and his family were being entertained at a supper at an hotel, about thirty people being present, when the manager, who was being feasted in the same building, begged permission to join the Wyndham circle for a little while, and before he sat down made an eloquent speech, apologising for his adverse criticisms, and acknowledging the great success in art which had been achieved.

Mr. TREE'S visit to Germany will be paid under the most favourable and splendid auspices. He goes to Berlin with a unique reputation as an actor-manager. His enterprise has been as extraordinary as it has been artistic. He has never been content to keep in a single groove, or to rest on his reputation. He is always trying new experiments; and most of them are successful, and all are inspired by the advancing, exploring spirit of the true artist. Carping critics may object to some of his exploits, but no one can be blind to the mass of his achievements. Serious Scandinavian dramas like An Enemy of the People, poetical-historical plays like Nero, and, above all, his superb, thoughtful, and attractive revivals of SHAKESPEARE, have given Mr. TREE a rank and a status which well fit him to bear the laurels of the English drama to Berlin. German audiences are certain to appreciate and admire his work as warmly as it has been appreciated and admired by his fellow-countrymen. Mr. TREE'S appearance in the German capital, in the presence of the Kaiser, will help to increase the friendly feeling which exists between the bulk of the English people and the Teutons, and to remove many of the prejudices which, unfortunately for both nations, are cherished by a minority.

THE cast of The Cassilis Engagement, the comedy in four acts by St. John Hankin, which will be produced under the auspices of the Stage Society at the Imperial on Sunday, Feb. 10, and the following afternoon, will consist of Misses Maudi Darrell, Florence Haydon, Isabel Roland, Evelyn Weeden, Gertrude Burnett, Clare Greet, Margaret Mackenzie, and K. M. Romsey, and Messrs. Langhorne Burton, Sam Sothern, F. Morland, and Ralph Hutton. The Society will pursue the plan of closing the doors at the rise of the curtain, after which no admission can be obtained until the end of the first act.

Now that the children have enjoyed to the full the feast of amusement provided by Mr. Arthur Collins at Old Drury, and have returned to their studies, their elders are afforded an opportunity of seeing Sindbad, the run of which must now be comparatively short owing to the unusually early arrival of Easter. All the artists are now back in their parts, having successfully grappled with the indisposition which a severe winter inflicted on each in turn, and probably never before have such a number of stars in a Christmas annual at Old Drury worked so harmoniously for the delectation of the patrons of the National Theatre.

THE half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Hyde Theatre Company, Ltd., was held on Saturday afternoon, when Ald. W. J. Sherry, J.P., presided over a large gathering. A lengthy discussion arose over the payment of a dividend, and it was ultimately decided to declare one at the rate of 2½ per cent. Ald. W. J. Sherry, Messrs. W. Robinson, S. Richardson, and W. Whitehead were appointed directors, the latter in the place of Mr. G. W. Wild, who did not seek re-election.

HER many friends and admirers will be glad to hear that Miss Olive Marston, the popular principal boy, is fast recovering from her serious operation, and which prevented her appearing this Christmas in pantomime.

"BLUE BEARD," at the Royal County Theatre, Kingston, was withdrawn, after a most prosperous run of five weeks, in consequence of previous contracts entered into. The house was packed on Saturday, most of the lady performers receiving gifts of flowers and boxes of chocolates. The comedians were not forgotten, their presents being of a less aesthetic character. During an interval Mr. Peter Davey, the managing-director, and Mrs. Davey were brought on to the stage and presented by Mr. Edwin Brett (Bluebeard), on behalf of the company, with a handsome pair of entree dishes, suitably inscribed. Mr. Davey suitably acknowledged the gift.

SEVERAL English artists will appear at the matinée which M. Mayer will give at the Royalty on Friday, Feb. 15, in aid of the French Hospital in London, and of the Lord Mayor's fund for the sufferers by the Jamaica earthquake. The programme will be contributed to by Miss Marie Tempest, Miss Edna May, and Mr. Lewis Waller, in addition to the French players, who will include Mme. Jane Hading and Mlle. Granier.

A TENTATIVE performance of a new musical play called The Gipsy Girl, written and composed by Claude Arundale, was given at the Waldorf on Monday afternoon, and the piece, the plot of which bears a resemblance to that of the opera The Bohemian Girl, gave such promise of success that it has been decided to make it the evening attraction at the Waldorf about the beginning of March. The two principal parts were successfully sustained by Mr. Fred Eastman and Miss Sybil Arundale.

AT the Theatre Royal, Blyth, the visit this week of Mr. William Maclaren, Miss Lily C. Bandmann, and company, in a revival of Claudian, has proved a brilliant success. Mr. Maclaren is no stranger to Blythites, and his impersonation of the title-rôle was admirable. To Miss Bandmann every praise is due for a charming and graceful rendition of Almida; Thariogalus, the Tetrarch, in the hands of Mr. F. Owen Chambers, was a powerful piece of acting; Mr. Chas. T. Chaloner as Belos, and Miss Maud Garth as Edessa, fully sustained the humour of the play. To Mr. Douglas Earle a word of praise is due for a vigorous portrayal of Agazil; and Mr. Weston Hubbard was seen to advantage as Alcares.

HENGLER'S CIRCUS.

At a matinée performance on Monday a new, up-to-date comical revue, entitled Clownland, written by Mr. Arthur Coomber, was successfully produced. As a prologue to the entertainment proper, a young lady—the fairy of the piece—appeared, and sang a song with a pretty melody, entitled "Clownland." Then came on Mr. Clown, Mr. Pantaloon, Harlequin, and Columbine. A butcher's shop, well stocked with joints, of course offered an irresistible temptation to our old friend, the clown; and he had felonious intentions with regard to a succulent mutton chop, but the butcher was a little too quick for him, and a damaged hand was the result of his attempted petty larceny. A burlesque of the thought-transfer performance given by the Zancigs proved highly entertaining, the representative of Mr. Zancig introducing references to the President of the Local Government Board, Mr. Winston Churchill, and other celebrities of the day. Next a suffragette made her appearance in the circle and insisted on orating, in spite of the expostulations of the manager and the rest of the company. Even the presence of a burly constable had no effect upon the talkative intruder, who appealed to the ladies present to assist her in championing the wrongs suffered by their sex; and eventually she had to be forcibly removed. A good deal of fun was also got out of "Princess Trixie, the thinking donkey," who is to be regarded as a dangerous rival to the famous horse at the Palace. Finally the company and staff, following the fashion set in other quarters, resolve to strike, even the programme girls being involved in the mutiny. This brings the new topical revue to a merry conclusion. The programme does not give the names of the principals, but the members of the harlequinade all worked extremely well together, and their efforts proved extremely successful.

In addition to the new production the programme includes a number of attractive items. Miss Becky Daniels, a graceful equestrienne, accomplishes a series of quick changes of dress while on horseback representative of various nationalities, finally appearing as a Scotch lassie, giving in this character a smart dance that is received with applause. Tamamoto, a Japanese, appears in a wire-walking act in the first part of the programme. He assumes various difficult positions on the wire, and finally spins round like a human top. Later, he climbs a rope and goes through another clever performance, which receives flattering recognition from the audience. He concludes by sliding down the vertical rope enveloped in the English and Japanese national flags. Anderson's asses are two well-trained animals, and the performance they are put through is rendered attractive and interesting by some novel features. The Three Orros are fine specimens of muscular manhood, and their specialities include the supporting of one of their number on a tight-rope held by their teeth. Felix and Waynottee also gain a good reception, one of the twain cleverly catching balls and rings on a spike attached to a helmet. Mr. Eugene Gaertner varies the programme with his juggling; Handy Andy sends the younger portion of the audience into fits of merriment; and other names on the bill are the Brothers Zeno and the Bonanzas on the triple bars. The Filmograph displays an interesting series of animated pictures. Mr. Austin Fryers is the lessee and manager, and Mr. Donelly gives courteous and zealous attention to the Press department.

THE LONDON ANNIVERSARY.

The thirteenth anniversary of the London Shoreditch, was celebrated on Wednesday evening, and a specially-attractive programme was provided. Late in the evening a presentation was made to Mr. Thos. G. Richards, the general-manager. The committee, consisting of residents of the neighbourhood and others, having assembled on the stage, Mr. J. McCarthy came forward and addressed the audience. He explained that the committee represented patrons of the London, and they were present to show their appreciation of its youthful manager, Mr. Tom Richards, son of Mr. Richards, one of the directors. This presentation had been on the tapis for some six months, and had been postponed until the anniversary of the opening of the hall. All who had had any dealings with Mr. Tom Richards must acknowledge that he was a gentleman well worthy of their respect and regard, while his management of the London had given satisfaction to everyone.

Another member of the committee having rather tired the patience of the audience by a long speech in praise of Mr. Richards, Mr. McCarthy read a copy of the illuminated and handsomely-framed address, presented to the manager, and which was accompanied by a case containing, amongst other articles, a solid gold cigar and cigarette-case. The address stated that these were presented as a slight token of the esteem the subscribers entertained for Mr. Richards. They wished him good health and prosperity in any other undertaking with which he might be associated. Mr. Richards, in reply, said that words could not express his sense of their kindness to him. He was pleased to say he had a staff he could rely upon, and a band and conductor he was proud of. In conclusion, he thanked them for the handsome presents they had made him.

The long programme was contributed to by the following, amongst many other artists, the number of "extra turns" being unusually large:—Lottie Collins, Lily Harold, Nellie Wallace, Queenie May, Baby Mills, Ada Cerito, Alexandra Dagmar, Flo D'Orville, Ruby Emmerson, Marie Kendall, Ella Lane, Helen D'Aubigny, Elsie Bernard, G. H. Chirgwin, Ernie Plummer, Ted Cowan, Fred Millis, the Bros. Horne, Harry Harris, the Kentucky Four, Johnny Dwyer, Steve McCarthy, and Arthur Boyne. Both Miss Marie Kendall and Mr. Steve McCarthy were specially greeted with enthusiastic applause. Whilst Mr. Chirgwin was in occupation of the stage someone in the gallery shouted, "When are you going out, George?" to which the comedian replied, "When they call me. But we're all very comfortable and happy here to-night," a remark that evoked much applause. Every lady artist who appeared was presented with a handsome bouquet. Mention should be made of the valuable services rendered by the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Geo. Richardson. The stage-directors were Messrs. J. Dockery, S. Hart, and H. Munro.

PERCY EDGAR, Fred Godfrey, and Kenneth Lyle have placed with the Star Co. an excellent light comedy number, entitled "You can't do without a girl." The melody is one of the most catchy Mr. Lyle has ever written.

A NEW number which Messrs. Francis and Day have in the press is likely to yet further enhance the already high repute in which F. W. Leigh and H. E. Pether are held as author and composer by the profession and the song-buying public. It is called "For auld lang syne; or, My home is far away." Mr. Pether is recovering from an attack of pleurisy which has kept him to his bed for over a week.

THE host of seaside entertainers and pierrots who are comedians are ever on the qui vive for a humorous song which will amuse elders and children alike, and such a one has been disposed of by Mr. Edgar Curtis to Messrs. Francis and Day, and is now in the hands of the printer. It is called "I'm a little bit deaf to-day," and is by Edgar Bateman and Fred W. Leigh.

"SIDNEY CARTON'S SACRIFICE."

Sketch, in Two Scenes, by B. Soane Roby, based upon Dickens' Novel, "A Tale of Two Cities," and Played, for the first time, at the Camberwell Palace, on Monday, Jan. 28.

Sidney Carton .....MR. EDWIN BENNETT
Solomon Barsad .....MR. C. MAYNARD BROWN
Charles Darnay .....MR. E. ST. JOHN
Jacques Frossard .....MR. GEO. SOANE ROBY
Pierre L'Estrange .....MR. FRANK BROWN
Lucie .....MISS KITTY LOFTING

The difficulties of Dickens for the purposes of the stage are in few cases more pronounced than in that of the "Tale of Two Cities," but Mr. Soane Roby has nevertheless succeeded in placing its most effective episode within the limits of a twenty-minute playlet, and has contrived a sketch which is full of interest and exciting to a degree. Mr. Roby has done a very free adaptation of the story of Sidney Carton's self-immolation, and, while preserving all the thrilling characteristics of the romance, has introduced a variation of the episode, by means of which a very dramatic scene is reached. The rising of the curtain reveals Charles Darnay awaiting execution, an affecting scene arising out of the visit of his wife, Lucie. While they are taking a lasting farewell, Sidney Carton arrives in order to put into operation his scheme for the escape of Darnay. Lucie having departed, Carton demands the assistance of the burly gaoler, Solomon Barsad, who, under threats of being denounced as a spy in the pay of the English Government, consents to aid in the plan. After inducing Darnay to write a letter giving a hint of the motive which induced Carton to make the sacrifice, the latter drugs his friend, and, with Barsad's assistance, sends him out to the carriage, to be borne away to safety. The gaoler is suspicious of Carton, and threatens to strangle him if there is any sign of treachery; but Carton is fully determined to meet the consequences of his noble act, and prepares to face the mob who are clamouring for their victim. In the next scene a glimpse is afforded of the tumbril whereon the ill-fated Carton stands by the guillotine and delivers the memorable words familiar to readers of the story before going to his doom.

The sketch was received with the utmost favour, the warmth of which was due, in great part, to its effective presentation at the hands of Mr. Soane Roby's company. The exacting rôle of Sidney Carton was admirably played by Mr. Edwin Bennett, who delivered the lines of the part with well-varied inflexion and admirable phrasing. He gave a vivid realisation of the young man animated by a chivalrous love, and burning to redeem the faults of his youth by an act of surpassing heroism. Mr. Bennett was very impressive, too, in the last sad scene, and was honoured with several recalls. Mr. E. St. John provided a personable Charles Darnay, his elocution being specially commendable; and Miss Kitty Lofting was a strongly-emotional Lucie, speaking her lines with sympathetic feeling. A welcome touch of colour was given to the performance by the Solomon Barsad of Mr. C. Maynard Brown, who made a murderous-looking gaoler and submitted a sound piece of acting. The two scenes were mounted with praiseworthy completeness, the condemned room, with the noisy crowd seated in an adjoining chamber, and the view of the tumbrils, with the execrations of the bloodthirsty mob sounding in the distance, being represented with terror-inspiring realism. The close attention of the audience was held throughout the production, upon which vigorous applause was continuously bestowed

THE EMPIRE PICTURES.

The stage of the Empire, not for the first time, is given up to pictures taken from well-known works, the subjects being represented by living models, backed by cleverly-painted backgrounds. We remember in a former series that Miss Constance Collier—then a beautiful girl in her early teens—posed as Cleopatra, a part to which the ripened experience and cultured gifts of the woman enable her to do full justice. The choice of subjects has been made with rare discernment by M. Wilhelm, and the scenes painted by Mr. T. Friedensen cannot be too warmly praised. Of the earlier pictures the most successful on Monday was "The Lost Chord," in which Miss Dorothy Craske, the handsome "jeune première" of the Empire ballets, was seen "seated at the organ," the band under Mr. Cuthbert Clark—who, by the way, has evinced much taste and skill in the composition and selection of the music—giving a fine performance of Sullivan's immortal strains, the dramatic effect being enhanced by the rich tones of an American organ. The refrain of Mendelssohn's Wedding March from A Midsummer Night's Dream music heralded Lord Leighton's well-known picture, "Wedded," in which Miss L. Desmond and Mr. L. Mancini most artistically realised the figures and pose of the devoted pair. Anticipation had run high regarding the beauty and stature of the lady who had been secured to pose for the figure in Lord Leighton's picture, "The Bath of Psyche," now in the Tate Gallery. Miss Madeline Tate posed almost to perfection, though the position of the arms made the question of complete immobility a difficult one. "The Huguenot," Sir John Everett Millais' popular picture, was accompanied by the famous strains of "Blessing of the Daggers," from Meyerbeer's celebrated opera bearing on the same subject as the painting. A picture of considerable beauty was Frank Dicksee's "Romeo and Juliet," the Veronese lovers being impersonated by the Misses F. Jenkins and M. Collier. Another picture by the same artist—"Harmony"—was scarcely so successful. "Hope," after G. F. Watts, R.A., may be considered a clever presentment of the familiar blindfolded figure, crouching on a blue Cosmos and listening to a broken lyre. "Victoria Regina," after H. Wells, R.A., is the young Queen in 1837 receiving, in her habit de nuit, the homage of Lord Melbourne and the Archbishop at Kensington Palace at the announcement to her of her accession to the throne. Of the statuary, the best was "Love, the Conqueror," by Miss Townsend, whose perfect figure, cleverly whitened to represent marble, quite realised the artistic beauty of the sculptor's work. Mr. Marcantonio may also be complimented on his "Teucer," after the bronze statue by Hamo Thorneycroft in the Tate Gallery, and his "Athlete Struggling with a Python." The new attraction is heartily enjoyed, and the success of the departure is beyond dispute.

DRAMATIC AND MUSICAL LAW.

BY A. A. STRONG, LL.B. (LOND.), SOLICITOR.

Your book will, I am sure, be a valuable aid to all managers and actors.—SIR HENRY IRVING.

Should prove perfectly invaluable.—Weekly Sun.

Contains in a handy compass and in a clear style the law relating to theatres and music halls. The book is well up to date.—Law Times.

Furnishes useful information.—Daily News.

The work succeeds in making plain the thorny legal path that every manager and artist must tread, and by a timely consultation of its pages they may avoid much misapprehension and trouble.—Star.

Mr. A. A. Strong has compiled an exceedingly useful volume dealing carefully, intelligently, and fully with the law bearing upon things theatrical. As a book of reference this excellent digest will be found invaluable.—The Era.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

At the moment of going to press the calamitous contest between proprietors and artists continues, and fresh developments are anticipated. The halls now closed to the Chartists include:—Tivoli, Oxford, Holborn Empire, Canterbury, South London, Paragon, Euston, East Ham Empire, Walthamstow Palace, Islington Empire, Ealing Empire, Grand (Clapham), Palace (Croydon), Duchess (Balham), Bedford, London, Cambridge, Collins's, Hippodrome (Crouch End), Palace (Stoke Newington).

At the Alliance offices the authoritative announcement was made on Thursday night that "there is no intention of calling out any of Mr. Stoll's halls at present." This announcement is confirmed by the following telegram which Mr. J. O'Gorman has addressed to sixteen centres in the provinces: "Tell the boys and girls from me that they need have no fear of result. No intention to strike at Stoll's halls at present. Send all support possible, including levy, with the accent on the levy."

The Charter of the Alliance and the Variety Artists' Federation contract have been sent to Mr. Oswald Stoll for his signature, with a covering letter suggesting that he should receive a deputation from the National Alliance to discuss the various points in the same. Mr. Stoll has stated that he did not intend to reply to the letter of the Alliance save through the medium of the Press.

We are given to understand that it was with the greatest reluctance that the Alliance determined to fight Mr. Albert Gilmer, because, although he had not signed the Charter, he had adopted their form of contract. More than that, he was directing one of the independent halls with which the Alliance had no real quarrel.

The action of Mr. Frank Macnaghten in joining and acting with the London Entertainments Protection Association has caused considerable surprise among the Federationists, and a deputation from the Alliance waited upon that gentleman on Thursday afternoon. Mr. Macnaghten's reply was that, so far as the Charter was concerned, there was nothing in that which would interfere with his actions in becoming a member of the London Entertainments Protection Association and in assenting to the resolutions. He intended to adhere to the Charter.

Mr. Leslie Stuart has written in the Daily Mail an appeal to "Managers and Artists." In a striking passage he says:—"Four thousand performers are at war with their bread and butter. The more favoured by fortune and in status are assuming the rôle of martyrdom—sincerely, let it be said—in the fight for their weaker brethren. Four thousand men and women claiming the designation of 'artists' are seeking redress in methods adopted by the dock labourer. Men and women—some with princely salaries—are stricken with the fever of temporary Socialism—temporary, without doubt, for their very existence depends on individualism and personality. Immense praise is due to them for their surprising cohesion, and they have protested well, and yet protested quite enough. The time has now arrived for compromise. It is necessary, and it should be made without delay.

An appeal to the leading brother and sister artists to take the matter into their own hands and thus end the "most disastrous calamity known in the history of our profession, causing widespread distress and misery, especially to the poorer members," has been signed by Kitty Loftus, Arthur Playfair, Alice Hollander, Cora Brown Potter, Datas, Aubrey Fitzgerald, the Prince and Princesse de Broglie, Nelson Jackson, Cissie Curlette, Lanos and Montes, Alice Caselli, Cerise Caselli, Jolly and Neilson, Harry Currie (Mr. "C."), Maude Courtney, the Australian Quartette, Evelyn Taylor, Harry Rogers, and Dan Thomas.

To the above appeal a counterblast, calling upon "our loyal brother and sister artists" to take no notice of it, and expressing every confidence in the Executive Committee and its methods, has been issued, and is signed by Marie Lloyd, Joe Elvin, Chirgwin, Whit Cunliffe, George Gray, Neil Kenyon, Marie Loftus, Harry Lauder, Gus Elen, Arthur Reece, the McNaughtons, Carter Livesey, Marie Kendall, Little Tich, Brothers Poluski, Wal Pink, and Harry Ford.

Mr. Alfred Butt, at the annual staff supper, which took place at the Palace Theatre on Sunday evening, when over 250 of the employees and their friends were present, said that he was particularly pleased to see that almost every employee was present, also many artists, as it emphasised the good feeling which existed between the artists, musicians, stage hands, and other employees and the management. The directors of the Palace were ever anxious to study in every respect the interests of the artists and the staff, and would always be willing to listen to, and seriously consider, any suggestions, as they were of opinion that only by harmony being maintained by all could any business be successfully conducted. Mr. Butt said that they all hoped that the present strike, which was apparently brought about through causes that could well have been remedied, would soon end, as it would immediately cause much hardship and suffering to those who could least afford to be out of employment.

The Oxford announces for Monday the Iokoda Japanese troupe in sensational feats of equilibrium; and Messrs. Lasky Rolfe's company, in The Stunning Grenadiers, including Mlle. Meredith Meredro, the celebrated American prima donna. This entertainment may be described as a spectacular olla-podrida in four scenes. Mr. Arthur Playfair will remain in the bill with 327, Finsbury, and Datas, Alice Hollander, Amy Clevere, and the Yankee Doodle Girls will combine to form an excellent variety entertainment.

Mr. James Chappell, who commenced his career at the age of fourteen, was for some years a familiar figure at the Queen's, Poplar, from which he retired in the nineties. He always took a great interest in the Music Hall Benevolent Fund, and invariably attended the sports when his health permitted. His death will be widely regretted by many friends in the East End, where, during his career, he was connected with the Pavilion Theatre, the Cambridge Music Hall, and the Queen's Palace, Poplar.

Mrs. Jack Sterling, better known on the music hall and theatrical boards as Miss Jessie Preston, is at present enjoying a well-earned holiday on the Continent. In company with her husband, she left London eight weeks ago, and since then has visited Gibraltar, Malta, Naples, Venice, Genoa, Rome, St. Remo, Monte Carlo, Mentone, and at present is sojourning in Paris. During their visit to Monte Carlo, "Jack" captured quite a "packet" at the gaming tables, but his better half was not so fortunate, and, if the truth must be told, lost almost as much as the "guid man" had won. Still, as Jessie says in her last letter home, "It's all in the family, isn't it? so what's the good of grumbling? Never meet trouble halfway." Miss Preston opens at the Oxford on her return a fortnight hence, and will be welcomed back to her favourite house by her friends and admirers, whose name is legion.

Mr. George Dance has bought the Queen's Theatre, Swindon, which he intends to run as a combined theatrical and variety house. The place will be opened on Easter Monday.

Mr. Harry T. Downs, late general-manager at the New Belfast Alhambra, has been chosen to fill a similar position at the new Belfast Royal Hippodrome, now rapidly approaching completion. Mr. Downs is well known and popular in the linen metropolis, and once upon a time was a proprietor in Hull.

The King's, Gateshead, was, on Monday, taken over by Messrs. Rosen and Bliss, the variety agents, who are adding greatly to their responsibilities and enterprise in the provinces. Mr. Harold Arnold, the popular manager, has been re-engaged. This is as it should be.

The directors of the Leicester Palace, Limited, after providing for depreciation on furnishings for the past three years and applying the sum of £158 in reduction of preliminary expenses, recommend that a dividend be paid on the Ordinary shares for the year to Dec. 31, 1906, of 2½ per cent., which will absorb £850, leaving a balance of £124 to be carried forward.

The plans for the erection of a handsome and up-to-date theatre or variety hall at Bolton have been approved of by the Watch Committee. The originator of the scheme is Mr. T. Hargreaves, of Rochdale. The new hall is to be named the Empire, and the site is at the west end of Deansgate, between Queen-street and Back Queen-street. Seating accommodation will be provided in the new place for about 1500 amusement-seekers. The construction will be commenced shortly.

The façade in Deansgate will be in stone. The house is different from the ordinary theatre in that the cheap gallery, usually so conspicuous, will be done away with in favour of the lower-priced seats at the rear. The ground floor accommodation is about 620 in the pit and over 100 in the stalls—720 in all. The balcony is divided into two, the front being arranged as a dress circle, with seating for 140 persons. Further back is the upper circle, with seats for 360. Though the new building is intended for a variety hall, the proprietor will also hold a theatrical licence—a privilege denied to his brother-proprietors in London.

Mr. Charles Revill, of the Theatre Royal, Stockport, has presented Miss Florence Baines with some very interesting old play-bills from their houses in Stockport and Ashton. One of the programmes relates to the engagement of the late Dan Leno and his father and mother; another recalls the farewell engagement of Mr. Harry Rickards with the late George Leybourne in the same bill; and one, dated Sept. 8, 1882, announces Miss Vesta Tilley as the leading attraction. At the foot of the bill is the notice, "All old women over 100 years' old will be admitted free, and receive a pound of tea each."

The New Tivoli, Liverpool, is proving an unqualified success. For several weeks money has been turned away nightly, and the boards "Standing Room Only" are being shown at each house before the rise of the curtain.

A very pleasant function took place at the Tivoli, South Shields, on Saturday evening, when Mr. Kay, the conductor, who was leaving owing to his wife's illness, was presented by the manager on behalf of the staff and artists with a stick, silver cigarette, case, and a box of cigars and cigarettes. Mr. Burns in his speech to the audience said: "Instead of being at loggerheads, we are here like a happy family." Mr. Kay suitably responded.

Percy Sharman, 31, a music dealer, of 12, Maryland-street, West Ham, was charged on Saturday at West Ham with offering eighty-one copies of pirated music for sale. On Friday night the prisoner, who has a stall at Leytonstone-road, Stratford, sold some pirated copies of music, and a few minutes later he was arrested. He asked, "Can't you let me off this time? I know I am doing wrong," but on examining his stock Constable Goodchild (76 E) found eighty-one copies of pirated music. Prisoner, who made no defence, was fined £2, or 21 days' imprisonment.

"Her Convict Lover," a new sketch, by Arthur Jefferson, was produced for copyright purposes at the Metropole Theatre, Glasgow, on Tuesday. Intended primarily for the variety theatres, the leading parts were sustained by the members of the Albert and Edmunds company, headed by Miss Rose Hamilton. A novel and ingenious idea is introduced. After the third scene, which shows the robbery of the vaults of a bank, the entire action is transferred to the cinematograph screen, and from that point the public see the escape of the hero, the meeting with his lady-love, the discomfiture of the villains, the wedding of the hero and heroine, &c.—all depicted with lifelike fidelity, and naturally in less time than would be possible with numerous changes of scenery. The sketch is certain to be as popular as the many other plays, short and long, which Mr. Jefferson has been associated with in the past.

The Markies, with their novel instrumental sketch, have made quite a hit at the Chelsea Palace this week. They open at the South London on Monday

The Haverleys, the successful American song-illustrators, finish to-night at the King's Theatre, Gateshead, a most successful provincial tour, and, after a well-earned rest, open in London for some time.

Miss Maude Edwards has also been very successful in her ventriloquial act, and is booked in America until May next at most of the leading houses.

Miss Alexandra Dagmar is appearing with great success this week at the Empire, Holloway, and goes to the Empire, York, next week, with Empire, Stratford, to follow.

Camilla D'Alberg, after touring in La Main, the wordless Parisian episode, with a theatrical company, is again at the halls, and is this week "starring" at the Crouch End Hippodrome, where she is meeting with her usual success.

Miss Alice May has introduced a new character—a Nurse, instead of the Salvation Army Lass—into her sketch, which has caught on at the Empire, Shepherd's Bush, this week. Miss May leaves town on Sunday for a six months' tour of the Stoll and Moss' halls.

We desire to make it known, on behalf of the real Mr. Chas. Craston, that he has not appeared at any music hall since his engagement by Mr. Lionel Wallace, with Miss Lillian Dundas, in the sketch At Midnight Hour at the Empire, Holloway.

The latest quotations for music hall shares are as follow:—Alhambra, 1 11-16; Canterbury, ⅜; Drury Lane, ⅜; Empire (15s. paid) 1½, (10s. paid) 1⅛; Gaiety, 1; London Pavilion, ordinary 4½, preferred 5; London Coliseum, ⅛; Metropolitan, ⅜; Moss' Empire, 4⅜, preferred 3⅝; Oxford, 6; Palace, ⅛; Tivoli, 6; Variety Consolidated Theatres, 13s.

On the evening of Wednesday next, the 6th inst., the Chronophone will make its 100th consecutive appearance at the London Hippodrome. It is of interest to note that this novel form of entertainment continues to command as great an amount of public interest as on its first performance. At each representation the remarkable clearness and sweetness of the voice reproductions—which can be heard all over the great building—have been a surprise and a matter for comment to all who were not prepared for it. Messrs. Gaumonts' stock of Chronophone subjects appears inexhaustible, and the répertoire lacks nothing in variety.

The directors of Moss Empires, Limited, recommend a dividend of 10 per cent., free of Income-tax, for the half-year ending Dec. 31, put £25,000 to reserve, and carry forward £12,197. The directors of the Hackney and Shepherd's Bush Empire Palaces, Limited, recommend a dividend at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum, free of Income-tax, on the Ordinary shares for the half-year, carrying £2,500 to reserve and £2,869 forward.

In consequence of some difference between the Grand Theatre, Islington, Company, Ltd. (1905), and Messrs. Jesse Sparrow and Harry Bawn, they have had to cancel the contracts of artists who had been engaged for the house in Upper-street. We understand that future dates will be offered to artists as soon as differences are adjusted.

Mr. Fred Reeves, the well-known variety agent, has been confined to his charming residence (The Cedars, Grove-road, Brixton) since Saturday last, suffering from influenza, rheumatism, and a slight attack of heart trouble. He is progressing favourably under the care of Dr. Arnott, of Brixton, and hopes to be about again some time during the coming week.

Mr. Louis N. Parker's playlet, Man in the Street, played originally at the Strand Theatre, with Mr. James Welch in the title-rôle, has been transferred to the halls, and as interpreted by Nevill Graham and Co. at the Royal Standard and other places has proved a great attraction. Mr. Graham plays the itinerant clarionet man, Jabez Gover, and does ample justice to the pathetic interview with the young wife, who proves to be his own daughter. The piece has been booked by Mr. George Adney Payne.

The chairman of the London Pavilion, Mr. Hugh Astley, desires to make it clear that the expression of which he made use in his speech at the recent shareholders' meeting—"The Pavilion would stand or fall alone"—referred to the London Pavilion as a company, working entirely by itself, and had no reference to the unity of the London Entertainments Protection Association, of which the Pavilion is a member.

Something of an advancement in the way of a "turn" at a music hall will be presented at the Empire on Monday. This is entitled An Evening in a Studio, and consists of a performance on the violin by Frederick Voelker—a pupil of Sarasate—accompanied on the piano by his wife. Mr. Voelker, who comes to London with a great American reputation, has an extensive répertoire, including Vieuxtemps' "Fantaisie Caprice," Komzak's "Legende," Bazzini's "Witches' Dance," Raff's well-known Cavatina, "Gipsy Melodies," by Sarasate, and "Il Moto Perpetuo," by Paganini. Should these be thought too "classical" for a variety theatre audience, he will give them an "American Fantasia" of his own composition and the familiar "Carnival of Venice."

Habitués of the Foresters' during the past eight or nine years will be glad to learn that Mr. James Faithfull, an old servant of the hall under the present and previous managements, has recovered his sight. Mr. Faithfull, who has for some years suffered acutely with his eyes, was quite blind for about three months, but an operation recently performed at the Ophthalmic Hospital, of which he was for three weeks an inmate, quite restored the use of the left eye. Mr. Faithfull is loud in the expression of gratitude to Mr. Frederic Baugh, the general manager of the Foresters', who has given him material assistance in his affliction.

Mr. Albert Hall's death, to which we referred briefly in these columns last week, passed away on Sunday, the 20th ult, at the Bradford Union Hospital, after a short illness, and under distressing circumstances. He was taken from his lodgings in William-street, Bradford, to the hospital in a semi-conscious condition. The deceased was a very reserved man at all times, and was unable to give any address to enable the authorities to communicate with his relatives.

The deceased was well-known in music hall circles as a song writer, and had written numbers for many of the leading artists, including Dan Leno, Charles Godfrey, Vesta Tilley, Marie Lloyd, Florrie Ford, Harry Randall, Wilkie Bard, Bella and Bijou, and others. The songs he wrote included "Dreams," "The blind collier," "Good old Uncle Charlie," "The miser," "What do you think of the Irish now?" "Bravo, Dublin Fusiliers," "The sprig of shamrock," and "One and a penny a day." The funeral of the deceased, who was forty-three years of age, took place on the 25th ult., the remains being interred in the Scholemoor Cemetery, Bradford.

On Thursday afternoon some 300 inmates of the Wandsworth Union Workhouse were entertained by the directors at the Hippodrome, Putney, and gifts of tobacco to the men and cakes and sweetmeats to the women were kindly provided.

We regret to learn the news of the death of Mlle. Klotz, who passed away very suddenly at her residence in Manchester on Tuesday. She returned home on Monday night apparently quite well and in good health; but on entering her door was taken ill, and never rallied, succumbing a few hours later. The cause of death was certified as apoplexy. The deceased lady was well known on the variety stage for her picture-posing, with novel scenic and electric effects, painted, invented, and produced by her husband, Mr. W. Brickles Bostock, the well-known scenic artist from the Palace, Manchester. Her "Electrical Art Panels" were popular, and she was specially happy in her representation of Mercia in a series of tableaux entitled "Christianity." The deceased is deeply mourned by her husband.

The secretary to the Music Hall Ladies' Guild reports that Miss M. Bowman has sent 10s.; a parcel of clothing has been received from "Anon"; and 100yds. longcloth has been sent by Marie Lloyd. The following amounts have been collected by Mrs. Smythson: W. Newhouse, 1s.; H. Clifford, 1s. 6d.; James Stuart, 2s.; P. H. Ward, 1s. 6d.; Frank Bernard, 2s.; and T. E. Dunville, 10s. 6d.

Mr. Fred Storey, the well-known comedian, was charged at Clerkenwell Police Court on Tuesday as an outcome of the strike. A police-constable stated that Mr. Storey created a disturbance near the Islington Empire on Monday evening and refused to go away. The popular artist contended that he made no speech, and did nothing to justify the charge. He was discharged.

A comedian named Edmund Carroll, thirty-three, of Goldington-buildings, Great College-street, St. Pancras, was arrested on Wednesday night for causing an obstruction outside the Bedford Music Hall. At Marylebone Police Court on Thursday he was discharged by Mr. Plowden.

Miss Nellie Wallace sails for New York per s.s. Majestic on Feb. 6 to fulfil a long-standing engagement with Mr. Percy Williams.

The Terriers will give their fourth social concert of the season on Sunday next at their headquarters, the Dover Castle Hotel. Mr. G. P. R. Burgess, the hon. solicitor, will be in the chair. Ladies are specially invited.

Miss Ethel Ra Leslie, during her engagement last week at Belfast, caught a severe chill, which has since developed into an attack of acute bronchitis. Her condition this last two days has given her friends cause for anxiety. We hope soon to hear of this popular lady's complete recovery.

Mr. William Collins, London district manager of Moss Empires, desires to warn artists both in London and the provinces against a swindler who is going round in the name of William Collins, showing a letter purporting to be from "William Collins, London district manager of Moss Empires," and asking for subscriptions to the All Hallows Orphanage. He gives the name of Wilson, and his latest victim is Miss Dolly Elsworthy, upon whom he called personally. If any application of the kind is received the remedy is obvious. Send for the police!

Miss Evelyn Taylor, who made herself famous last week by breaking all records, has done the last week by breaking all records, has done the same this week. She has received flattering offers from the provinces, but will not sign any contract until the trouble is over. Next week she is bottom of the bill at the Hippodrome, Ealing; also bottom at the Bedford. She also plays her third week at the Oxford.

A mob of considerable numbers stopped Miss Evelyn Taylor's brougham when she was passing the Holborn Restaurant on Tuesday, and threatened to make her life unendurable. She was naturally much upset, but the coachman, by using his whip, got the carriage through the crowd, and Miss Taylor, nerve-shaken and pale, duly arrived at the Holborn Empire.

Miss Marie Kendall and her husband, Mr. Steve McCarthy, who were engaged in propaganda work outside the Oxford on Monday, were arrested and taken to the Tottenham Court-road Police Station. They were immediately bailed out by Mr. Joe O'Gorman, and discharged at the police court.

Poor Frank Ottaway, the well-known bone-player, succumbed to syncope on Thursday, Jan. 24. On that evening he left his home in St. George's-road, South Belgravia, to perform at Barking, being accompanied by Miss Avieson, a music hall artist, who was to have assisted him in his entertainment. On arriving at the hall deceased was worried because there was no proper place provided for dressing, and, just when everything was ready for the performance he fainted, and when he rallied, he said, "I can't do my turn." Miss Avieson told him to rest a little while, but soon afterwards he became sick, and fell back into her arms, declaring, "I am dying." Shortly afterwards he expired. At the inquest held by Dr. Alexander Ambrose, the widow stated that her husband had complained of pains in the chest of late, and that he felt unwell when he left home to fulfil the engagement. The medical evidence showed that death was due to syncope, and a verdict to that effect was returned.

For some years Frank Ottaway was connected with the Mohawks, and for twenty-three years he held the championship belt of the world for bone-playing. He was connected with the Brewster Banjo Team when that combination made its first appearance at the Trocadero in the 'nineties, and had for some time as partner Mr. Pepper, another noted corner-man in the stage realms of Ethiopia. Of late years he appeared with a lady partner in his "bone" act; but the decline of minstrelsy with the dawn of the twentieth century had much to do with the practical disappearance of Ottaway from the London variety stage.

Miss Daisy James is making a special feature on her provincial tour of two new songs—"Melinda" and "My fellow's a hero." Both of them have been going remarkably well this week at the Eastbourne Hippodrome.

Mr. Harry Mountford, chairman of the Alliance, is on the stump in the provinces, and addressed a meeting of artists at Manchester yesterday, and will be at Liverpool to-day.

Miss Elsie Earle, encouraged by the success of her pretty song-scena, Holly and Mistletoe, will shortly produce a more elaborate one.

Mr. T. G. Hales, of Wellington-street, has sent one guinea to the Tom Bowman Fund.

Miss Beatrice Bonnie is making a very big success as principal boy at the King's Theatre, Sunderland, where the pantomime is now in its eighth week.

Stylo, who is doing so well at the London Pavilion with his wonderful hoop-juggling effects, opens at the Empire, Leeds, next week.

The funeral of the late Mr. Thomas Wells, a member of the firm of Messrs. Joseph Wells and Sons, the well-known pyrotechnists, of Honor Oak Park, who passed away on the 23rd inst., at the age of forty-seven years, took place on Wednesday, amid many outward manifestations of sympathy and respect. The cortège left the deceased's residence, 23, Hercules-road, Lambeth, at half-past two, for Forest Hill Cemetery, where the interment took place, the body, which was enclosed in a coffin of polished oak, being borne in an open car.

The principal mourners were Mrs. Wells (the widow), Mr. Joseph Wells (brother), and Mrs. Wells, Mr. James Wells (brother), Mrs. Richardson (sister-in-law), and Mr. Albert Wells (nephew), first carriage; Mr. J. C. Wells (nephew), Mrs. Hobdale (niece), Mrs. Stroud, Mrs. Phibbs, and Messrs. Charles and Exmas Richardson (nephews), second carriage. There was a large gathering at the graveside to pay a last tribute of respect to the memory of the deceased, including the employees of Messrs. Wells and Sons, Mr. Frank Sweeting of the Rye Hotel, Mr. Walter Mills, and many members of the music-hall profession. The coffin was covered with choice floral tributes. The funeral arrangements, which were entrusted to Mr. Thomas Hurry, undertaker, of Waterloo-road, were most satisfactorily carried out.

Mr. Albert Whelan, the whistler and mimic, who did not appear at the Tivoli last week, has forwarded a donation of £10 to the Alliance emergency fund, which has also received a cheque for £50 from the International Artists' Lodge, Berlin.

For insulting behaviour in Upper-street, Islington, a youth of nineteen, George Holmes, was on Thursday fined 21s. or fourteen days at Clerkenwell. Artists entering the Islington Empire had been pelted with rotten eggs and smothered in flour. Holmes was seen to throw mud at them, shouting, "Down, you blacklegs!"

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

The brief cable announcing the instantaneous and stupendous hit again made by Miss Vesta Victoria in New York with a song by Leigh and Pether (who supplied the popular lady with "Waiting at the church") has now been supplemented by fuller information. On the Monday afternoon she opened at the Colonial. The largest audience of the season crammed the house. When she sang "Poor John!" everyone joined in the chorus, and sang it most lustily, notwithstanding it was the very first time they had ever heard it. The prediction is not out of place that "Poor John!" will be as popular as "Waiting at the church."

Miss Victoria's new number, which is being published by Messrs. Francis and Day simultaneously on both sides the Atlantic relates how the singer, a gushing young thing, was taken by her sweetheart to see his mother, and how that worthy dame looks her up and down from top to toe, puts her through a thorough examination, then looks up at the sky and pitingly ejaculates, "Poor John!"

Mr. Whit Cunliffe has just published with the same firm a smart and up-to-date ditty, entitled "Whit Cunliffe's Book of Popular Songs," by Murray, Leighton, and Hilbury.

Miss Vesta Tilley, at the Palace Theatre, sings no fewer than three numbers issued by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter. The first—"I'm a bachelor"—is by George Arthurs, the brilliant young author who has just recently completed ten fresh lyrics for The Belle of Mayfair. The music of "I'm a bachelor" is by Kenneth Lyle; who has also composed for Miss Tilley's second song one of those fine march melodies for which he is growing famed. This ditty is by Fred W. Leigh, and is called "Jolly good luck to the girls who love the soldiers." The celebrated artist's third contribution is E. W. Rogers's ever-welcome "Following in father's footsteps."

Mr. David Day's firm will shortly issue a charming song, by Lytton Williams, entitled "Swallow from over the sea."

Charles Wilmott has again collaborated with Hermann E. Darewski, jun., in a song which may be described as a cameo of quaint and quiet humour. It has been christened "Humpty and Dumpty," and will be published immediately by Messrs. Francis and Day. The writer's "Home again, my cherry blossom," is enjoying a very large sale, and has also been included in the "Sixpenny Pops."

Miss Millie Payne, who has been the cause of much hearty laughter of late with a song by T. F. Robson and Will Hyde, and which rejoices in the strange title of "Oozizziepackiewackiewigwagwo," has just published it with Messrs. Francis and Day. This well-known pair of song-writers have written for Mr. Jock Walker, the Scottish comedian, a song entitled "All bonnie Scotch," which has been greatly to the liking of habitués of the Surrey, the Middlesex, and the Crouch End houses.

Miss Hilda Jacobsen has made a most successful appearance this week at the Liverpool Empire with a new song, "Come back, my troubadour," in which her cultured voice is heard to great advantage. Her versatility was proved by her rendering of Castling and Murphy's dainty Welsh love-song, "On the Isle of Anglesey," which is now being whistled all over Liverpool. Both numbers are published by the Star Music Co.

Mr. Horace Lane, a recruit from the musical comedy stage, has been going great guns at the Tivoli, Manchester, where he is exploiting Barnes and Weston's clever humorous song, "He started in a very small way." Mr. Lane will shortly produce another new song by Messrs. Mills and Scott, entitled "Any little girl will do." Both numbers are being issued by the Star Co.

A humorously philosophic song, entitled "We all came into the world with nothing," by W. H. Wallis and Chas. Collins, is a number that is destined to become very popular indeed, if one may judge by the unanimous opinions of all who have heard it. It is at present being featured by Messrs. Tennyson and Wallis, and is issued by the Star Music Co.

Mr. Harry Champion, who is featuring with great success "Dan, Dan, Dan; or, That funny little bob-tail coat," will produce shortly a new song, written and composed by Messrs. Gorman and Lowen, entitled "Out went the gas." Both of these numbers will be issued by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music, Co., Ltd., in their popular "Sixpenny Edition."

"Sleigh Bells" is the title of a taking number written and composed by Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford. Miss Madge Lessing is featuring it very successfully, and the publishers are the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd. A few permissions will be granted.

Miss Kittie Rayburn is featuring, with great success, a new song, entitled "Don't miss your chances, ladies; or, You don't miss the water till the well runs dry." The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have secured the publishing rights of this song.

Messrs. Charles Sheard and Co. have acquired Joe Archer's latest hit, "If there were no men," a sequel to his successful song "If we hadn't any women in the world."

The gratifying news has just been received by the Monte Carlo Publishing Company that one of Miss Vesta Victoria's greatest successes in America is their publication, "I've told his missus all about him," by Harrington and Tate, which is a sequel to "Waiting at the church." This pleasing intelligence having been conveyed to the fortunate young firm by no less a person than Mr. Fred Day, who is "on the spot," its authenticity is unimpeachable.

Messrs. Harrington and Tate have just supplied Miss Constance Moxon with a new character-song, "Who's the lady?" and will shortly execute a commission for a new sketch for the same artist.

Messrs. Francis and Day have just issued two charming numbers, entitled "Won't you float with me in my gondola?" and "My sweet Iranian flower," both from the pens of J. F. Lambe (the author-composer of "Queen of Old Samara") and T. W. Thurban, the composer, of "The Brooklyn cake-walk" and "The frogs' wedding."

Dan Leno, jun. (son of the late-lamented great comedian), bids fair to follow in his father's footsteps. He is scoring heavily on the Stoll tour. His two new songs with patter have been furnished by an old friend of the family, Mr. J. F. Lambe.

Messrs. Francis and Day have in the press two special songs—"Timid little mermaid," by J. F. Lambe and Henry E. Pether, and "Won't you return to Ehren on the Rhine?" written and composed by J. F. Lambe.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE PALACE.

Mr. Alfred Butt, in the present music hall crisis, has much to be thankful for in the fact that the Palace Theatre has its special programme, and is "run on its own" with an entertainment, some of the chief constituents of which are drawn from the legitimate stage and the concert world. To theatrical stars, indeed, it forms a welcome resting-place between engagements. Variety artists of the first rank are, of course, always welcome, and the current bill contains three names that have become world-famous in the annals of amusement. Place aux dames. The latest comer is Miss Vesta Tilley, who makes her début at the Shaftesbury-avenue house, and her first appearance in London, after a series of triumphs during her recent tour in America. To this incomparable artist the term male impersonator is applied; but, of course, Miss Tilley is much more than this. A comedienne of rare gifts, she gets into the very skin of each character that she assumes. How vastly different, for instance, is her gay, devil-may-care, debonair young bachelor from the callow youth who insists upon "following in father's footsteps." Every bit of stage business attaching to these two impersonations is the result of keen observation. Again, how many clever suggestions of the manner and "haviour" of the raw, undisciplined youths who join our infantry regiments are to be discovered in the song, "Here's jolly good luck to the girls who love the soldiers." The unmistakable desire on the part of the large Palace audience on Monday to hear Miss Tilley a fourth time drew from the actress-vocalist a song of domestic sentiment, entitled "King Baby," an autocratic monarch who rules the home. The earlier verses sound a jubilant note, but there is pathos in the last verse, and it gets home. To hear Miss Tilley plumb the depths of emotion is a new experience for the lover of variety—an experience as surprising as it is delightful.

Among the new turns to London, a hearty greeting was accorded Barrington, who entertains as a musical expert. The term has a wide significance, and may mean that the performer is a man of many instruments. As far as he allowed us to discover, he is a pianist of considerable attainments, and with a decided penchant for humour. He eschews the methods of the tramp pianist as far as costume goes, and his burlesque of Paderewski is something more than the mere assumption of a funny wig. As his first selection he plays the air, "Alice, where art thou?" with clever variations; but the tune might be altered. It has become much too stale. For his final performance Barrington chose the celebrated "Legend of the bells" from Les Cloches de Corneville, in which he introduced very effectively a campanological accompaniment, played with the foot on a fine-toned peal. He was loudly applauded.

Talbot and Pierce present a pretty musical scena which we may call My Rickshaw Queen. Yo San, a little Japanese girl, has captured the heart of an English naval officer, who teaches her to appreciate the eloquence of the language of love and to desire an experience of its signs and portents. She sings prettily does this little girl from Tokio, and gaily anticipates the union of hearts that is specially suggested in the song, "I will love you in December as I loved you in May." Miss Talbot is winsome and sweet-voiced as Yo-San, and Mr. Pierce sings and acts well as the young naval officer. The Palace Girls, in dainty confections of light blue and white pot hats, make the prettiest of cochères in petticoats, and give us la dernière mode from the Rue de la Paix, appealing to the audience to patronise the ladies—the dear little ladies; Mr. Arthur Prince deputised on Monday for Princess Trixie, the mare "possessed of responsive intelligence," who had not quite recovered from an attack of pneumonia; and Mr. G. H. Chirgwin, in his last week, made up some excellent topical verses on various subjects as a prelude to his attractive singing and playing. A sensation is caused by the Juggling M'Bans, who are making their first appearance in England. The rapid catching of each of a number of Indian clubs dexterously thrown rapidly over the shoulder by the other is one of the most astonishing of a series of remarkable feats, which include juggling with five clubs. Miss Margaret Cooper returns to renew her artistic triumphs; and Little Tich has become a permanent favourite with Palace patrons. Mr. Herman Finck's "Melodious Memories" overture is an excellent piece of work, admirably played by his fine orchestra. The Bioscope shows some pictures illustrating in the most interesting fashion the Japanese fan industry. Walter Emerson is also announced on the bill.

CAMBERWELL EMPIRE.

Mr. Jesse Sparrow and Mr. Harry Bawn are in the enviable position of being out of the zone of either syndicates or strikes, and their cosy little variety theatre at the junction of Denmark-hill and Coldharbour-lane is twice nightly thoroughly filled. One of the brightest stars of comedy is here this week in the charming person of Miss Lottie Collins, whose songs, "The Breach of Promise" and "The Gay Widow," are sung with a dashing style that evokes a hurricane of well-earned applause, while her sprightly dancing is the admiration of all. Mr. Neville Graham, Mr. Wallace Aston, and Miss Margaret Watson absorb the interest of the audience in Mr. Louis N. Parker's admirably written little dramette, The Man in the Street. Mr. Neville Graham plays the title-rôle with a rough and rugged humour that is highly effective, and his artistic resource is evidenced by the ease with which he moves his audience from laughter to tears. Mr. Wallace Aston, as the young artist, Philip Adare, acts with manly earnestness, and as his charming wife, Minnie, Miss Margaret Watson imbues her part with a womanly grace and charm beyond praise.

Another fine musical sketch is added to those that rank at our variety theatres by the Macdonalds, Melody Makers, in their musical melange, The Burglar's Dream. A man, having burglariously entered a music shop, is frightened out of his wits by the sudden appearance of five demons of music emerging from one of the many pianos, each one further astonishing the burglar by brilliant playing of selections from operas, popular melodies, and cake walks. The latter has a marvellous influence on the burglar, who is impelled by some hidden influence to indulge in some sand dances, and after a mad revel of admirably rendered songs, musical quartettes, and acrobatism, the demons take the burglar back with them to Hades, amidst a burst of red fire. This is really an excellent turn, which deserves to be seen by many audiences, who are sure to award it the enthusiastic reception it scores here. Johnny Dwyer is one of the good old school of comedians, and his first song, "I kept trotting up and down," keeps his hearers in a merry mood, while a song of domestic sentiment, "The Labourer's Home," gains him a well-merited ovation. On a pretty and effective electric illuminated platform the Saletos, two youthful acrobats, go through a marvellous display of head and hand balancing. In their final act the girl, with the lad's head balanced on her own, mounts an upright ladder and stands on the topmost rung without any support whatever, this daring act bringing down the house.

Will Lynn, a sweet-voiced choir boy, renders with much feeling two pretty ballads, "For the sake of society" and "Just plain folks." Friscari, to the accompaniment of a stirring march, juggles with coins, hats, gloves, and in fact everything movable on the stage, and gains much applause thereby. George Leonard is a genuine comedian, his tipsy song, "Keeping the game alive," in which he tells of the enjoyment derived from acting as best man at a wedding, being never overdone. His second effort, "That's the way we danced at Covent Garden," with its dancing chorus, full of energy and tireless animation, is also excellent. The Empire animated pictures are always good, and those showing "The Bathers" and "Divorce and Forgiveness" are of absorbing interest. Frank Maura, the Mexican wonder, adds his moiety to the evening's amusement, while the smart and efficient orchestra, under the skilful bâton of Mr. Frank Hurst, gives satisfaction both sides of the footlights. The excellent order that prevails in every part of the house is greatly due to the efficiency of Mr. Percy Ford, the ever-courteous acting-manager.

EALING HIPPODROME.

Very few indications of the great Music-Hall War were given at the Hippodrome on Monday evening, when the "sandwich" men had disappeared and an absolute calm pervaded the Broadway. The most difficult task Mr. E. W. James has had to surmount has been that of the band, but on Monday evening it was announced for the first time that the orchestra, of which Mr. Russell is the new director, was complete. Miss Jessie Huddlestone, the original La Poupée, with Miss Dinah Morris and company, are first favourites among the artists engaged. In Tosti's "Goodbye" Miss Huddlestone's cultured soprano is heard with splendid effect, and an ovation is offered her by her delighted hearers. Few finer shows than that presented by the talented and handsome Morris family of brothers and sisters has ever been staged here. Musical, bright, merry, and crisp, the "up-to-date" musical comedy, The Lost Coon, goes with a "snap" that is irresistible. The one scene, A Village in Lucanna, forms an exquisite setting for this famous troupe of "Southern Belles." As the pride of Lucanna Miss Dinah Morris both acts, sings, and dances with grace and rhythm. Miss Bessie Morris, as Captain of the Dixie Brigade, wears a handsome uniform; and the post of sergeant is filled with advantage by Miss Cissy Roosevelt. The privates of the brigade are expert in their evolutions and captivating in their dancing. The lost coon himself is found in the person of young Sidney Morris. Into the mysteries of Black Michael's Revenge there is no need to enter, but it is a clever and successful attempt to combine in a compressed tabloid some of the best features of musical comedy. For the turn yet another Miss Morris assumed the leadership of the orchestra, and under the fair leader's bâton the incidental music of the comedy was excellently rendered. In little Miss Angelina Hope Mr. James seems to have made a "discovery," and in her dainty personality is revealed one of the most piquant and youthful of soubrettes.

As a conjurer Professor Earle would be welcome at any buffet. Gin, port, sherry, Chartreuse flow, under his magic, from a single decanter, and, seemingly, into the same tumbler; the card shuffling and palming manipulation is exceedingly skilful, and, as he remarks, comes with ease to all—after ten or twenty years of practice. Roland Oliver and company present the dramatic sketch Her Last Dance. The sketch, which is notable for a fierce fight between a man and woman, is well produced, every point being cleverly accentuated. Penley and English have a side-splitting comedietta in She Would be an Actress, in which Mr. George English, in the part of a costermonger, burlesques an old actor with rare excellence; and Miss Flo Penley is vivacious as a stage-struck "slavey," who manages to be amusing without smearing her face with soot.

Other turns which contribute to the programme are Mr. Joe Chin, with his racy song "Well, I am not," and Mr. One George Bee with "Girls, girls, too many girls," the latter artist supplementing his second song with a dance that exhibits something new in legmania. Mr. Chas. Lorrence's baritone song "Marching with the brave old army" is given with a rousing breeziness that wins applause; an extra turn by a "darkie" sand dancer provides a good imitation of the starting, stopping, and running of an express train; Mr. A. R. St. George's song, "My pal is my umbrella," contains much that is amusing, while his second number, "I shall say something to you," is equally so. Mr. E. W. James is receiving welcome assistance from his new lieutenant in command, Mr. L. Westcott Hicks, who comes here from the Duchess at Balham. During the evening an admirable display of moving-pictures is given by Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope.

"NO SURRENDER."

Lieut. Edward Blake .....Mr. Tom McGuire
John Swaine .....Mr. Edward Hurstville
Paul Jones .....Mr. Cyril Fairlie
Ben Buncle .....Mr. John Henderson

Under the above title Mr. John Henderson introduces a well-written little sea story. Mr. Henderson has already established a considerable reputation as the author of Under the Maple Leaf and In Slavery Days. The opening bars of "Rocked in the cradle of the deep" at once puts an audience at the Queen's in good humour, for there is always a strong leavening of those who go down to the sea in ships among the patrons of the dockside house. One of His Majesty's ships, The Happy Return, has set sail from Port Royal (not Kingston, as Ben Buncle tells the audience), Jamaica, bound for England, with immense treasure aboard, and convoyed by H.M.S. Revenge. On board The Happy Return is the Captain's daughter, Hester Blake, while the Revenge carries her brother, Lieut. Blake. The Happy Return loses sight of her convoy, and is for days becalmed. Yellow Jack breaks out, and everyone is stricken down, with the exception of the Captain's daughter, Ben Buncle, and another seaman. Suddenly the sound of oars is heard, and The Happy Return is boarded by Paul Jones and the piratical crew of The Rattlesnake. Hester Blake dons male attire, with the view of deceiving the sea rover. Ben Buncle, well aware of the feeble resources at his command, resorts to stratagem, and, to gain time, enters into an agreement to deliver up the treasure in return for a promise that his crew and ship shall be allowed to escape. But when the pirate retires to his crew to remove the booty, Ben hurriedly arranges, with the assistance of Hester Blake, to blow up the ship with all on board. On the arrival of the pirate crew they are confronted by the old sailor pointing his pistol into a barrel of gunpowder, and just as he is about to send them all into eternity the Revenge appears on the scene, and Lieut. Blake, with the boarding-party, saves The Happy Return and his sister at the same time.

Miss Millie Henderson plays the part of Hester with considerable merit, and receives the thorough approval of the audience. Mr. John Henderson is an excellent exponent of the British tar of a type now passed away, yet ever dear to the lovers of England's sea story in its finest days. Mr. Cyril Fairlie makes a handsome, devil-may-care pirate captain. The piece is well staged; in fact, the after-cabin of The Happy Return is almost too spacious for a ship of the period. The apparent change in the atmosphere seen through the cabin windows is admirably represented by the clever lighting effects.

While on the subject of the Queen's, we may mention that Mr. Jack Woolf, the popular manager, now has the able assistance of Mr. Morris Abrahams, who looks after the house in the former's absence.

DEATH OF MR. JAMES CHAPPELL.

We regret to record the death of Mr. James Chappell, which occurred at his residence, Dossett House, Marine Parade, Great Yarmouth, on Wednesday morning. The deceased gentleman was in his seventy-ninth year, and had been in failing health for some time. He had had a varied career as artist, manager, managing-director, and proprietor. He was about fourteen years of age when he left home to join a troupe of acrobats. After staying with them for some time he accepted an engagement with Mr. Benjamin Conquest at the old Garrick Theatre, Whitechapel. He next joined a good dramatic stock company at the old Effingham Saloon, where he gained an immense amount of knowledge and experience. A change of management, however, brought about the disbandment of the company, and Mr. Chappell, who was considered at the time a most accomplished pantomimist, accepted an engagement with Mr. Charles Frecr at the Albert Music Hall, Shepherdess Walk, City-road, an establishment that has long since disappeared. At this time Mr. Chappell's services were very much sought after, and numerous engagements were offered him at the Surrey, the Marylebone, Victoria, Pavilion, Britannia, Standard, the old Queen's, Tottenham Court-road, and many others. In 1851 he left London to fulfil an engagement with Mr. T. Burton, of the Casino, Manchester. About this time there were no fewer than five or six theatres and music halls playing The Dumb Man of Manchester. Mr. Burton finding out that Mr. Chappell had acted the part in several London theatres, engaged him to produce the piece, and it ran fourteen or fifteen weeks. During his tours Mr. Chappell appeared in almost every town in England, in theatres, circuses, and music halls. It was in Liverpool, while playing clown at the Royal, that the late Mr. John Douglass engaged him for the new Pavilion Theatre, London, to produce a pantomime and play clown during the season 1859-60.

Later Mr. Chappell became lessee of the Pavilion, where he produced many of the most popular dramas of the day, as well as pantomimes and English opera. He also engaged the original Moore, Ritter, and Crocker Minstrels, afterwards the Moore and Burgess. His last appearance on the stage was with Pym and Harrison at Her Majesty's Theatre. They engaged him as the wooden-legged clown in a burlesque of the great Donato, then at Covent Garden. About this time he became manager of the Cambridge Music Hall, which had been built by Mr. Nugent, an appointment that he held for eleven years. It is interesting to note that the Cambridge was opened to the public on December 12, 1864, and that at the dress rehearsal on the previous Saturday Sam Collins sang the first song in the new hall. It is also curious to find that the old glee "The Chough and Crow" formed the opening chorus of the first entertainment given at the Cambridge. Mr. Charles Greville was musical director under Mr. Chappell's management, and Mr. W. Knowles was the chairman, a post that he occupied for nearly a quarter of a century.

When the Brothers Abrahams sold the Queen's, Poplar, to a company in the spring of the year 1888, Mr. Chappell became a large shareholder, and eventually was appointed managing-director, a position he of course relinquished on the purchase of the hall by Messrs. Tom Maltby, Wickes, and Williams. On his retirement he was accorded, on March 17, 1897, a complimentary benefit, which was very happily timed by being held on the same day as the fiftieth anniversary of his marriage. On this occasion a number of handsome and costly gifts from Mr. Chappell's many friends were presented to him on the stage at the Queen's by Mr. Henri Gros. The presents included a handsome marble and ormolu clock, suitably inscribed.

Mr. James Chappell's name is associated in Yarmouth with the famous "Beach Ring," where for the last thirty years variety entertainments have been held every summer, the popular outdoor concerts being very largely patronised. Mr. Chappell had resided for some years in Yarmouth, where he had many opportunities of meeting old friends, and could thus keep in touch with theatrical and music-hall matters. He took an active interest in local undertakings, and was one of the directors of the Great Yarmouth New Britannia Pier Co. His death will be regretted by a large circle of private and professional friends, who justly esteemed his many excellent qualities.

The funeral is fixed to take place on Monday next at Bow Cemetery. The coffin and chief mourners will be conveyed from Yarmouth by the train which leaves the Southtown Station at 7.35 a.m., arriving at Liverpool-street at 10.45 a.m., and proceed thence to Bow Cemetery.

THE YOUNGEST CONDUCTOR.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In The Era of last Saturday (Variety Gossip) you refer to Mr. R. E. Wilding, of the Granville, Walham Green, as the youngest conductor in the kingdom. I have been recognised as the youngest conductor in the halls for the last ten years. At the age of fourteen I was conductor at the Roscommon Music Hall, Liverpool, at eighteen I held a similar position at the Haymarket, in the same town; at twenty I became musical-director for Mr. Barrasford, at the Hippodrome, St. Helens; at twenty-two I was chosen by Mr. De Frece to direct the musical forces at the Metropole, Camberwell; and at the age of twenty-three I am now conductor for Mr. De Frece at the Hippodrome, Colchester.—Yours faithfully,

JAS. HARGREAVES,

Hippodrome, Colchester, Jan. 29.

THE MUSIC HALL STRIKE.

The expected attack on the Metropolitan and the Chelsea Palace, the halls controlled by Mr. Henri Gros, has not yet come about; but on Monday the Alliance called out the musicians and artists at the Bedford, Camden Town, a hall run by a small private company, of which Mr. B. Pearce Lucas is the managing-director. At one o'clock in the day, it is stated, Mr. Harry Mountford waited upon Mr. A. F. Lovesy, the manager, with a copy of the Charter, and informed him that unless it were signed by four o'clock he must take the consequences. It was not until after that hour that the Charter reached Mr. Lucas, who expressed himself in favour of some of the demands, but said that as a member of the London Entertainments Protection Association he must loyally support that body and refuse to sign the Charter. The result was that when the house opened at six o'clock several hundred people watched the orchestra walk in and out again without playing a note.

Mr. Lovesy went on to the stage and explained the position to the audience in a brief speech, which was loudly cheered. He regretted that such short notice of the strike had been given him that he could not present an entertainment worthy of the house, and the money paid for admission would be returned. He recalled the fact that Mr. Lucas had behaved most generously through the winter to the unemployed of the district by giving them tickets for meat and coals, that each year he gave a matinée at his own charge in aid of the North-West London Hospital, which never realised less than £250, and that he was even then organising matinées, the first of which had already been given, for the pleasure of poor children in St. Pancras. The audience filed out in perfect quietude. Mr. Lovesy informs us that the stage hands and other employees had stood by him loyally, and he had enough artists available to have given an excellent performance, but he could not replace the orchestra at such short notice. By Tuesday, however, he had engaged an efficient orchestra, and with a strengthened programme gave the usual two performances. The Bedford had given no assistance to the proscribed halls, as had been alleged.

Mr. B. P. Lucas has received the following letter:—

201, Stanhope-street,
Regent's Park, N.W.

B Pearce Lucas, Esq.

Dear Sir,—On reading this morning's news of the Music Hall Strike, I am greatly surprised and very sorry to see that your hall had to close last night on account of the orchestra, stage hands, and artists joining the Federation. I write these few lines asking you to accept my greatest sympathy, and earnestly hope you will open your hall to-night (Tuesday), with a great reception, and that you will be able to defy the V.A.F., because I consider you have been badly treated. I do not forget the work you have done (and do now) for the poor people of the parish, hospitals, &c., and it is only fair that you should receive the people's support. I attend your hall every week and will continue to do so. Hoping you will not think me intruding, and that you and Mr. Lovesy will get over the difficulty,

Yours respectfully,
Alex. Baker.

N.B.—I am very pleased to hear that our favourite comedian, "Dan Thomas," is against the V.A.F., and hope to see him at the Bedford again before long. You can make what use you like of this letter. A. B.

With the exception of the Bedford, performances were given at all the London music halls on Monday night, though the South London abandoned a projected matinée. Picketing went on with the usual vigour, and the distribution of leaflets by the strikers was especially zealous outside the Tivoli.

THE COMMON INFORMER.

Another feature of the campaign is the revival of sketch prosecutions by the Alliance. On Monday Mr. Arthur B. Rickards, solicitor, applied to Mr. Marsham, at Bow-street Police Court, for a summons against Mr. Walter Gibbons, of the Empire, Holborn, for producing stage plays in a building not licensed for that purpose by the Lord Chamberlain. The application, he said, was made under the Act of 1843 known as the "Stage Plays Act."

In reply to the magistrate, Mr. Rickards said the information had been laid by a common informer, and not by the society that usually took action in these matters, and the application was granted.

The sketches (or plays) complained of are Terry; or, True to Trust, and Mary, Queen of Scots. The latter is being produced by Mrs. Brown Potter, who was also seen in it on Monday at the Oxford.

Disappointment awaited the audience that gathered at the Oxford on Monday night. Mr. R. A. Roberts was billed to appear in his well-known sketch, Dick Turpin, but the "Protean Actor" yielded to the persuasion of the Alliance, and declined to give his turn. He has since sailed for America.

The funds of the Alliance were increased considerably on Monday. The levy of 5 per cent. on the gross salaries of the artist members "working" last week realised a sum of over £5000. The greater portion of this arrived by post. Mr. Fred Karno has sent a cheque for 50 guineas to the fund; Mr. Harry Randall has sent £20; Mr. G. H. Chirgwin 10 guineas; and Mr. Servais Le Roy, from Lisbon, £5 weekly, to the emergency fund, till the strike is settled.

A circular letter is to be sent out to the 1,500,000 members represented by the Parliamentary Committee of the Trade Union Congress and the 600,000 members represented by the Federation of Trade Unions, as well as to the members of the Independent Labour Party, recommending the cause of the Alliance to the moral and financial support of the members.

THE SCALA.

In reference to the announcement on Sunday by Mr. Frank Gerald that the National Alliance has secured the Scala Theatre, a cheque of £1200 was paid on Monday in advance to Dr. Distin Maddick. The prices for admission to the new Tottenham-street theatre will be 1s., 2s. 6d., 3s., 5s., and 7s. 6d., and there will be but one performance a night.

"We are going to show the managers," says Mr. Frank Gerald, of the Variety Artists' Federation, "how we can manage a variety theatre. We will not, however, attempt to corner the artists, and our barring clause will be limited to one mile and three months. Our artists will be free to accept other engagements." The salaries to be paid to them will in each instance be a matter for private contract.

THE PROPRIETORS AND MANAGERS.

The meeting of proprietors and managers who are members of the London Entertainments Protection Association, held on Wednesday at the offices, Durham-street, Strand, was by far the largest and most representative gathering yet held, and a very significant circumstance was the presence at the meeting of Mr. Frank Macnaghten, who has been acclaimd as one of the few managers who had signed their charter. Mr. Macnaghten controls the Surrey, Britannia, Hoxton, Sadler's Wells, Bow Palace, and the Foresters'. It was officially stated that Mr. Macnaghten, who was accompanied by Mr. Fred Baugh, his London manager, made a statement explaining his position, and that he subsequently joined the Association.

Mr. Henri Gros, chairman of the Association, presided, and the vice-chair was occupied by Mr. G. Adney Payne. Those present included:—Mr. Walter Gibbons, Mr. Alfred Moul (the Alhambra), Mr. Hugh Astley (London Pavilion), Mr. J. L. Graydon (the Middlesex and Brighton Alhambra), Mr. T. S. Dickie (Royal Standard, Pimlico), Mr. Albert Gilmer (Palace, Stoke Newington), Mr. Jesse Sparrow (Empire, Camberwell, and Grand Theatre, Islington), Mr. H. H. Wells (the Oxford), Mr. T. Gardiner Hales (Empire Palace, Croydon), Mr. A. W. Bray (Granville, Walham-green), Mr. Sam Barnard (Woolwich, Greenwich, and Chatham), Mr. B. Pearce Lucas (Bedford, Camden Town), Mr. R. Underwood (Collins's), Mr. I. Ibbetson (Syndicate Halls), Messrs. D. G. Richards and R. F. Burney (London, Cambridge, and Collins's Halls), Mr. W. B. Broadhead (Manchester Variety Theatres), Mr. J. F. Elliston (Bolton), Mr. H. Joyner, Mr. Walter Payne, Mr. J. C. Coe (Hammersmith Palace), and Mr. Henry Sutton, a director of the Tivoli.

For upwards of two hours members deliberated in private. The present situation and future prospects were fully discussed, and it is understood that the general view of the meeting was that the demands of the National Alliance must be resisted at all costs.

The following resolution was unanimously passed:—

"We reaffirm the resolution unanimously arrived at at the last meeting of this Association, and pledge ourselves to support the action taken in resisting the attack made upon certain members by the National Alliance; the same support to be given to any other members of this Association who may be called upon to resist similar attacks.

"We hereby pledge ourselves during this period of strike mutually to assist one another in the event of any hall being closed by lending one another, where possible, artists, stage-hands, and musicians.

"We agree not to come to any arrangement with the National Alliance, or any of the leaders who have initiated the strike, without reference to the general body or to the executive of this Association."

To the resolution the following names were attached: Messrs. Henri Gros, Oswald Stoll, G. Adney Payne, Henry Tozer, Henry Sutton, J. L. Graydon, Walter Gibbons, T. G. Richards, W. H. Burney, Alfred Moul, Hugh Astley, H. H. Wells, T. S. Dickie, J. C. Coe, A. A. Gilmer, Jesse Sparrow, T. G. Hales, H. Joyner, A. W. Bray, B. P. Lucas, S. Barnard, John Hart, A. G. H. Hunt, Walter de Frece, J. de Frece, T. Barrasford, F. Macnaghten, Fred Baugh, W. B. Broadhead, Fred Mouillot, J. F. Elliston, R. B. Underwood, C. A. Wilkes, E. Rawlings, E. Dottridge, Will Sley, F. Willmot, T. Allan-Edwards, F. H. Anderson, T. M. Sylvester, and V. H. Harrop.

It was intimated that eighty-eight London and provincial halls had on Wednesday been added to those represented on the Association. The following list was supplied at the conclusion of the meeting:—

East Ham Palace.
Walthamstow Palace.
Hippodrome, Crouch End.
Star, Bermondsey.
Royal Albert, Canning Town.
Empire Palace, Croydon.
Tivoli, Dublin.
Empire, Dublin.
Liverpool Hippodrome.
Alhambra, Paris.
Birmingham Hippodrome.
Leeds Hippodrome.
Brighton Hippodrome.
Portsmouth Hippodrome.
Belfast Hippodrome.
St. Helens Hippodrome.
New Palace, Northampton.
Empire, Belfast.
Manchester Variety Theatres.

DEPUTATION TO THE L.C.C.

A deputation from the Alliance, consisting of Mr. Frank Gerald, Mr. W. Johnson, Mr. C. Jesson, Mr. Joe O'Gorman, Mr. Gus Elen, Mr. Wm. Holles, and Mr. Harry Mountford, on Wednesday waited upon the Theatres Committee of the London County Council, and pointed out certain obnoxious features in the clauses conditional on engagement with certain music hall proprietors. In some cases, it was declared, a music hall artist was practically compelled to contract himself out of the Employers' Liability Act, i.e., he had to sign clauses which admitted no liability for compensation for accidents sustained while on the stage, such as those caused by falling scenery. The deputation was of opinion that the committee had the power to refuse licences in cases where these obnoxious clauses operated to the detriment of the artist, just as they had the right to insist upon the trade union rate of wages being paid for work done under their contracts.

The chairman of the committee, Mr. Greenwood, said the committee had been greatly surprised by the information brought before them. Hitherto the committee had in all these matters been guided by the legal opinion of Mr. Horace Avory, who had advised them that they did not possess powers to the extent the deputation suggested. After hearing their contentions, however, they had decided to take extra legal opinion. Sir Algernon West asked why artists agreed to sign contracts which they believed to be unjust, and Mr. Mountford replied that music halls were now in the hands of comparatively few owners, and unless the artists accepted these contracts they would not be able to get on anywhere.

The Alliance have decided, pending the decision of the Theatres Committee, to sound every candidate in the forthcoming elections as to whether he is in favour of licences being granted to music hall proprietors enforcing these obnoxious conditions, and to exercise their votes accordingly. They have received definite promises of assistance from all branches of labour organisations in London, and express their determination to take the matter to Parliament should the necessity arise.

OPINIONS AND COMMENTS.

Mr. Henri Gros has sent the following letter to Mr. Harry Randall:—"Dear Mr. Randall,—In the Daily Mail of the 24th you are reported to have said, 'the deputation to the managers failed to effect any reform, and that in the past you have experienced little but injustice.' May I ask you if you refer to the injustice that was perpetrated upon you when the late Dan Leno was hopelessly ill and I used my influence with Mr. Payne and his colleagues to permit you, at your own request, and that of Mr. A. Collins, to accept an engagement at the Drury Lane pantomime, notwithstanding that the clause in your contract forbade it, and that you recognised this by refusing to accept contracts for the Metropolitan and Chelsea Palace; or do you allude in your statement: 'Managers failed to effect any reform' to the period when you, with several other colleagues, were managers and proprietors of the Grand, Clapham Junction, and the Granville, Walham Green, and you were continuously performing there and declined to appear at any place in close contact with your own? Your answer will oblige, as I intend to send this letter to the Press."

Mr. Harry Ford considers the demands of the artists just and in no way excessive. Under existing contracts an artist is compelled to sign to give so many performances nightly (one or two houses) and matinées, for which matinées he receives no payment; but should he be unable to appear at any matinée, the management immediately stop a proportionate amount from his salary.

Mr. Bert Clark (Clark and Hamilton) writes:—"I should be glad to make one of an independent committee to wait upon the Managers' Association and put the case from the artists' point of view only clearly before them, and I know many of my brother and sister artists are of the same mind. There are grievances which I think could be readily adjusted at such a meeting. The present action of the Alliance can neither settle the dispute nor benefit anyone concerned. I have no desire, and shall not be disloyal to my brother and sister artists, but I feel they are being led away by the executive committee of the Alliance, which is mainly composed of men who have nothing to lose and have nothing at stake. The methods they are pursuing cannot possibly commend themselves to any fair-minded individual. Let us have a committee of an independent character before it is too late."

Miss Fanny Wentworth is in complete sympathy with the National Alliance and its action to try to put a stop to unfair contracts. She has declined engagements to appear at the barred halls as a proof of her loyalty. At the same time she has no personal feeling against the managers.

Miss Alexandra Dagmar thinks the music-hall strike has come none too soon. The position of the artist, more especially in London, has become insufferable, and the demands of the Alliance are just, fair, and equitable. The Federation is bound to win.

Mr. W. J. Grimes, director, Putney Hippodrome, and director, Brixton Empress, discusses the various points raised. He is in sympathy with the artist regarding the barring clause and matinées, and he adds: "There are few strikes in this country which are not settled by arbitration. I would submit that some broad-minded, fair-principled, and prominent man of business should be appointed as arbitrator."

Miss Marie Dainton, who was on the programme of the Palace, Stoke Newington, but as a member of the Alliance had declined to appear, has decided to leave that body. She had no idea when she consented to become a member that it included musicians and stage hands. Had that been explained to her she would certainly have declined to lend her name to it in any way.

Mr. Walter Hast, of Lennie and Hast, a member of the executive of the Variety Artists' Federation, writes:—"There is justice in Mr. Stoll's barring clause, because it costs Mr. Stoll £400 to produce an exclusive programme which managers working a turn programme can get for £150. Mr. Stoll has never deducted commission from artists' salaries, and is one of the few managers in England who has always paid for matinées. He is a fair-minded man and has done much for the profession at large.

Mr. Billie M'Clain, the darkey comedian, has intimated to Mr. Stoll that he has resigned the Federation, and has enclosed his Federation card torn in halves.

Miss Laura Dyson, niece of George Conquest, writes:—"I thought I would tell you that I have resigned the V.A.F., as I consider they are going too far, and I don't agree with them."

Mr. Harry Freeman, writing from Sunderland on Thursday to the Alliance, said:—"We in the country have watched and admired and cheered when we could hear the full state of affairs. The result of Liverpool will show about £90."

Mr. Leslie Stuart, in the Daily Mail of Friday, says:—"The 'barring clause' is as necessary and as perfectly equitable in certain instances as it is wickedly unfair in others. Yet more indulgence has been extended to the capricious 'star' than to the struggling rank and file. I know of many cruel and vexatious restrictive contracts imposed on poorly-paid performers, who must accept them or go without engagement. A compromise is necessary here, and allows of no dispute. A 'turn' commanding £150 a week should be barred according to the laws of commercial protection and investment. Miss Marie Lloyd in a new programme of songs is an asset to a hall, the management of which contracts to pay her a colossal salary for the privilege of an exclusive rendering. Were she and others of equal attracting powers free to appear at a rival hall across the street, then enterprise would cease or become a reckless pursuit. The limitation in the scope of this restriction should be made according to the salary and status of the performers."

Mr. Dan Thomas, who has tendered his resignation to the Federation, wrote: "I consider the action taken in this strike as one of the worst things that could have happened, both morally and financially for the profession. Generally, it is placing the members of the Variety Artists' Federation on a par with Socialists, and I hope that I may never see the day when I am included in that rank."

HARRY LAUDER AND MR. G. A. PAYNE.

The following leaflet from Mr. Harry Lauder has been circulated:—

"I have read a list of salaries in which my name is mentioned as one of the 'stars' getting £120 per week. I have never yet received half of that sum. My salary for working three halls, sometimes four performances a night, with the Tivoli Syndicate, is £55. During the last five years at the Tivoli Syndicate halls my weekly salary has often been half what I mention, for four halls a night.

"I do not say I am not booked to play for the syndicate halls at £120, but that does not happen until 1909. Then I may be dead, but I am sure it will not be for the want of medical attention on the part of the Tivoli Syndicate, as they send a doctor free of charge. When I was indisposed last autumn I sent my doctor's certificate, but that did not satisfy the managements. They sent their doctor to examine me. If I had been a delicate man, they would, by their action, have bullied me to go and perform when I was ill. I might then have ruined my voice for the remainder of my life.

"Mr. Stoll, I know, will not pay artists a penny more than he really thinks they are worth. In fact, I do not know any managers who throw their money away. I have packed Mr. Stoll's houses for him for years at £9, £12, £15, £25, and £30 per week, and I know he has paid fabulous salaries to big shows and other people who never drew the public.

"Proprietors and managers should not talk about 'star' salaries at all. We do not get more than our value. The Federation are not differing about salaries."

Mr. G. Adney Payne writes:—"Replying to Mr. Harry Lauder, I should like to say that the discrepancy between his statement as to the salary he has received and the unofficial statement inserted in some papers last week is easily explained. He is correct in stating that he has only as yet received £55 per week, but this bare statement does not convey all the facts. His engagement continues for some years, his salary is increased at various periods, and, as a matter of fact, £120 per week is his contract price two years hence.

"Much to our regret, the last period of his engagement at the Tivoli was several times unfortunately broken up by illness, and it was in consequence of the continual disappointment to the public that it was felt advisable to ascertain how prolonged his illness might continue, so that I might arrange to adequately fill, for that length of time, so important a gap in the programme.

"The usual practice, under these circumstances, of sending our own medical officer to confer with his own doctor was followed, and by mutual consent and arrangement Harry Lauder was visited.

"I should not like your readers to feel otherwise than that the greatest consideration was shown to Mr. Lauder. Might I add that his genius has no warmer admirer than—Yours faithfully, G. Adney Payne."

IN THE PROVINCES.

There were nearly 150 present at the private meeting of artists held in the Bridge Hotel, Newcastle, on Tuesday afternoon. It was called by Mr. Harry Lauder for the purpose of getting the variety artists together to explain the situation. Many who started on Tyneside on Monday had come direct from London, and it was felt the earliest opportunity should be taken of securing information as to what was going on.

Mr. Harry Lauder was called to the chair, and he at once asked Mr. William Lee, of Lee and Bentley (the King's, Gateshead), to give a report of the proceedings in the Metropolis. Mr. Lee, who is a member of the Federation Executive, spoke for about an hour, and explained all the details of the struggle in London. As regards what they were going to do in the future, he gave some hints, but matters were in such a state that he did not wish to make any definite pronouncement. He impressed upon the company that it was not a question of salary so much as of fair-play between the parties to a contract. Many things would have to be remedied, and the Federation were determined to make a fight with that object. Without any boasting, he might say they were determined to win.

Fifteen new names were added to the roll of members of the Variety Artists' Federation at the close of the proceedings.

Mr. Harry Lauder, who also spoke, said his position, he thought, was pretty clearly defined in the letter which he had sent to the Press, and which he read. He then gave a few words of advice as to how to proceed in the future, and appealed to his audience to stand shoulder to shoulder. Never had he met with failure in his life on such matters, and he was convinced they would, by their unity, succeed on this occasion.

A vote of thanks to the Executive Committee in London for their firmness in the past, and confidence in them to undertake the future affairs of the Federation, was carried amid enthusiasm. Mr. Imro Fox also spoke, and further impressed upon the artists the necessity of a firm attitude.

Among those present were:—Mr. Neil Kenyon, Mr. Dan Crawley, Mr. Tom Foy (Avenue, Sunderland), Mr. Vox (Empire), the Abdullah Troupe of Arabs (King's, Gateshead), Mr. Henry Clifford (Empire), the Herald Comedy Four, Mons. Slippere (blind pianist, Pavilion), Mr. Leoni Clarke (Pavilion), Mr. Fred Elton (Empire), Mr. Charles Cardow (Pavilion), and Mr. Bert Harrow (Sunderland).

A meeting of the Variety Artists' Federation, Amalgamated Musicians' Union, and the National Association of Theatrical Employés and Stage Hands was held in the Artisans' Hall, Belfast, on Sunday evening, the 27th ult. The proceedings were presided over by Mr. H. Doherty, president (A.M.U.), who, in a few words, explained the object of the meeting, which was to federate the stage hands, and also to express sympathy with the present strike. He said that they were much disappointed at the enforced absence of Mr. Harry Mountford (chairman of the Alliance), and Mr. Joseph B. Williams (general secretary Musicians' Union), who were detained in London in connection with the strike. In the meantime it was in their own interests that they met that evening, and he hoped that those present would study the present state of affairs. Later on they would have Messrs. Mountford and Williams present, to lay the particulars before them. They were in sympathy with the artists in their demands, and he would strongly advise the stage staff to join their ranks, so that with the artists and musicians they would be united together for their interest. Mr. F. H. Morland (secretary Amalgamated Musicians' Union), who was instrumental in calling the meeting, read a telegram from Messrs. Mountford and Williams, stating that they were detained in connection with the present strike in London.

Professor Hughes, on behalf of the artists, said that the strike had their sympathy, and at a meeting held in Liverpool on Friday the sum of £82 was subscribed and forwarded to London. He urged upon the local stage staff to join the union, so that they would be able to present a united front and receive their rights.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS.

On Thursday night the executive of the National Alliance called out its members who were performing at the Palace, Stoke Newington, at Collins's, at the Cambridge, the London, and the Hippodrome, Crouch End. But little inconvenience was experienced, however, in giving entertainments at all these houses, where the managers in every instance made statements to the audience, and announced the new turns from the stage.

PROPRIETORS' PROCLAMATION.

In reply to the National Alliance executive, the following proclamation was issued by the London and Provincial Entertainments Protection Association (representing a membership of over 130) on Thursday night:—

"Certain statements emanating from the National Alliance are so absolutely inaccurate, and their own deductions therefrom so erroneous, that it is only right and proper that the public should be informed of the real facts of the case.

"Mr. W. Johnson, general secretary of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, is reported to have said: 'We could close 75 per cent. of the halls in the country to-morrow if we desired to do so.' Then, in the same interview, he observes: 'If the music-hall proprietors persist in risking their future prospects, it will be increasingly difficult for them to regain the support of the public.'

"As a matter of fact, the music-hall proprietors have acted solely on the defensive from the start of the strike. What loss of public support there has been can be attributed directly to the action of the National Alliance in calling out the 'stars' from the various halls, and whatever damage the variety business is suffering is clearly due to the extreme measures taken by the National Alliance in declaring a strike at a moment's notice, and without giving proprietors an opportunity of properly considering their drastic demands. Do performers realise that the ruin of the proprietor's business, which their leaders promise to bring about by their present methods, will also ruin the artists? If the businesses of the proprietors are ruined, where are the artists' contracts to come from in the future? In any case, it must necessitate a large reduction in salaries. In an official statement, the National Alliance says: 'If a man is paid £100 per week to appear at three halls, and is barred from any other hall, it means that, from the date he signs the contract, he is barred from all other halls till he fulfils his engagement, which may be six weeks, six months, or six years ahead. Now, if he has to remain idle for several weeks to obtain big salaries for certain weeks, where does the advantage come in for the artist?'

"An artist to allow himself to be placed in such a position would be an extremely bad business man. An artist of sufficient value to book up for any long period ahead at a big salary employs an agent, whose business it is to fill the artist's date-book so that he has no weeks vacant during the course of the year. The agent's business also is to see that none of the 'barring clauses' in any of the performer's contracts overlap each other. This is perfectly easy to arrange. The performer would, for instance, go over the whole of the Moss-Stoll circuit, which would occupy him several months. In the meantime his agent would procure for him engagements upon the London syndicate halls, which he would fulfil upon his return to town. Following these might come the Barrasford or De Frece tours, both comprising a number of provincial houses, with an occasional visit to Continental establishments for a month or so. By careful arrangement of contracts, which is the agent's business, most of our 'star' performers are booked up for three or even four years ahead, without any fear of being 'barred' so long as they do not, in their desire to work even more halls than have been contracted for beforehand, force the managements who employ them to put the 'barring clause' in operation. It has frequently happened that a performer who has been booked some time ahead to work the syndicate halls finds himself, for example, at the Oxford and Paragon. Not content with these two engagements from the syndicate, he will contract also to appear at some opposition establishment, making three 'turns' each night. In some cases the performer doing this has asked permission from the syndicate to work the third hall, and, wherever possible, such permissions are given. Sometimes they are not. More than often, it must be confessed, artists actually appear at the third hall on the Monday night, trusting that the syndicate will not enforce the 'barring clause' or that their appearance at the opposition establishment will not be officially observed. Such actions as these have caused injunctions to be applied for, and brought about legal strife, for which the performer concerned has been alone responsible.

"The National Alliance cite the instance of a lady artist who has signed a contract to appear in Manchester next summer. From the date of signing she may not appear within twenty miles of Manchester till the date of actually appearing.

"Even if this be so, there are contracts and to spare outside Manchester and its environs; enough, indeed, to last the lady for six months, or six years for that matter, without there being any need for her to go near that city.

"Another statement made officially by the National Alliance is as follows: 'The artists, finding that going cap in hand to the managers was useless, decided to form themselves into a fighting organisation, having the power to wrest justice from those who are not prepared to concede it.'

"This statement is controverted by the fact that friendly parleys between the secretaries of the Alliance and the directors of the syndicate halls were actually in progress when the Alliance delivered the first of their ultimatums."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—I claim the hospitality of your columns to announce that the London Entertainments Protection Association has decided, at the request of several provincial members, to enlarge its scope by including provincial members, and thus make for strength and unity in the face of the present intolerable and uncalled-for crisis.

That artists should ally themselves together for their own protection, for charity, and other benevolent purposes is a matter that no one can object to, but that servants of the public, petted and coaxed by them, whose salaries have advanced by leaps and bounds until shareholders become practically frozen out as regards dividends, and shares of large investors dwindle considerably in value, should ally themselves with Trade Union methods and disorganise labour is surely a most unnecessary and unusual proceeding.

For some time, ever since its start, I have watched with a large amount of interest the growth of the Artists' Federation. I have continuously read its official organ, and have had an opportunity of contributing thereto on frequent occasions of late to contradict statements emanating from their allies. We all know that falsehoods are difficult to contradict when they are spread broadcast, but half a lie is a great deal worse to contend with. The grievances of artists, in my opinion, are few and far between. The talk of slavery, unfair methods, &c., exists only in the heated brain of those who have been wound up to the concert-pitch of excitement by astute agitators who, finding contracts scarce and the salaries they desire unobtainable on their merits, are fighting for their own hand and their own aggrandisement. If tyranny exists in the music hall profession it is essentially exercised by the artist who desires to appear at his own time, who continually desires his dates altered, who occupies the time of managing-directors, both great and small, by asking for this favour daily, who only sings two songs or one when his contract states he should do three, who insists upon the way he should be billed, who wants to control the establishment where he is playing and command the scenery that he requires, who desires to alter the time at which he goes on at his or her sweet bidding. The star artist, whether he or she, is the pet tyrant of music hall managers. So much for slavery; and this sort of thing is continuously copied by those artists who do not yet shine quite so brightly.

To expose the methods of the Trade Union leaders in this strike I would point out that comparisons have been made as to the salaries of our musicians with the salaries given by the L.C.C. to its bandsmen of 47s. per week. A musician engaged at our theatres has to be in his orchestra for four hours a night six nights a week, whether at a one-house-a-night place or two-houses-a-night. At the latter he has a respite of twenty minutes. He has a band rehearsal once a week, mostly of one hour, but never extending to two; at some houses he has a matinée; while the County Council musician, at 47s. per week, has to perform twice a day, and also on Sundays, is dressed up in livery, and has the privilege of being idle eight months in the year. Hence, what does this comparison mean but to mislead musicians and public? Further, most of the musicians engaged in our theatres are occupied in the daytime in military bands, some give tuition, play at matinées and other morning concerts, and frequently send deputies for a night's pay for days and weeks at a time while their salaries elsewhere run into pounds. The Musicians' Union is a provincial association, numbering about 400 musicians, whose aim in this present movement is to increase its numbers, and to mislead its members for the benefit of its leaders, regardless of the havoc already wrought to some of its members, and no doubt, if continued, to be productive of further mischief to them. The stage hands are incited to discord and dissention (whether they have been in the employ of the establishment for four or fifteen years well content, no real grievance being without redress) by the audacity of artists who, while they perform on the stage at remunerative salaries, abuse the hospitality of the halls where they are under contract for the purpose of creating disorganisation. To prove that the men who arrogate to themselves the privilege or right to lead the workmen do not understand the necessities or methods of stage hands at our theatres or music halls, I would simply refer to the hours of labour they seek to impose upon us in what they grandiloquently call "their Charter" with all the arrogance of the born demagogue, which is so little removed from the tyrant, and which is thrust under our faces for signature at a few hours' notice in the Dick Turpin manner of "Stand and surrender"—"the hours of work to be from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m.; other men from 9 till 5, allowing one hour for dinner; Saturdays from 9 till 1; evening overtime, &c., &c."

The hours of labour of our men are generally from 10.30 until 3, and evening work.

Here we have the old policy of Trade Unionism that the duffer is to receive the same remuneration as the skilled workman, and we are to be threatened and faced with a strike whenever a dissolute or incapable workman should have to be discharged because he belongs to the Union. Further, all men in employment to belong to their Association, whether they like it or not, and all non-Union men, whether loyal and faithful and satisfied to be discharged or coerced into joining.

This is what artists with large or small salaries are working for, making themselves prominent in front of houses by picketing, mixing themselves up with the lowest and dirtiest jobs, whether man or woman, as instanced by the following extract taken from a recent Daily Mail, and reprinted from a leaflet distributed by prominent artists, as untruthful as it is filthy, and the legality of which will be adjudicated upon by counsel, not only as to the author and printer thereof, but as to the distributor, who is known:—

"There is a gang of the most unscrupulous blackguards connected with the profession, acting both as managers and agents, who not only fleece the poor artists right and left by secret and other commissions, but to whom no woman's honour is sacred."

It is here a fair question to ask, are the artists aware that the great policy of Union leaders is "one man, one job," and will the stars so charitably inclined, who proclaim from the housetops that their dividends at the Grand Palace, Clapham, will be reduced, but do not mind the sacrifice (knowing all the time that if the house were closed the present lessee of this place would still have to pay them 8 per cent. per annum, and that the money lays in their directors' names guaranteed at the bank, so that their statement here again is misleading, to use a mild term) adhere to that policy? If so, they would have to be content with the poor salary of, say, £2,000, or £3,000, or £4,000 a year, and do only one turn instead of desiring to do two or three, and thus double or triple that amount per annum.

One of the great troubles that has arisen in the minds of the leaders of this movement is the barring clause. A barring clause is made for the purpose of securing the services of artists for a certain length of time, giving them certain engagements in London, and leaving them open for the provinces at an enhanced salary. It has the double advantage to the artist that, instead of running about to four or five halls per night, as some of them have been doing, it secures their value as artists for a greater length of time by preventing them being so quickly played out before the public. It is a contract essentially commercial and legally made, signed with their eyes open, and, if it requires modification, it must be modified by consent of both contracting parties, as is frequently done. Trouble arises from the artist who frequently, when signing, is unscrupulous enough not to put on the face of it the halls at which they already hold engagements and which are barred, and who does not in many cases disdain to immediately enter into other engagements, relying on the good nature of the manager or director to give permission for that appearance, as is also frequently done. If the barring clause presses hardly on anyone it may do so on individual proprietors, and any relaxation thereof must be a mutual concession between them.

Does Miss Lloyd, whom I am sorry to mention personally, reflect when she complains about the slavery of the profession in daily papers, day after day, and who, in the Daily Mail, instances a case of injunction against her as a hardship because she was not allowed to infringe her signed contract some months ago by playing elsewhere within the radius, reflect that only a few weeks ago Mr. Payne gave her permission to go outside her contract to the London Music Hall, and that he released her (owing to a plea of not having sufficiently recovered) three weeks ago from an engagement at the Euston, that I followed suit two weeks ago at Chelsea, and that to-day her strength is sufficiently recuperated to distribute leaflets at night during the most inclement weather, vilifying the men who have been her friends through life, and have with pleasure seen her rise in her profession from the salary of £6 per week to £60 a turn within a space of fifteen years? This is only the period that I have been connected with the business, and I can instance artists who, in less space than that, have advanced from the small salary named to twenty times and twenty-five times that amount per week. When dividends dwindle, as per figures shown at foot, when the amount of salaries paid exceed in many cases half the takings, when directors do not earn in one year out of a hall what artists get in many cases in one week, I would ask the public on which side lies the justice and on which side lie the vilifying, the slander, and the disgusting falsehoods that are spread broadcast by hunters of notoriety for their own benefit, and in which they are assisted daily by misguided artists? That they, as an association of artists, might have a few grievances to redress, such as payment for matinées and other little matters, I would not here deny, but the members of my Association are at present determined to resent the un-English methods that have been adopted. They require as caterers the sympathy of the public; they are not placed in a position of trust by their shareholders, or have invested capital on their own account, to be foolish enough to lose sight of the fact that they are servants of the public, whom they frequently have to disappoint through the wilfulness of artists who disregard their contracts. The members of my Association are just business men, and not hard-dealing men; they do not descend to falsehoods or half-untruths in order to mislead the public, and they confidently rely upon the confidence of their shareholders, and of their patrons at large, to well weigh the ridiculous and exaggerated statements that are being daily disseminated through the Press, and to judge them in a fair and just manner.

I could go on at much greater length if I did not fear to outrun your hospitality, and remain, Sir, your obedient servant,

HENRI GROS.

The few figures attached speak very plainly as to excessive fees, poor salaries, and enormous dividends.

	Admissions and Profit Bars.	Salaries and Wages.	Nett Profit.	Fees.	Fixed Charges, about.

MR. FRED EUSTACE'S EXPLANATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—As so much bitterness has been displayed and so many cruel and insulting epithets cast upon me for not supporting the Variety Artists' Federation against the music-hall proprietors, will you permit me to place before your readers a few facts which will, I think, justify the course adopted by me?

When I consented to join the Federation it was to support the objects for which the Society was formed, and which are most laudable and honourable as well. They are printed in the book of rules, and read as follows:—

"I. To secure unity of action in order to improve the position and status of every class of artist.

"II. To abolish all abuses detrimental to their welfare.

"III. To promote industrial peace and progress by all amicable means, and when differences do arise to assist in obtaining an equitable settlement by reasonable means.

"IV. To accumulate from the contributions of the members a fund to protect the interests of the members and benefits specified.

"V. To provide benefits upon the death of a member for his widow and children.

"VI. To provide legal assistance.

"VII. To provide funds for an old-age pension.

"VIII. To establish a newspaper devoted to the objects of the Federation."

And while the Federation had kept within their articles of association they would have had my assistance and support. But to adopt such a course as the arbitrary method pursued on the night of the 21st was, I venture to think, not only cruel, but unjust.

A strike at any time should be avoided, if possible, and never adopted until all other means have failed. It brings untold misery in its train; it leaves only harsh and bitter feelings behind. It is never adopted in trade union societies until the voice of the members has been taken upon it, and if that course had been pursued in our case much pain and trouble would have been avoided. But to force a strike at an hour's notice, to deprive innocent people of the means of earning their living, to throw those unfortunate members of the stage who were not members of the Federation upon their own resources, is a course, I am proud to say, I refuse to adopt.

I was told that I personally was entitled to relief if I needed it from the funds of the Federation. Unfortunately, the members of my company were not, and I preferred to cast in my lot with them.

I admit I owed an allegiance to the V.A.F. while they kept within the rules, but I deny that I owe any to the fighting and jealous spirit which, I regret to say, is exhibited by certain members. It is an unfortunate fact that the success of sketches in the music-halls has aroused not only opposition among the theatre managers, but a bitter spirit in a certain section of the Federation members as well, which the following facts prove:—

About a year ago the idea of the V.A.F. was suggested and successfully launched. At one meeting the question was put—"Are sketch artists eligible for membership?" and from all parts of the room came the reply, "No! No! No! We don't want actors." This was the esprit de corps displayed by one professional brother to another—a brother who saw in the promotion of a society of his own the means of successfully driving sketches from the music-hall stage.

There were, I am pleased to say, many gentlemen in the room who strongly disapproved of the attempt to exclude us. They urged their views on our behalf, and I thank them most sincerely for their championship. But it is upon the whole of the members' generosity that the members of my company would have had to rely. They had no claim upon the funds of the Federation, and I considered it my duty to consider their interest as well.—I am, yours truly,

FRED EUSTACE.

On Wednesday evening the spacious drill hall of the Bloomsbury Rifles in Chenies-street, Tottenham Court-road, was filled to overflowing on the occasion of the vocal and instrumental concert given by the pupils of Miss Mabel Lauri, a niece of the late celebrated mime. In the first part Miss Ethel Bringloe, in addition to Woodford-Finden's "Kashmiri love song," sang a tasteful ballad by Miss Lauri, entitled "Alone"; and Mr. Charles Knowles, the celebrated baritone, was heard in Airlie Dix's "Trumpeter" and "My only love," accompanied in each by the composer. Several of Miss Lauri's pupils gave convincing proof on the pianoforte of that lady's skill as a teacher. The pantomime of Cinderella followed, and was provocative of much merriment and enjoyment, the whole being capitally enacted by juveniles, with the exception of Miss Lauri (who played the Wicked Stepmother), and who, in addition to making the whole of the dresses, was responsible for the "book" and much of the music, including a striking minuet. A select orchestra, under the leadership of J. Airlie Dix, was a great factor in an altogether successful evening.

Tom Edwards, the well-known and popular ventriloquist, who went abroad for his health some months ago, has made quite a big success in America, and has some handsome offers to remain, which he intends doing for some time to come.

NATIONAL ALLIANCE MASS MEETING.

At the second mass meeting of the National Alliance at the Surrey Theatre on Sunday evening the chair was occupied by Mr. Joe O'Gorman, chairman of the V.A.F., supported by Mr. Frank Gerald (general sec. V.A.F.), Mr. Wm. Johnson (secretary N.A.T.E.), Mr. J. B. Williams (secretary A.M.U.), and Mr. Harry Mountford (chairman of the Alliance). The house was again placed at the disposal of the Alliance by Mr. Macnaghten.

MR. O'GORMAN said:—"Sister and Brother Artists and Ladies and Gentlemen of the Alliance,—I thank you all most heartily for the self-sacrificing manner in which you have responded to the calls of your Executive Committee. I will ask you to excuse me if I refer more particularly to my own branch of the Alliance, because, of course, I know more about our own branch than I do about the other two, who are so ably and so nobly assisting us in this great fight. I beg to thank, also, our absent members—those who are away in the country, and who cannot be with us just now. But, ladies and gentlemen, if you could only know the way that they have responded with their tens, twenties, and hundreds of pounds, and the way in which the gentlemen who are getting £100 and £50 per week, which we have heard so much about from our friend, Mr. Stoll, you would be very much cheered. Mr. Stoll does not tell us anything about those who work for £2 a week, or less. I worked for Mr. Stoll's revered and respected mother—a lady, I may tell you, who was respected by every member of the profession—I worked for that lady years ago for as little as 35s. a week; but at that time Mr. Stoll was not able to deal with such sums as £35,000 out of one little bill. Neither were a lot of other gentlemen whom one could mention at the present day. However, let me say this—I believe Mr. Stoll is an honourable man, and I believe that Mr. Stoll, when we meet him, will listen to the voice of reason. Mr. Stoll, ladies and gentlemen, has never been approached by us yet, but we hope that when Mr. Stoll considers that he is dealing with those who have helped to place him where he is we shall be treated fairly. I can assure Mr. Stoll, with all due respect to him, that we shall not raise one finger against him until our demands are put before him and Mr. Stoll refuses to meet us. And when he refuses we will not fight with the kid gloves that we had on when we approached Mr. Gibbons at the start. We will take off our kid gloves, we will strip down to the waist, in the good old English fashion, and have a good set-to. (Applause.) When Mr. Stoll came to London he was respected by everybody in the profession. He paid, and wisely paid, provincial salaries, and it was not until the Euston came along and asked you to play to two houses a night in London for turn money that Mr. Stoll realised what he was doing. Now, I have no hesitation in saying that if at the time I am referring to we had only been federated we would never have worked two houses a night for turn money. Now I come to my friend Mr. Gibbons. That gentleman played with me for awhile, and I believed him. It was on the Tuesday, and I came down and asked Mr. Gerald and others to stop the picketing in consideration of the proposal that the gentleman in question was going to meet a deputation of us on the following day. I got off to Camberwell to do my business, and Mr. Gibbons, after I had got away, said he had never promised Mr. O'Gorman anything. ("Shame!") When we met him and obtained a written statement from him telling us that he was prepared to give us everything, we thought he was giving us everything. At that time we were prepared to accept from Mr. Gibbons an agreement whereby we would play two houses a night at the Royal, Holborn, and two matinées, without any extra remuneration, on condition that no matinées were added. Was that an excessive condition? ("No!") But he has not put his name to this paper, and he repudiates what he said, and now he must pay for all matinées.

At one time he agreed to the clause of there being no commission on engagements made direct, but ran away from it, and, of all people in the world, the first person he tried it on was our friend, Mr. Mountford. He says to him, practically, "Now, then, Harry, my boy, we will not stop any commission, but instead of making it £12, we will make it £11 8s." (Laughter.) Now, the contracts were written out, and Mr. Mountford brought them before us, and I believe Mr. Gibbons has amended his ways since. He is making them now for the full amount. Mr. Gibbons is the cause of our present troubles. This was a fairly happy profession until Mr. Gibbons pushed his nose in amongst us at Islington. (Laughter.) Mr. Gibbons now appeals to the outside public, and says, "They want me to discharge my old servants of twenty-five years' standing." (Laughter.) And, remember, Mr. Gibbons has not been a proprietor five years. (Laughter.) I tell you, without fear of contradiction, that we have won. (Long and continued cheering.) If we had not been an honourable body of gentlemen, we would have closed the Chelsea and the Metropolitan the same night. But I knew that Mr. Gros was ill, and we were not going to fight with poisoned weapons. (Applause.) We have the reins and we have the whip—we are, in fact, masters of the situation. (Applause.) The proprietors know that they are beaten, and I appeal to them to come down off their pedestals and agree to a charter which is fair and honest. I hope that they will agree with us and work in with us; and if they do, while it will be good for them, it will be a great and lasting success for the Variety Artists' Federation. (Loud cheering.)

MR. FRANK GERALD, the general secretary, said:—We have started on a work that we should have started upon years and years ago. You all know what you have passed through; you all know that the time is now with you to make as certain as possible of your position. You have a weapon in your hands. Use it now! The past week shows what can be done by means of organisation. It has proved that the music hall profession—artists, musicians, and stage employees—can stick together. I ask you to stick together in the future, and I know you will excuse me for urging you to do so because you should study yourselves. It is just the doubt as to combination that has made the proprietor and the manager laugh at us. But by so doing they have given us the power to organise. The proprietor and the manager never thought that we could build a foundation upon a rock, as we have done, so that the institution which we have formed cannot be pushed over by all the capital in the world. The capital is on our side, for the real capital in the music hall world is the talent. Our friend, Mr. Mountford, last Sunday night, said, "We don't want to fight, but by Jingo if we do," and he then added some words of his own in reference to our case. I will now add my version in these words: "We've got the brains, we've got the boys, we've got the talent, too." We have issued a handbill showing which are the fair halls at the present time, and I think we should all do our best to let it be known that the halls under Mr. Macnaghten's management and under Mr. Grimes's management have been good enough to concede our terms, and thereby help them, because so great is the interest now taken by the public in this affair that every music hall in London is doing bad business—fair house or bad house. Therefore, do your best to dispel the impression that may exist in regard to the houses under the control of the gentlemen I have named. You know that your Executive have been looking out for a place of amusement with a view to opening it, and for it to be run by this Alliance. I can tell you now that I have in my pocket the signed agreement on behalf of this Alliance for the finest theatre in London, and not in London only, but in the world. And the agreement is on these terms: We take it for whatever period we may choose upon the conditions that have been arranged. We also have the option of the lease of this magnificent property for twenty-one years. More than that, we have the option of the absolute freehold of it for ever—the Scala Theatre, which will open next Thursday night, under our management. Attached to the theatre is an enormous block of buildings, suitable for club rooms and offices, and several shops, making one enormous property, and I believe myself that here is a splendid opportunity to establish our Music Hall Exchange. There we shall have a residence which will be the hub, so to speak, of the music hall world; and if a great artist wants to come to this country from abroad, he or she will come to the Scala, to the centre of the Alliance of these three Associations; he or she will come among their own fellow-workers in this gigantic scheme, instead of going to play for trusts or syndicates. Tell everybody you know that we are going to open at the Scala next Thursday, at the most beautiful theatre in the world, and with a world-wide programme, and one house a night only. (Loud cheering.)

THE CHAIRMAN announced that he had just received the following telegram from the Manchester meeting:—"One hundred artists and employees urge continuance of policy. 'In all things fair; to all men just.'"

MR. WILLIAM JOHNSON, secretary of the National Association of Theatrical Employees, stated that Mr. Gibbons had declared that the dressers were not employed by him, but were virtually the servants of the lady artists; the half-a-crown a week he paid them was only an honorarium. (Laughter.) Who engaged and dismissed these dressers? Mr. Gibbons. (Cheers.) They were his servants, and he was responsible for the conditions under which they were employed. (Cheers.) A member of the National Association of Theatrical Employees who had been employed at one of Mr. Gibbons's halls during the day received 25s. a week for twelve shows per week. He had to work two matinées, for which he has not received a penny. That man was receiving 11s. less than the sum agreed upon in the charter. ("Shame!") In another instance a man received a minimum of 7d. an hour, or 17s. 6d. per week, which was 6s. less than the man was entitled to. A third man was employed from 9.30 until 2.30 to work in front, and to do such additional work as might be required, for which he was entitled to 7d. an hour He was employed thirty hours, which was 17s. 6d., but never received more than 6s. A fourth man employed under Mr. Gibbons at night, whose minimum wage was 24s., received for seventy-six hours, with no meal times, and ten hours Sunday work, 22s. 6d. for six days. On Jan. 20, after the agreement, he received 2½d. an hour for Sunday work. (Laughter.) An assistant electrician was entitled to 36s. per week. He worked eighty-one hours a week, inclusive of meal times, and received 20s. ("Shame!") The stage hands had risked all they had to risk, and no man could do more. It was for them to stand shoulder to shoulder until that charter had been signed. (Loud cheering.)

THE CHAIRMAN announced the receipt of a further telegram:—"Bravo. Fight to the end.—APOLLO and JIMMY FINNEY, New York." (Loud cheers.)

MR. J. B. WILLIAMS, chairman of the Amalgamated Musicians' Union, said he had been fighting for the musicians for something like fifteen years, and that was his thirtieth dispute. Up till the 14th of this month the variety artists had been despised by the managers, because they never gave them credit for the intelligence to hang together. The same grit, determination, and the same ability which enabled the stars of the profession to rise from the ranks to their present altitude had enabled, and would enable, them to carry on that fight. He had never met Mr. Walter Gibbons, Mr. Payne only in an interview, and not Mr. Henri Gros. Mr. Gros had said that the Musicians' Union was a provincial association, numbering about 400 members, whose aim in this present movement was to increase its numbers and to mislead its members for the benefit of the leaders. He always gave the managers credit for knowing something of what was going on, but they had put in black and white by managers that theirs was a provincial union, representing 400 members, when there were over 600 in London alone. A well-known comedian with them that night had 100 supers engaged to help him with his sketch. They were not engaged by the comedian, and he had no liability. The managers who had the liability refused to discharge it, and the man who had had no liability, out of his large heart, came forward and said, "You shall not suffer; I will pay you myself." It was Joe Elvin.

THE CHAIRMAN said he might add that Mr. Elvin had called him on the 'phone to go to his place. When he went round, Mr. Elvin had said, "There is my salary from the Metropolitan unopened." (Renewed enthusiasm.)

On Saturday they appointed Mr. George H. Dyball stage-manager of the Scala. Their desire was to do something to help those less fortunate than themselves.

MR. HARRY MOUNTFORD moved the following resolution:—

"That this meeting of members, non-members, and friends of the allied societies reaffirm their confidence in the Alliance and the pledges to insist upon the adoption of the charter, and further calls upon the public to continue its support of the cause by refraining from patronising any place of amusement affected by the dispute until the terms of the charter have been conceded."

He said, in the course of his speech: "Mr. Henri Gros gives some figures. There is one item, giving a total in 1906, which shows admissions and bar profits to stand at £65,468, salaries and wages are put down at £26,980, net profit £18,500. This large amount paid in salaries drew into the house £65,000, thus showing the attractiveness of the artists to be nearly 150 per cent. above the money paid to them. Is there any shopkeeper in the world buying goods and making 150 per cent. profit on them?" Mr. Mountford then went on to deal with the question of commission on artists' salaries. "Mr. Gibbons," continued Mr. Mountford, "is advertising the enormous success of the new and untried talent. It has proved such an enormous success that they have lowered the prices to half at the Canterbury and the Paragon, and I understand it is three-halfpence in the gallery. And what does he think of his bills? At any rate, he thinks so much of his bills and companies that he left the name Walter Gibbons from the top. I can see on the hill-tops that the clouds are breaking, the sun is shining through them, and the members of this Alliance can discern in the distance peace, contentment, and reform."

MR. HOLLES seconded the resolution, and asked for three rousing cheers for the ladies of the profession. This was responded to vigorously.

MR. WAL PINK regretted somewhat that he was called upon to support the resolution, as he was suffering from a severe cold. That was the warmest audience and the coldest stage he had ever tasted.

MR. JOE ELVIN said:—I am put down as a star artist, according to the bills of Mr. Payne and Mr. Gibbons, at £175 a week. It is a pleasure to me, with such women as the Queen of Artists—Marie Lloyd—to throw my lot in with you. It is my duty to do so. I have been thirty years in this profession, and whatever greatness I have got, I have served an apprenticeship for, and have earned it. If these men—Mr. Payne, Mr. Gros, and the other proprietors—will only come forward as men of the world and sign the charter, which is fair and just to everybody, we will go to work as soon as you like, and be as happy as possible. (Laughter.) We just want them to sign this charter. (Loud cheers.) We want peace with honour. (Cheers.)

MR. ARTHUR ROBERTS, being called upon by the chairman, said:—Ladies and Gentlemen,—At the commencement of this, when I found I was in arrears with the Federation by accident, I apologised to the secretary and sent along my subscription. I naturally felt it my duty, having had to struggle for my existence, when I found this struggle. I said it was not only a duty to come out, but a pleasure to come out. It is desirable if the dispute can be settled with dignity and honour, but it is impossible for us to yield, because if we yield now we are done for for ever. We are going to fight, and we must win. My heart and soul is with you, and I wish every success to this just cause.

MR. GERALD then read a note which had just been put into his hands from Dr. Distin Maddick:—"Dear Mr. Gerald,—Appreciating the manner with which the V.A.F. received the announcement of the Scala, I have great pleasure in subscribing 100 guineas to the Alliance."

MR. R. A. ROBERTS said:—On Thursday night I had an interview with Mr. Adney Payne, and as a result of the interview I wrote my resignation to the V.A.F. Mr. Payne showed me a circular, and I was told that they could compel me to appear under an enormous penalty. They threatened to sue me for £1,500 if I did not appear next week. I have a four weeks' engagement with Mr. Payne, and if it costs £1,500, thank God! I have got it, and will pay it. I am with you, and will stick to you to the end. (Tremendous cheers.)

MR. BERT CLARK said he was heart and soul with the Federation, but he thought that they ought to have some kind of olive branch. That was a question for the Executive Committee. He would fall or rise with them.

THE CHAIRMAN said:—Five per cent. levies on the salaries are being made at the present moment. The levy comes to £5,000. All claims were paid out yesterday, and all they asked for they got, and we can give them some more now we know the strength of our funds. We paid out £335, and we have not the slightest doubt in the next week to meet everything that is coming along. (Cheers.) That is only the levy. All our Harry Lauders and Marie Loftuses, and other women with hearts and souls, keep coming along, prepared to put down money weekly.

MR. W. H. CLEMART said he was one of the earliest founders. He was due at Croydon, and he was going to strike to-morrow.

MR. C. C. BARTRAM said they should forget all about the agents until the battle was over, and when the battle was over and the smoke had cleared, and the managers had signed the Charter, then they would have plenty of time to deal with those agents who had seen fit to desert them and fight on the side of the managers.

The resolution was then put and carried, amid scenes of the greatest enthusiasm.

MR. GUS ELEN proposed a vote of thanks to the chairman, which was seconded by Mr. Jesson, and carried.

SAN CARLOS TRIO IN ABERDEEN.

DELIGHT ALL VISITORS.

The management of the Palace Theatre, Aberdeen, has secured for the present week the San Carlos, Italian operatic artists of distinction, who give a performance affording a rare treat to music lovers. In excerpts from Mascagni's Cavalleria Rusticana these three vocalists appear to splendid advantage, their cultured style and the exquisite blending of their voices being such as to elicit the highest admiration. So refined and artistic a performance is unusual on the music hall stage, and it is gratifying to note that last night the large audience was thoroughly appreciative, being evidently disposed to welcome a most pleasing innovation. The San Carlos are to be heartily congratulated on the cordiality of their reception on the occasion of their first appearance in Scotland, and we are confident that the exceptional excellence of this musical contribution to a varied programme will delight all visitors.—Aberdeen Daily Journal, Tuesday, Jan. 29, 1907.

TOP THE BILL.

There was a very large audience at the Palace Theatre last night. The programme submitted was excellent in every way. The San Carlos, Italian operatic vocalists, headed the bill. They gave a very find rendering of the trio from Cavalleria Rusticana, also two lighter numbers of Italian songs, in which their cultivated voices blended most harmoniously, the soprano being particularly brilliant. These are, as a trio, the highest cultured voices heard at the Palace for some time.—The Aberdeen Free Press, Jan. 29, 1907.

HORACE WHEATLEY AT THE ARGYLE, BIRKENHEAD.

Horace Wheatley, one of the cleverest, if not the cleverest Irish comedian on the music hall stage, delights all with reminiscences of MacIntyre who, to judge by his jokes, is a very acceptable companion indeed. The adventures of "Finnigan" are also related with much humour, whilst dancing is a strong feature, as anyone who has seen Horace Wheatley will be well aware. He steps as lightly as ever, and is an undoubted success.—The Birkenhead News, Jan. 16.

There is much to interest and amuse at the Hippodrome. Horace Wheatley, the well-known comedian, provides the star turn. He has a number of new songs and a stock of quaint sayings, which, delivered in his inimitable style, are as entertaining as the old favourites.—Birmingham Evening Despatch, Jan. 22.

The programme this week at the Tivoli is certain to prove very attractive. Horace Wheatley, "the genial one," is always a great favourite in Liverpool, and there is ample evidence of this in the furore with which he is received. He is in fine voice, and has lost not one iota of his great popularity. He is a comedian of a refined order, and his contributions are received with the greatest applause.—The Liverpool Daily Post and Mercury, Jan. 29.

"KING BABY."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—I note in your current issue that Miss Vesta Tilley is well pleased with a new song, "King Baby," suggested by the famous picture, "His Majesty the Baby." In fairness to all concerned, may I respectfully notify that a song of this title and written round the picture has been successfully exploited at most London music-halls, and is being sung at Brighton this week by Miss Maud Wilton, and is from the pen of—Yours faithfully,

Forest Gate, Jan. 30. PHIL HARRIS.

THE BARRING CLAUSE.

BY OSWALD STOLL.

"The beginning and the end of the whole affair is the barring clause," says Mr. Alec Hurley. Subversive of business stability by lawless repudiation of contracts, confiscation of capital value and goodwill, and destruction of the goose, or geese, that lay the golden salaries are details evidently to Mr. Hurley.

Now, fine variety theatres have been erected, costing many thousands of pounds, upon sites of great value in main thoroughfares. Competition between them has raised the salaries of artists to a standard that taxes severely their earning capacity. Hardly any other calling has a general average of pay so high. Ten pounds per week is considered a handsome salary in most walks of life. Thousands of these artists would consider an offer of such a salary an insult. Such as are poorly paid in any house of standing are only those employed by artists themselves in a troupe. The leader draws a large salary, often under the pretence of his troupe being a partnership, pays them a beggarly wage, and pockets the bulk of the salary himself.

Engagements at large salaries have been made for future dates. The artists, to get these future contracts, gladly bar themselves from appearing at other theatres in the area which the theatres of the contract depend upon for patronage. Later on, finding that one of these "barred" houses offers even higher terms, they think it an injustice that they must go elsewhere for less money when they could take this high price here if they were not barred by their contract with the opposition. Some other artist gets that vacant place. Hence the barring clause has actually made work for artists. Many are deluded into supporting a movement against the barring clause by forgetting that if Mr. Joe Elvin or Miss Marie Lloyd get two engagements were they could otherwise have only one they are necessarily doing somebody else out of work. Mr. Joe Elvin, who figures so largely as the artists' friend, is not content with aiming at even the two engagements for himself, but wants to organise a company without himself, comprised of less intelligent artists, whose services he will sell at a profit.

If the barring clause is really the pretended evil, why should the future contract be entered into? If an artist signs no future contracts he binds himself to no barring clause.

If a contract for next year be placed before him and he is not short of immediate work, how can it be said that he is under any compulsion whatever to sign it? Or if he is in want of immediate work is he not foolish to sign it and so bar himself from the chance of earlier work in the neighbourhood to which the contract refers? The truth is, artists wish to engage themselves ahead, though they would like the contract to be of a nature that they could be compelled to observe if nothing better should turn up or if it should not prove inconvenient.

Without a barring clause that suited his own circumstances every manager would cease to make engagements in advance, for the advantage of the exclusive attractiveness of an artist would have vanished, while the price of talent that anyone could have would come down with a run.

Another era of the cheap and nasty houses that could afford this low level of salaries would come into fashion. The irresponsibles revel in the idea, for they say that these palaces are not essential. "The play's the thing." The result would be diminished individual receipts and the low general level of business that would compel the palaces and the expensive sites on which they stand to be used for other purposes. Music-hall business, in short, would be back to the old days of one-tenth of present salaries. Shows would again be given on first floors of public-houses and bar parlours, until a new cycle of evolution began with a rebirth of the barring clause for the creation of value by exclusiveness.

Suppose the existing houses, having given up the practice of making future contracts, leave artists competing with one another for immediate engagements: is that a situation which the artists understand they are really fighting for? There is not one performer in a hundred who desires to bring such a situation about.

Let the leaders of this movement test it, and, giving their order in another way, forbid the members of the Federation to sign any contract containing a more stringent barring clause than their own proposal.

Surely if the barring clause is so vital a grievance as to warrant a strike there could not possibly be any difficulty in getting members to obey that order. The barring clause may be settled by the artists themselves without any strike if the views of their leaders are sound!

The following statement concerning the barring clause and contracts emanates from the National Alliance:—

If the removal of the barring clause would be inimical to the artists' interests, how is it that the trust managers are the only ones to make all the fuss about it being removed? The barring clause is only useful to the big syndicates and trusts, who can corner the star turns by paying them these alleged large salaries. We say alleged large salaries because it is a moot point whether they are as large as they are represented to be. For instance, if a man is paid £100 per week to appear at three halls, and is barred from any other hall, it means that from the date he signs the contract he is barred from all other halls till he fulfils his engagement, which may be six weeks, six months, or six years ahead. Now, if he has to remain idle for several weeks to obtain big salaries for certain weeks, where does the advantage come in for the artist? He has to make that money extend over the weeks when he is not allowed to work, and those large sums often mean an inclusive salary out of which the artist has to engage other people whom he has to pay. Now for other instances.

We have before us many cases of turns engaged for six or eight weeks in one year at small salaries, who are barred from appearing at any other halls in London for the other weeks in that year. Here is another case reported to-day. A lady artist has signed a contract to appear in Manchester next summer. From the date of signing she may not appear within twenty miles of Manchester till the date of actually appearing. Now for some more. On Monday night last at a London hall an artist was barred from appearing because he held a contract with a trust, the date of his actual appearance with that trust being two and a half years ahead. This artist was the middle of the bill, and on Tuesday the top of the bill was barred by an injunction at the same hall by the same trust. So that not only is the artist made to suffer, but it is used primarily against the individual proprietors of the small halls, who are thus faced with the alternative of being crushed out of existence or swallowed by the trusts.

There is no barring clause in the theatrical profession, where there is as much capital at stake, and the interests are just as great, as in the music halls. It has come along with the advent of the trust. It is a trust weapon, and detrimental to the interests of the people who provide the entertainment.

With regard to the form of contract. In every case where a manager has been approached and has asked to see the contract before he signed the charter, he has, without exception, been supplied with same. The extraordinary thing is that the form of contract submitted by the V.A.F. is so full of conditions and clauses which protect the interests of the managers that it has been said frequently that the contract was more in favour of the management than the artist.

The statement that the ultimatum was placed before the managers in a manner which is absolutely unprecendented is not in accordance with facts.

With regard to the assertion that artists have made a mistake by allying themselves with trade unions, let us look at the facts. Three years ago a deputation from the artists waited on the managers, and were treated with contempt. The deputation consisted of the leading artists in the profession. Ten months ago a memorial was presented on behalf of the artists, and only received a formal acknowledgment. The artists, finding that going cap in hand to the managers was useless, decided to form themselves into a fighting organisation, having the power to wrest justice from those who are not prepared to concede it.

MEETING AT THE SCALA.

The Variety Artists Federation have taken a very daring step in leasing Dr. Distin Maddick's classic house, their object being twofold. They propose to run the theatre as a music hall and the adjacent premises, which were originally designed as a high-class restaurant, they will use as the headquarters of their various societies. It is very doubtful whether the severe style of architecture of the building is suited to a variety house, and it certainly had a chilling effect on what was called "the house-warming and reception" on Thursday night. The dress circle and stalls were fairly well filled by a good-humoured audience, among whom there were to be recognised some well-known faces, and later on it was explained from the platform that a great number of the supporters of the movement were scattered over the Metropolis on picket duty. As was to be expected, a first-class orchestra had been assembled, and under the conductorship of Mr. William Neale it played in really excellent style a few selections, which served to pass the very long time which elapsed before the proceedings really commenced. It was rather a touching commentary on the ill-fortune which has attended this artistic venture—the Scala Theatre—to observe the look of surprise and admiration on the faces of the majority as they entered the beautiful auditorium. Later in the evening the whole of the stage, dressing-rooms, and the adjoining restaurant were thrown open, and a thorough inspection was made by the artists and their friends of what they were told was in future to be their own home. After the delightful musical programme had been played, the curtain was raised, and Mr. Joe O'Gorman took the chair. He was supported on the stage by Mr. Frank Gerald, Mr. C. C. Bartram, Mr. Gus Elen, Mr. George D'Albert, Mr. W. Smythson, and Ald. Mitchell.

The chairman briefly opened the meeting by thanking the audience for their presence on behalf of his brother and sister artists.

Mr. Frank Gerald said that one word which rose to his lips that night was "Welcome!" There they were at home—at home for ever, he hoped. If the scheme that they had in view came to a successful issue the artists in future, in addition to being artists, would be proprietors, and so long as they were proprietors they would not introduce any unfair clauses into the contracts under which they would work their own theatres. The barring clause would be one mile and three months. They would show that they meant to practise what they preached, and he contended that, with the support of their friends among the public, the theatre would be packed to the doors every night. It was their intention that evening to show the audience over the building, and to let them see the accommodation they had secured for a music-hall exchange; and, on behalf of the three federated societies, he wished them all welcome to the Scala Theatre.

Mr. C. C. Bartram remarked that there would have been more artists present had it not been for the fact that so many of them were engaged in picket duty. Coming to the question which was exciting so much public attention, and which accounted for the assemblage at the Scala that evening, he said that they were tired of being exploited by financial adventurers. They, the artists, had been exploited until almost every drop of blood in their bodies had been taken. It was not their own money that the directors had been fighting with but the money of the shareholders. The artists wanted to see the shareholders rise up against these financial adventurers. On another point he felt sure that the sympathy of the working classes was with the artists. This war was only a movement of the century. The emancipation of the producer and the securing of the full profits of his produce would be accomplished before the end of this century.

Mr. Harry Mountford pointed out that their three associations stood alone, and they were going to stand out for each other's welfare. At a meeting on the previous day of certain managers the threat was held out that unless other managers joined them the barring clause would be regulated in such a manner as to seriously interfere with business. He wanted to point out that a bar of three months and one mile was arranged between Collins's Music Hall and the Islington Empire. Artists were booked up right and left for the Islington Empire on this understanding, but they were badly deceived when they were told to look at their contracts. Was it not a serious matter when Mr. Stoll barred an artist from appearing at Crouch End for two and a half years? Mr. Mountford here read a shareholder's letter, asking for particulars as to the sum of £24,000 which on a previous occasion had been referred to as an annual loss to music-hall shareholders; and concluded by remarking that even if they failed they would have done some good.

The chairman stated that "one of Mr. Stoll's satellites" had been going among the artists with the question, "Are you in favour of a strike?" If the answer were given in the affirmative he (the speaker) presumed that the artist would not be employed by that syndicate. He considered it a mean and despicable thing to do.

Mr. Gerald here read out a list of telegrams from all parts of the country wishing good luck to the movement.

During the proceedings Alderman Mitchell and a Mr. B. Tillett, who described themselves as Trades Union officials, interpolated a few remarks, and after it had been announced that a mass meeting would be held on Sunday at the Scala, the business concluded with the singing of "For we are V.A.F.'s."

TWO HOUSES A NIGHT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—May I add to Mr. J. W. Rowley's interesting letter in last week's Era? In addition to the old "Cos." (which I well remember), there was the St. Leonard's Music Hall, Shoreditch, in 1866, giving two shows a night, with three on Saturdays, under the management, I believe, of the same Mr. Harwood who subsequently opened the Pitfield-street Varieties.

OLD SCHOOL.

MR. GEORGE LEYTON has just accepted a new song from Messrs. Harrington and Tate, entitled "A bottle of wine," from which he expects big results in the near future. Mr. Leyton is now busily engaged in rehearsing his new dramatic sketch, The Last Muster, from the same prolific pens.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

THE Guild services conducted by the Rev. T. Horne at Olympia have unfortunately been held at a time unsuitable to many shewpeople. This, however, was unavoidable, owing to the arrangements made many months ago; the hon. chaplain could not fix any other time but half-past five. He has been liberated from his engagement to preach at the evening service at St. Mary's Church, Hoxton, and is now able to fix the service at Olympia at a time which he trusts will enable the showpeople to attend in larger numbers. The Guild service, by the kind permission of the directors of the International Fairs, will be held for the remainder of the run of Olympia at seven o'clock in the evening. Showpeople and their many friends are heartily invited to attend. The chaplain's address will be a "Gospel of Recreation."

THE principal concerns at Buckley Fair, Cheshire, were Greatorex's galloping horses, park swings, coker sheet, Winchester range, shooting gallery, juvenile horses, and boats, and variety stalls, and with these were F. Connor's Winchester range and fair-ground novelties, the whole making an old English fair, and affording great delight to the people of Buckley.

IN Wales, we have news of Crecraft's exhibition at Ferndale, J. Dooner and Son at Aberavon, Haggar at Aberdare, Wadbrook at Pontypridd, Testo's marionettes at Tylorstown, Professor at Briton Ferry, C. and J. North at Porth, Winsper at Ferndale, and Johnson's theatre at Barry Dock.

ACTING under the powers of the Abolition of Fairs Act, 1871, and a Local Government Act of 1894, the Secretary of State for the Home Department announces in the London Gazette that he has received a representation from the Ashwell Rural District Council to the effect that a fair has been annually held at Barley, in the County of Hertford, and that it would be for the convenience of the public that the said fair should be abolished. Objections to the abolition of the fair must be sent to the Home Secretary before Feb. 5, upon which date the Home Secretary will take into consideration the request of the petitioners to abolish the fair.

WE are not aware whether this fair at Barley is of business value to travelling showmen, and without the immediate assistance of local showpeople we do not see what useful action can be taken. The population is given as 615, and it is three miles south-east of Royston. We ask any showman taking this fair to act at once by sending in a letter addressed to the Home Secretary, Whitehall, and setting forth the loss and injury the abolition of the fair would inflict upon travelling showpeople.

THERE is another notice from the Home Office concerning the fairs at Monmouth. It is a representation from the Town Council to change the dates of the fairs held in February, May, September, and December, to the same date as the first of the cattle markets in each of these months. This is a matter for the consideration of Welsh showmen, and action in this case must be taken at once, for the Secretary of State will consider the matter fully on Feb. 9, and objections should be sent up before that date.

MR. HENRY STUDT, the well-known Welsh amusement caterer, was present at the meeting of the shareholders of the new St. Clear Market Company, Ltd., last week. St. Clear's pleasure fairs are amongst the most successful in South Wales.

AT Turner's Fair Ground, Astwood Bank, Mr. W. Holloway's New Empire Theatre is on a three months' visit and is playing to good houses.

THE proprietor of Ohmy's Circus, Mr. J. Ohmy Smith, met with a nasty accident on Friday evening, the 25th ult. He was entering the ring, when a massive brass bar, used by the Reays in their acrobatic performance, fell upon him, knocking him down, and inflicting a serious wound on the base of the skull. Several doctors were quickly in attendance, and attended to Mr. Smith's injuries.

HIS MAJESTY'S THEATRE, Alexandra Meadow, Penzance, continues to draw good houses every night, and after a stay of four or five weeks seems to be going stronger than ever. A nightly change of bill is evidence of the versatility of the hard-working company which is playing so successfully under the management of Mrs. Percy Burnette. Among the many old favourites which have been produced have been Maria Martin, Catherine Howard, Black Eyed Susan, Sweeny Todd, &c.

AMONGST many other items of news crowded out last week was the account of Tom Norman's sale of show goods and important fairground properties. This event took place, as announced, on the afternoon of the annual meeting of the Showmen's Guild at the Royal Agricultural Hall. Although the sale was removed from its well-advertised centre, the auction drew large crowds of show people, and the bidding was brisk and the various lots were knocked down at fairly reasonable prices. Amongst the chief lots brought under the hammer by the expert auctioneer, Tom Norman, were the riding machines so long known at the Crystal Palace, Sydenham. Together with the machines the ground rights were sold. The purchaser of these machines was Mr. John Fulcher, roundabout proprietor, of Alexandra Palace and Wembley Park.

ONLY one more week remains in which to visit the World's Fair at the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, which, despite its great success, cannot be extended beyond the allotted date, Saturday, Feb. 9. Those who have not yet visited this marvellous show will do well to do so, while its earlier patrons will find plenty of change to warrant another visit. The great amalgamation of side shows are full of variety, various riding machines, and mirth-provoking pastimes. There are three circus performances with a change of programme at each; the thrilling exploits of Caicedo, king of the high wire, and the mid-air evolutions of the Continental Troupe, Siegrist and Silbon, nine aerial artists. There is also Bostock and Wombwell's mammoth indoor zoo, with herd of elephants, lions, tigers, and other wild animals. It is certainly a marvellous programme, especially when it is considered that the whole show can be seen for the modest sum of sixpence admission.

GREAT DRAW.

THE LATE MR. FRED POOLE.

As briefly announced last week, the death of Mr. Frederick Poole of Myriorama fame took place at Newbury, on Thursday, Jan. 17th. The sad news of his sudden death created considerable sensation in town, and, although he had been under medical treatment during the three weeks' stay of the show in Reading, there was no reason to expect so sad and sudden an end. It appears from the evidence given at the inquest that, accompanied by his sons, his nephew, and a number of the company, the deceased went fishing to Bull's Lock, and, in the excitement of landing a fish, the weakness of the heart became manifest. Although aid was immediately summoned, life had fled, and all that could be done was to convey the body to the "Swan" Hotel to await the inquest.

The deceased was a member of the Poole family who have achieved fame and fortune as public entertainers. For many years Poole's Myrioramas have enjoyed a wide popularity as a means of instruction and amusement. The famous pictorial and mechanical representations of the various wars of modern times, and places of interest throughout the world, have been familiar to several generations. The Pooles also improved and "ran" with great success "Professor Pepper's Ghost," which mystified thousands, and in addition they were proprietors of theatres in various parts of the country. There were four brothers who succeeded to the extensive business established by their uncles, Messrs. G. W. and Charles Poole, and developed it still further into a number of thriving concerns which are now touring the kingdom, attracting large audiences everywhere. It is a long step from the old-time peep-show to the elaborate myriorama, but the process of evolution has been brought about by the enterprise and knowledge of the public taste by the Poole's, whose efforts have been rewarded by great success. The elder brother was Mr. Joseph Poole, who settled down at Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, and took a leading part in its public life, being an Alderman and Mayor of the borough, and one of its most useful citizens. Mr. Fred Poole was his younger brother, and he also had his home at Malmesbury, where he was a member of the Town Council, and interested himself in the institutions of the town. The deceased was only forty-one years of age, and leaves a widow and two sons of eleven and seven.

After the formality of the inquest, the body was removed from Newbury to Malmesbury, and was reverently deposited in the Cemetery Chapel until the day of the funeral, Monday, Jan. 21st. The town wore an aspect of mourning, all the business houses and many private residences displaying drawn blinds or closed shutters. At 3 o'clock the coffin, of polished oak, with brass furniture, and a plate bearing the following inscription:

FREDERICK POOLE.
Died January 17th, 1907,
Aged 41 years.

was borne to the entrance of the cemetery, where it was met by the Rev. G. Windsor Tucker (vicar of Malmesbury), who conducted the ceremony. The family mourners consisted of Mr. George Poole, Mr. Harry Poole, and Mr. Charles Poole (brothers), Mr. Wolseley Poole, Mr. Clement Milsom, and Mr. W. Rich (nephews), and Mr. F. Meyer. The Mayor and Corporation attended in their official capacity, headed by a posse of police under P.S. Batchelor. The members present were the Mayor (Mr. A. Adye), Mr. T. Reed (ex-Mayor), Aldermen H. Garlick, T. L. Hinwood, and J. Moore, Councillors J. G. Bartlett, H. Clark, O. Pike, W. Woodman, C. Miller, W. Ponting, H. Farrant, and A. L. Forrester, with the Town Clerk (Mr. M. H. Chubb), the Borough Surveyor (Mr. C. Bowman), the Collector (Mr. W. G. Perry), the Borough Treasurer (Mr. C. T. Wiles), and Supt. Collins. Among those also present were Major S. E. Doswell, Messrs. J. Alexander, Harry Jones, T. W. W. Hindle, F. Newman, W. Hayes, T. Bower, M. Sealey, J. Walker, H. Randell, etc.

Appended is a list of the floral emblems: "To my dear husband, from his sorrowing wife"; "To dear father, from Gordon and Leonard"; "With deepest sympathy, from Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Poole and family, Wootton, Gloucester"; "With deepest grief, from Harry and Annie"; "With deepest sorrow and ever loving memory of dear Uncle Fred, from Minnie and Bill"; "In ever loving memory of dear Uncle Fred, from Clara"; "Deepest sympathy, from Wolseley"; "Deep and sincere sympathy, from Ada and Percy"; "Our sincerest and most heartfelt regret—Florrie and Clem"; "With deepest sympathy to Uncle Fred, from Emma and Charlie"; "With heartfelt sympathy and deep regret, from Susie, Verona, Malmesbury"; "With deepest sympathy and regret—Mr. Harry Stewart and family"; "Deepest sympathy, from Fred and Nell Meyer"; "With sincere sympathy, from Mr. and Mrs. Henry Houston"; "With Mr. and Mrs. Somers' deepest sympathy"; "With deepest sympathy from Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Gannon"; "With deepest regrets, from 'The Acmes'"; "With deepest sympathy, from A. E. Rogers"; "With deepest sympathy, from brother and sister at Bognor"; "Deepest sympathy, from Harry Dowsett"; "A token of respect, from Florence Hamilton"; "With deepest sympathy, from G. French and family" "A last tribute of respect for a good master, from the staff"; "With sincere regret, from the orchestra"; "With sincere regret, from the staff of the Palace, Porth, South Wales."

The undertaking arrangements were carried out satisfactorily by Mr. F. Compton.

B. T. BURNETT, who is now finishing a capital engagement with Fred Karno, Esq., as Mr. Richardson, on the front of "Ye Olde Richardson's Theatre," is now seeking suitable work as manager of any show, portable or permanent, where his well-known ability and long experience will be useful.

PORTABLE THEATRES.
AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

In the Chancery Court of Lancashire, sitting on Friday, Jan. 25, at St. George's Hall, Liverpool, Vice-Chancellor Leigh Clare heard a case of considerable interest to theatrical people.

It was an application on behalf of Mrs. Newell, proprietress of a wooden theatre, known as the "Ormskirk Wooden Hut," for an interim injunction to restrain the Ormskirk Urban District Council from pulling down or interfering with the structure.

Mr. R. Cunningham Glen and Mr. Courthope Wilson (instructed by Messrs. Brighouse, Ryland, and Co) were counsel for the applicant, and Mr. John Rutherford and Mr. Gardner (instructed by Mr. F. C. Hill) appeared for the Ormskirk Urban Council.

Mr. Glen remarked that this was an action in which an injunction was claimed by Mrs. Newell, the owner of a portable theatre, to restrain the Ormskirk District Council from executing a threat to pull down and remove the building which she had erected in a field off Hants-lane, Burscough, Ormskirk. The council contended that the theatre was a building which came within the amended Public Health Act of 1890 and their own bye-laws. The structure was so contrived that it could be easily erected and taken down for the purpose of travelling from one place to another. The plaintiff had owned the theatre for eight years, and her father for seventeen years before her. On Sept. 7 last the plaintiff applied to the Ormskirk justices for a licence to erect the theatre off Hants-lane for a period of three months. This application was granted, and the plaintiff carried on entertainments in the building. No suggestion was made that plans were necessary or that the permission of the district council should be obtained. At the expiration of the three months Mrs. Newell applied for a renewal of her licence for another period of three months, and then for the first time opposition was made. Mr. Glover opposed on behalf of the Ormskirk Working Men's Institute, which was in a sense a rival establishment. The argument put forward was that the building was a theatre, to the erection of which the sanction of the Council should be obtained. The justices overruled this objection, and granted the licence for another three months. The council then passed a resolution calling upon Mrs. Newell to show cause why the building should not be pulled down, although an assurance was given by the plaintiff that it was not her intention to stay in Ormskirk longer than the three months for which the licence had been granted. In spite of this assurance and the explanation that the theatre was only a temporary structure, the council ordered its removal within seven days, unless Mrs. Newell entered into a bond binding her to remove the building whenever called upon by the council. The plaintiff was advised that such a bond would prejudice her greatly, and she declined to give it. Her case was that the theatre being a temporary structure did not come within the Public Health Act or the council's bye-laws, which were only intended to apply to permanent buildings.

Mrs. Newell, the plaintiff, gave evidence in support of counsel's opening statement. She said she had travelled with the theatre all over Lancashire and Yorkshire. She had never stayed in one place less than three weeks or longer than five months. There were over 200 such portable theatres travelling throughout the country. They were all constructed in the same way. She refused to sign the bond because she thought it would preclude her ever returning to Ormskirk, and would prejudice her with other district councils.

Further evidence was called in support of the plaintiff's contention.

Mr. Rutherford, on behalf of the council, said if that building was not a building within the meaning of the Act they might have a number of these portable theatres and the space always occupied by them. The plaintiff could have had plans of the building passed by the council. She knew that the local bye-laws applied to her theatre, and she had brought the case forward simply as a test case.

The Vice-Chancellor pointed out that it was a question of whether the plaintiff made an honest statement when she said she intended to remove at the expiration of the three months, or whether she merely intended to put the council off.

Mr. Rutherford contended that Mrs. Newell's statement ought not to be accepted, inasmuch as she declined to enter into the bond. He maintained that the theatre was obviously a building under the Act, and was capable of remaining for years in one place.

The Vice-Chancellor, in giving judgment, said that in this case Mrs. Newell was the owner and user of a travelling theatre, which she and her father had had for twenty-five years. It was stated, and there was no reason to doubt it, that the theatre had never been located in one place more than five months or less than three weeks. The question he had to determine was whether this theatre, when put up in the ordinary way, was a building within the Public Health Act or the Ormskirk Council bye-laws. His Honour said the building was constructed of wood and canvas, and there were certain props in the ground; but, after all, it was nothing less than a great big tent. There was no reason to doubt that Mrs. Newell intended leaving Ormskirk at the expiration of the three months, because she had applied for a licence at Skelmersdale. The case, said his Honour, was exactly the same as that of Nantyglo v. Ebley, and the decision of the Divisional Court was one which he should follow. The theatre, he held, was not a building within the Public Health Act or the council's bye-laws. He was satisfied that the building was there for a temporary purpose, and was not intended to remain permanently. The question as to whether it was safe for the public to go into, in case of panic or fire, was not a question for the district council, but for the licensing justices. Therefore, he decided in favour of Mrs. Newell, and against the district council. He made a declaration that this was not a building within the meaning of the local bye laws, and granted an injunction against the defendant council, with costs.

Following the trial of the action in the Chancery Court, the following discussion took place at the Ormskirk Urban Council when the clerk had to report that the Council was unsuccessful in the action regarding interference with the "wooden hut" in the town used as a theatre, and had to pay costs.

Mr. F. A. Jones objected to the accuracy of the minute read as having been passed at the last (special) meeting, and said the words "if necessary" to defend any action were not part of the original resolution.

This was admitted, and it was decided that the words be struck out.

Mr. Jones emphasised his point that the resolution the Council passed did not authorise proceedings to be taken, that the resolution which was passed was only carried by four votes to three, that those who voted in its favour comprised only one-third of the Council, and that a special meeting ought to have been called, in which case he was confident that the expensive litigation that had arisen would not have resulted. The costs of an action would be anything between £200 and £500, and it would mean a 3d. to 5d. aditional rate. Instead of, as a councillor put it, making some one else bow down to the Council, that authority had been humiliated, and, like poor Cicero, they had been sold into the hands of a woman. He was strongly of opinion that a special meeting should have been called before launching into such an expensive action. Had such a meeting been called he felt sure the Council would have accepted Mrs. Newell's (the proprietress of the theatre) assurance that she would leave the town when stated.

Several members having supported Mr. Jones's view,

Mr. James Draper said that, as the one in the town who had had to bear the brunt of the proceedings more than anyone else—in fact, he had been serenaded by young people to the tune of "The little wooden hut," whilst he had been booed and hissed at, and his children had not been allowed to go down the street without being insulted—he would like to make a little explanation. He said the proceedings were taken on the advice of counsel, and that the Council felt that it was not right that outsiders should be allowed to do what was not allowed in the case of their own ratepayers. But had he thought that the plaintiff in the action was going to be urged on by excited people and supported by funds provided by the theatrical profession, he should have hesitated and said, "Keep your wooden hut fifty times before running the town into this mess." He did not deviate from the position he had taken up in the least, and as far as his seat on the Council was concerned, he would forfeit it fifty times rather than depart from the strict line of duty.

It was ultimately resolved that the action of the clerk in taking steps to defend the proceedings against Mrs. Newell be approved and confirmed. It was further resolved that the Council regretted that a special meeting of the Council was not called to further consider the matter before proceedings were commenced.

SHOWMEN OF TO-DAY.

MR. W. C. BURNS.

In the very front rank of the small band of men who have the distinction of being trained by Barnum, of American show renown, stands W. C. Burns. Born at Chicago of Scotch parents in 1864, he was at an early age apprenticed to Barnum, and accompanied that famous showman in his various circus and other enterprises when he came to Great Britain in 1877. Leaving Barnum, he became secretary to the Cavalry Theatre at Aldershot under the late Sergeant Swinyard, and, with that distinguished riding-master, helped to make the cavalry school a great success.

Whilst at Aldershot Mr. Burns came under the notice of the celebrated war correspondent, the late Archibald Forbes, who engaged him to be special dispatch courier with him in Zululand in 1879. To quote Mr. Forbes' own words, "You look just like the chap I require to rough it in the field." To finish this extremely interesting part of Mr. Burns' career as dispatch messenger with the famous war correspondent, Mr. Burns is the proud possessor of the Zulu medals 1879, medal with three clasps, Isandulu, Rorke's Drift, and Ulundi. He was through the South African War of 1881, and holds the medal of that campaign, being present at the fateful Majuba Hill. His other distinctions include the Egyptian medal, 1882, with three clasps—Tel-el-Kebir, Kassassin, and Abou-

MR. W. C. BURNS, T.S.A.T.

Klea. He received the bronze star from the Khedive. These decorations were the honours accorded him during the stirring times of his association with Mr. Archibald Forbes, and we can imagine no better experience for one who eventually became advance agent for some of the best road shows and circuses in the world.

It was during these warlike experiences that he was an eye-witness of several remarkable events—he witnessed the death of the Prince Imperial in Zululand, and was present at the defeat at Majuba Hill. In the Egyptian Campaign he witnessed the storming of the forts at Alexandria, and was on board the gallant little gunboat Condor with Sir Charles, now Lord, Beresford. Mr. Burns rode along with Mr. Forbes the sixty-four hours' ride to announce the terrible plight of the British at Ulundi. Concluding his engagement with Mr. Forbes, he returned to England, and took service under John Henry Cook, the well-known proprietor of so many equestrian establishments in Scotland. After a most successful period of work in the circus world he took over the management of the late Victoria, now Gaiety (varieties), Glasgow, under the proprietorship of George Testo Santé, and was one of the pioneers of two-houses-a-night shows.

Mr. Burns has been successively and successfully manager for Mr. Macnaghten's variety house The Grand, Sheffield; general-manager of the Galeffi-Neilson Grand Opera Company; manager of the County Theatre, Reading, and has just concluded two and a half years' engagement as agent-in-advance of E. H. Bostock's Wombwell's No. 1 menagerie, making in all six years' service with the Bostocks.

We have but briefly outlined the stirring events of Mr. Burns' career, but we have set forth enough to show that he possesses the unique distinction of management of theatre, music hall, circus and menagerie. We have detailed enough of his varied experiences to indicate that about such a man there must be that "magic atmosphere of personality" that constitutes "leadership of men" and great capacity of adaptation to circumstances. With an experience of twenty-three years in every branch of the world of shows, we confidently anticipate that Mr. Burns will yet reach the highest distinction in the business to which he has devoted his life and talents.

He is a very able and expert advertiser, and combines with management the press agency of the concerns with which he is identified. He is blessed with a fine manly presence, being 5ft. 10in. in height, and weighs close upon 18st. Mr. Burns is a fluent and eloquent speaker, and is gifted with a powerful, resonant voice, and it is worthy of note that he is a life-long abstainer and non-smoker.

Mr. Burns is now resting at 18, St. Mary's-road, Sheffield, and, as a reference to our advertisement columns will indicate, he is not only resting but waiting for whatever good thing good luck may send his way.

THE SHOWMEN'S GUILD.

President, Lord George Sanger.

Hon. Chaplain, the Rev. T. Horne.

Hon. Treasurers: W. M. Mitchell, Esq., Manchester Centre; F. H. Pedgrift, Esq., London Centre.

Hon. Secretary, T. Hurst, Esq.

OBJECTS OF THE GUILD.

1. To conserve the business interests of all open-air amusement caterers and entertainers, whether menaced by faddist legislation or by public bodies.

2. To vindicate the character and the avocation in life of the showman whenever unjustly maligned or attacked.

3. To defend the fairs and holidays of the people whenever and wherever threatened, and to encourage all legitimate efforts for uplifting and betterment of the entertainments of the people.

Further subscriptions, whether from members, traders, or friends, may be sent to either of the hon. treasurers, the hon. secretary, or to the Guild secretary, The Era Buildings, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C.

THE LATE JAMES MANDERS.

The funeral of this veteran showman took place at Kingston Cemetery, Plymouth, on Monday, Jan. 28. The chief mourners were:—Mrs. Manders (widow), James Manders (son), Joseph Manders (son), Albert Manders (son), George Manders (son), Miss Ellen Manders (daughter), Mrs. Albert Manders (daughter-in-law), Mr. William Manders (representing Mrs. John Manders and family), and Mr. Peter Brown, jun. (nephew). Mr. William Hancock (representing the firm of W. C. and S. Hancock, Winter Gardens, Plymouth), Mrs. Symonds, Mrs. Baines, Mrs. Jacob Studt, jun., Mr. Wm. Symonds, jun., and many other show people attended to express their sympathy with the sorrowing family.

Mr. Wm. Hancock with his well-known kindness has done things possible to lighten the burden of grief and trouble cast so suddenly upon the widow and family.

The wreaths were from Mrs. James Manders and family, Mr. and Mrs. John Collins, Mr. and Mrs. and C. S. Hancock, Mrs. John Manders and family, Mr. Horatio Manders, Chipperfields family, Mr. and Mrs. James Holloway, Mr. and Mrs. George Austin, Mr. and Mrs Symonds, sen., Mr. and Mrs. Symonds, jun., Mrs. Jacob Studt, Mr. J. Pitt, and several others.

The funeral was beautifully conducted and carried out by Stapleford and Son.

MR. TOM NORMAN'S latest "discovery," the thought-reading Collier and his child, fra' Sheffield, in a "Zancig" turn, are doing phenomenal business at the Holloway Empire.

MESSRS. JOE AND BERT BURNELL, who are playing the parts of Man Friday and Saturday in the pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Bradford, have been re-engaged by Mr. J. Hart for the same parts next year.

MISS MARIE LLOYD was unable to appear at the Empress, Brixton, on Saturday evening through a severe cold. Miss Tots Davis very ably deputised for her, and received quite an ovation.

THE Factory Nightingales (Dolly, Agnes, and Maud), after a successful five weeks at the London halls, go into the provinces for a short tour and return to town in May.

A REGATTA will take place at Evesham on May 20, and a fête at Inkberrow, Worcester, is fixed for July 1.

THE MUSIC HALL HOME.

MR. BARRASFORD'S APPEAL.

Once more we take pleasure in opening our columns to The Era New Year's Shilling Fund on behalf of the Music Hall Home, and in doing so we take still further pleasure in being able to associate with that appeal the names of the president of the fund, Mr. Thomas Barrasford, and Miss Vesta Victoria. Mr. Barrasford's kindly offices in connection with the Music Hall Home are well known, and the fact that he has again given permission for the use of his name in calling attention to the requirements of the home is a guarantee—if, indeed, guarantee were needed—that he is satisfied as to the way in which the institution is being conducted, and that he considers it worthy of support. It is also gratifying to be able to associate with the New Year's appeal such a prominent variety artist as Miss Victoria. When seen at her delightful home in Stockwell Park one day this week by our interviewer, Miss Victoria, who, by the way, is now commencing her preparations for her forthcoming visit to America, stated that she would be delighted to give what assistance she could in such a worthy cause. Surely, with such sponsors, the money should come rushing along with the swiftness and volume of an avalanche.

There can be no question as to the usefulness of the Music Hall Home. Its address is 31, Wilson-road, Camberwell, S.E., and Mr. and Mrs. Fruin, the secretary and matron respectively, put forward every effort for the comfort of the inmates. At present there are eight of these, and the desire is to increase the number, which can only be done when sufficient funds for the purpose are collected. During the past year two or three of the temporary inmates have recovered their health and strength sufficiently to enable them to look for engagements. These secured, they left the Home, and the vacancies thereby created were immediately filled up. Now, this home requires keeping up, and it cannot be kept up on air. There is no need for us to refer to all the good work which has been performed by the institution in the past, as this must be within the recollection of our readers. The ages of the inmates range from fifty to seventy-six. In all probability these men will be maintained in the home until the day of their death, and their funeral expenses will be paid for out of the funds of the home. The vice-presidents and the committee are sincerely desirous of increasing its scope of usefulness. They would like to be in a position to afford shelter to many more deserving members of the variety profession, who have been stricken with poverty and illness in their declining years.

We feel we need say little more. Mr. Barrasford and Miss Victoria join in a strenuous appeal for the generosity of the profession in support of The Era Shilling Fund. When, twelve months ago, we brought before our readers the claims of this deserving charity, a very considerable sum of money was collected in separate shillings. That last year's appeal, however, and most of the money obtained by it, are, as Miss Marie Lloyd would say, "a thing of the past, old dear." We are entering upon a new year. What is the prospect? It is that of help badly needed by many of your brother and sister artists who are, in common parlance, "down on their luck," and some of whom, by reason of their age, are likely to remain in that unhappy condition.

A TRIBUTE.

To those two inimitable healthy-toned comedians, Mr. Dan Leno and Mr. Herbert Campbell, who died both in the same year—1904:

Pluto, Lord of Hades,
Was struck with an idea.
To give a Christmas pantomime—
It sounds a little queer;
So he told his actor-manager
To look about a bit
For healthy-toned comedians
To entertain the pit.

So Pluto's actor-manager
Searched Hades far and wide
For healthy-toned comedians,
For many a day he tried;
Of course, they must be healthy ones
With jests and gestures fit,
For many virtuous families
Are crowded in the pit.

For in Pluto's wide dominions
The social problem's solved,
The virtuous rub their pinions
With the more or less involved;
For though noble county families
In Pluto's theatre sit,
They're all in the same boxes as
The people of the pit.

So 'twould prove a fearful scandal
If virtue there should fail;
Besides 'twould lend a handle
To The Hades Daily Wail.
And scores of virtuous people
Who've gone it just a bit
Would pen indignant letters
To the papers of the pit.

In vain the actor-manager
Scoured Hades low and lower
For healthy-toned comedians.
So summoned Death, "The Mower,"
And then and there commissioned him
To search the earth and git
Some healthy-toned comedians
To entertain the pit.

So Death, "The Mower," searched around
The confines of the earth,
But of healthy-toned comedians
There's somewhat of a dearth;
At length he came to Drury lane,
And then and there he lit
On two healthy-toned comedians
To entertain the pit.

He touched them with his awful scythe
And turned them into clay,
And in a flash of lightning
He bore them both away;
He took them down below the earth,
Stored snugly in his kit,
To entertain at pantomime
The dwellers in the pit.

And as he set them gently down
In that abode of pain,
The whole Hadean Universe
With joy was rent again;
Ixion rejoiced with Tantalus,
And swore they'd never quit,
While such healthy-toned comedians
Would entertain the pit.

Though we on earth still mourn their loss
And muse on merry times,
The hours we spent at Drury lane,
The happy pantomimes;
Just think of them across the Styx
Regaling fun and wit,
And soothing as they did on earth
The sorrows of the pit.

TAYLOR-JONES.

"VENDETTA."

A Dramatic Musical Scena, composed by James Howard, with Lyrics by Harry Lambert, and produced by Horace Sedger at the Shepherd's Bush Empire on Monday, Jan. 28.

Brother Angelo ..... MR. JAMES COWARD
Lay Brother Ambrose ..... MR. C. DURRAND
Pietro Sartori ..... MR. HARRY LAMBART
Gilda ..... } MISS MILLICENT MARSDEN
Spirit of Harmony }

As an allegorical picture the scena Vendetta answers its purpose effectively enough. Apart from its immediate stage aspect, it is apparently intended to symbolise the moral contained in the lines:

"Oh, stay thy hand and go,
Angered tho' ye be.
Live thy life below
In peace and harmony."

According to the programme, the action takes place in the Church of Santa Cecilia, in the village of Girgenti, Sicily. Saving what is indicated by song and chant, the story is told by pantomimic action. The interior of the church which we are shown is very impressive, and its impressiveness is deepened by the sombre notes of the organ played throughout the piece as an accompaniment to the singing of an invisible choir. We learn the nature of the romance from the "argument" set forth upon the cinematograph screen before the rising of the curtain on the scena itself. One Pietro Sartori has sworn the oath of the vendetta against Leo Cavestri, a feud having existed between the two families for generations. Sartori, hearing of the return of Cavestri to their native village, determines to carry out his oath. We see the one follow the other into the church after the organ has burst forth into its opening strains. There is a struggle between the two men; but Cavestri's sweetheart, Gilda, enters the sacred edifice in time to frustrate the murderous intentions of Sartori. The girl disappears, and almost immediately, Sartori's evil nature once more overcomes him and he makes a second attempt to encompass the end of Cavestri. As they again come to death-grips the topmost pipes of the organ are thrown aside and Gilda appears before them in solemn angel-like majesty, dressed in shimmering silvery white, holding forth a cross, and—this time as the Spirit of Harmony—makes an impassioned appeal for peace and goodwill in a few beautiful verses of song. A few seconds later the lower portions of the organ open and reveal the choir arrayed in purest samite and chanting the Ave Maria. The would-be homicide is overcome by the vision, drops his stiletto, and in all penitence falls prostrate before the singers.

Miss Millicent Marsden enacts with quiet dignity and a proper appreciation of what might be called the religious grace inherent in such characters as that of Gilda and the Spirit of Harmony. Her vocalisation is likewise commendable, the delivery being appropriate to the subject of her lines. Mr. Harry Lambart as Sartori and Mr. Hollick as Cavestri suitably fulfil the requirements of their parts.

JOCK WHITEFORD'S latest London "hit" is "By the banks of Allen Water," published by the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Company, and written and composed by J. F. Lambe, who has written nearly all the popular comedian's successes.

MR. JOCK PRESTON (of the Three Prestons), had arranged to produce a new song, entitled "Will somebody take me home?" at the Oxford on Monday, but owing to unforeseen circumstances the production was postponed; the author-composer is J. F. Lambe.

GRAND THEATRE, DERBY.
WANTED, Leading Attractions, May 6 and 13, and August Bank Holiday.
In years past it was a reproach that decent business could not be looked for in Derby, however great the attraction. All this has been altered under the personal supervision of the present management. Derby has a population of 110,000, and is the centre of the Midland Railway system. There is a big county family connection within an easy radius, who receive our weekly circulars. There is a prosperous trading community of theatre goers. There are 10,000 men employed in the Midland Locomotive and Carriage Works, besides other large industries. These are the mainstay of the pit and gallery. The pit seats 700, and the gallery 1,000, at 1s. and 6d. respectively. Five years ago the Carl Rosa Opera Company played to a gross of £510 on the week. Their returns have increased annually. The following is a summary of last week for the information of unbelievers:—

Tues., "Faust"	114	2	3
Wed., "Trovatore"	170	10	0
Thurs., "Lohengrin"	91	6	6
Fri., "Merry Wives of Windsor"	188	14	6
Sat. (Mat.) "Tannhauser"	124	18	6
Sat. (Night), "Bohemian Girl"	161	1	9
	1,019	15	6

Advance bookings were £190; and "East Lynne" played previous week to £220. A few choice dates are open next season for Star Attractions only. All communications to T. ALLAN EDWARDES.

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not re-booked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows :—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT.
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

LEEDS, SHEFFIELD, HULL, BRADFORD, AND DISTRICT.
MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

LONDON DISTRICT,
MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

WE LEAD, OTHERS FOLLOW.

THE OLD MASHERS. Code Word, BUGLE.
About a dozen old mashers follow a young, pretty, and dainty dressmaker, each trying to carry her box. On to a bus, into a restaurant, and finally she eludes them to join her lover and tell him of her amusing escapade.

PHIAL OF POISON. Code Word, BUVABLE.
A very dramatic story. The young wife and her sick husband. The lover. The suggested poisoning of the husband. The husband sees the act in the mirror shoots his wife, and takes the poison.
230ft. The Subject £3 16s. 8d.

THE PORK BUTCHER'S NIGHTMARE. Code Word, CHEVRETTE.
The rrible dream of the Pork Butcher. The pigs come to life and conduct him to their domain, where he is prodded with spears, and put in a mincing mach .
345ft. The Subject £5 15s. 4d.
Colouring extra, 9s.

BELLE DAVIS AND HER 3 LITTLE PICANINNIES Code Word, CARMINE.
The famous little nigger boys go through their eccentric dancing, tumbling, and wrestling performance, accompanied by Miss Belle Davis.

AT THE MUSIC HALL. Code Word, CABOCHON.
A variety of turns and scenes at an up-to-date Music Hall, showing tumblers, singers, dancers, and conjurers. Very amusing, and a great draw just now.
330ft. The Subject £5 10s.

TWO LITTLE SCAMPS. Code Word, CABOULOT.
A very amusing film, showing the adventures of a little baker's boy and sweep. They ring bells, jump on to motor cars and cabs, pull off the table cloths from a restaurant table, and generally annoy everybody—finally arrested by the police. Absolutely perfect quality.
280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

MILITARY SCHOOL. Code Word, CAHUTE.
Fine, spirited horses perform with great skill all kinds of daring exercises, the riders guiding the animals with a master hand Very fascinating.

A DIFFICULT ARREST. Code Word, CHEVREAU.
396ft. The Subject £6 12s.

THE INDIARUBBER MAN. Code Word, BRUSQUE.

CRIME ON THE RAILWAY. Code Word, CIPAYE.
One of the most dramatic films ever shown. A guard is egged on to drink by two rogues. In this state he boards his train. The rogues sneak into his carriage while the train is in motion, attack him, steal the mail bags, and escape. The guard is reproved and dismissed the Company. In revenge he kills a signalman, gives a favourable signal to the on-coming express. An awful disaster ensues. Very exciting and dramatic.
528ft. The Subject £8 16s.

THE YAWNER. Code Word, CABOSSER.
This is ridiculously funny. A poor man has a tendency to yawn on every occasion, and being very infectious, every one who meets him catches the complaint. Very droll.

POLICEMEN'S RUN. Code Word, CABANE.
This is quite a novelty in pictures. A powerful bull dog steals a leg of mutton. Pursued by one policeman, the number is increased to several in a very short time. Through streets, over roofs they go. Finally the tables are turned and the dog pursues the police to their station. Intensely funny.
379ft. The Subject £6 6s. 4d.

THE GREEN DRAGON.

A man who has imbibed pretty freely in liquor, is just leaving his favourite evening resort, the "Green Dragon." Leaning against the wall, he is about to stagger away when he surprisedly sees the sign hanging above him fall with a crash at his feet. While he watches he gradually backs as a large dragon appears before him. Frightened beyond measure he moves quickly up the street, and his pace is hastened to his finest speed, as on glancing round he discovers the beast following him. Making for a fountain in the middle of the road, he dodges round this, but the dragon easily follows and gains on him. Leaving this, the hunted man tears down the road as fast as he can, or rather as fast as his condition will allow him. After continuing this race through several streets he returns to the inn, where he proclaims to the inmates in breathless haste, of his awful pursuer. Before the listeners are able to comment on the tale, in walks the dragon, which causes endless commotion and dismay. Struggling with one another each tries to make the other first to confront the beast. A sudden rush being made for the street, a policeman easily fights his way out amongst the first. The dragon quickly following in their wake, they are at a loss how to shake him off. Upon returning to the inn once again, he follows and extends his tongue a yard or so again and again as he closes in upon them. All squeezing up into a corner they watch him first taste a glass of ale standing on the counter and then drink it off, finally throwing the glass from his mouth amongst them. The dismayed crowd now advance with a mounted gun, which has been brought up. The ferocious beast not liking the look of this weapon, gradually backs as far as possible. Approaching as near as they dare, they point the gun and fire with deadly effect.

THE RAG-DEALER'S DAUGHTER.

Code Word, "RAGS."

This is a very fine film, of sterling and dramatic quality. In a restaurant the rag-picker's daughter comes to sell flowers. She takes the fancy of one of the diners, who makes love to her. She spurns him. He pursues her to her humble lodgings one day, and carries her off in his motor to his mansion. She keeps him away, and manages to throw an old coat in the street with a letter enclosed for her father. One of the rag-pickers comes along, picks up the coat, discovers the letter, gives it to her father, who hurries to the mansion and rescues his daughter, nearly killing the villain in the attempt. At the police-station next day the old man is brought up. The bad man confesses his would-be evil deed, and dies. This film arrests the attention and amuses all the time.

THE POET'S BID FOR FAME.

Code Word, "POET."

The ecstatic poet calls at the office of the newspaper to present his inspiration, is met rudely by the editor and his office-boy. He harangues a crowd in the street, is run into the padded cell. Finally goes on to the stage to recite. He is not favourably received. Intensely funny, and grand quality.

TO THE PUBLISHER, "THE ERA."

Sir,—
It may possibly interest you to learn that a Quarter-Column Advertisement in "The Era" (One Insertion) resulted in over £1,000 Bookings for an Entertainment with which I was connected some little time ago. The Entertainment was entitled

"THE CRUISE OF THE OPHIR,"

Cinématograph Show, and the Bookings were effected within a week.

Yours faithfully,

BUTCHER'S

are makers of Cinematographs and everything connected with them; but they not only make apparatus, but use it, and by using they know what to make and how to improve. If your Cinematograph has the word upon it, you may rest assured that you have an instrument modelled upon the best principles of the finest London workmanship, and containing many unique features which make it a to be desired above all others, for you know you can rely upon it, and that your picture will be as steady and free from flicker as it is possible. It is a real pleasure to use any "Empire" machine.

We have issued a very complete

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for the current year, besides having all the usual valuable features which make the work so necessary for reference, has, for a special feature, a series of short articles, stories, or sketches by prominent members of the dramatic and musical profession, a well-executed portrait of each writer accompanying the text. The obituary for last year—unfortunately a heavy one—is given in a series of photograph likenesses of those departed. The full-page portrait of Mr. J. L. Toole is, indeed, worth more than the humble shilling at which the Annual is sold. The monthly calendar is, as usual, a storehouse of interesting facts connected with the stage.—Weekly Times and Echo.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
That welcome little book, "The Era" Annual, has just appeared for 1907, issued from the offices of "The Era," and costing, as usual, 1s. It is always worth a welcome, and is as good this year as ever. In addition to the usual pages of theatrical statistics, there are a number of stories and sketches by well-known actors and actresses, signed with their autographs and illustrated with their photographs. The first, and one of the best, is a description by Miss Ellen Terry of an average day in her busy life. Most of us have, at one time or another, in our artless way, sighed for the glory and triumph the popular actor and actress enjoy. Alas! Miss Terry gives us a peep behind the scenes which takes the gilt off the gingerbread with a vengeance. If this describes the average day of a great actor or actress, better, a thousand times better, to be a man of no importance!—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for 1907. 1s. "Era" Office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C. Once again this useful publication comes out with its useful tabular information concerning things dramatic, such as the date of the production of new plays and important revivals produced at the London, provincial, and Paris theatres. In addition are many portraits and short stories given over the signatures of many prominent theatrical and music hall people, and a variety of other interesting matter.—Financial Times, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual, a most useful record of theatrical events, has just been issued. It contains, as usual, many short stories by well-known players.—Globe, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual deservedly ranks high as a record of the passing theatrical show. The new issue, in a comprehensive survey of the drama, mentions in proper order all the productions and revivals of the year, both at home and abroad and gives a list of the theatres and music halls of the United Kingdom, with the names of their respective managers. The lighter side of the publication, to which many well-known managers and performers contribute, is of exceptionally high literary merit.—Morning Leader, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
Once more, stuffed with good things, "The Era" Annual appears from its office at 5, Tavistock-street. The edition for 1907 is as nicely got up as its predecessors, and, in addition to a calendar and other theatrical memoranda, contains two lists of the year's productions, one arranged under the names of the theatres and the other alphabetically. In addition there are a number of striking or humorous contributions by leading actors and actresses—Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Charles Collette, Miss Alma Murray, and Mr. John Lawson are among those who have contributed bright experiences to this up-to-date shilling theatrical handbook.—Star, Jan. 22.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
That invaluable annual, "The Era" Almanac, has just made its appearance for 1907. In addition to its usual record of the important productions and revivals of the past twelve months in London and Paris, there is a series of bright contributions by Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Edward German, Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Charles Collette, Miss Alma Murray, and other well-known members of the profession.—Sunday Times, Jan. 27.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1907 is up to its usual standard—in fact, it is, if possible, smarter than ever. There is an excellent budget of articles from the pens of Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Cicely Richards, Miss Pollie Emery, Messrs. Frank Cooper, Arthur Collins, Charles Collette, Frank Curzon, Edward German, Cliff Ryland, and many others. The illustrated obituary, the alphabetical list of plays produced in London and the provinces, and all the other valuable features of the Annual are as complete as ever, and make this handbook extremely useful not only to members of the profession, but to the infinitely wider circle interested directly or indirectly in the drama.—Whitehall Review.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—Mr. William Mollison and company opened on Monday with Macbeth. The occasion was signalised by the presence of Sir Alexander Lyon, the Lord Provost, and the magistrates of the city in their official robes, along with officers in uniform, representing all branches of the service, and many of the leading professional and commercial men of Aberdeen. Mr. Mollison gave a most powerful portrayal of Macbeth, and he is very ably supported by Miss Evelyn McNay as Lady Macbeth; Mr. B. A. Pittar and Mr. W. A. Mackenzie are excellent as Macduff and King Duncan; and the other members of the company all play very capably. The other pieces to be presented during the week are The Merchant of Venice and As You Like It.

Palace Theatre.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Among the principal turns this week are those of the Clement Trio in a daring trapeze act; and the San Carlos operatic singers, who repeat their success of last week. A highly-humorous sketch, A Little Bit of String, is cleverly played by the H. Leslie Bell and Lily Pearl company; and among the other artists, in a good all-round company, are Mr. Barney Kane, a promising Scots comedian; the Ford and Barris Trio, who excel alike as singers and dancers; Zaid, a remarkably clever performer on the rings; Mr. Russell Carr, a capital ventriloquist; Mr. Walter Wade, a clever raconteur and mimic; and Miss Amy Wade, a vivacious comedienne.

ABERTILLERY. — Theatre Metropole. — Lessees, Messrs. Arthur Carlton and Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas.—For the beginning of this week he had Mr. Fred J. Webb's company in The Hour of Her Triumph. Mr. Louis Nanton as Ben Brodie was excellent; and the heavier leads were well sustained by Mr. Fred J. Webb as Eugene Harberry and Miss Maude Yorke as Rose Denton. Mr. Chas. Macdona's No. 1 company in The Country Girl was billed for Thursday.

ACCRINGTON. — Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Potter, Vandy, and Weisker.—An excellent bill is provided here this week. Maxford and O'Neil submit a smart item; the Rambos are highly appreciated; Sadie Seymour is a pleasing comedienne; the Olmars are good in their acrobatic statuary; Tiny Arnold is a clever comedienne; Miss Dolia and Snowball are bright and brisk; Captain Devereux submits a smart dog show; and Bertha Winder must be highly complimented on her smart dancing.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—Mr. Fredk. Melville's company is giving an excellent interpretation of the sensational and interesting drama, Her Forbidden Marriage, a play which, besides being presented with great realism, is excellently dressed and staged. Mr. Henry Lonsdale's is a talented portrayal of George Maddison, and he has a charming partner in the leading rôle of Lucy in Miss Gertrude Bonser; Mr. Louis Hector, in the thankless rôle of Devereux, is clever, and he receives assistance in the line of villainy from Miss Gertrude Hunt; Miss Nellie Fletcher enacts the rôle of the Mother Superior with ease and grace; whilst clever comedy business is introduced by Mr. Fred de Vere.

ARBROATH.—Public Hall.—Manager, Mr. A. Joiner.—Hamilton's Excursions, Far and Near, opened here on Monday evening for the week, with magnificent pictures of principal scenes in Great Britain, Europe, and events in the Zulu rising in Natal. The pictures were realistic of the various scenes they represented. At intervals during the evening very fine variety turns were given, and were evidently enjoyed by the large audience.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Revill.—This week the stage of the Royal is occupied by the Ashton Operatic Society with the English comedy-opera Dorothy, in aid of the local charities. Mr. Revill's scenic artist has been employed on new scenes for the production. The opera runs six nights during the current week. The stage-manager is Mr. Tom Ogden, and the musical-director Mr. Enos Goode.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—This week the Empire has staged a pantomime, Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp, written and invented by Messrs. Wilmot and Holland. Miss Frances Haskoll makes a charming Aladdin; the Princess is played in the most winning and effective manner by Miss Phyllis Wardroper (who took up the part on short notice owing to the illness of Miss Wood). She acts with confidence, and sings and dances gracefully. Miss Laura makes an effective Royal Maid; and Miss Poppie Holland is good as the Genii of the Cave. Misses Ada Jenner and May Harvey as Captains of Guards are fine-looking officers. The well-known sisters, Dolly, Bibby, and Portia Tree, while nominally in the cast, give several distinct turns in song and dance of conspicuous merit. Messrs. Louis Bishop (Emperor) and Kendrick (Grand Vizier) give good representations of those parts. The Seventeen White Hussars, in satin, make a striking picture. The comic element predominates, and great scope is afforded Percy Curry (Magician) and Walter Watson (Wishee-Washee), who convulse the house repeatedly; Nash and Noel (Imperial Police), who patter and dance; and George Reeve, Widow Twankey.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Theatre Royal, Limited.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaughten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chris Wordsworth.—Picture entertainments once more hold sway here this week, and an interesting and diversified selection is judiciously blended with illustrated songs.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—Large audiences are drawn here nightly by the strength of the programme presented. Miss Marie Jones, ably assisted by Mr. Ernest Munro, submits a laughable episode, The Way to Win a Bet, in which Miss Jones proves herself a clever quick-change artist by appearing in six distinct characters; the Reays (lady and gentlemen) give a smart show as silver chain acrobats on the trapeze; Miss Zeta Grey and company are heartily received on their reappearance in a side-splitting comedy scena, The Lancashire Lass; a novel and pleasing music turn is provided by the MacDonald Trio under the title of a Musical Garden; Takio, the Japanese mimic, is excellent in his imitations; the Attergraph pictures under the direction of Mr. E. C. Clayton are highly appreciated; and Mabel Le-Roy, comedienne, and Mr. Fred Erick complete the programme.

AYR.—New Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry W. Day.—Playgoers here are having the privilege of once again witnessing Miss Minnie Palmer in the part of Tina in My Sweetheart. She sings in a rich, mellow voice, and her acting is irresistible. Miss Palmer is well supported by her company. Mr. Robert H. Howard in the part of Tony Faust gives us a fascinating study, and sings delightfully; Mr. Richard Elliott makes a lovable, quiet, and manly Dr. Oliver; as Harold Bartlett Mr. Leslie Tyler looks almost too fine a villain; Mr. Alfred Ibberson as the dude was most successful; Mr. Fred W. Leonard made an admirable broken-down sport as Joe Shotwell. The Mrs. Fleeter of Miss Mildred Silvester was a capital piece of acting; while in the part of Mrs. Hatzell Mrs. H. E. Russell gave a very pleasing interpretation. The piece was beautifully staged.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stone.—Mr. Weedon Goldsmith's company, The Night of the Party, is here. Mr. Sebastian Smith makes an immensely resourceful Mr. Crosbie; and Mr. Charles J. Bruce a sufficiently pompous Mr. Roundle. Mr. Aidan Lovett and Mr. Frank H. Denton are capable as Sir Charles Hampshire; and Mr. Frank Frayne and Mr. Douglas Munro a capital Mr. Flambert. Miss Beatrice Mervyn is a graceful Lady Hampshire, Miss Florence French a taking Gipsy Vandelier, and Miss Lilnan Williams a chic Paulina.

His Majesty's.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Henry E. Leigh's company, in The 'Varsity Belle, is here. Mr. James Danvers as Professor Septimus Stoney is exceedingly able; and Messrs. R. Harley West and Roy Barraclough are capital as the undergraduates, George Barker and Albert Perrin. Miss Josephine Ellis, who takes the dual rôles of Gaye Sparkleton and Mr. Paton, of Emmanuel, sings and dances with grace and charm; and Mr. Frank Lilliput is amusing as the College Scout. Miss Josephine Sullivan is a capital Mrs. Stoney; and Miss Emma Rainbow an "agreeable" mother-in-law; while Miss Kathleen O'Brien and Miss Tessa Myers do their parts excellently.

Tivoli.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—Nat Clifford soon becomes a favourite comedian; the Kyasyas are up-to-date athletes; Raymond and Walker are good comedy acrobats; and Miss Maud Marlow an agreeable comedienne. Mr. Tom Dunmore, peculiar comedian, is well received; and so are Fielding and Hull, vocal entertainers; and J. H. Crew, comedian.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—Sergeant Brue, for the second time, is "on duty," and this merry musical comedy is again affording much amusement as presented by Messrs. Lockwood, Crossman, and Foster's company. Mr. E. Russell plays the title-rôle upon broadly comic lines, and scores a big success in the part; Crookey Scrubbs is impersonated by an old Bath favourite, Mr. Charles McLagan, who gives a capital sketch of this quaintly-drawn character; Mr. Tom Shelford makes an excellent Michael Brue, as does Mr. Arthur Stroud as Gerald Treherne; Mr. Henry Chichester, in addition to being the stage-manager, enacts Mr. Crank with humour; Miss Edith Housley easily carries off the honours as Lady Bickenhall; Miss Ella Daincourt interprets Aurora Brue pleasantly; and the servant, Daisy, is undertaken upon original lines by Miss Constance Berkeley. Mr. J. H. Yorke is the musical director.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—Addie Dorina is appearing in her new protean act, Dr. Spot's Patient, which is cleverly carried out, with the aid of Mr. Pat Ruddock as the Doctor; Ruby Dahl presents a novelty with her Merry Mannikins; the Two Kays vocalise successfully in the scena The Nightingale; Effie Stuart secures much applause for her nimble dancing; and George Hall (siffleur), Johnny Holland and company in the sketch Our Betsy, Collinson's Topsy-Turvy School, and Raymond's Bio-Tableaux are all interesting features in the week's bill.

BATLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred Taylor.—Mr. Frank M. Thorne's company is here in Napoleon the Great. Mr. Hugh Montgomery, a sound actor, is to be complimented on his clever assumption of the title-part; Mr. Oliver Birrell does well as Col. Lavarennes; Mr. Phil Harker gives a good reading of Col. Meuron; Mr. Bartlett Garth is a robust Paul Laczinska, and Messrs. Frank M. Thorne and Albert Sinclair extract much humour from their parts. Miss Leslie Warner is eminently successful as Marie Walewska; Misses Florence Thorne and Maude Russell give adequate renderings of their rôles; and Miss Marie Harcourt is piquant as the vivandière.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Beauty and the Barge is admirably presented here this week by Mr. Arthur Hardy's company, and all who love a breezy and irresponsible comedy are making the most of an excellent opportunity, for the piece is playing to good houses each night. The play is capitally mounted and acted. Mr. Blake Adams's impersonation of the old tar, Captain James Barley, is inimitable, his facial expression, aided by his clever make-up, causing roars of laughter. Mr. Edward Coventry puts plenty of life into the character of Lieut. Seton Boyne, R.N., and comes in for unlimited applause; Herbert Manners has a capable exponent in Mr. Pennington Gush; Mr. Walter Pemberton is an irascible army officer; and the part of Augustus is in the very capable hands of Mr. Forrester Harvey. Miss Mona Robin, as the wife of the aforesaid officer, has a small part, but is very much at home therein. Miss Dido Drake quickly captivates the house with her grace and charm of manner as Ethel Smedley. Miss Mary Pemberton deserves a similar compliment for her presentment of Lucy Dallas, and Miss Ruby Wyndham is a distinct success as a portly housekeeper.

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company opened here on Monday with The White Chrysanthemum. In the title-rôle Miss Sybil Cunningham was entirely successful, her fine voice being heard to the utmost advantage; and Miss Dorothy Sephton furnished an exceedingly charming impersonation of Betty Kenyon. Mr. H. Langdon Bruce was a capital Lieut. Armitage; and Mr. Shirley Lea as the fiery Admiral deserves much praise for his finished impersonation. Mr. Richard Telford succeeded in creating roars of laughter with his inimitable impersonation of Sin Chong; and Mr. H. E. Garden as Lieut. Belmont had a part that fitted him like the proverbial glove. Mr. Jamie Dallas infused humour into the rôle of Private Perks; and congratulations are due to Miss Wilmot Karkeek, who as the smart Yankee girl Cornelia Vanderdecken made a big hit, her dancing being remarkably good. Other rôles were admirably sustained, and a particularly tuneful chorus under the direction of Mr. J. M. Hutcheson added materially to the success of the production. It should be added that the augmented orchestra was also under the direction of Mr. J. M. Hutcheson.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Mr. Fred Karno's sketch company have been most successful with their screaming sketch The Smoking Concert. Quite a sensation has been created by the Tom Davis Trio, whose act, Motoring in Mid-Air, has been a great draw. Mr. J. G. Graham and Miss Zerlina Harrington appear to advantage in A Daughter of Pleasure, a dramatic episode of Parisian life. Miss Maude Courtney, the American Girl, has been accorded a fine reception; and The Four Herberts have a clever eccentric acrobatic act. Mr. "C," who sings and talks, is deserving of praise for his unique and attractive performance; and also appearing are Mr. Robb Gilmore, comedian; Miss Amy Neild, comedienne, and the Palace Pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John S. Walter.—Manning's Entertainers head the bill, and have provided much amusement with their new edition of The Hotel Boots, an exceedingly smart sketch. As a raconteur Mr. G. W. Hunter has few equals, his patter being clever and quite up to date. Mr. Jimmy Shields, the one-legged comedian and dancer, renews his popularity here; and a good reception has been extended to Paulinette and Piquo, their gymnastic feats being exceptionally skilful. Miss Nina Gordon's imitations of "stars" are startlingly realistic; and Lazern, described as "New Zealand's premier deceptionist," is an exceedingly smart illusionist. Miss Winnie Gordon is a talented lady whistler; and also here are Miss Gertrude Bradshaw, vocalist, and Mr. Frank Darwin, actor-vocalist.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company are presenting this week Lured to London. Miss Nina Blake Adams, a clever actress, acquitted herself with distinction as Lily Sterling; and Mr. Cyril Grier must be commended for his skilful impersonation of Jake Gamble; Mr. Horace Denton deserves much praise for his clever impersonation of Rev. Leslie Carrington; and Mr. Elmore Frith submitted a finished impersonation of Abe Sterling; Mr. Balfour Dennistoun succeeds admirably as Geoffrey Carrington; Mr. Tom H. Solby, who is also responsible for the admirable stage management, amuses all with his inimitable impersonation of Constable Coppard; Miss Roma Tremayne, an accomplished actress, furnished a charming and skilful impersonation of Constance Stuart; and Miss Mattie Crawford as Natty was particularly successful; Miss Alice Clarke deserves much praise for her capital interpretation of Rosannah Lovejoy; and Mr. Ed. Smythe as A. C. Stuart, Esq.; and Mr. G. Davies as Squire Carrington complete the fine cast. The Alhambra Bioscope exhibits some fine pictures.

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Harry Battersby; Musical-Director, Mr. J. E. Machin.—Mr. James Hare's company are here in A Destroyer of Men. There is some good acting from Miss Irene Clifford as Olga Mischla and Mr. Hare in the part of the Exile; Mr. Chas. Bickell as the studious Michael Mischla; and Mr. Ross Warren and Miss Alice Buckland as Coco and Nina.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—A succession of pantomimic visitations terminates with one from Little and Darcy's Forty Thieves, a production which will compare favourably with any of its predecessors. Prominent in an excellent cast are the Sisters Silcott, Miss Minnie Silcott sustaining the leading rôle of Abdallah with exceptional ability and effect, Miss Violet Silcott making a spirited Ganem, and Miss Marie Silcott appearing to decided advantage as Morgiana; Mr. James Ferguson scores heavily as Cogia Baba; Messrs. Malone and Conley are amusing as Hassarac and Hassario respectively; Ali Baba is well impersonated by Mr. Willie Black; and the Donkey is admirably represented by Mr. Willie Hicks. Mr. Ted Wotton is a good Cassim; and Mr. Donald Gilbert an efficient Mustapha. Specialities include the Daunton-Shaw Bicycle Troupe, and the Esmeralda Quartette introduce some pretty dances.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—Miss Dolly Ellsworthy and an able company, in the dramatic episode, Nell Gwynne, form an attractive turn here. Duncan's Scotch Collies, an excellent exposition of animal training, are again appearing here with great success, and a good all-round company also includes Wild, Willie, and West, amusing and versatile comedians, who have made an undeniable hit; Mr. Bert Williams an expert ventriloquist; Mr. Frank Cass, descriptive vocalist; Miss Millie Howell, with some well-rendered vocal items; Mr. George Collins, patterer; Mr. J. H. Milburn, comedian; Councell and Mills, burlesque artists; and Brown's Royal Bioscope.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Queen of Hearts continues its reign with success unabated, country visitors as well as townsfolk flocking to the theatre and filling it at every performance. The vitality of the production is unimpaired, and the verve of the artists is splendid. Mr. George Robey as the Queen was never better received in his life, and it is safe to say that his humour has now assumed its best complexion. Mr. Edward Lewis as the Knave is another comedian who is now at his best, his clever facial display and burlesque sallies being exquisitely droll. A well-acted part is the Sorceress of Miss Helen Cecile, who amid all these drolleries preserves her intensity and gravity admirably, while her finish, Ophelia-like, is fine, and, it may be added, pathetic. Miss Millie Lindon charms the eye and the ear as Florizel; Miss Valli-Valli shines as Estelle; Miss Ethel Haydon scores with her rich, pure voice as Fortuna; Mr. T. A. Shale does creditably as the King; Mr. Tom Hearn affords hearty amusement with his speciality in the rôle of the Grand Slam; and the Mascots, and chorus and orchestra, under Mr. Guy Jones, are irreproachable.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Crusoe's Adventures has taken a merry and exceedingly prosperous turn, and the capacity of the house is put to the test nightly. The artists pursue their pleasant tasks in the best manner. Miss Georgina Delmar, in the titular part, has stamped her name on the roll of pantomime favourites; Miss Lulu Valli as Polly has proved herself one of the best and most graceful principal girls that have appeared here; Miss Nell Emerald as the Princess has added to her already wide popularity; Miss Louie Collier has delighted all parts of the house with her vocalisation in works of intrinsic merit as Roma, in which she is joined by Mr. Frederick Hobbs as Davy Jones; the Haytors please their admirers better than ever; that admirably unctuous and subtle comedian, Mr. J. F. McArdle, is another huge favourite as Atkins; Mr. Fred Wright, jun., is highly appraised as Billy Crusoe; and Mr. Geo. Miller as Mrs. Crusoe and Mr. Colin Coop as King Koko both take high places in public favour. Miss Clara Stanton completes the cast with her spirited exposition of the Captain's rôle.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Aladdin, transplanted from its London environment in all its entirety, is now delighting the habitués of the Grand. The company presented by Mr. Robert Crossman includes that delightfully sweet and fetching artist, Miss Winifred Hare, who as Aladdin captures all hearts. Miss Mary Hay exercises much charm as the Princess, and shines in several songs, including "The Zuyder Zee"; Miss Marion Hargrave comes out well in the rôle of Pekoe; Miss Ethel Irimey presents a fascinating appearance and acts well as Pitty-Sing; and the Misses Vera Thompson and Ethel Ford do credit to the parts of Hi-Tid-Li and Hi-Ti respectively. Mr. Arthur Reynolds leads the fun as Abanazar, his many witticisms evoking roars of laughter; Mr. Dan Lyndon is also responsible for much fun as the Widow Twankey; Mr. J. H. Goldsworthy is successful as the Emperor, and also vouchsafes some excellent singing and acting as the Demon of the Cave; while the Etharien Brothers, Mr. Gus Granville, and Susie and Protti elicit great applause with their contributions. The scenery and dresses are rich and rare, and the music is well chosen.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Cinderella is winning for Mr. Collingwood and his clever company the highest encomiums that could be wished for. The house is always full, and the production goes with a merry swing that holds the audience to the end. Miss Bessie Butt as Cinderella is using her talents so wisely and well that her fame is spreading far and wide, while her loyalty and energy are invaluable. The Brothers Obo show what admirable parts can be made out of the Ugly Sisters, the quarrelling scene being excruciatingly comic; Miss Minnie D'Aubyn bears herself well, and sings well, as the Prince; the Sisters Lunelle appear as Dandini (pert, sprightly, and pleasing) and Rosini, his affianced (charming and volatile); Mr. Harry Talbot is well liked as the Baron; and others who do well are Mr. J. G. Aitkin as Buttons, Messrs. D'Arcy Kelway and Syd Sylvester as the broker's men, Mr. Fred Barnes (an immaculately garbed and smart figure) who scores with his singing as the Duke, Miss Marie Le Frane as the Duchess, and Florence and Lilian, who never appeared to better advantage.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor. A Warning to Women appears here, with Mr. C. Watson Mills No. 1 Company, which includes Miss Rosalind Tate. Miss Tate is received with much cordiality, and her graceful and finished acting in the rôle of Moira casts a spell all round. Mr. C. Watson Mills endows the character of the minstrel, Shaun, with an interesting personality which is most attractive; and Mr. Charles Vivian as the fearsome stranger, Dr. Marcus Dread, is very engrossing. Mr. Wilson Benge gives a fine performance of the young squire, Fergus McNaughton; Mr. Henry Rutland wins esteem as Squire Kennion; Mr. N. Carter Slaughter acts the rôle of Lord Eversleigh with excellent ability; Mr. Henry P. Kennedy comes well to the fore as Mike McQuade; Miss Sadie Smith attracts much favourable comment as Shelia; and Miss Marie Moore as Hildred, Miss Ellen Beverley as Molly O'Moore, Miss Edith Rutland as Miles O'Moore, and, indeed, the entire company, are most adequate to the needs of the various situations.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—A Fight for Millions is fulfilling a very successful week's engagement here with Mr. Robert Perris's company, under the direction of Mr. Karl H. Edwards. Mr. John C. Carlyle wins much respect for the hero's rôle, Tom Manley; Mr. J. Schofield acts the part of Hudson Rivers with marked ability; Mr. Alex. C. Grant as the unscrupulous Dudley rivets the audience with the clever realism of his acting; Miss Alwynne Ermon acts with charming sympathy in the rôle of Pearl Rivers; Miss Nora Kingsley plays the part of Mrs. Rivers to much effect; Miss Elma C. Turner gives a clever portrayal of the deserted wife, afterwards Mrs. Mackensie; Miss Dorothy Wilkinson diffuses a wealth of charm as Little Madge; and the humorous rôles, with Mr. Karl H. Edwards as the Tramp, Mr. Harold Turner as Moses, and Miss Rosie Kearns as Betty and Meg Brady, cause uproarious mirth. Messrs. George Hodges, Jas. Risk, Nicholas Conway, William Turner, and others also do good service.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—The Silver King, besides keeping Wilson Barrett's memory green, is bringing honours and full houses to Messrs. G. M. Polini and Austin Melford's company, by whom it is excellently played. Mr. Fred D. Daviss commands sympathy at once with his strenuous and poignant acting in the title-rôle; Miss Daisy Scudamore evokes many tears with her pathos as Nellie Denver; Mr. Edward J. George as the faithful Jaikes is highly popular; Mr. T. St. George Lowther exploits the part of the Spider to great advantage; Mr. Arthur Wright acts as Elijah Coombe with desirable unction; Mr. Byron Pedley scores as the detective, Baxter; and others who act conspicuously well are Mr. Geo. Belmore as Henry Corket, Mr. Warriss Lindon as Cripps, Miss Viola Holland as Olive Skinner, and Miss Mary Simpson as Mrs. Gamage. Miss Flossie Hale Daviss and Master Douglas Thomas shine in the juvenile rôles.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—A fine exposition of how the game of football should not be played is given by Fred Karno's pantomime company this week. The sketch is entitled The Football Match, and the company includes the famous footballers, Athersmith, Crabtree, and Fred Spikesley. This is the latest effort of this well-known company, and seems likely to become one of their best. The comedians make the best of the many humorous situations. Hilda Jacobsen presents an original operetta, entitled 10 p.m., which is favourably received; Hurley and Coles give a song-scena, "Let Bygones be Bygones"; the pictorial songs of Dyved Lewys are of more than average merit; the Hayes Brothers, in The Porter and the Professional, are very comical. Other turns are provided by the Three Renads, in a clever gymnastic act; Petram's Marionettes; and Carlos Calsaro, in a naval act, all of which are very good.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Topping the bill this week is Gustave Fasola. Described as the "Indian fakir," his turn is one of the most mysterious seen here for some time. The Juanitas are Spanish acrobats, who give a performance unrivalled for its smartness, and conspicuous for the many clever feats introduced; Gillin is a comedian as well as a ventriloquist; the Sisters May are good duettists and dancers; Mark Leslie is a capable coon impersonator; the Jansons are responsible for well-rendered excerpts from opera; Phil Bransby, Sibb and Sibb, Walter Stanley, King's College Boys, and Mark Leslie are also included in the programme.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—A dramatic sketch, The Galley Slave, is powerfully told by Mr. Ernest Leicester's capable company. The story grips the attention from beginning to end. The whirlwind dancers, in the Robertys, give a clever turn; the incomparable Griff, with his foolery, is funnier than ever; Alpha and Le cause laughter in The Clown in Apartments; the Two Chinese Princesses give a smart ladder-balancing act; and Horace Jones is a capital Welsh comedian. Ernesto's musical juggling is very entertaining to watch; and the Banduna Troupe are accomplished mandolinists.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secreary, Mr. J. Huntley.—Patrons of this place of amusement are this week enjoying the third pantomime of the season, entitled Cinderella, played by Messrs. Charles, S. Kitts and Somers Bellamy's company. Miss Jennie Lynwoop is a dashing Prince Brilliant, her songs being well rendened; as Dandini Miss Madge Haines is very popular; the character of Cinderella has an admirable exponent in Miss Rhoda Windrum; and great praise is due to Miss Linda Riley for her portrayal of Fairy Goodheart. Unending amusement is created by Mr. Bert McNallie and Mr. J. Oliver Russell as Patricia and Rosalind, the ugly sisters; whilst much laughter is occasioned by the witticisms of Mr. Charles S. Kitts as Billy the page; other attractions are the Sisters Gage, whose dancing is a prominent feature of the panto; and Sergt.-Major Williams' team of performing dogs, who give a really clever performance.

BLACKBURN. — Theatre Royal.—Proprietor, Mr. Harry Yorke; Manager, Mr. Reginald C. Yorke.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden's pantomime, Aladdin, which is fulfilling a week's engagement at this house, is one of the best pantomimes that has been seen in Blackburn in recent years. The company, the staging, and the dressing are all excellent, and crowded houses have been the rule at the Royal this week. Mr. Daley Cooper is the chief of a band of merry-makers, and in the part of Abanazar, revels in his work. Mr. Julian Mack (Widow Twankey) was indisposed on Monday night, when the part was filled by Mr. Herbert King, but since then he has appeared with success. Miss Fanny Wright makes a graceful Aladdin; and Miss Kitty Brewster is a good principal girl. Mr. Picton Roxburgh is a humorously dignified Emperor; and the Brothers Brooks and Miss Flo Collier and Mr. Joe Robins supply some good comic interludes. A special word of praise should be given to Miss Molly Wolstenhulme (the Geni of the Cave) for her fine rendering of Arditi's song, "Brightly dawns upon me."

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Will Murray.—The following artists contribute to an excellent entertainment:—Bella and Bijou, in some clever musical sketches and their latest laughable act, The Suffragettes; V. P. Ling, mimic; Cavalli, ventriloquist; Marian Scott, comedienne; Bert Brantford, comedian; Blanche and Diacoff, cyclists on the teacup track; Henry Cot, the French giant; and Prince Colibri, the Russian midget.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Manxman, as interpreted by Mr. A. B. Cross and company, is again the attraction here. Mr. Cross repeats his clever impersonation of Pete, a part he has now played over 1500 times; Mr. Frank Etheridge makes a good Cæsar Cregeen; Mr. Sydney D. Kearns does well as Philip Christian; whilst Ross Christian finds a capable exponent in Mr. Dudley Stuart. Miss M. Watersford acts the part of Kate Cregeen with grace and power; Miss Nellie Freeland is a capable Nancy; and Miss Mona Spearing gives satisfaction as Miss Christian.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Messrs. Carpenter and Cooper's company is in possession here with The Spider and the Fly, a melodrama of the most thrilling order. The principal parts are played by Mr. Bluson North (Cyril Girdlestone), Mr. Ellis J. Preston (Welby Girdlestone), Miss Amy Venimore (Stella Grey "The Spider"), and Messrs. Charles Russell and Charles A. Preece, who supply the necessary humour.

BOSCOMBE. — Hippodrome.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. De Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—An attractive turn is provided this week in Fred Ginnett's Boy Army. These exceptionally well-trained lads perform military evolutions that would do credit to veteran cavalrymen. At the bottom of the bill is Fred Ginnett's Rejected Remounts, a most laughable equestrian sketch. Max Duffex wins favour as a musical contortionist; Will English, coon comedian, is a great favourite; Athas and Collins are clever in their latest creation The Organist and Monkey; Riccardo and Salving perform some marvellous equilibristic feats; Lloyd Morgan is a smart comedian. The Hipprodrome pictures maintain their usual standard.

BOURNEMOUTH.—Theatre Royal and Opera House.—Proprietors, David Allen and Son; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—The theatre is occupied this week by the Bournemouth Amateur Dramatic Club, in Lady Huntworth's Experiment.

BRADFORD.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Although Robinson Crusoe's career is rapidly drawing to a close there is no diminishing of the audiences, and no lack of energy on the part of the company in maintaining the interest in Mr. Hart's delightful pantomime, which has been freshened considerably by the introduction of much new funny business and taking songs.

Prince's Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The phenomenal success which has attended Mr. Laidler's enterprise this season in the direction of pantomime has resulted in the production of a second edition of Cinderella, which contains many new and attractive features. For these the management is in the main responsible, but much of the remarkable success attending the revised representation is, beyond doubt, due to the individual efforts of the comedians and the principal boy and girl. New songs, new dances, and new "business" have added fresh interest to the pantomime, which is brighter and merrier if possible than on the first night of its production.

The Empire.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Mr. George Gray and his company produced on Monday night a new dramatic sketch, Parson Gray, V.C., and the result of the initial performance must have been very gratifying to Mr. Gray, who is the author, and he may be complimented on a striking performance of the title-rôle, in which he was capably supported. There is some familiar dramatic material used in the construction of the story, and there are some fine situations. There are seven scenes in all, and the production is admirably staged. The variety element is represented by Lily Esplin, comedienne; Russell Brandow, acrobatic dancer; the O'Gorman Brothers, with comedy and patter; Harry Leybourne, comedian; Syd Myra and his dog Nell; Jeannie Mackay, vocalist; Conway and Leland; and the American Bioscope.

Palace Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. H. Foster. The fifth anniversary gala matinée was held here on Monday last, at which the principals from the Bradford Theatre Royal, the Prince's Theatre, the Theatre Royal, Leeds, and the Halifax Palace assisted in aid of the local charities. The company engaged here for the week also lent valuable aid, viz., Smith and Johnson, coloured duettists; Silbon's miniature circus; Pyck, Tholl, and Taylor, in comedy and dancing act; Dave McNeil, comedian; Mona McDonald, comedienne; Eva Hope and Jack Wayho in Scenes from Dickens; and Dinah Morris, assisted by her numerous company, in the sketch The Lost Coon.

On Thursday night in last week Mr. Frances Laidler, the lessee of the Prince's Theatre, Bradford, entertained the whole of the company and staff engaged in the pantomime Cinderella at supper, which was served on the stage after the performance. Mr. H. T. Butler, the stage-manager, presented Mr. Laidler, on behalf of the gentlemen of the company, with a beautifully illuminated address.

On Friday night last Mlle. du Roche, the Robinson Crusoe of the Bradford Theatre Royal pantomime, was indisposed and unable to appear, and Miss Ivey Roze (Harry Helm), at a moment's notice, undertook the part with conspicuous success.

BRIDLINGTON.—Royal Victoria Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Charles Palmer.—Mr. Harold Montague's excellent company, The Vagabonds, are appearing here this week in their attractive entertainment. Miss Olive Sparke is a charming vocalist and comedienne; Mr. Leslie Lu-Lu renders some capital humorous songs with excellent taste; and Mr. Leslie Burgess delights the audience with his fine voice. Mr. Harold Montague gives a clever sketch at the piano, and his humorous songs, written by himself, are remarkably smart. His burlesque with Mr. Burgiss, On the Stage, is most amusing, and so is the comedietta, First Aid to the Wounded, in which he takes part with Miss Ethel Mayaffre, an actress of great ability. The company also plays a burlesque opera, Il Vagabondi, and there are a series of living pictures shown by the Vagagraph. A word of praise is due to Mr. Claude Russell for his excellent piano solos and accompaniments.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt Beryl.—The Fulham Theatre pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, entered upon its concluding week here on Monday. The Poluskies as the comic villains are great favourites, and are enthusiastically applauded; and great successes are achieved by Miss Marguerite Broadfoote (Jack Hayseed), Miss Lily Black (Maid Marian), Mr. John E. Coyle (Baron), and Mr. Leonard (Mrs. No-Luck Jones).

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—Frank Barnard and company are very amusing in Hello! Frank Barnard as Blatz, being especially entertaining; Lytton and Bland submit a capital comedy act, A Lesson in Love; Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Leonard are highly successful in their duologue, Coming Home; Phillips and Terry are also very effective in a duologue in which there is some clever "business" with a dummy figure; the Pasquali Brothers, in a clever turn, prove themselves masters of head-balancing and tumbling; Ava, Zebra, and Vera are well received in an Indian scena; Horace Sade is a characteristic dancer; Alice Leon is a dainty comedienne; Natalie and Diana display great skill in a trapeze act; Kerr and Koe, eccentric comedians, win hearty applause; Charles Banks and his cleverly-trained dog Woof provide a good turn; and the Alhambrascope pictures are excellent.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—An attractive programme is sustained here this week. Miss Victoria Monks wins enthusiastic applause for her charmingly-rendered songs; the Aurora Troupe of cyclists achieve great success with their novel and daring feats; Bertisch displays some wonderful weight-lifting; the Smart Set submit pleasing singing and plenty of fun; Lottie de Abbey is a clever character impersonator; Diamond and Beatrice, harpist and soprano saxophonist, are well received; Leah Adell sings with great taste; Henri Bekker, assisted by Mlle. Maie, gives a capital conjuring entertainment; Charlie Williams, negroistic comedian and big-boot dancer, wins cordial applause; the Two Dixons are admirable bâton swingers, banjo, song, and dance artists; and the Barrascope pictures are interesting.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—There was a very large attendance here on Monday evening in all parts of the house, the pantomime Humpty Dumpty going splendidly. Miss Sybil Arundale, the popular impersonator of Rudolph, has a new Irish song and dance, which obtains much appreciation; Miss Maud Darling was indisposed on Monday evening, so her part of Princess Aurora, the principal girl, was cleverly taken by Miss Winnie Volt, Miss Volt's part of Cherry being nicely performed by Miss Cecile Bennette, and Soaro by Miss Madge Hamilton. The comedians, Messrs. Bert Gilbert, Horace Mills, Carlton, and the Brothers Griffiths, are all very popular in their respective parts. The scenery, dresses, and staging generally of the pantomime is quite up to the high standard expected here, and the admirable stage-management reflects much credit on the skill and experience of Mr. Henry Turner.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Cinderella continues to be highly successful, it being generally admitted to be one of the best pantomimes ever produced here. Miss Dolly Denton is charming in the title-rôle; and Miss Minnie Fisher displays marked ability as Prince Charming. The comedians are very popular, all of them working with a gusto which is quite refreshing to see. On Monday afternoon the chief members of the pantomime company gave an enjoyable entertainment to the convalescent patients in the spacious "Fry" ward of the Bristol General Hospital.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—The Kaufmann troupe of lady cyclists head the programme with an exceptionally clever exposition of trick and fancy cycling. Corman's Juveniles present a pretty scena, entitled The Waif; the children all sing and dance well, and at the conclusion of the sketch score heavily in a speciality Court set dance, in which graceful poses are introduced. Albert Wyndham and company successfully present a Shakespearean sketch, Clarence's Dream, it being well staged and cleverly performed. V. L. Granville obtains considerable applause for his character impersonations from well-known plays; Vowles and Bryan amuse with song and story in a garden; Mollie Doon is a pleasing comedienne; Yeager and Yeager, coloured song and dance artists, are appreciated in their comedy singing and dancing act; and the Gondolier Glee Singers (including Helen Bourne, lady tenor) display much ability in popular compositions. The performance concludes with "A Loafer's Lucky Day," depicted by Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—La Poupee drew a large house on Monday, when Mr. Herbert Ralland paid a return visit with his principal company. Mr. Fred Seymour was a clever Hilarius; Alesia was charmingly sustained by Miss Mysie Devine; Mr. Arthur Cozens was an excellent novice as Lancelot; Mr. Walter Balfour was in good voice, and his songs as Father Maxime were well rendered. Under the direction of Mr. H. H. Shaw, the choruses elicited several encores. Good acting was supplied by Mr. Arthur Dennis as Loremois, Mr. Fuller Allen as Baron Chanterelle, and Mr. E. Mooney as Balthazar; Miss Edith Hunter (Mme. Hilarius), Miss Doris Dickens (Henri), and the other members gave good support. The scenery and new dresses were very fine.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's chief company is here this week with the ever popular Gay Parisienne. Mr. Will Harman causes much genuine fun as the unfortunate Ebenezer Honeycombe; and Major Fossdyke is forcibly represented by Mr. Squire Day, who does some clever dancing; Mrs. Honeycombe is well placed in the hands of Miss Holford Beringer, an actress of undoubted ability; and Miss Nance O'Neill is a winsome and pleasing Norah, singing in good style; most amusing is Miss Madge Souttar as Ruth, who fetches the house with "Sister Mary Jane's top note." Mr. Philip Moore is a decided success as Tom Everleigh; and Mr. Douglas Howard does well as Amos Dingle; the Major's daughters are impersonated by Miss Kathleen O'Malley, Miss E. McHardy, Miss Gertrude Davies, and Miss Lucie Donati, who all look well. In the title-rôle Miss Lilian Talbot is an immediate success. She is ably assisted by Mr. Clifford Seylor, whose M. Pompier is a clever character sketch. The Imperial Glee Singers are heard to special advantage.

BURY (Lancs.). — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. Fred Melville's company is playing The Ugliest Woman on Earth here this week. The title-rôle is well acted by Miss Beatrice Homer. Other characters in good hands are Jack Merriman (Mr. Philip Darien), Hubert Gold (Mr. Leyton Cancellor), Morità (Miss Violet Macreed), and Rose Courtenay (Miss Nell Oliver).

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Sons.—General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—The Six Brothers Lucks' company of humorists is playing At the Hotel Grande. Miss Florence Smithers is very funny in "Hard Lines"; Hallam and Stanton give a musical sketch; Pueblo and Cropp, sand-dancers, and Little Lenee, vocalist, make up a good show.

CAMBRIDGE. — NEW THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. B. Redfern, J.P., D.L.—The Electric Man is given here this week by Mr. F. B. Mulholland's company, and in the dual parts of Walter Everest and Prometheus Frankenstein, Mr. Bernard Copping is particularly smart. Jack Strange is well played by Mr. Sydney Lynn, Jobbins is capitally rendered by Mr. L. Robinson. Miss Amy Fanchette is successful as Mrs. Anderson; Miss Gertrude Tate (Stella) and Miss Ida Bellington (Mary) played naturally. Mr. Chris. Grose (General) and Miss Dorothy Hullah are admirable. The farce is preceded by the comedietta Obliging a Friend.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—Brigadier Gerard is being presented here by Mr. Lewis Waller's company. Mr. Loring Fernie gives a fine, dashing, vigorous delineation of the title-rôle; Miss Muriel Godfrey Turner submits a charming and clever impersonation of the Comtesse; Mr. George Mallett as Talleyrand proves an excellent exponent of the character; and Napoleon is ably rendered by Mr. Arthur Somers.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The Middleman makes a welcome return after a long interval. It is presented by Miss Elaine Verner's company. Mr. Harding Thomas plays most powerfully as Cyrus Blenkarn, his life-like assumption of the humble genius being a realistic piece of acting; Joseph Chandler is well impersonated by Mr. John J. Hooker; Mr. E. Rayson-Cousins is excellently placed as Julian Chandler; Batty Todd is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Edward De Vere; Mary Blenkarn is pathetically presented by Miss Elaine Verner, an actress of undoubted ability; Miss Ada Clarke's Nancy is a refreshing performance; and Mr. Edgar Kent's Jesse Pegg a very amusing one.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. William Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—The premier position at the Empire this week is taken by the Ten Loonies, in an exceedingly funny musical sketch entitled Dotty. Carrie Laurie's Kindergarten; the Selbinis, sensational cyclists; Sadie Simpson, a clever comedienne; the twin Sisters Anderson, skipping-rope dancers; Alice May and Co., in a really smart protean sketch, Tranquillity; Ernest Torrence, in illustrated songs; J. W. Magers, basso; Mark Merry, the merriment merchant; and the American Bioscope are also among the attractions.

CARLISLE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—T. R. Benson's company, in a répertoire of Shakespearean plays, is here. On the opening night, The Taming of the Shrew drew a big house, and was excellently played. On Tuesday Twelfth Night proved no less popular, and the splendid performance of the comedy was thoroughly enjoyed by a most appreciative audience. Chief honours were gained by Miss Dorothy Green, who, as Viola, was simply charming; Mr. Ross Shore as Sir Toby, and Mr. Esme Filmer as Sir Andrew, sustained their parts with true humour and ability; Miss Rosa Burgess made a delightful Maria; and Miss Mary Webb sang with fine effect. Mr. Gerald Ames as the Duke, Mr. E. Spencer Geach as Sebastian, Mr. Gerald Davis as Antonio, and Miss Louise Graems as Olivia contributed excellent performances. The Merry Wives of Windsor, Macbeth, School for Scandal, and Hamlet are billed for performance during the week.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Messrs. Hinton and Wooton work the audience up to a high pitch of excitement by their daring and skilful exhibition of bicycle football; a very smart juggling turn is contributed by the Sisters Cromwell; the deft and melodious manipulation of the xylophone by the Vernon Troupe is a most popular item; Mr. T. E. Johnstone sings good songs in capital style; and the Stack-Milton Trio are clever bar and trampolin performers. A knockabout act is contributed by Burg, Hand, and Wise; Mlle. Ameda, and the Pepiscope, complete.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Councillor Hy. Masterman.—Mr. E. Hill-Mitchelson and company are here in Death or Glory Boys. Mr. Jerrold Ord is well suited to the character of Colonel Fergeson; Mr. Hill-Mitchelson gives a good account of the rôle of Capt. Ferrers; Mr. Lancelot Usher proves a very amusing Lieut. Duff; Miss Violet Carlyle is a graceful and womanly Nena Fergeson; and Miss Amy Ellam is to be commended for her naturalness and self-control as Edith. The comedy element is supplied by Mr. J. Russell Bogue as Nat Wilks, and Miss Maud Stuart as Jane.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. Beanland and W. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. W. H. Emerson.—Another good variety programme is presented here this week. The chief item is provided by Squiff, who as a swell burglar is heartily applauded; Beanland and Bath contribute a smart cartoon and comedy act; Mr. Harry Wright as an extempore vocalist stands high in favour; Adelina gives some clever impersonations of well-known characters; Miss Peggy Fame sings several songs that are highly appreciated; Miss Nellie Gannon is very good as a descriptive vocalist; the amusing antics of the Vaudevilles in their humorous sketch My Husband the Lunatic cause laughter; and the Loyal Dominion Company's animated pictures conclude an enjoyable entertainment.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—One of Mr. Mouillot's capital companies is appearing here this week in The Girl Behind the Counter. Mr. Arthur Cartwright, a capital Charles Chetwyn, is encored for "The land where the best man wins"; Miss Nora Brocklebank appears successfully as Winnie Willoughby; and one of the hits of the production is Mr. H. B. Clarke Chadwick's quiet but amusing impersonation of General Sir Wilkie Willoughby, his Walter Raleigh monologue and ditty fairly bringing down the house. Mr. Howard Cridland is just sufficiently foppish as Viscount Gushington; Mons. Jules Charmettes hits off to a nicety the eccentricities of Mons. Duval; Millie Mostyn has a smart representative in Miss Olivia Elton; Miss Doris Langdon makes a most vivacious Ninette; and Susie and Adolphus are excellently represented by Miss Ros Helene and Mr. Frederick Park respectively, their Greenaway duet being much appreciated. Mr. Geoffrey Allsopp is an imposing Rudolph; and Mr. A. M. Moore's waiter is an amusing bit of work.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank E. Donne.—The Belles of the Kitchen, originally produced by the celebrated Vokes Family, is being presented here by Carrie Laurie's Miniature Comedy Company, who do justice to the piece and give every satisfaction. Lecarcha is an interesting card manipulator and conjurer; Los Granadas display considerable dexterity on the horizontal bars; Howard and St. Clair are deservedly popular. The Twin Sisters Melba, the Edisonograph, Mollie Malverne, and Lew Loman complete the company.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—After an absence of seven years Mr. Edmund Tearle's company in a répertoire of classic and romantic plays is paying a return visit. On Monday was presented The Three Musketeers, as dramatised by Messrs. Clark Claypole and J. H. Wrougham. In the rôle of D'Artagnan, Mr. Edmund Tearle was powerful and picturesque; Louis XIII. had a suitable representative in Mr. G. T. Grieg; Mr. J. Cooke Hinton made a satisfactory Cardinal Richelieu; Mr. Bernhardt's Buckingham was effective; Mr. Clifford Murle was well placed as Athos; Mr. J. A. Keogh caused considerable amusement as Boniface; Miss Mary Campbell as Ann of Austria was consistent; and a charming page was found in Miss Helen Macrae.

CHESTERFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. Armstrong.—Messrs. Moore-Kennedy's Dick Whittington pantomime holds sway here this week. As Dick Mlle. Lucretia is charming, both her singing and dancing gaining loud applause; Miss Helena Barton is a sprightly Alice; Miss Jessie Barrow a pleasing Maid Marian; Miss Josephine Townshend a fascinating Princess; and Miss Mollie Revell a good singing Fairy Queen. The Canadian Boys, Rino and Kirby, Mr. Will Sandes as Idle Jack, Mr. Clarence Turner, Mr. Fred Fulton, and Little Hatch provide plenty of fun. Pauletti gives a good impersonation of the Cat. Specialities are introduced by Mlle. Lucretia, top-boot dancer; Sandes and Vincent, eccentric comedians; Victor's musical dogs; Mr. Tom Lewis in patriotic songs; Mr. Clarence Turner, the Lancashire Lad; Pauletti in a bicycle act; Little Hatch, comedian; and the Lily Godfrey Troupe in some clever acrobatic dancing.

CORPORATION THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. J. Cranston.—Messrs. Carson and Kendall's company commenced on Monday a week's engagement here with Babes in the Wood. Miss Rose Tilley as Robin Hood is well suited to the rôle; Miss May Grayce as Maid Marian is full of vivacity; Mr. Hugh Brady is good as the Baron; Messrs. H. Roberts and J. McGarth create much amusement as the Robbers; Miss Dolly Marsden is successful as the Fairy; and the Babes, Harry and Eva, are cleverly represented by Miss Doris Middleton and Miss Dot Moss respectively.

CHORLEY (Lancs). — GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hemingway.—This week we have a welcome return visit of that capital musical drama, The Fatal Wedding, played by Mr. Bert Coote's company. Mr. Guy Hastings gave a powerful and artistic representation of Robert Curtis, Mr. E. Outtrim proving very successful as Howard Wilson; Toto is humorously rendered by Mr. C. H. Hughes, and Mr. Cyril Melton excellently portrays Peter Schwartz; Mr. A. Law Raynor, in addition to the business management, is capital as the Rev. Dr. Lanceford; Miss Katherine Clarke gives a sympathetic conception of Mable Wilson; Cora Williams is strongly represented by Miss Leah Marlborough; Jessie, the "Little Mother," is cleverly undertaken by Miss Julie Temple; and Master Freddie Hockling is distinctly good as Frank. There is a chorus of specially-trained children under the accomplished bâton of Mr. W. Devin, musical director, and various specialities are delightfully given by Miss Dolly McCalla, Master Walter Aubrey, Miss Ivy Westaby, Miss Marie Wilson, and Miss Hetty Kelley.

CLYDEBANK.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Herbert J. Montague.—Miss Grace Warner, supported by Mr. George Gordon and her London company, is here this week, opening on Monday with The Scarlet Clue. In this piece Miss Warner undertakes the part of Sal Scarlett in a manner worthy of high praise; Mr. George Gordon is seen to advantage in the heavy part of Michael Stanton; Mr. Arthur St. Clair does good work as the twin brothers Jack and Harry Esmond; Mr. J. L. Leigh is entertaining as Billy the Rotter; Miss Hilda Herne is well placed as Elsie Dane; little Phyllis Nassay's Reggie is good; Miss Esther Dean is a sprightly Musette; and Miss Violet Palfrey a delightful Little Polly.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime, Little Aladdin, is being presented this week, and the reception extended to it on Monday night was most cordial. A really humorous quintet of comedians is provided in Mr. Arthur Aiston, who imparted the utmost drollery to his Abanazar, Mr. Jack Chromo, whose make-up as the Widow Twankey elicited general commendation; Mr. Harold Batt, whose eccentric dancing was loudly re-demanded, and Messrs. Bliss and Bliss, who made a very capable pair of Celestial policemen. Mr. Tom Kelso, as the laundryman, was also greatly in evidence; whilst in the title-rôle Miss Marie Beresford made the very utmost of her numerous opportunities. Miss Kitty Kildare sang sweetly as the Fairy, and Miss Lena Page also proved herself (as Prince Pekoe) a powerful singer. Miss Minnie Grey was a dainty Lumino, and Miss Ruby Aiston a very charming Princess. The pantomime concluded with an old-fashioned harlequinade, in which Miss Maud Clarke, the principal dancer, was most conspicuous.

HIPPODROME.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—The star turn this week is that notable combination, the Delevines, in their musical comedy scena, entitled Flipp and Flopp, and the applause meted out to them must be very gratifying. Almon, the handy man, provides an original and clever show; Fred Harrison brings down the house with a couple of well-rendered humorous songs, and Dan Pedley scores in song and sabot dance. The Sisters Holly appeal strongly to the audience with their melodramatic duet, and Daisy Cordelia is a popular comedienne. The pictures conclude the bill.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Chas. W. Poole's Myriorama is here this week and is being well patronised. An excellent variety company is included in the entertainment, the principal artists being the Three Almos, Triple horizontal bar performers; Little Edie, marvellous child vocalist; Le Brun and Irene; Molly Augarde, and the Swift Trio, wonderful cyclists; Mr. Geo. Melville is an excellent guide and humorist.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—Sinbad the Sailor was produced here on Monday night, and was a great success. The scenery is splendid and the dresses gorgeous. The fun is fast and furious, and the music very pleasing. Miss May Beatty is a picturesque Sinbad, and her singing delighted everybody; as Zorilda, Miss Blanche Astley sings and acts well; Miss Agnes Gunn makes the most of the part of Spirit of Adventure; Mr. Edward Lauri is Sinbad creates much amusement by his fooling; Mr. Gus Walker as Mrs. Eliza Sinbad keeps the house in roars of laughter; Mr. T. E. Finglass is extremely amusing as Pompey; Mr. Fred Arthur as the Sultan is imposing; Mr. Cecil Kingsley is an excellent Grand Vizier; and Mr. G. H. Snazelle as Captain Smackanhit is highly entertaining.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—Galetti's monkeys give a very clever performance; Little Lawrence is a capital comedienne; and Sam Shipley sings some catchy airs. Miles Quirke, boy violinist, is a skilful violinist; Ena Richards, comedienne; Joe Humphreys, comedian; the Solari Duo; Mignotte Kokin, comedienne; and J. H. Darnley and company in What a Night Created, all assist in the merrymaking.

COVENTRY. — THE EMPIRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. A. Rand.—A pleasing programme is submitted to the large audiences at the above. A smart Dutch operetta, presented by Jake Friedman, entitled Happy Holland, is well rendered by a company of twenty-five artists; the Three Merrils, trick cyclists, are well received; they show some fine and skilful tricks; Alexandra Edwin is appreciated as a ballad vocalist, her rendering of "Asthore" being particularly fine; Woodhouse and Wells, comedians and dancers, give some amusing patter; Azella Wilson is a clever gymnast; Will and Madge give a capital musical contribution, entitled The Bohemians; Harry Maynard is a pleasing vocalist.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Mr. George Testo Santé is here with The Life of a Showman. He takes the character of Brien Leader in a masterly manner, and is ably assisted by Miss May Warden, who wins the sympathies of the audience by her rendering of Lynette Leader. Mr. Aurele Labat gains well-earned appreciation for his Hendrick Marais, and Miss Amy McNeil as Agatha Winter deserves special mention. Mr. Edward Warden supplies a capital rendition of the Rev. Cyril Arliss, and the Dickie of Master Harry Warder is excellent; Mr. Frank Santé and Mr. Will Lindsay, as Tommy Allthere and Ben Tic Tac supply the humour. Miss E. Lewis has a suitable part as Angela Walton; Mr. J. G. Santé displays a wonderful power over the violin; Mr. Fred Vaughan is in his element as Ned Clincker.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's principal company is playing The Little Bread-Winner here this week. Miss Mary Fulton displays a high degree of talent as Margaret Daventry. In the title-rôle Miss Emmie Thomas is delightfully pleasing, and Miss Jenny Bostock as Bridget O'Flanaghan is all that could be desired. Miss Nellie Thorne-Hallam as Kate Cherry is clever, and Miss Kitty Melville is good as Ruth Cherry; Miss Lissa Young as Bobby Trott is a favourite. Mr. Eugene Santley gives a striking and effective rendering of Lord William Dorrington, and Mr. Matthew Boulton well sustains the part of Richard Lawrence; Mr. Alfred Maurice gives a powerful and successful portrayal of Joseph Prior, and as Charles Prior, Mr. Stanley Leedham is in every way efficient. Mr. Wallace Carey appears as Doctor Chadwick.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson.—Mr. Fred J. Kirke's company is paying a return visit here this week. On Monday and Tuesday nights The Naval Detective was given, in which Mr. P. Piercy Watson appears to advantage in the title-rôle, Mr. Alf Stretten is a capable Dr. Schriener, and Miss F. Strickland does well as Lulu; Miss Louie Fountaine and the Sisters Shaw introduce some very good variety business. During the week In Old Madrid and Our Sailor Lad have been staged.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—A return visit of Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and their excellent company is highly appreciated. The répertoire includes The Ironmaster, The Elder Miss Blossom, The Housekeeper, and A Tight Corner. In the first-mentioned, on Monday, Mr. Kendal gave a scholarly and artistic rendering of Phillippe Derblay; and Mrs. Kendal won keen appreciation by her skilful and experienced impersonation of Claire de Beaupré. Mr. Bassett Roe was quite at his ease as the Duc de Bligny; Mr. C. W. Standing was all that could be wished in the rôle of Octave; Mr. Metcalfe Wood made a good impression as the Baron de Prefont; Mr. Ernest Hendrie was first-rate in the part of Moulinet; Mr. W. M. Rutherford was praiseworthy as Beohlin; and commendable work was put in by Messrs. Armitage (General de Pontac), W. Stevens (Dr. Servan), A. N. Phipps (Mouchot), F. Chas. Pool, R. Burnett, and Percy Towers. Mrs. A. B. Tapping made a success in the rôle of Marquise de Beaupré; and Miss Dora Fellows won approbation as Baronne de Prefont.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Herrick.—Mr. Augustine Knight's company, in The Assassin, is appearing with success here this week. Mr. Augustine Knight gives a capital rendering of Prince Demetri; Mr. Edward E. Ashby as Ipanoff is well received; Mr. Theo Balfour ably acts the rôle of Duke Karl; Mr. Cecil H. Raymond is uncommonly good as Baron Alfonso; Mr. Chaucy Morris does good work as General Nicol; and Mr. Tom J. Taylor delights the audience as Peter. Miss Hellis Senior submits a good portrayal of Connie Johnson; Miss Francis Waring is sympathetic as Nita; Miss Marie E. Robertson is very pleasing as Katrina; and Miss Ella Vane gives an excellent representation of the Countess Wanda.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche are appearing here in What the Butler Saw. Mr. Rignold takes the part of Pink, the butler; Miss Blanche plays Mrs. Barrington; and they are supported by a well-chosen company, including Mr. Charles Fawcett, Mr. W. Dunlop, Mr. George Ascott, Mr. Harry Rignold, Mr. Leo St. Clair, Miss Dorothy Garth, Miss Mona Garland, Miss May Hart, Miss Julie St. George, Miss Elsie Gaunt, and Miss Vera O'Connell.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—We have here this week a star variety company, the bill being headed by Herr Fritz, who mystifies and amuses the audience with his illusions. Miss Frederica's performing dogs receive well-merited applause, and George Bernard, actor-vocalist, renders several good songs in fine style. Other artists giving excellent turns are Nellie Nora, in a refined musical act; Bob Hartley, comedian; Alf Thomas, comedian and dancer; Doris Dene, descriptive vocalist; Minnie Rose, comedienne; and Alvantee, who gives an exhibition on the trapeze and slanting wire.

DERBY.—GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Mr. Lester Collingwood's Bluebeard pantomime company opened a fortnight's engagement on Monday. Mr. Fred Lynde as Ibrahim is perhaps the pick of the comedians, and scores all through. Sister Anne is ably accounted for by Mr. Harry Tilbury, who brings to bear a droll humour which is very refreshing. Bluebeard is carefully portrayed by Mr. S. Lockridge, who has a good song in the third scene; while in the parts of Shackabac and Shakeleg it would be difficult to find the equals of he Two Jays. Messrs. Wheeler and Wilson, who perform as a donkey and his keeper respectively, submit a clever acrobatic act; Miss Millie Ward makes a vivacious Fatima, though obviously suffering from a cold; Miss Marie Liston plays Selim with uncommon verve, and has a number of songs; a captivating Beda is supplied by Miss Irene Wingrove, who has a bright and pleasing Cassim in her sister, Miss Gladys Wingrove. Miss May Ruby makes a pretty Zoebedie, and she, in conjunction with her two winning sisters, provide an equipose acrobatic and trapeze speciality which is marked by an easy grace of movement and dexterity. The Three Rubys, too, can boast of no mean dancing ability, as their butterfly dances prove, and Miss May Ruby has, perhaps, the prettiest song of the pantomime in "The little guiding star." Miss Issa Steele, the Fairy King, renders a sentimental song in excellent style, and more clever speciality dancing is given by the Valerie Girls.

PALACE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—A taking turn is provided here this week by those premier instrumentalists the Seven Savonas, who met with a hearty reception on Monday night. Special mention should be made of their electric scena, which would be hard to beat in point of spectacular magnificence. The Three Moxons, acrobats and jugglers, submit some clever tricks in an exceptionally neat style; Salida and Vone, Creole artists, are entertaining in song and dance; Mlle. Elvina is a graceful aerial gymnast; Ruby Bijou, comedienne, is deserving of great praise for her distinctly pretty dance; and W. H. Raby, comedian, creates much diversion with his droll songs. The Bioscope is also a prominent feature in a most acceptable programme.

DEVONPORT.—METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King.—Dick Whittington is now approaching the end of his career here. A highly attractive feature has been added in the form of a cycling turn presented by Lotto, Lillo, and Otto, which for fun and humour, combined with downright cleverness, it would be difficult to equal.

DEWSBURY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.—Crowded houses have watched with amazement the astounding exhibitions of the Chinese conjurer, Chung Ling Soo; the Royal Zerbinis are to be praised for their conspicuous excellence as musical entertainers; Cissie Curlette sings with signal success; Austin and Cowan are a couple of sweet-toned and gifted singers; Martini and Son, illustrated song artists, the Alberto troupe, gymnasts, Starr and Jerome are other turns.

DONCASTER. — NEW THEATRE AND EMPIRE. —Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—A great treat was provided here on Monday evening by Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime, Dick Whittington. Rodento, King of Rats, was an impersonation that reflected great credit upon Mr. Archie J. Milne, and Miss Gladys Kildare was a chic Concordi, her cultured songs being very acceptable. Miss Adele Roze was well chosen for the title-rôle. Miss Leah Laurie's attractive appearance admirably qualified her for the part of Alice. Mr. J. H. Wakefield was an inimitable Alderman Fitzwarren, and full advantage was taken to present a number of variety turns, which were well received.

DUBLIN.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Chas. Hyland. — The Trinity College Amateur Dramatic Club occupy the boards here this week, and are presenting Lady Huntworth's Experiment, Second Thoughts, and His Excellency the Governor, to large and appreciative audiences nightly.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—Mr. Frederick Mouillot's pantomime, Mother Goose, is in the third week of a highly-successful visit, and drawing crowded houses.

QUEEN'S THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; Acting-Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company is this week presenting The Beautiful Fiend. Miss Sidney Crowe achieves distinction in the character of Wanda Lubinoff; Mr. Montague Beaudyn as Ivan Paulovitch acts with ability; Mr. G. P. McBride gives a good rendering of Count Fedor Karateff; and Miss Irene Munro fills the part of Nadine Karateff with credit. Mr. Herbert Skardon is well placed as Sergius Strogoff; while Miss Annie Clunn is capital in the rôle of Patty Woodlands; and Mr. Harry Oates is highly amusing as Christopher Crackles, and is ably supported by Mr. Matt Russell as Henri. Mr. W. Robertson Foulis makes the most of the part of Malachi. The minor parts are well filled.

EMPIRE.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—Mr. Henry J. Corner, in The Dandies, is being accorded a good reception. The Three Sisters Chester, vocalists and dancers, evoke hearty applause; Arthur Melrose, whistling comedian, scores a distinct success; and the amusing burlesque, Codology, by the Brothers Hughes, creates roars of laughter. Cliff Ryland is mirth-provoking in quaint songs and stories; and the Brothers Schenk are remarkably clever as head and hand balancers. There is a capital sketch, entitled The Phantom Ship; and Miss Lena Willard's contributions are most pleasing.

TIVOLI.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—A strong attraction is here this week in the person of the Countess Romanow; Miss Marion Willis and Mr. Wilfred Wilton appear in a humorous duologue, A Musical Comedy Rehearsal; and other turns are

A MOUTHFUL OF BEAUTIFUL TEETH.

ANOTHER ODOL SMILE.

How agreeable it is to laugh if one possesses nice-looking teeth, and how awkward to be compelled to laugh with bad teeth.

This truism has often been remarked upon, but we are of opinion that it cannot be too often impressed upon the memory. It should warn everybody who has not yet taken the matter to heart to determine to accustom himself to a regular care of the teeth, but not in the old-fashioned style with tooth pastes, soaps, &c., so injurious to the enamel, but with Odol, the liquid antiseptic dentifrice.

Few women are as competent to express an opinion on a matter of personal beauty as

Miss Ellaline Terriss, and in this connection it is of special moment to know what she thinks regarding mouth beauty and how it can be preserved. She says:—

As a sunny smile beautifies a countenance, so do shining teeth beautify a mouth. We cannot all have perfect teeth, but we can all have a perfect mouth wash, and that everyone has who uses Odol. It is delightfully fragrant, reliably antiseptic, and imparts a sensation of cleanness which is to be obtained in no other way. Once used it must always be used.

Ellaline Terriss

provided by Miss Daisy O'Malley, comedienne and dancer; Adams and Ward, acrobatic comedians; Louis Kerno, coon vocalist and dancer; Crosby and Walker, cross-talk comedians; Albert and King, comedy equilibrists; Eric Graham, comedian; Nora Bremner, international dancer; and the Bioscope.

Pavilion (Kingstown). — The Irish Animated Photo. Company opened for a short season here on Monday, when an excellent programme was provided, and heartily enjoyed by full houses, both at afternoon and evening performances.

DUMFRIES. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee, Mr. W. E. Potts; Manager, Mr. Payne-Seddon.—Mr. John G. Thomson's company has appeared here for three nights in Dick Whittington and His Cat. Miss Fay Garnet Vayne made a capital Dick; Miss Isla Garnet Vayne as Alice Fitzwarren was very charming; Mr. C. Young Fixott was the centre of merriment as Betsy Jane, the cook; Mr. Harold Wagner was funny as Idle Jack; Mr. William Nixon did well as the Emperor of Morocco; Mr. George Garnet Vayne made an excellent cat; Miss Marjorie Leslie as Princess Charming, Miss Violet English and Miss Lily English as Algy and Polly, were very good.

DUNDEE. — Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—Doody and Wright, who occupy premier place on this week's bill, are a very vivacious and comical pair; the Lyons Trio are clever in their pantomime sketch; and as trick cyclists the Dunlops would be hard to beat. The Chronophone makes its first appearance here, the songs being reproduced with marvellous lucidity. Les Sados, jugglers; Lozelle, gymnast; Barney Noble, raconteur; Olive Veno, clog dancer; and Lilian Sivado, trapeze performer, are also in the bill.

Gaiety Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—The Chronophone is billed in big letters, and is proving a draw. The Cheers present a pretty and refined scena, Dick Whittington, in which some wonderful performing cats take part. Harte and Victor score a big success in their turn, The Golfer and the Caddy, their cross-talking being decidedly smart and free from vulgarity. The Two D's (D'Argan and Dene) are funny in their comedy act, and the Three De Veres show skill as comedy acrobats. Elsie Russell, a dainty American comedienne, makes a good impression, and the Bioscope, as usual, brings the entertainment to a close Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—A rousing reception was accorded on Monday evening to Mr. Harry Foxwell's company in the play entitled An Abandoned Woman. A powerful rendering of Ninon is given by Miss Georgette Thierry, an actress of exceptional ability. As the hero, Herbert Seaton, Mr. Wolston Henry plays with vigour, while Mr. B. J. Leille as Philip Malvoisin makes an interesting accomplice to the villainess Ninon.

Kinnaird Hall.—The U.S.A. Animated Picture Co., under the capable management of Mr. Victor Hamilton, opened a short stay on Monday. There is a fine selection of scenic, tragic, and comic films, and the entertainment is interspersed with songs rendered by a talented concert party.

EASTBOURNE. — Pier Pavilion. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Charles Fancourt's company is appearing here in The Shulamite. The company is a well-balanced one, and the scenery is of particular excellence. Mr. Algernon J. Hicks in the part of Simeon Krillett has a task bristling with difficulties, but his work is intensely impressive; Mr. Charles Fancourt is a refined and natural Robert Waring; Mr. George Rammell is a thoroughly earnest Jan; and Mr. J. R. Rilings gives excellent help as Klaus. Miss Ruth Shepherd plays the part of Deborah with fine feeling and sympathy; Miss Emily Levetty is a powerfully effective Tante Anna; and Miss Chrissie Bickerstaff a realistic Memke.

Devonshire Park Theatre.—Proprietors, The Devonshire Park and Baths Co., Ltd.—Under the management of Messrs. Murray, King, and Clarke, Mr. Leigh Lovell and Miss Octavia Kenmore appeared here in the early part of the week in The Master Builder. Mr. Charles Carey's company is to appear later in the week in Little Lord Fauntleroy.

ECCLES.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Hamilton Baines; Acting-Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—We have here this week Mr. Charles Macdona's company in the musical play, Three Little Maids. The Branscombe girls are ably depicted by the Misses Mabel Kerridge, Daisy Sylverton, and Eva Weigh; Miss Laura Wright as Gretchen is clever; Miss Kate Graham Beck makes a dignified Lady St. Mallory; the protégées of Lady St. Mallory are creditably impersonated by the Misses Hilda Stericker, Bertha Trench, and Nellie Clapton; Mr. Frank Henderson as Lord Cheyne is exceedingly funny; as M. de L'Orme and Bryan Molyneaux Mr. Eric Barrington and Mr. Frank Wilson play with remarkable tact.

EDINBURGH. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Whitehead.—The Babes in the Wood pantomime continues to enjoy a full share of patronage, and to repay its patrons with a double measure of enjoyment. The comparatively few male performers in a long and imposing cast are happily a band of first-rate artists, of whom the audience apparently cannot see or hear too much. Mr. Mark Sheridan and Mr. Harry Conlin are irresistibly droll in their respective impersonations of the Baron and the Nurse; and, with the Brothers Egbert, they keep the fun in perpetual motion; Master Nipper Lupino Lane also has a very good innings, with songs and dances; and Wee Wallace fairly divides the honours of the title-rôle with Baby Betty Green. Of the leading ladies Miss Gwladys Elvey and Miss Daisy Dormer, principal boy and girl, are exceedingly bright and attractive in the characters of Robin Hood and Maid Marian; Miss Gladys Cooper is an ideal fairy; and Miss Mildred Claire and Miss Edna Loftus make a pleasing boy and girl couple as Allan-a-dale and Molly. Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers assist in the success of the production with several very agile and lively turns.

Royal Lyceum Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.,; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minshull.—See-See has proved a distinct success here, and full houses have been attracted during the visit of Mr. Geo. Edwardes's company. Vocally and dramatically the members of the cast are admirably suited to their parts. No audience can be dull while those excellent comedians, Mr. Frank Danby and Mr. W. H. Rawlins, are upon the stage, and Mr. Leonard McKay's mellow, cultured voice is heard at its best in the music of the character of Yen. Miss Lily Elsie makes a noteworthy appearance as See-See; Miss Amy Augarde is a marvellously bright Mai-Yai; Miss Octavia Barry is thoroughly enjoyable in her one charming solo, while the clever dancing of Miss Topsy Sinden remains a feature of special interest in an interesting performance.

King's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard. —Cinderella, which combines everything that is delightful in a pantomime, still keeps on its prosperous career at the King's. Miss Phyllis Dare was indisposed on Monday evening last, and her temporary illness brought forward Miss Lilian Clarke, a pretty and clever actress, who imparted a good deal of life to the title-rôle. Mr. Dan Rolyat, Mr. John Humphries, and Mr. Stephen Adeson are extremely amusing, and the fun never flags in their scenes. The Prince Rudolph of Miss Violet Englefield and the Princess Roxana of Miss Gwennie Hasto are sprightly, finished performances, and the Mopsa of Miss Vera Vere, and the Arethusa of Miss Maria Rignold are cleverly developed parts. Mr. Courtneidge's success in the production of the pantomime has been emphatic.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—A street urchin's idea of a pantomime, entitled Mick Wittintun, is the head line this week, and the performance is in every way most entertaining, carried through as it is with great spirit by Mr. Henry Cadle's artists of "Casey Court" notoriety. Spry and Austin are old favourites here, and their smart vaudeville work is greatly enjoyed; the Kurios provide much amusement with a clever acrobatic display of the knockabout kind; Mr. Fred Elton's songs, to his own accompaniment at the piano, are quite a treat; and Kelly and Ashby, the bounding billiardists, perform some astonishing somersault feats. The comedian element is well represented by Mr. Dan Conroy; while Miss Edie Veno and Miss Carrie Joy contribute pleasing comedienne turns. The programme derives further strength from the delightful rendering of patriotic ditties by the popular actor-vocalist, Mr. George Leyton, whose juvenile choristers also assist with great effect in the telling military scena, The Boys of the Chelsea School. Miss Bijou Russel's neat and expert dancing gains a well-merited encore; and the bioscope pictures of the Curfew Must Not Ring drama are of special interest.

Cooke's Royal Circus.—Proprietor, Mr. John Henry Cooke.—The final week of the present season has been marked by Mr. Cooke with the introduction of various new and attractive acts into an excellent circus programme, terminating each evening with the now familiar amazing and amusing Ally Sloper water scene. An interesting item on Monday evening was the welcome appearance of Miss Ernestine Rosa Cooke and her celebrated cake-walk horse Kentucky Beau, affording a wonderful illustration of equine training. Other pleasing turns are found in the songs and dances of Elliott and Elliott, the comicalities of the Brothers Austin in their chair-pyramids, and the exhibition given by Herr Footit as an equilibrist. Tugs-of-war, comic singing contests, cake-walk competitions, prize distributions, and kindred attractions have given increased interest to the performances; and Friday evening was made the occasion of a benefit for the genial proprietor. A crowded house bore ample testimony to the esteem in which Mr. Cook is held, and to the public appreciation of his successful efforts in providing wholesome amusement.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. W. Ebbutt.—Leah Kleschna, which is running here this week, is cleverly acted by Messrs. H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company. Mr. Paul Belmore in the character of Kleschna, the noted burglar, gives a strong delineation of the part; and as Paul Sylvanie Mr. Wm. F. Grant proves himself an elocutionist of marked ability. Miss Bessie Rignold in the title-rôle fills a strong part with great artistic skill; Mr. Hamilton Deane as the profligate Raoul Berton makes the most of an interesting character; and Schram finds a capital exponent in Mr. Campbell Goldsmid.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's No. 1 company is here this week with The Christian. Mr. Frank Tennant contributes a careful study of John Storm; Mr. Charles Hill does justice to the part of Parson Quayle; Mr. Edwin Ling is an excellent Father Lamplugh; Mr. Charles E. Dering does well as Archdeacon Wealthy; Mr. Frederick Scarth as Lord Robert Ure is worthy of praise; Mr. W. Briscoe Owen's rendering of Horatio Drake is very creditable; Mr. Wilfred Noy plays with pathos the part of Brother Paul; Miss Vashti Wellborne as Polly Love is very good; Miss Molly Hayden acts with skill as Mrs. Callander; and Miss Grace Chalmers submits a powerful portrayal of Glory Quayle.

GAINSBOROUGH.—King's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. H. Stear.—Messrs. Kloof and Field's pantomime company appeared here for three nights last week in Aladdin. Miss Cissie Ramsey was a dashing exponent of the title-rôle; Mr. Kloof was amusing as the widow; Mr. Fields gave a clever representation of Abanazar; some excellent specialities were introduced by Mr. Harry Gold, descriptive singer; Hoson, juggler; Bros. Shepherd, comedians and knockabouts; and Messrs. Kloof and Ramsey. Miss Florence Lewis was the Princess, and sang the popular "Zuyder Zee" with great effect.

GATESHEAD. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; General-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Mason and Bart, the headliners here this week, present a comedy gymnastic act which is at once clever and amusing; the Attilla Brothers, in an exhibition of strength, get loud applause; Tom Stuart, a very clever actor, gives impersonations of Wilfrid Denver and the miser Gaspard, which are thoroughly appreciated; Allsopp and Bekwith, in a comedy act bearing the title I'm Coming Upstairs, are seen to advantage; the dancing Gilberts prove an entertaining turn; Rozel, a daring gymnast, submits a startling performance; Mersano, an accomplished coin and card manipulator; Lizzie Lever, comedienne; and pictures shown by the Bioscope complete the bill.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—One of the best pantomimes seen here in recent years is Dick Whittington, as presented by Mr. J. F. Elliston. A charming impersonation of Dick is rendered by Miss Maidie Scott, who sings and dances with a winsomeness which is irresistible. No less popular is Miss Veronica Brady, who fills the rôle of Alice, her coon songs and novel dances winning deserved applause. The second "boy" is represented by Miss Lil Hartley in a praiseworthy manner; and Miss Flo Chevalier as Polly Peach has many friends; Miss Gertrude Lytton as the Empress of Morocco and Miss Clorinda Thurtell as the fairy sing with conspicuous success. In Mr. Tom Foy, who plays Idle Jack, we see one of the quaintest comedians who ever trod this stage; there could be few things funnier than his plate breaking business; Mr. Bert Harrow as Fitzwarren is another great mirth-creator; Messrs. Jack Foy and Tod Lowen pose to advantage as the knockabouts; and Mr. J. C. Scatter (a local) as Gertrude makes a hit. Special mention should be made of Miss Violet Morgan, a low comedy artist of much ability, Mr. Ted Foy (the cat), and the speciality dancing of the Aquamarinoff Troupe of Russian dancers.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Mr. Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith. — Mr. George Henry is presenting The Sledge Hammer at this house. Mr. Frank Litchfield makes a humorous Tom Walker; Jacob and Simon Derrick are a pair of wicked brothers, cleverly impersonated by Messrs. Wm. Carriden and Arthur Skelton; Mr. Howard Brenan does well as Everard Derrick; Miss Jessie Hope is successful in the rôle of Rose Maywell; and other ladies in the cast are Miss Lottie Davis (Martha Derrick) and Miss Marion Ashley (Catherine Henri).

GLASGOW.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Dick Whittington is now in its last week here, and next Monday the regular dramatic season opens. As Fitzwarren, Mr. Bransby Williams has proved a great favourite, and his impersonations of such diverse personages as Geo. Alexander, Dr. Bodie, R. G. Knowles, and Martin Harvey are absolutely life-like. In the fun-making Mr. Will Evans has been a tower of strength to the company, and in this department he has been ably assisted by Messrs. Wm. Downes and E. Jerome Langford, not forgetting the "man you know," Mr. W. F. Frame. Miss Madoline Rees as Dick, Miss Edna Morgan as the Prince, Miss Mona Brae as Zoe, and Miss Lena Vere as Alice are all favourites; and Mr. Albert Felino as the cat and the clever Tiller Girls have also made many friends.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. D. Macfarlane.—The House that Jack Built continues to crowd this theatre eight times each week, and the hold that Mr. Fred Kitchen, Miss May Mars, Miss Luna Love, and the Harmony Four have on the public is a feather in the cap of these popular artists.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The patrons of this popular house have in Mother Goose a pantomime after their own heart, and continue to show their appreciation in no uncertain manner. The work of the principals is received with the heartiest approval, whether it is the cheery good humour of Miss Ethel Campbell (Robin), the exceptional singing and dancing ability of Miss Ella Retford (Marguerite), the harmonious duets of the Sisters Hall, or the amusing cross-talk of Messrs. Foreman and Fannan (Policemen), all their efforts are equally popular. Mr. Austin Lenton, too, in the title-part makes a very good Dame, and as Baron Bombasto, Mr. Harry McClelland does some clever burlesque acting; and of course the Scotch part (The Macgander) as played by Mr. Wal Croft is an outstanding feature.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—After a most sucessful run, The Babes in the Wood had a boisterous close on Saturday. There was a good deal of genuine warmth and cordiality shown in the audience to the artists. On Monday Mrs. Bandmann Palmer opened here in Mary, Queen of Scots. The company is well selected, and works well together. As Mary, Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer performs her part in a pleasing and most praiseworthy manner; Mr. Sydney Bland as Sir Edward Mortimer displays sound ability, and Mr. F. Skein submits a good study of the Earl of Leicester; Miss Katherine Herbert successfully sustains the part of Elizabeth; a capital representation is that of Miss More Dunphie as Hannah Kennedy, and Mr. Leonard Cheetham does good work as Lord Burleigh. The week's programme includes Sapho, East Lynne, From Washerwoman to Duchess, and Leah.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—Mr. Arthur Carlton is here this week with In Sight of St. Paul's, in which Miss Gussie Everett sustains with great effect the part of Cynthia Dell, a lady with a past. Mr. Ernest R. Allen as Tom and Mr. W. H. Domoney as Harry Chichester act with spirit the parts of two brothers; and Mr. Arthur Armfield embodies their old father with quiet dignity; Mr. Herbert Cecil as John Gridston powerfully renders the rascality of the part, and Mr. Henry Gilpin as Bildstein depicts an unscrupulous lawyer with a spice of humour; Mr. Herbert Colley as a London cabman and Miss Sybil Hammersley as Becky Vetch contribute some comedy; Miss Sissie Bellamy as Aileen Miller, Miss Louie Valentine, and Miss J. Hackness as Rose all act their parts pleasingly. Mr. Edward Valentine is excellent as Fretley Burnside, a ticket-of-leave-man. Scenes with St. Paul's in the distance give local colour to the play.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Sam Gething; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—La Milo, in her beautiful classical poses, is drawing big houses for a second week, and Cruickshank's clever caricatures are again enjoyed between these. We have also Matthew Brodie and company in A Drummer of the 76th, a most interesting Napoleonic incident; the Bright Bros., in a series of gymnastic feats of a high order, are recalled; Fraser and Mac, in a comedy musical act, do well; and Harry Anderson sings two descriptive songs with unusual vigour; clever mimicry by Harold and Hughman is very enjoyable, and is notably fresh; the singing of the coloured Meisters is one of the finest musical treats given here for a long time; Hettie Chattel, as a male impersonator, has undoubted gifts, and makes a capital appearance; while Winnie Derton, comedienne, is also well received. The Bioscope pictures are always enjoyable, patrons finding the films quite up to date.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The principal part of the programme here is taken up by Dean Tribune's Bo-Peep "pantometta," in which this clever comedian has introduced lots of lively business, and is ably supported by the other members of the company. The Fergana Trio give a wonderfully good display of head and hand balancing; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Lucas are seen to much advantage in two scenas from Dickens; Walter Bellonini again shows his cleverness as a juggler; three smart comediennes are included on the bill—Princess Pauline, Alice Maple, and Ruth Doris; while humorous ditties are contributed by Adey North and Harry Lawson.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—At the head of the bill this week are the Dandy Thieves. Miss Castelle and Mr. Frank Morton as Lady Maud and Lord Easen respectively are well received; Mr. Chas. Usher plays his accustomed part as Mr. Miffin with much acceptance, while Mr. Chas. Matthews appears as Sergt. Lightning, and his patter and comicalities are a continuous source of amusement. A splendid exhibition of animal training is given by Leoni Clarke; Hall and Wilson's "cycle racing treadle" is certainly a novelty; the Four Jumels are also favourites of Glasgow audiences, and their talented musical turn is always well received; Chas. Russell is in demand with his London scena, The Gutter Hotel; the Zampas as bâton swingers and speciality dancers provide a clever turn; Miss Billie Burford does well in her "Bonnie balloon" song, and Chas. Gardner, eccentric comedian, is above the average.

Coliseum.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—The bringing of Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime company in Puss-in-Boots to this handsome theatre has proved a happy hit, and the management are reaping their reward in great crowds twice nightly. The pantomime is mounted in splendid style, and the chorus and dancers are specially good. The principals are a particularly strong combination, headed by Miss Minnie Jeffs, who returns to Glasgow after a long absence, and makes a dashing Colin; Miss Jennie Johns is a fascinating Princess Ivy, and sings her songs with lots of arch humour; the pantomime is rich in comedians, and of these Mr. Sammy Shields, as a Glasgow man, naturally secured a big share of popular favour. He is well suited as Muggles, gets in plenty of local gags, and his own football speciality goes as well as ever, or better. Mr. George Hestor is another comedian whose merits are well-known here, and as King Grabbum he gets lots of opportunity for his quaint comicalities; Mr. Harry Levaine as the Dame is new to us, but the warmth of the applause bestowed on him in every scene shows that he has caught on at once. Mr. George Avon is also well to the fore in the funny business, and in one scene with Miss Minnie Crest they give their clever speciality; Mr. Harry Rogerson as the sleepy page is another smart comedian, who scores well throughout; Mr. Barry Gilmore makes a lively cat, and the Columbia Trio also provide some good scenes. The lady partner of Curtis and Vanity is heartily received for her eccentric dancing turn; Miss Edith Goodall, Miss Annie Wright, Halma the juggler, and Mr. Ben Calder also contribute to the success of the pantomime, which should do well during its sojourn here.

Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—Good entertainment is provided here this week. Miss Marie Loftus, comedienne, is the outstanding attraction, and was received with great enthusiasm, her latest success, "Singers, past and present," being thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience. Another turn of merit is Roland, the great illusionist, who, in conjunction with Miss Marjorie Russell, performs many mysterious tricks. Other artists include Carr and Roe, high-class duettists; Ted Waite, eccentric comedian; Dandy George and his highly-trained dog, Rosie; Gus Hindell, comedian; Oakdene, comedy ventriloquist; and the Biograph with a select series of pictures.

Gaiety. — Proprietors, The Glasgow Gaiety Theatre Varieties Company, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. W. H. Howard; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Bowerman.—A splendid company is billed here this week, the chief attraction being the engagement of Miss May Lilian Levey in her latest successful song, "The Suffragette"; a good sketch, entitled The Anarchist Terror, by Edward Neville and company, was much appreciated; and the songs sung by Miss Kittie Erl secured an encore; a capital turn is submitted by J. Ramsey, mimic, vocalist, and raconteur; and Sill and Silcott had a hearty reception in a railway skit, entitled Lively Luggage; while the Gaiety Bioscope gave a clever representation of "Aladdin and his lamp."

GLOUCESTER.—Palace.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—After an absence of more years than we care to count, Mr. Walter Munroe appears once again. He has lost none of his old-time cleverness either in singing or dancing, and is flatteringly received. Messrs. Spry and Monti, also old favourites, are as successful as of yore; Bernardo, juggler, causes great merriment, and is as agile as ever; the Monckton's give a capital sketch, Are Wives Dummies? Dolly, Agnes, and Maud are billed as "The Factory Nightingales," and while entertaining with song are busy box-making; the Four Aces are a clever troupe of comedy acrobats; Rene and Smith are smart dancers and patterers; Nellie Dunbar is a dainty comedienne; the Alskarno Trio are excellent risley performers; and last, but not least, the Bioscope winds up a good programme.

GRAVESEND.—Grand Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. David Hart.—A strong bill is in evidence here this week. The Five Musical Palmers meet with a good reception; Ethel Dove is a highly-diverting comedienne; Will E. Haines as a vocal character-comedian is extremely quaint; Amber Austa renders a coon song in capital style; Clarke's Nippers, who introduce club-juggling, ball-punching, sparring, singing, and dancing, are a smart and interesting turn; Charles Sloman pays a return visit, and is as popular as ever; Daisy Almer is a pleasing vocalist and dancer; and the Mayvilles with their delightful act go capitally.

GREAT YARMOUTH. — Royal Aquarium. — Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. W. Nightingale.—The popular play The Golden Ladder is being played here this week by Miss Mary Austen and Mr. E. Vivian Edmond's company. Mr. William Clayton depicts the militant, chivalrous parson (the Rev. Frank Thornhill) earnestly and powerfully, and Miss Elsie Marriott-Watson's Lilian Grant is a very gentle and pathetic assumption; the villainy of the Greek merchant, M. Peranza, is well portrayed by Mr. Douglas Howard, and Mr. Milne Taylor is effective as Michael Severn; Mr. Frank Truro is excellent as Jim Dixon, and Mr. Fred May causes much laughter as Samuel Peckaby; Miss Nellie Graham is quaint and humorous as Mrs. Peckaby, whose daughter, Victoria, is capitally represented by Miss Lucy Patterson; Miss Florrie George is admirable as Russomasy, and Miss May Ediss acts prettily as Lily.

GREENOCK.—Alexendra Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Lights Out made a first appearance here on Monday night, and was finely played by Mr. J. Maundy-Gregory's company. Mr. Charles Esdale as Lieut. Von Lauffen submitted a praiseworthy impersonation; Mr. Kenneth Brampton ably portrayed the part of Lieut. Von Howen; Mr. Lionel D'Arargon made a capital Sergeant Volkhardt; the character of Corporal Helbig was in the capable hands of Mr. Richard Fielding, and Miss Frances Davie filled her part as Klara Volkhardt in an admirable manner. The drama is preceded by a one-act play, entitled Nan.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—The principal feature of the programme here this week is the musical mélange entitled The Prince of Monte Carlo, which is played by Harry Roxburgh's No. 1 company. The piece is full of humorous situations, and the members of the company thoroughly deserve the warm reception accorded them. Jeanette Hall, vocalist, is accorded a warm welcome; the Brothers Zano, triple-bar artists, are good; the Bonanzas give a smart acrobatic turn, and the Empire pictures are amusing.

Pavilion Theatre. — General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—The great draw this week is Tarro Myaki, who gives several fine exhibitions of the art of wrestling in the Japanese style; and the various bouts are watched with great interest. Other acceptable turns include the Bensons, who appear with success in an original comedy song-scena; Miss Zetta, a clever wire dancer; Minnie Atkins, coon comedienne; Ned Graydon, instrumentalist; and Tom York, coster comedian. The Parriscope pictures are amusing.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—The Babes in the Wood, presented by Mr. James Kiddie's company, has formed the second pantomime of the season here. Miss Amy Allnutt, the principal boy, gives a dash of impersonation of Robin Hood; Maid Marian is charmingly played by Miss Anena Walton; the Babes are prettily presented by Miss Baby Lilybelle and Miss La Belle Sylvia; Miss Norah Prendergast as the Fairy and Mr. Leonard Charles as the Demon sing well; Mr. Dawson Dewick presents a droll figure as Soft Sammy; and Mr. Harry Albery is a quaint Dame. Mr. D. J. Tandy adds to the fun as Sir Brokah de Pawn; Messrs. Farr and Farland and Messrs. Grapho and Jackson are laughable. The Lohrenz Quartette of Ladies introduce a capital shadow harlequinade.

Curry's Tivoli.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—A composite turn of a smart character is given by Albertus and Jessie Millar, the chief feature being clever club-juggling. The lady is also an expert cornet soloist. The Saxon Trio present their wonderful exhibition of strength, and competitions have been held nightly. The Arthur Lloyd Trio perform an entertaining sketch; C. Emlyn Jones and his quartette of lady singers accomplish excellent vocal work; Magna is a graceful artist in pose; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fanning deliver an amusing dialogue; and Joe Conway is a successful juvenile comedian.

The Palace.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—Adventures in a Zoological Garden, as burlesqued by the Donaldson Bros. and Ardel, is extremely laughable. The Society Quartette give a refined performance, combining singing and dancing, and capital dancing is also displayed by Katie Marsh, in her music hall impersonations; by Raynor and Reece, in a sketch; by Norah Emerald, who is a vocalist in addition; and by the Two Wiltons. Zernini, a smart hand-equilibrist; and Bert Lytton, comedian, complete the programme.

GUERNSEY.—St. Julian's Hall.—Lessee, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—An exceptional treat is being provided this week in Mr. Allan Wilkie's Shakespearean company. On Monday Othello was given. Miss Carrie Baillie as Desdemona fully displayed her artistic skill, and as Emilia Miss Ine Cameron advanced her reputation as a clever artist; Mr. Allan Wilkie's Othello, full of vigour and passion, was much admired; Iago was cleverly enacted by that rising young actor Mr. G. Alexander Marsh; Mr. John Paley was excellent as Brabantio; Mr. George Munroe scored as Roderigo; and Mr. Herbert Morgan was a capital Cassio. Hamlet, David Garrick, and The Bells are also billed.

HALIFAX. — Theatre Royal, Ltd. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Crowded houses testify their appreciation for Mr. Robert Courtneidge's principal company in the successful musical comedy, The Blue Moon. Mr. Reginald Switz bears the responsibility of providing the fun. His assumption of Private Charles Taylor is the funniest creation imaginable; Major Callabone is well sustained by Mr. Parti, who proves a capable understudy to Mr. Leslie Gaze; exhilarating work is accomplished by Mr. J. Edward Fraser as Capt. Jack Ormsby and Mr. George Mudie, jun., as the journalist; Mr. Alfred Beers is well placed as Moolraj; Miss Florence Imeson makes a bewitching Millicent Leroy, and gives with charming effect "She did not know." Mention must be made of Miss Clarice Lockstone, who supports the title-rôle, and contributes with unaffected ease "The Singing Girl" and "Little Blue Moon."

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Harrison.—Colonel Denis Lorraine introduces a military episode, in four scenes, from Ouida's novel "Under Two Flags," entitled La Vivandière, which evokes spontaneous applause. Cicardo, the marvellous boy juggler, proves entertaining; as do the Three Gregsons in a rollicking speciality, The Dummy. Gus Harris (the Hebrew delineator) in his latest répertoire of character creations, Rose Elliott, Ida Kathrena (the "dolly-girl"), and Lillie Sontter (comedienne) are also appearing here successfully.

HANLEY. — Royal, Ltd — Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Douglas Elphinstone.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company opened on Monday in that charming play, Sunday. In the title-rôle, Miss Emelie Polini scores a triumphant success; Mr. Leonard Pagden contributes a masterly reading as Colonel Brinthorpe; Miss Rosalind Ross is a capable Mrs. Naresby; Mr. Ernest A. Douglas acts naturally as Tom Oxley, and is a distinct success in the part; Mr. Max Montesole is a good exponent of Arthur Brinthorpe; Mr. Cecil Yapp as Lively plays the character-part admirably; Mr. Arthur Vezin does well as Jacky; as Towzer, Mr. William Lockhart is capital; Mr. Sidney Rennef scores as Tavy; as the Nun, Miss Muriel Pope is charming; and Mr. Ernest Harrison is good as Abbot.

Grand.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—Irma Lorraine heads the bill in her classical poses, which are much admired; Herbert Lloyd is a distinct success, his burlesque being capital and his caricatures very amusing; Barnard's Mannikins are always a most acceptable turn; the Brothers D'Wynne are seen in a clever head and hand-balancing turn; Sable Fern sings her items excellently, and is much appreciated; Hall and Earle are amusing comedians; Fred and Maud Vypond, society entertainers are pleasing; Harry Walker is successful, his funny stories being well received; the pictures are, as usual, up to date.

HARROGATE. — Grand Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith.—Miss Eva Moss and company opened here on Monday in Frou-Frou. In the title-rôle Miss Moss played exceedingly well. She had excellent support from Mr. Cecil du Gue as Henri de Sartorys, who was seen to great advantage, especially in the later acts. Miss Hanley was a good Louise; and Miss Phyllis Manners an acceptable Baroness de Cambri. Mr. Kingsford Pearce did well as Paul de Valreas; Mr. Vane made the most of the unimportant rôle of M. le Baron de Cambri; and Mr. Kirkwood appeared as M. Brigard. The last three nights of the week, Camille, played by the same company, was in the bill.

HARTLEPOOL.—Empress.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrien.—J. W. Hall is one of the most popular comedians who visit here; C. Wordley Hulse and company render The Fight in the Forge in a creditable manner; Winnie Scott, comedienne and dancer, is on a return visit; Jack Neill, versatile comedian, is favourably received; the Four Poole Pelhams gain considerable applause; an exceptionally clever triple comedy bar act is contributed by the Maros; Allan and Hart are good dancers and quick-change artists, and the pictures are particularly amusing.

HASTINGS.—Gaiety Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mrs. Russ Whytal and company present here an able performance of Mr. J. M. Barrie's cleverly written comedy, Alice-Sit-by-the-Fire. Mrs. Russ Whytal cleverly exhibits the varying emotions of Mrs. Grey; Mr. Aubrey Mallalieu does well; the Colonel is well played by Mr. J. J. Bartlett; Miss Beatrice Bramah as Amy Grey is thoroughly convincing; Mr. T. Pauncefort makes an effective Cosmo Grey; Miss Lucie Verrier is a satisfactory Leonora Dunbar; and Miss Ada Marius as the Nurse, Miss Beresford as Fanny, and Miss Ninon Dudley as Richardson complete the cast.

HEREFORD.—Garrick Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. Barnsley.—Red Riding Hood is presented here this week by Mr. Harry Graham's company. Miss Mabel Kessler is admirable as Boy Blue; Miss Grace Stafford makes a charming Miss Muffit; and Messrs. Grant, Kelly, Will Gane, and Arthur Drew keep their auditors in one perpetual roar of laughter. Miss Rosie Juden is very acceptable as Red Riding Hood. The dances of the Four London Belles are excellent; and the other artists are all really capable exponents of their several rôles. The pantomime consists of eight scenes, and is well dressed and mounted.

HUDDERSFIELD.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews. — Mr. Bode's travelling pantomime of Dick Whittington is here for a week. A set of clever comedians, with a budget of new jokes, includes Mr. Bob Hutt as Fitzwarren, Mr. Rolando Martin as Idle Jack, Mr. Fred Danvers as Matilda, and the witty Fimans as Captain Scrupper and Bill Oakum. The fun is free from taint of coarseness, and is full of laughter-raising situations. Miss Gladys Warren looks smart and plays with vivacity as Dick; Miss Kathleen Severn is a refined Alice, her singing being sweet and artistic; Miss Flo Challis as Tommy Trot is bright, winsome, and lively; and Miss Beatrice Lane good as May. Miss Nellie Lauraine plays Fatima with delightful serio-comic effect; Miss Wanda Zaleska looks well as the Fairy Queen; and Mr. Carne Curre shows wonderful agility as the Cat. As specialities there are two popular engagements in Wallan, a clever young juggler, and Collin's Six Lancashire Lassies, in their attractive dances.

HIPPODROME, LTD.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M. Robinson.—The chief portion of the entertainment here is furnished by Mr. Fred Karno's troupe of comedians, in their well-known bustling burlesques, Mumming Birds and Early Birds. In addition, there are Miss Grace Langley, comedienne and dancer; Ariel and Astarte, clever and daring gymnasts; Little Cliff, a smart young comedian and dancer; the McKays, in their diverting comedy and lightning sketch act; the Sisters Tinsley, duettists and dancers; and the pictures on the Bioscope.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—That talented artist, Mr. Martin Harvey, opened his engagement on Monday evening with The Breed of the Treshams. The reception accorded him was commensurate with the admirable reading of the rôle of Reresby the Rat. Miss de Silva again added to her fame as the boy Batty; that sterling actor, Mr. Chas. Glenney, was seen under excellent auspices as Col. Hungerford. On Wednesday the revival of The Corsican Brothers was well received by a full house. On Thursday Hamlet was down for production.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—The Carl Rosa Opera Company has been reviving, with much success, an excellent operatic répertoire. Since the last visit the company has been very much strengthened, both in soloists and chorus. Mr. Ernest Chas. Gittens is to the fore in the acting-management, whilst Mr. Van Norden takes full control. On Monday Tannhäuser was produced in a manner that won the enthusiasm of a very large audience. In the title-rôle Mr. J. Walther sustained the high reputation he holds; Mme. Marie Alexander, an old city favourite, added to her laurels as Venus; Miss Lilia de Berna was well adapted to the rôle of the Shepherd Boy; Miss Grace Nicoll was a highly commendable Elizabeth; and the chorus was augmented by the students of the Hull School of Music. In Tuesday Il Trovatore, with Miss Doris Woodhall, a rising young star, as Azucenas—a part she filled with much distinction—was given. Miss Grace Nicoll was a fine Leonora and Mr. Edward Davies a Manrico of much merit. The audience were lavish in applause. Carmen, billed for Wednesday, afforded Miss Doris Woodhall her opportunity, of which she took full advantage.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Morton's Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Morton.—Packed houses have been the rule since Dottridge and Longden's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, made its bow to a Hull audience on Monday. Miss Margaret Ruby was all we look for in a principal boy; she has plenty of dash and go. As the Dame, Mr. Tom Fancourt keeps the fun running right merrily; as Billy Crusoe, Mr. Arnold Richardson soon established himself in public favour; and Mr. Harry Ray carried all before him as Will Atkins.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—A remarkable exhibition of canine intelligence is furnished here this week by Harry Edson's well-trained pets; the Great Quarpoz are an exceptionally clever pair of equilibrists; Hercules does some clever feats of weight-lifting and jumping; the Three Keiths create roars of laughter in their comic boxing act; Prof. Sydney Smith provides plenty of amusement in his ventriloquial sketches; the St. Johns are successful in their musical potpourri act; Little Rose Pink is a graceful dancer; the Davenports are expert magicians; Phil Walton scores as a humorist; a smart couple of comedians and dancers are Denby and Dent; Kerr and Shaw figure prominently in a comedy act; and new pictures are shown on the Bioscope.

OHMY'S CIRCUS. — Carl Lynn, a clever animal mimic, is attracting large audiences here this week; the Two Milles give a skilful juggling entertainment; Miss Cara Magda is smart on the high trapeze; the Napier Troupe are dexterous gymnasts; the Roselines, in an acrobatic and contortionist performance, are well received; the Brothers Bosseco provide amusement as comic boxers; Miss Ohmy continues to delight with her dashing equestrian feats; Miss Ada Ohmy is nightly applauded for a graceful scenic act on horseback; a buck-jumping race creates endless merriment; and Ohmy's living pictures continue as popular as ever. August and September provide genuine fun in the laughable sketch, The Mad Tinker; and other comic acts, and the mirth-making, is also contributed to by Little Bishop.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—Mr. Herbert Barrs' company is here this week in the pantomime, Aladdin. Miss Maudie Vincent makes a sprightly principal boy, and is very successful in her vocal numbers; whilst Miss Laura Lindon is a charming Princess. Miss Dorothy Wilson is suitably placed as Pekoe; and the Genii of the Ring is capitally represented by Little Della. Mr. David Phillips is exceedingly funny as Widow Twankey, and with Mr. Will Sherlock as Abanazar, keep the audience in a very hilarous mood. Mr. Ash (Bo Bee) and Mr. Wells (Po Lar) are a couple of good comedians; and Mr. Alf. Selwood as Washee also assists in the comedy. The Emperor of China is a rôle which suits Mr. Carl Fredericks admirably; and the Vizier is in the capable hands of Mr. Wilfred Dane.

QUEEN'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. T. Knightall.—The Two McMays please the audience with their pantomime extravaganza, Blue Beard, as well as in duets and dances. The Mannikin show of Mlle. Fontain is still popular; and Lily Gaston impersonates the male sex in realistic fashion; Harry Henric, vocalist; Ivy West, serio; Fred Dice, comedian; and the conjuring Lauriers complete the show.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE. — General-Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—On Monday, Mr. G. Carlton Wallace's company commenced a week's engagement with The Love that Women Desire. Miss Lalla Stanhope, in the character of Sybil Thorborn, gave a tender and graceful impersonation; as Madge Miss Cicely Desmond was duly passionate; Miss Violet Lawson made a vivacious Pattie; the Squire was carefully played by Mr. J. O. Stewart; and Mr. Jerrold Heather was a manly and effective Phillip.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—The star turn in the current week's programme was that of Alec Hurley, the popular coster comedian, whose appearance was warmly greeted on Monday. After giving a couple of his clever and characteristic songs, which were enthusiastically applauded, Mr. Hurley appeared as the chairman of a coster gathering, the guests being reinforced by local amateurs. Other items of the programme were contributed by Leah Arden, a charming ballad singer; Kenneth and Kane, patter singers and dancers; Fred Dunstone, with amusing parodies; Claves and Piccott, jugglers; Walter Wallis, comedian; and W. J. Ashcroft, a veteran character vocalist.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr Jerold E. Reed.—Mr. James Bell's company is paying a visit here this week with Sapho. The title-part is played with conspicuous ability by Miss V. St. Lawrence, while Mr. Otto Minster as Jean Gausin is highly appreciated; Mr. George Antley as Jean's uncle is natural and amusing; Mr. H. Langford is good in the part of Eugene Flamant; Miss Clara Greenhalgh is well placed as La Sombreuse; the child's part of Joseph is in the capable hands of little Miss Doris E. Graham.

KIDDERMINSTER. — NEW OPERA HOUSE.—Licensee and Managing-Director, Mr. James P. Moore; Acting-Manager, Mr. R. C. Gudgeon.—The first three nights this week the boards are occupied by Mr. Mouillot's company in the musical comedy entitled The Blue Moon. Mr. Victor Wallace as the Major sings well; Mr. F. W. Rooney well portrays the character of Captain Ormsby; Bobbie Scott is in the capable hands of Mr. Basil Mercer; Messrs. F. W. Bowes and Chas. Stephenson cause no end of fun as Moolraj and Private Taylor; Miss May Audrey as Millicent Seraz is good; Miss Dorma Morgan is a pretty Evelyn; and in the title-rôle Miss Marguerite Naudin sings sweetly.

KILMARNOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Major Ward.—This week full and appreciative houses welcome the comic pantomime Jack the Giant Killer, which includes some capital turns, especially "Terpsichore's Dream," a marvel of electricity and stagecraft. The heroic Jack is well portrayed by Miss Eily Helene; the Giant Blunderbone is cleverly represented by Mr. W. S. Stevenson; Miss Emmie Cozens as Margary Daw is a favourite; King Fad and his Queen find able exponents in Mr. Harry Farrow and Miss Pattie Fairley; Dame Dabble, by Mr. Johnny McElroy, is responsible for much laughter; Miss Winifred Murry as Daisy dances gracefully; Messrs. Harris and Worth create considerable fun with their patter and songs, as does Mr. George Helm as Donal, the page, and Mr. Gilbert Payne as Simple Simon.

KING'S LYNN.—NEW ROYAL THEATRE.—Lessees, J. Bannister Howard, Ltd.; Business-Manager, Herr B. Pareezer.—This week's attraction here has been a presentation of When it was Dark by Mrs. Morton Powell's company. The play is dramatically enacted, and affords Mr. George H. Pitt as Constantine Schuabe an opportunity of displaying some powerful acting. Mr. Cyril Austin-Lee capably portrays the part of the Rev. Basil Gortre. Miss Elizabeth Watson is responsible for a forceful characterisation of Gertrude Hunt.

KIRKCALDY.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company is paying a welcome visit in A Chinese Honeymoon. Mr. James Wilson gives a fine portrayal of the Emperor; Mr. Louis Ashmede makes up well, and is a most satisfactory Lord Chancellor; Mr. Frank Sutton, who is also stage-manager, is good as the Lord High Admiral, and Mr. J. Maxwell Edwardes is well placed as Tom Hatherton; Mr. Ernest Sephton as Pineapple proves himself to be a comedian of considerable ability, and is most successful in his efforts to amuse. Mrs. Pineapple finds a capital representative in Miss May Davis, her coon song and dance being well received; the rôle of Fi-Fi is successfully undertaken by Miss Kitty Clayton; Miss May Stevenson is delightful as Princess Soo-Soo, and sings charmingly; Miss Alma Bolton is an interesting Mrs. Brown, and Misses Madge Davis and Sybil Ross are neat and attractive bridesmaids; equally good are Misses May C. Higgins and Louie Love as the Maids of Honour, and Miss Louie Leighton as Mi-Mi.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—The pantomime of Cinderella is being played here this week. Miss Lottie Holland makes a dashing Prince, and sings well; Miss Ada Stelling is successful as Dandini; and as Cinderella Miss Beattie Shamrock is all that could be desired. Miss Violet Rivers and Miss Louie Bright, as Eva and Maud respectively, work hard, and meet with success; as Father Time Tom Griffith sings well; and George Hyam is funny as Scoot. There are numerous specialities.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris and Mr. Frank Cellier, supported by a capable company, are this week appearing here in Shakespearean répertoire. On Monday evening Much Ado About Nothing was attractively presented. Miss Glossop-Harris made a handsome and distinguished Beatrice, and proved herself equal to all the requirements of the part; whilst Mr. Frank Cellier's Benedict was an excellent performance. Miss Kate Turner played with considerable grace and feeling as Hero, and Mr. Edward Landor's Dogberry was exceedingly good. Mr. Duncan Yarrow deserved commendation for his rendering of Claudio, Mr. Percy Vernon proved a very courtly and dignified Don Pedro; and other parts were ably sustained by Mr. A. Cotton Holmes, Mr. David Santley, Mr. A. Wilson Wynne, Mr. Stanley Roberts, Mr. Herbert Halford, Mr. Basil Dean, Miss Nita Ashby, and Miss May Saker. Other plays also included in the week's programme were Twelfth Night, Romeo and Juliet, and Carmen.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—Extensive patronage continues to be accorded Mr. Hart's production of The Sleeping Beauty. Miss Katie Vesey, the principal boy, has been out of her place for a night or two through illness, but a prompt recovery and return is confidently anticipated. The show is now at its merriest, for the comedians, Mr. W. H. Powell, Mr. Albert Le Fre, Mr. Josh Dixon, and Mr. J. W. Volt have elaborated their encounters to some purpose, and the audience is kept in a state of continual merriment. That clever pair of dance specialists, Sanford and Lyons, have achieved great success.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston. —Mr. John Tiller's production of The Forty Thieves at the Royal runs on with undiminished success. Plenty of new business and taking new songs are being introduced, and all concerned work smartly together.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—A novel and remarkably clever juggling act by the Seven Perezoffs is a most enjoyable feature of this week's bill. The Bogannys are smart in their acrobatic speciality; and some wonderful balancing feats are also subscribed by the Maningos. Phil and Nellie Peters are a versatile and vivacious comedy pair; and the hoop juggler, Stylo; Marie Duma, the talented vocalist; Esta Stella, in song and dance; Lidden and Hayward, in a pleasing musical entertainment; and Chas. Vincent, humorist, also entertain.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The excellent touring pantomime, Cinderella, cleverly played by Mr. Harry Fisher's company, is having a second week of big success, crowded houses being the rule nightly. Mr. Ernie Mayne is the life and soul of the piece in a generous humorous part, and his untiring efforts have been much appreciated. In humorous vein Mr. Johnny Johnston, Mr. Charles Tempest, and Mr. Charles Weston have rendered capital assistance; whilst Miss Julia Bassett as the dashing Prince, and Miss Empsie Bowman, a most dainty and attractive Cinderella, have materially assisted the success.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Claude Shayler and Mr. Chas. Weldon.—Beautiful and artistic posings by Henriette de Serris form a most attractive feature of this week's bill. An entertaining musical turn by the Albanos is very successful; as also are the comedy contributions of Cosgrove and Burns. The Katos indulge in eccentric comicalities to the general satisfaction; Ernie Myers, Harry Russon, and Tom Collins, popular comedians, are brilliantly successful; Lily Lonsdale, soprano vocalist, is a favourite; Mons. Slippere, the blind pianist and vocalist, earns hearty recognition; and Los Rupertos are doing an expert acrobatic act.

CITY VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Mr. F. W. Wood; General-Manager, Mr. J. C. Whiteman; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sam. Jones.—The Tennessee Guards head the bill here with a striking military exhibition and pyramid act. At the bottom of the bill appear the Seabournes, with an equilibristic and acrobatic turn; Mount and Correlli are popular in comedy items; a brilliant instrumental turn is submitted by the Casino Girls; the Three Clarions have a novel speciality; Bert Weston and Mark Anthony are successful comedians; and Herbert Bates, vocalist; and Spencer and Marks, burlesque artists, are also popular.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—Mr. Milton Bode's fairy pantomime of Red Riding Hood is securing a grand reception here, which it fully deserves. Miss Annie Purcell, as Boy Blue, secures and deserves the hearty reception accorded her, being encored for her songs "Zuyder Zee" and "On the Isle of Anglesey." Miss Norah Guy wins golden opinions as Red Riding Hood, and is loudly applauded for her songs, "Hyacinth" and "In the shade of the Pyramids." That delightfully humorous Welsh couple, Ted and May Hopkins, are big favourites as Lewis Bach and Bo-Peep. Miss Agnes Tandy as Tom, the Piper's Son, is successful in the rendering of "Arrah Wanna." Mr. Jay Laurier is funny as Johnny Stout, and Mr. Harry Bickley as Dame Trot creates the heartiest laughter, his animal lecture being especially good. Keith and Merson, as Johnny Green and Simple Simon, are mirth-provoking; Mr. Ainsley Burton is capital as the Squire; the Collins-Stella troupe of lady dancers are smart, and the Royal Welsh Singers secure hearty recognition.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—Mr. and Mrs. William Maclaren's No. 1 company in Proof is the attraction here. Miss Beatrice Shirley is a conspicuous success as Madeline and Adrienne; Mr. Gerald Kennedy as Pierre Lorance makes an excellent impression; Mr. W. J. Butler is good as Lazare, and both Mr. Wilford Bailey as Chamboran and Mr. Carl Beechey as the Duke D'Aubeterre are successful. Miss May Grimshaw does credit to the part of Valentine; and Miss Ellina Turner makes a capital Little Adrienne.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Premier position is held here by Mr. Frederick Maxwell and company in the romantic episode, The Girl I Love, which is played in excellent style. Miss Lois du Cane as Rose Adair and Mr. Frederick Maxwell as Max Donovan are conspicuously successful. Clarke and Glenney create laughter with The Haunted House; Percy Hannon sings to the accompaniment of much applause; Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is still a popular feature; the Bros. Tarrant are amusing comedians; and Wright and Elton are also entertaining.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesay's company is again paying a welcome visit this week with The Village Blacksmith. In Mr. Sam Livesay is found an actor of rare ability, and his rendering of John Strong is a performance of great distinction; Captain Leo is embodied in capital style by Mr. Joseph Carter; Lucas Marlow has a capable representative in Mr. Edwin Maydew; Miss Louie Adair as the blacksmith's wife, Kate Strong, enlists sympathy by her clever acting; Miss Cassie Le Grande is very creditable as Ruth Parkins; Mr. Geo. V. Campbell is a first-rate comedian, and the fun he extracts out of the part of Billy Twigg is plentiful and good, his efforts being well seconded by Miss Edith Giddens as Martha Mopps; Miss Bertha Hanbury scores as the blacksmith's child, Harry Strong; Mr. Thos. E. Marshall presents a neat sketch of the travelling tinker.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison.—This week closes the season of Messrs. R. C. Buchanan and Ernest Steven's fine spectacular pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, after a comparatively short but decidedly merry run. The piece has been received with increasingly marked evidences of popular favour; and the audiences have not been slow to appreciate the efforts of all the performers included in the cast.

LICHFIELD.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—On Monday evening Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's company appeared here in Bluebell in Fairyland. In the play Mr. Percy Roy Travers proved an excellent Mr. Joplin; and Mr. Herbert Clark and Mr. George A. Coleman, his footmen, both played with a keen sense of humour and vivacity. The cats were well represented by Miss Nellie Morris and Ada Verona. In the Dream Mr. Leonard Lane acted and sang well as the Reigning King. Miss Sylvia Mortlake was a regal Queen; and the minor characters were adequately represented by Beattie Olna, Beattie Verona, Charles Searle, J. Walters, Mabel Beresford, Maude Evans, Kate Willis, May Carton, and Lucy Lever. Mr. Travers was a picturesque Sleepy King; Mr. Sidney Edwards was an excellent Dicky; and Miss Mabel Clark an idealistic Bluebell.

LIVERPOOL.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Arthur Lawrence.—Money is pouring into the leading theatre, where Aladdin is being witnessed by packed audiences. This pantomime, which has among its principals Malcolm Scott, Harry Tate, Hetty King, Fanny Dango, Fanny Fields, &c., has proved Mr. Arthur's greatest success. After a run of six weeks there is no abatement in the demand for seats, and the only chance of witnessing the production seems to be at a matinée, of which there are three every week.

SHAKESPEARE THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. John Gaffney.—Mother Goose, a very beautiful pantomime, is still running merrily at the Fraser-street house. Many additions have been made to the text since the opening night, and the principal comedian, Mr. Tom E. Murray, has a huge budget of good things.

ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery. —Paumier and Howard's capital company is here this week with The Midnight Wedding, which has done good business. Miss Annie Saker again appears in her charming dual rôle of Karl Helsburg and Princess Astrea, for which she earns much applause; Mr. Alfred Paumier presents his fine picture of Paul Valmar; and a deal of comedy is provided by Mr. James E. Page (Sergeant Max) and his two boon companions. The drama is staged in splendid style.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—A delightfully pleasing and amusing pantomime has this week drawn very good business. Little Cinderella, as played by Mr. James Kiddie's company, fully deserves the success it attained. The piece is well staged, and the dresses all that could be desired. The electrically lighted carriage is a feature of the show. Miss Edith Harmer's Cinderella received hearty applause, and she was soon installed a favourite; Mlle. De Roze won the hearts of all as the Prince; Dandini was in the capable hands of Miss Zena Pana, in which part she easily scored; Messrs. Sydney Benson and W. G. Wesley caused roars of laughter as the Ugly Sisters; Mr. Tom Payne as Pimples was the cause of much amusement, and the same may be said of Mr. Dick Thomas's Baron. The acrobatic performance of Houpla and Hecla was loudly applauded.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—The Tyrant, produced here for the first time in Liverpool, has proved a big draw. An able company, under the direction of Miss Marie Dagmar and Mr. Fred C. Somerfield, have interpreted it with every satisfaction, while the mounting left nothing to be desired. Miss Dagmar played with much power as Tisbe; Mr. Somerfield in the rôle of Homodel stood out prominently, his work being particularly effective; Mr. Roy Fortescue made a fine Angelo; every credit is due to Mr. Lionel Atwill for his dignified Rudolph; and other well-sustained parts were those of Pan (Mr. Alec Mayhew), Victor (Mr. Sydney Lynn), Lady Katherine (Miss Millie Ford), Eulie (Miss Lallah Shelton), and Reginella (Miss Cissy Podmore).

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—The patrons of this popular house have this week been revelling in the humour of The Wearing of the Green, Mr. Chalmers Mackey's splendid production, which is paying a welcome return visit. Mr. Mackey, who is the life and soul of the piece, was received with unmistakable approbation; Mrs. Mackey came in for a large measure of the applause for her delightful Norah; Mr. Arthur Rose, as Shamus, acted and sang in capital style; Miss Nina Flensberg helped with the fun as Biddy McGinn, and sang and danced tastefully; and able support was rendered by Mr. H. Saintsbury (Sir George Courtenay); Mr. David McFarlane (Connor Martin), Miss Adele Liddon (Mrs. McDermott), and Mr. J. S. Chamberlain (Michael Kenny)

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—The principal item here this week is John Tiller's pantomime of Dick Whittington, the principals of which are Herbert Garside (Fitzwarren), Dorothy Gould (Alice), Hilda Vining (Emperor), Jessie Templeton (Dick), Will Lytton (Jack Idle), George Elliston (Eliza the cook), and Barny Dixon and Teddy Gibbs. In the variety part of the programme appear Reynold's Minstrels, five very able artists; the Brothers Lilian, smart acrobats on the silver chains; Webb and Branston, whose operatic duets are received with much approval; and Ted E. Box, a very quaint comedian.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole. —The Octoroon is being presented here this week by the Royal stock company. Mr. Percy Boucher makes a humorous Pete; Mr. Harry Tresham fills the part of Salem Scudder with every satisfaction; Mr. Sidney Grant is particularly prominent as Jacob McClosky; Miss Florence Palmer is a sympathetic Zoe; and other well-held rôles are George Peyton (Mr. Robert Wilton), Mr. Sunnyside (Mr. Cecil Ravenswood), Mrs. Peyton (Miss Ravenswood), and Dora (Miss Florence Cameron). Some excellent pictures are shown by the Royal Bioscope.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery. —The Fatal Hour is being given here this week by the Royal Stock Company. Miss Gladys Hastings-Walton plays with much effect as Amy Henderson; Miss Lina Nazeby makes a powerful Olga Meredith; Mr. H. G. Brandon is exceedingly humorous as Walter Wallop; and other well-presented characters are Arthur Henderson (Mr. Frank S. Strickland), Squire Henderson (Mr. Charles Herberte), Bertie Lamb (Mr. Francis E. Wybert), and Richard Blair (Mr. Wallace Campbell). The Royal Bioscope has several fine pictures.

PARK PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Willmott.—Here this week Charles Majilton and company are producing the exceedingly funny sketch The Trippers. Miss Ella Dean is well received for her smart songs; Dolly Andrews, a new comedienne, is rapidly rising in public favour; and the bill also contains the names of Valmo, Zasma, and Don Cameron.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—Heading the bill here this week is Mr. J. K. Reynold's sketch company in Conscience; the Lancashire Mill Lads submit a neat vocal scena, entitled Home for the Holidays; Ted Saunders displays high powers as a mimic; little Agnes Tina shows herself an accomplished child; Harry Taylor, "the Wigan Warbler," has a funny turn; and others who appear are Hardie Palm, comedian; and Alfonzo, feet equilibrist.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Topping the bill here this week are Mme. Alice Esty and her company with the operetta scena, Betta, the Gipsy, which has been received with much favour. Supporting the famous prima donna are Messrs. Craufurd Kent and Charles C. Ommanney and the Misses Lena Pierpoint, Ethel Clifford, and Charlie Burrett. A most diverting show entitled The Awakening of Toys is presented by De Witt, Burns, and Torrence; some particularly smart conjuring comes from Prince Kokin; Simms and Simms, as comedy musicians, provoke much laughter; Watson's dogs display a deal of intelligence; Stacey and Williams have a lively turn as comedians, patterers, and dancers; some charming vocal tableaux are provided by Mlle. Sylvia; and Harry Drew renders in capital style several bass songs.

LONG EATON.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Mr. Gus. Levaine's pantomime Cinderella has proved a great attraction this week. With Miss Lizzie Levaine as the kitchen drudge, Miss Dora Denmark as Prince Charming, Mr. Arthur Collins as the stony-broke Baron, Mr. Cecil Webb and Mr. D'Arcy Monkl as the proud sisters the story is well staged. In the Palace of Delight is plenty of variety business, including a clever performance by the Zola Troupe of acrobats, Mlle. Alberta on the telephone wire, the Alpine Brothers in their high-perch act, Anderson and Ashly, and the Ruby Quartette of dancers.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—This theatre has been transformed into a variety house, and opened on Monday night with an excellent company. Caban's French Circus tops the bill, and gives an excellent performance; the Dunvilles submit a clever musical turn; and the dancing of the Royal Quintette evokes much applause. Other good turns are provided by Les Steckels, in a gymnastic display; Miss Lola Leonard, in illustrated songs; and Mr. Mark Anthony, comedian. The Bioscope is also a great attraction.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—The pantomime of Little Red Riding Hood, for which Mr. Arthur Gibbons's company of upwards of fifty artists are responsible. The catchy songs, choruses, and clever dances are well received, and the principal parts are ably sustained by Miss Janet Lawton (Prince Bountiful), Miss Nini Terri (Maid Marian), Miss Maud Ferguson (Fairy Wolf), Miss Nellie Banks (Red Riding Hood), Mr. Ted Mac (the Dame), Mr. Tom Banks (Johnny Stone), and Mr. Geo. Marriott, jun. (the Baron). A feature of the specialities is Le Diabelo in his daring cycle act, which is loudly applauded.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. George Gilbert; Manager, Mr. Frank Freeland.—The animated pictures this week include the pantomime Blue Beard. The bill also includes Mdlle Rosini's miniature menagerie, A. P. Boswell, and Bert Bowden (comedian).

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. T. H. Taylor's company in The Worst Woman in London is at this theatre this week. Miss Olga Andre is seen to advantage in her original character as Frances Vere; Miss Polly Marsh portrays the part of Matilda Parker successfully, while Mr. Geo. Gaisford as Jack Felton is praiseworthy; as are Mr. F. Vernon Travers as James Milford, Mr. Paul Barry Leuers, Mr. Hervey White, and Mr. H. W. Monte as Vincent Lyle, Bob Goldfinch, and Hugh Drayton respectively.

MAIDENHEAD.—TOWN HALL.—Secretary, The Town Clerk.—Charley's Aunt is being played to crowded audiences. Mr. Tom Macfarlane scores an immense success as Lord Fancourt Babberley; the two college chums are well represented by Messrs. Basil Lynn and J. E. Stephenson; Sir Francis Chesney is played with discretion by Mr. T. S. McCausland Stewart, Brasset by Mr. W. A. Stolbuck, and Spettigue by Mr. Percy Tyler; Amy and Kitty are brightly depicted by Miss Sybil

Grieg and Miss Dorothy Barrington; Miss Norah Johns is winsome as Ela Delahay; and Miss Grace Baring is good as the real Donna Lucia.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. S. Baskerville.—The current week's programme is well up to the average, among the leading turns being Miss Billie Barlow, who enters on her second week's engagement, and is one of the most popular artists who have ever appeared in the town. Frank Cumminger, a clever sand-dancer, soon dances himself into favour; the New York Nippers appear in the scena Bed-Time, and introduce some clever singing and dancing; Silvo is an instrumentalist with some novel methods; the Lloyd-Phillips' company, in the dramatic sketch Betrayed Friendship, is popular. Others appearing are Nellie Martell (comedienne and dancer), Charley Dixon (comedian), Katie Lynd (comedienne), and the Bioscope.

MANCHESTER. — ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE. — Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Before a packed house Mr. Walter Melville's company presented here on Monday the interesting drama, The Girl Who Took the Wrong Turning. The story of the "girl's" temptations and ultimate rescue is excellently told, chiefly by Mrs. Frances Ruttledge in the title-part, Mr. Roy Redgrave as Sailor Will, Miss Nannie Meade as the unscrupulous Vesta le Clere, and Mr. Walter Thornton as the villainous Harcourt; while admirable service is rendered by Miss Hilda Daynton as Lucy, Mr. John Nolan as Bill Slater, Mr. Frank Robertson as Jack Fenton, Mr. Kenneth Black as Richard Fenton, and—in humorous rôles—Mr. Willie Reade and Miss Marie Hildare. The play is thoroughly entertaining and elaborately staged.

METROPOLE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs Cullen and Carthy's pantomime, Babes in the Wood, is repeating its success before large audiences on the circuit of the local Broadhead theatres.

GRAND JUNCTION THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. Frank Denman-Wood's excellent pantomime of Dick Whittington, played last week at the Royal Osborne Theatre to good houses, is proving equally successful here this week.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Proprietors, The United Theatres Co., Ltd.; Licensee, Mr. John Hart; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—After a highly-successful run at the Theatre Royal, Sheffield, Mr. John Hart has transferred his production of Mother Goose in its entirety to the above theatre, when it opened on Monday night to a good house. The company is a strong one, and includes Miss Daisy Jerome as Gretchen, a part which is played by that talented lady in a most vivacious manner; Mr. J. E. Nightingale is particularly good as Mother Goose; Mr. Jack Pleasants makes a decided hit with his quaint style as Alexander; and Mr. Harry Roxbury shows himself a very capable comedian. Miss Maisie Gay sings well, and makes a good impression as Colin; and very pleasing is Miss Sylvia May as Jill. Miss Winifred Norman as Lady Ida dances in fine style; and Miss Gertrude Parker (the good Fairy) sings and dances nicely. Others who do good work are Miss Rita Narcelli, Messrs. Ernest Spalding, Charles Hanbury, G. P. Polson, the Valdo Brothers, and Master Frank Taylor. The scenery and dresses are pretty, and some excellent dancing is done by the ballet, under the direction of Mme. Louie.

EMPIRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—The principal attraction here this week is provided by Leo Stormont and company in a well-staged and realistic version of Rob Roy, adapted by Leo Stormont, whose impersonation of the chief character, that of the outlaw, is a fine piece of work. Arthur Lennard, the popular actor-vocalist, sings several songs in his usual artistic style; and other capital turns are given by Little Ganty, a smart comedian; the gentle Mackweys, in a fast and furious comedy act; Madge May, comedienne; the Three Ramoniers, wonderful balancing acrobats; Theo Hardeen, the well-known handcuff manipulator; Kitty Glover and company, in Mr. Their's Heir, an amusing sketch; and Raie Walters, in a smart song, called "The Fisher Girl." The Bioscope adds some amusing pictures.

HIPPODROME. — Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—The Earthquake is still the chief attraction here, and good houses are the rule. Tom Costello causes some amusement with his latest, "The Lady Suffragettes"; and Olgar and Elgar are exceptionally good in a vocal and musical act. Jove Hayman and Little Marie Montague are seen to advantage in a capital sketch, Christmas Eve; Holden's Mannikins are very cleverly manipulated; Frobel and Ruge are smart aerial comedians; and the Three Careys, Australian comedy artists, are amusing. Two vocal items by the choir, "The Three Beggars" (soloist, Mr. J. F. Hedlam), and "Come, live with me," are well rendered; and the Bioscope subject is interesting.

KING'S, LONGSIGHT.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—A very good turn here this week is The Coster's Honeymoon, a characteristic sketch, in the hands of Amy Anderson and company. Huline and Le May, musical clowns and novelty artists, are highly entertaining; the Cumberlands give a remarkable exhibition of acrobatic cycling; Bessie Travis is a smart ventriloquist; Billie French, swell comedian, dances exceptionally well; and other good turns are Harry Briggs, triple-voice vocalist; Geo. Duval, entertainer; the Almos, equilibrists and tumblers; and Ellis and Watts, comedians and dancers.

QUEEN'S PARK HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Haley's Juveniles, an exceedingly clever troupe of well-trained children, are paying a welcome return visit here this week, and for upwards of twenty minutes provide a delightful entertainment in song and dance, the early Georgian Court dance, and the singing of Dot and Spot, being particularly enjoyable. Walter Curtis, a first-class comedian, has a good reception; the Aeronauts give a novel and clever acrobatic performance; Zanfretta and Napio are good musical eccentrics; and Valvo is a smart ventriloquist. Others who contribute are Arthur Slater, a wonderful whistler; Chris. Masters, character vocalist; and Nellie Navette, comedian and good dancer. "Wanted, a Watch Dog," is shown on the Bioscope.

HIPPODROME, HULME.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Charles Baldwin's Comedians head the bill here this week in their laughable absurdity, Bank Clerks, and are highly diverting. Macdonald and Huntington give an exceptionally clever turn; J. W. Rickaby, comedian, is a capital laughter-maker; and George Russell, comedian, is well received. George and May Danvil, in artistically-rendered vocal scenas, are entertaining; the Maisanos, four funny Frenchmen, are very good in a musical act; and the Five Powells appear to advantage in a marvellous legmania and panto-mimic show. "The Conjurer's Pupil" is an amusing film shown on the Bioscope. Emmie Milstead and Joe Bell figure on the programme, but did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

MANSFIELD.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; General-Manager, Capt. Cecil Clayton.—During this week Poole's Myriorama is the attraction here. In addition to a series of remarkable pictures, there is a strong variety company. The Four Rosaires give a clever acrobatic display; the Tiscots evoke appreciation as living marionettes; the Boleros on the triple bars are well received; Li Chang Hi is an interesting turn; Eileen and Mayne are clever as dancers; Johnny O'Rourke causes laughter; and the Seddons are good comedy jugglers.

MARGATE. — HIPPODROME. — Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Frederick Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—The principal attraction here this week is a return visit of Lockhart's elephants, introduced by Captain Taylor, a native of Margate. The unique performance of these animals proves again very mirth-provoking. The other contributors to the programme include Madge Field, comedienne and dancer; Charles Denton, comedian; Cole and Rags, eccentric jugglers; the Sisters Lavender, dainty duettists and dancers; and Allis and Cossatti, the comedy duo. The Hippodrome pictures are good, as usual.

MERTHYR TYDFIL.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, The South Wales Entertainments, Ltd.; Manager, Mr. Lewis Gilbert.—The Bros. O'Brien head the bill, and give a pleasing performance on the horizontal-bar; Emmie Ames is well received; Germaine, the wizard, gives a good show; Mlle. Eldie, in her Pose Plastique act, wins favour; Harry Bancroft scores with his songs; Clown Charlton contributes an eccentric musical variety act; and Bert Woodward, the coon cyclist, is also a good turn. A series of animated pictures complete the programme.

TEMPERANCE HALL.—Manager, Mr. Israel Frece.—Engaged here are the Four Royal Welshmen, Lilian Neville, operatic and ballad vocalist; Harry Haytor, comedian; the Smalleys, on the triple bars; Nellie Duval, comedienne and dancer; and Cligo and Rochelle, in their comedy act, An Actor's Antics.

MIDDLESBROUGH. — THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Now in the third and last week, Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime, The Sleeping Beauty, still continues to draw large audiences.

OPERA HOUSE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—An immense audience accorded a hearty reception to the pantomime, Puss in Boots, which was produced on Monday night. The production is in the hands of Messrs. C. and F. Renad, who have left nothing undone to make it complete. Miss Rita Everard is a dashing principal boy, two of her songs receiving hearty encores; Miss Winnie La Barte is charming as Princess Florence, her singing being particularly worthy of special notice. The greater part of the merriment is due to the untiring efforts of Mr. Rowland Hill as the giddy widow. The rôle of Lachrymose, the King, could scarcely be better placed than in the hands of Mr. Fred Lyne, who is both clever and funny. Messrs. Cribb and Cribb work hard as the miller's sons, and are successful in causing much laughter with their patter and songs; and Mr. Cecil Barrett is amusing as Freddie. Miss Ruth Zilwood is conspicuous as a pleasing Captain Slasher, and Miss Marie Neilson is exceedingly good as Eric. Mr. Harwood Cooper causes merriment as Fleecem, the lawyer, and Mr. Gilbert Oakes gives a fine representation of Thomas Mouser, Puss in Boots. Miss Margaret Billington, Miss Ivy Moore, Mr. Reginald Capel, Mr. Reginald D'Arcy, and Mr. Hamilton Jones capably fill responsible rôles.

MOTHERWELL.—NEW CENTURY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Reginald Grant.—Messrs. Frank J. Pitt and Chas. Halling's company is this week appearing in the sensational melodrama £1,000 Reward. Mr. Chas. Halling is particularly keen and alert as the detective of the new school; and Mr. Frank Dallas genuinely funny as the example of the old. Mr. Fred Wilberforce makes a sufficiently villainous Gilbert Lyle; and Mr. George Scully contributes several song and dance turns. Miss Daisy Halling appears successfully as Mme. Sanson; Miss Crissie Francess is a sprightly Kitty; and Miss Lynn Dorlington is to be congratulated on being the possessor of a naturally fine voice.

NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.—TYNE THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—There is really nothing new to record in regard to Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's lavish production of Aladdin at the Tyne Theatre. Nightly the vast auditorium is crowded to excess, the pantomime proving as popular with visitors from the country on excursion days as with the townspeople.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's Aladdin has entered upon its seventh week at the Royal Theatre with every prospect of the extensive patronage it is receiving being accorded it to the close of its run.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Bacon and Bolam; Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Crowded houses have justified the enterprise of the management here in putting a pantomime on the boards. A strong company is responsible for The Babes in the Wood, and the entire production is a huge success. Miss Rose Hamilton makes a dashing Prince; Miss Lucy Lynch is a pretty Princess; and the Babes are pleasingly impersonated by Misses Blanch Albert and Ada Merry. The fun and frolic is well looked after by Messrs. Bernard and Weston and the Albert and Edmund's Troupe.

EMPIRE THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Moss' Empires, Ltd; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Esden.—At the head of the bill this week we have Miss Kate Carney, who receives a flattering reception, and is not allowed to quit the stage until she sings her popular song and scena "Liza Johnson," which is received with prolonged plaudits. Ed. E. Forde, the Australian sundowner, is extremely funny, and keeps the house in a continual state of laughter; Carney and Armstrong prove a most entertaining couple; and the Three Tauberts are expert xylophonists. The musical comedy produced by Surrie Lindon's Vaudevilles is very pretty and effective, the singing being of first-class order; Marzella's trained birds keep the house entertained; Park's Eton Boys delight everyone with their vocal contributions; Sybil St. Elmo is another success as a vocalist; Burns and Burns create much mirth in their sketch Fun in a Museum; and the Bioscope has an amusing series of pictures.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Will H. Boardman.—Mr. John Tiller's company occupies the boards here this week with the diverting pantomime Aladdin. Miss Jessie Wilton as Aladdin is excellent, and sings her songs acceptably; Miss Clara Beck as the Princess is admirable; Mr. Harry Elliston plays the part of Abanazar in a manner which is greatly appreciated; Mr. Fred Dark gives a droll impersonation of Widow Twankey; Mr. Dark and Mr. Harry Morgan create much laughter in their comic duet, and are a great success; Little Britton is a comedian of diminutive stature who keeps the house in ripples of laughter. The scenery and dresses are exceedingly pretty and effective. In the Palace Scene varieties are introduced by Herbert La Mortine, singer and bâton manipulator, and The Waltons, acrobats in Chinese attire.

NEWPORT.—EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Manager, Major Gallaghar; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Page.—The chief item in the bill this week is the sketch Three of a Kind, produced under the direction of Miss Ethel Arden and Mr. George Abel, which causes roars of laughter. The Sea Nymph, a poetic phantasy, is successfully produced by Miss Peggie Lennie and Walter Hart; the Vasilesem Troupe are smart on the triple bars; and Victor Newman, a clever impersonator, is warmly recognised. The Hopkins Bros. provide a neat bit of fun; Lillian Lowe sings charmingly at the piano; and Kate Traill renders several songs in acceptable style. Allen Hanbury, a comedian, contributes a funny song; and the Bioscope shows a picture, "The Drunken Mattress," that is extremely amusing.

NORTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—Mr. Fred Benton and company, with The French Spy, is paying a welcome return visit here this week. As Fritz Mr. Fred Benton gives a clever impersonation; and Mr. Beresford Lovett ably sustains the part of Captain Sommers. Mr. L. Chaseby is a capable Lieut. Maxwell; Mr. Max Coutts gives a satisfactory portrayal of Count Romanoff; Mr. George Sherraton is well placed as Petross Romanoff; Mr. Rex Ward is good as Max Revelski; Mr. Hugh Travers makes the most of the part of General Trepoff; and Mr. Charles Digby is favourably received as Viscount Alexis. Miss Madge Devereux is an excellent Countess Ande; Miss Ella Seton proves an acceptable Julie; and Miss A. Harrison-Tate as Olga is worthy of much praise.

NORTHWICH.—CENTRAL THEATRE.—Proprietress, Mrs. S. Golden.—Miss Lydia Donovan's company is the attraction here this week in the successful play entitled Her One Great Sin. Mr. C. Quinton Fulford makes a clever villain as Arnold Thornhill; Mr. Chas. Marshall undertakes the part of Rueben Warhurst in a very able manner; Miss Phyllis Damian as Charlie and Miss Maudie Lambert as Gracie are excellent in their respective parts; Mr. Fred Hodson is highly amusing as Jerry Jumble, and is ably seconded by Miss Nellie Lambert as Nancy Wimpenny; and Grace Warhurst is sympathetically played by Miss Lydia Donovan.

NORWICH.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Mr. Austin Wright, who heads the bill here, meets with an enthusiastic reception; Roma and Romani—the latter a Norwich man—give a very pleasing musical entertainment; Leo Dryden makes himself famous with his popular and patriotic songs; the Veller Bros. prove themselves accomplished gymnasts; Julia Kent and Alex Keith, duologists, are much appreciated; Henry Carlton and company in The Window-Cleaner are very amusing; Will Bacchus, actor-vocalist and coster comedian, is a good turn; and Slane is an eccentric comedy artist. The Hippo Bio seems more amusing than ever.

NOTTINGHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—Mr. Geo. Dance's company, in the first visit to Nottingham of The Little Michus, is the attraction this week. Mr. Foster Courtenay as General Des Ifs is entirely in his element, and every time he appears a ripple of laughter commences, and continues all the time he is on the stage. Misses Alice Coverick and Gipsy Dale, in the title-parts, act up to each other excellently, and their duets and trios with Bagnolet are very pleasing numbers; Bagnolet is impersonated in a most satisfactory manner by Mr. Gilbert Childs; and Mr. William Everard is effective as Gaston Rigaud. Miss Mary Young successfully essays the rôle of Mme. Michu; and the Mlle. Herpin of Miss Maisie Leonard is deserving of commendation. Mr. Leon Simpkin as Michu, and Mr. Robert C. Harcourt as Aristide, both do well, as also do Mr. Edwin Stanley as Miss May Marshall in the rôles of Market Man and Woman respectively. The dancing of Mlle. Marjorie is a very attractive feature of an excellent production.

GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—Mr. Edward Marriss' company presents an excellent pantomime, based on the story of Robinson Crusoe. The special scenery and the spectacular effects are excellent, and the staging and mounting all that can be desired. The music and dancing, under the direction of Mr. Hubert Boggetti, are attractively presented, and the manager, Mr. E. H. Bertram, can congratulate himself on a good production. Miss Maisie Jarard is very effective as Crusoe, her singing and dancing being in the best of taste; while Miss Effie Vincent as Polly Maydew has a very winning manner. Mr. James Graydon is thoroughly capable of carrying through the fun, and is ably supported by Messrs. Herbert Peace, Wm. James, Frank Yorke, and John Travers. The Waldrons, the Thalian Glee Singers, and Chandler and Payne provide in an efficient manner the speciality turns. Mr. Ernie Hampson makes a very good Friday; and the pet dog of Mr. Jack Kashma is a successful animal study. The remainder of the characters are well handled, and the chorus numbers are capitally rendered.

EMPIRE THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—Once more we have a welcome visit from Ernest Shand, whose refined comedy and quaint humour is proving as attractive as ever. The Fourteen Black Hussars, the latest novelty presented by Lasky, Rolfe, and company, represent the last word in noisy harmony. Their speciality, The Bass Drum Trust, is probably the best exhibiton of artistic noise extant. Dot Hardy has a style all her own, and its very uniqueness is an attraction; Michael Nolan, always slyly funny, improves on acquaintance; and Joe Brady is an admirable entertainer. Sylvesta, assisted by Mlle. Courtney, successfully mystifies everybody; and the barrel jumping of Tony Spring is a revelation in athletics. As a comedienne, Agnes Hazel has not much to learn; and the extravagant humour and boisterous fun of the Two Bostons is provocative of rounds of spontaneous laughter and applause. An interesting and amusing series of pictures, "Puck's Pranks on a Suburbanite," bring a copital programme to a conclusion.

NUNEATON. — PRINCE OF WALES'S THEATRE AND ENTERTAINMENTS CO., LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Mr. Tom H. Taylor's company is playing in capital style The Female Swindler, which is drawing good houses. Miss Grace E. Leslie gives a clever portrayal of Lu Valroy; Mr. Joseph Millane makes a first-rate John Coulson; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe as Geoffrey Warden is well placed; Miss Florrie Kelsey is a charming May Andrews; Mr. A. Kenyon-Gray and Mr. Guy P. Ellis, as James Denver and Harold Travers, are deserving of praise. Some good comedy is introduced by Mr. Clarence Ibbotson in his various characters, and Miss Mary Dawson as Mary Ann.

OLDHAM.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—A full house witnessed the opening performance of Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime, Mother Goose, on Monday evening. Mr. Harry Rich in the title-rôle is very much to the fore, and with Mr. Charlie Rich as Jack there is not a dull moment; Mr. H. O. Wills and Mr. Leonard Maitland as Lord Pudsey and Wibsey Slack cause much laughter; and Mr. W. Fulbrook makes a capital Mayor; Miss Lola Patey in the part of Gretchen is very good, and her yodel song elicits much applause; Miss Isabella Dillon is a sprightly Colin, and sings her songs well; she joins Miss Pauline Hague (Jill) in some pleasing duets; Miss Violet Ashcroft as Heartsease sings very sweetly, and Mr. Charles Homer makes good use of his voice as Malignum; the Bros. Smarte do well as the horse and donkey; and Mr. Chas. Goff is good as the goose. Some excellent dancing is contributed by Miss Lottie Stone's quartette of lady dancers and the Four Rosebuds, and Wee Jessie sings in a capital manner.

ROYAL THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—A first-class programme is presented here this week. Cinquevalli performs with his usual skill to appreciative audiences; another excellent show is given by the famous Kellinos in their speciality act, A Fête in Venice, being rewarded with much applause; Ambrose Thorne is a refined comedian, and he sings some funny songs; Marie Collins, comedienne is well received; the marvellous Avolos perform daring feats on the perpendicular poles in a clever manner; Adah Grey is a capital vocalist; and Billy Hobbs is a good coon comedian; whilst the original Hartfords do well in a acrobatic cycle act. The Royal Dottoscope shows a very amusing picture.

HIPPODROME. — Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—Tom Lloyd, eccentric comedian, is the star, and he is very popular; Geo. Davis and company cause roars of laughter with a funny sketch, Jack's Uncle; Andy Fagan also sings and dances well; the Spanish Goldinis are clever with their juggling and carpet spinning; Shelia McNeil is a capital Scotch comedienne; Xley and Hamilton give a couple of vocal and musical duets in good style; and the Two Madges are smart juvenile artists, and the Dottoscope concludes with good pictures.

PAISLEY.—PAISLEY THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Bentz.—Mr. Robert Macdonald's company in Human Hearts is here this week. Mr. W. D. Fazan submits a powerful and capable embodiment of Tom Logan; as Frederick Armsdale Mr. Ernest Gray plays with marked effect; Mr. E. H. Dobell as Jem Mason has a character to which he does every justice; a capital Jimmy Logan comes from Mr. Fred Lester; Mr. Harry Turner scores in his delineation of Limpy Morgan; Mose Jones is faithfully depicted by Mr. George Hewitson; Miss Maud Lindon makes an excellent Jeanette Logan, acting with histrionic ability; Miss Dora Watson deserves praise for her Ruth Larkins; Miss Reana Roberts, a child-actress, as little Grace Logan, is admirable; and Helen Shaw is excellently enacted by Miss Althea Hyde.

EMPIRE.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Tom Toy.—Jack Sheppard, the handcuff expert and gaol-breaker, is a great draw here this week. Good turns are also given by James Valdon (speciality dancer), the Sisters Stratton (duettists, burlesque artists, and dancers), J. H. Harris (Scotch comedian), Cullen and Coyle (eccentric comedians), Tom Bassett (Shakespearean comedian), and the Musical Kemps (instrumentalists).

PLYMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—True to their traditional love of musical comedy, a bumper house on Monday witnessed the curtain rung up on the first presentation in the West of The Belle of Mayfair. Mr. Harry Parker is great as the parvenu Sir John Chaldicott, his topical song being tumultuously redemanded; Mr. Gwyn Alwyn as Hugh Meredith makes the most of the vocal opportunities falling to his lot; Mr. Haddon Cave give a capable rendering of Lord Mount-Highgate; Mr. Edward Hugonet impersonates the Hon. Raymond Finchley with success; and Mr. Lauri Lisle is highly amusing as the Comte de Pierre. Miss May Yates as the Belle is a vivacious actress and an accomplished dancer; Miss Daisie Irving as Princess Ehrenbreitstein receives a triple encore for an attractive rendering of her pretty song "The weeping willow wept"; Miss Aurélie de Loriere is attractive in "Why do they call me a Gibson Girl?"; the part of Lady Chaldicott finds an able exponent in Miss E. Stevens; and Miss Mabel Dent is a spirited lady's maid.

GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Assistant Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—William Bourne's exciting drama Man to Man furnishes the week's attraction. The leading parts of this now well-known drama are played by Mr. C. A. Melton as George Gordon; Mr. A. Beaufort as Samuel Plumtree; Mr. Harry Stuart as the Rev. P. Ormond; Mr. E. Beecher as Richard Ellerton; Miss Maud Craven as Lavinia; and Miss Nina Farington as Ethel Maythorn. The management have engaged Charles Livingstone, an ex-convict, to appear in the Prison scene.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—Mr. George Formby presents a humorous turn here; the Three Demons have a highly sensational cycling act; Meier and Mora, a couple of American artists, provide an interesting exhibition of ball-punching; Ben Harris and company, in a sketch entitled A Promising Pupil, receives plenty of applause; the Musical Keiths are an accomplished little company; Will Dalton keeps the audience in good humour; the Cambrian Singers give an attractive selection of popular songs; and Jane Temple, comedienne, and Vernon's Pictures complete a good programme.

PORTH.—PALACE.—General-Manager, Mr. C. W. Poole; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Bynorth.—This week we have Billy McLaine's sextette of singers, dancers, and comedians, who are cordially received; Great Vincent is applauded for his daring acrobatic performance; Fossett's circus is a turn which is highly appreciated by all who witness it; Harry Wenburn delights the audience with his songs and comicalities; Leo Bollingers, the Parisian Rag Painters, are really smart. Others are The Lashmars; Evan Evans, the Welsh comedian; Jack Hilton, eccentric; Flo Banks, comedienne, and the Palace pictures.

PORTSMOUTH. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. Armstrong Bell.—The rollicking musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl, is being presented here this week by Mr. William Greet's principal London company. Jim Cheese is divertingly played by Mr. William Stephens, whose comedy is of a high order; he is ably supported by Miss Jeannie Richards as Liza Shoddam. Mr. Arthur Harrold is admirable as Dick Wargrave, acting his part with distinction; Mr. Percy Wright as the Hon. Crew Boodle is excellent; Mr. Fred W. Patrick as the host of the Fallowfield Arms, Mr. Hazell, plays well; A. Bunker Bliss, Downham, and Mr. Talk are all capably taken by Messrs. H. Courtin, W. Norman, and Greene Taylor; Miss Frances Earle is a charming Elphin Haye; Miss Gertrude Melville as Daisy Fallowfield is graceful and sings well; Miss Joan Clifford scores as Miss Virginia Bliss; and Miss Beatrice Anderson as Mrs. Shimmering Black also deserves mention. The Entente Cordiale dance is gracefully performed by the Misses Beatrice Ford, Enid Beverly, Lilly Doran, Blanchette Grand, Nellie Lawrence, and Geraldine Scott. The orchestra, largely augmented, is under the able direction of Mr. Evelyn Baker.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Messrs. Hardie and Von Leer's capable company is here with the fascinating play, Two Little Vagabonds. Mr. Arthur E. Melbourne sustains the part of George Thornton in a vigorous and telling manner; Captain Darville is well placed in the hands of Mr. Sidney Vautier; Mr. Dunstan Hayne gives an admirable personation as John Scarth; Mr. Lionel Ellis as Bill Mullins makes good use of his opportunities, and scores accordingly; and Messrs. Frank Gordon and Dick Winslow are able as Dido Bunce and the Coughdrop. Miss Grace Haywood portrays Marion Thornton with sympathetic womanly tenderness; Miss Rosslyn Vayne takes with marked success the part of Barbara Scarth; Miss Lena Vernon does well as Sister Randall; Biddy Mullins is smartly acted by Miss Evelyn Shaw, and the two Little Vagabonds are depicted in a life-like and capable way by Miss Edie Martin as Dick and Miss Josie Beltram as Wally.

PRESTON. — ROYAL HIPPODROME. — Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. E. J. Linsdell.—At the top of the bill here this week are Henry Herne and company, who present a dramatic sketch, entitled Blackmail, introducing a startling real water incident. The Tan Kwai troupe of real Chinese from Manchuria give a wonderful performance, including acrobatic and spinning feats, conjuring, and juggling. Tate and Tate are clever and amusing comedy acrobats; Primanesi's expert display of juggling, balancing, &c., gains loud applause; Arthur Stacey is a popular comedian and dancer; Douglas and Gordon evoke much laughter in a novel comedy act; the Leotards are expert hat-throwers and catchers, staircase performers, and balancers; Right, Iamay, and Right supply a good vocal and speciality dancing act; and "The Prospectors," an episode of the Western Goldfields, is depicted on the Bioscope.

RAWTENSTALL. — GRAND THEATRE. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—Mr. T. Edward Ward and company are here this week with Man and Wife. Miss Ward as Marcella is responsible for an intensely real portrayal, and Mr. John F. Traynor as Paul Revere is also a clever impersonator of a difficult part. Mr. Wilson Coleman makes an excellent villain; Mr. T. Edward Ward and Mr. Ambrose Horton are good as Colonel Latour and Sergeant Jacques; Mr. Sidney Bryant and Mr. Val Gully are delightfully funny as Bimbo and Bambo; and as Jean Miss Ethel F. Greene is exceedingly pathetic.

READING.—ROYAL COUNTY THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Milton Bode.—This week a special attraction is provided by Mr. George Alexander's company in Pinero's successful comedy His House in Order, which is being played in admirable style. Miss Dorothy Grimston gives a very powerful and artistic rendering of the exacting part of Nina, and Mr. Stephen T. Ewart makes a careful study of the part of Hilary Jesson; Mr. J. Edward Pearce gives an excellent portrayal of the character of Filmer Jesson; the dismal and narrow-minded Ridgeley family are impersonated in characteristic style by Mr. Herbert Lomas as Sir Daniel, Miss Augusta Haviland as Lady Ridgeley, Miss Elaine Sleddall as Geraldine, and Mr. Ernest R. Holloway as the contemptible Pryce Ridgley; Mr. Charles Tyrel makes the most of the part of Major Maurewarde; Miss Carmen Woods plays very cleverly as the boy Derek.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—After a plethora of pantomime we have had a complete change here this week, Mr. Arthur Carlton's company occupying the boards with The Span of Life. Mr. R. S. Trelawney is a manly Richard Blunt, and Mr. Sanderson Moffat is highly successful as Dunstan Leech. Mr. Sam Roberts is smart as Nutty Brown, and Mr. James Jarrett scores as Joshua Gurnet. Messrs. Edwin, Percy, and Fred Stebbing as Dismal Brown, Tipton Brown, and Dapper Brown respectively are responsible for the exciting tableau which gives the title to the play; they present a clever acrobatic turn. Miss Guinevere Shilton gives a pleasing portrayal of the part of Kate Heathcote, and Miss Phyllis Hamilton is seen to advantage as Mrs. Jelf; Miss Kitty Russell is amusing as Shrove Tuesday, and Miss Mary Moffat does excellently as Cecil Blunt.

RUGBY. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geoffrey Fulton.—This week the Sharlotte Entertainments are providing a most enjoyable programme. Mr. Barrington Nurse, tenor vocalist, rendered several songs in finished and artistic style; Miss Lily Bailey's pianoforte solos were much appreciated; Miss Freda Charlotte and Mr. Stenart Willson rendered a scene from Hamlet in first-class style; Mr. Reginald North also gave satisfaction; Miss Isabelle Brunel sang several songs, and had a good reception.

RYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Mr. Alleyn M. Hylton.—On Monday evening the Theatre Royal company gave an excellent account of themselves before a good audience in the absorbing play My Sweetheart. Miss Cissie Rayner was admirable in the title-rôle; Mr. E. H. Wynne was seen to decided advantage as Tony Faust; Mr. R. Byron Webber gave more than a touch of nature to the part of Joe Shotwell; and Miss Ruth Suffield did well as Mrs. Fleeter. The other characters were equally well played. On Thursday two performances of Our Boys, by the same company, were announced.

SCARBOROUGH. — PEOPLE'S PALACE AND AQUARIUM.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Morgan; Secretary and Manager, Mr. Walter Kitchingman.—A good all-round entertainment is provided here this week. De Henau paints lightning pictures with his toes; Hyam Long, a great favourite, executes clever instrumental solos; Mr. Joe Hastings is a smart jumper; Miss Clara Hastings a popular vocalist; Miss Enray Leicester, a smart comedienne and dancer; Mlle. Aldena introduces a clever troupe of trained cockatoos; and Mr. Harry Plowden is a comedian with a good supply of up-to-date patter and stories.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. George Lalva.—The Four Louberts, who head the bill here, have a rousing reception for their acrobatic business; Mill May and Theresa give a quick-change act with several excellent songs; Miss Violet Gerald is a pleasing comedienne; Leslie Digby and Frank Doyle delight with their comicalities and songs; and fine sets of pictures are submitted, including "A Trip to Niagara."

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Levey and J. E. Cardwell's Juvenile Pantomime Company is drawing well here this week with Sleeping Beauty. The fine voice of Miss May Gibson is heard to advantage as the Fairy Queen Claribel; Witch Malignan and Father Time are both well played by Miss Beattie Townsend and Mr. Will Orston respectively; Miss Kitty Trewhitt plays the part of Prince Florizel in excellent style; and the same may be said of Miss Dolly Dodds as Beauty. The comic scenes are well sustained by the Bros. Armstrong as the Queen and Asbestos. Plenty of fun is caused by Messrs. Doyle and Gibson as Colonel Dreadnought and Major Flashlight.

SHEERNESS.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Reymond.—Another good all-round company occupies the boards of this cosy little hall. Mr. Gus Daniels as a comic and descriptive vocalist would be hard to beat; The Lady on Strike is voted very funny; Miss Topsy Levane, the well-known burlesque and dancer, makes a big hit with her comedy songs; Mr. Phil Reymond, the popular comedian, still continues a big favourite, his clever character studies being highly relished; and the Arundel company concludes with a screaming comedy sketch, A Broken Contract.

SHEFFIELD. — LYCEUM THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—Mr. Edward Compton's Old English Comedy Company opened to a good house on Monday in the ever-delightful Davy Garrick. Mr. Compton repeated his famous impersonation of Garrick, and he received frequent and hearty applause; Miss Mackensie was a tender and graceful representative of Violet. The comedy was well mounted, and the stage-management perfect. Other plays billed for the week were * Mannington, Mr. Vincent Carlyle, Mr. Frank Adair, Mr. Stanley Gordon, Mr. George Mitchell, Mr. George Asquin, and Mr. H. Macartney.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE. — Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsay.—Dick Whittington is still running merrily.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar. —The following bill of fare was submitted to large audiences on Monday night: The Rogues of the Turf, an exciting sketch, in which Mr. John F. Preston appears as an old trainer; the Three Missouris, in their funny acrobatic act; Miss Kathleen Cogan; Tshernoff's trained dogs; C. B. Jerome; Lee and Kingston, in a novel entertainment; Mr. George Ridgewell, vocalist; the American Bioscope; Mr. Charles Mildare; and the Two Fitzroys, in a smart trapeze act.

SHREWSBURY.—MUSIC HALL.—Manager, Mr. V. C. L. Crump.—Senton's National Animated Photographs and Concert Company are here this week with a popular and varied entertainment. The special turns are attractive; Miss Margaret Lisle sings very sweetly; Mr. Wm. Kingsley, handbell soloist, is accomplished; Miss Enid Fane is a pretty dancer; and Dr. Seaton, handcuff king and plate manipulator, contributes an acceptable performance.

SOUTHEND-ON-SEA.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Geo. Conquest; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Lingham Power.—Woman and Wine is the attraction here this week, produced by Miss Mary Austin and Mr. G. Vivian Edmonds, who are supported by a talented company. Miss Cissie St. Elmo scores in the difficult rôle of Marcel Rigadout; than Miss Mary Austin a more able exponent of Mary Andrews could not be desired; Janet Marlow is clearly impersonated by Miss Ethel Vinroy, and "La Colombe" is made a prominent character by Miss Joan Pereira. Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds works exceedingly hard as Dick Seymour, whose blind father is entrusted to Mr. John S. Haydon; he, too, gives a memorable portrayal. Mr. Harry Harrop deserves mention for his able delineation of Charles Sauter; while Mr. Frank Thomas does credit to the part of Duc D'Arnac. The Lottie Stone troupe of whirlwind dancers give an enjoyable speciality turn.

PIER PAVILION.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. H. E. Angless; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stanley E. Angless. —The monthly fancy dress skating carnival was held on Wednesday evening, which proved a huge success. Each event, it is pleasing to note, draws larger entries, and the costumes prove most difficult to adjudge owing to their excellence and variety. More valuable gold and silver prizes were again rewarded for the best ladies', gentlemen's, and the most original dresses, as well as that for various racing. The hockey club cup match was exciting, and an interesting event was the challenge match between Percy B. Hurst and the courteous acting-manager.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS. —Proprietors, the Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—A diverting entertainment is provided here by Mr. Robert Courtneidge's company, who are this week presenting the farcical musical play The Dairymaids. Miss Violet Lloyd is charming and piquant in the rôle of Peggy, and was deservedly applauded for her artistic vocalism; Miss Rhoda Gordon as Winifred lends able support alike in a vocal and histrionic sense; Mr. Lionel Victor is a capital representative of the rollicking sailor, Joe Mivens, a character in which he is adequately assisted by Miss Cissie Sephton in the part of Eliza; Miss Madge Avery depicts Penelope Pychase with dainty piquancy; Lady Brundenell has a dignified and successful exponent in Miss Edith Blanche; Miss Beryl Vaudrey sings artistically in the part of Hélène; Mr. E. Statham Staples causes much amusement as Sam Brundenell; Mr. George Desmond admirably impersonates Lieut. Brundenell; Mr. Forbes Dawson submits a commendable portraiture of Dr. O'Byrne; and Mr. Alexander Fraser does well as Capt. Leverton.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred. Coulson.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company is appearing here this week in The Woman Who Gambles. Count Otto Steinbach is in the able hands of Mr. Alex Alexander; the Countess Natalio Steinbach is cleverly portrayed by Miss Mabel Mannering; Stella Melakoff is ably portrayed by Miss Lily Malvern; Cora Gouldhart is well accounted for by Miss Florrie Halton; the comedy element is ably sustained by Miss Brenda May as Zanette, Mr. Alf. Richards as the Hon. Bertie Bray, and Mr. Gilbert Dance as Manfrid Speinletch.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—Oswald Williams, assisted by Mlle. Winifred de Berle, succeeds in mystifying the audience by his wonderful illusions. The Stein-Eretto Troupe, hand-jumping acrobats, in a novel turn win deserved applause; Prof. Bartle, musician and vocalist, is well received; and the ventriloquism of Prof. Vox is, as usual, effective. Other excellent attractions are provided by Lily Tiso, comedienne and dancer; Bert Marsden, comedian; the Allisons, comedy artists; Harry Clifford, vocal comedian; and the Bioscope.

SPENNYMOOR.—CAMBRIDGE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; General-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance; Resident-Manager, Mr. David Collins.—Mrs. F. Wybert Clive's company is appearing this week in The Conscript, which has been seen here on several occasions, but which is, nevertheless, being heartily welcomed. In the title-rôle Mr. H. Creagh Hunt submits an excellent impersonation; and as the much-tried Nadia, Miss Lilian Ross shows herself to be quite at home in the part. Mr. Walter Steele depicts the villainous Paul Hardiski in lurid colours; and Mr. Douglas B. Watson renders a good account of himself as Ivan Manloff. Miss Florence M. Daly (Dame Katinka), Mr. Wybert Clive (the Ferret), Mr. William Head (Doggorvitch), and Miss Cissie Reenan (Little Karl) are all competent artists. To Mr. P. Strongbow (Tretch) and Miss Nellie Douglas (Wanda) is allotted the task of providing the comedy, and they prove themselves generally successful.

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun. —The Stockport Garrick Society has again availed itself of Mr. Revill's kindness, and this week occupies the boards with As You Like It, presented under the direction and stage-management of Mr. Ryder Boys.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, The Stockport Empire Theatre Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Black. —Exceedingly clever are Claude Feldman's beau-ideal troupe of prize juveniles, who form the chief attraction here this week. A smart trio of acrobats are the Panamas; Arthur Goodman is a comical juggler; the Vekeys are expert banjoists; thoroughly amusing are the Wheelers in their cycling speciality, "A Tramp's Holiday"; J. S. James is a clever and versatile artist; Perrette and Mona are pleasingly greeted in their comedy duologue, Teasing the General; the Miltons, scientific and comic skaters, are satisfactorily applauded; and the Brothers Pim are amusing and clever in their performance on the horizontal bar.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwards; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—Charles Morritt heads the bill this week in his clever illusions, which are highly appreciated. Would-be Actors, a sketch, provided by Mr. Carter Livesey and Miss Lilian Roseberry is funny; the Sisters Russell are a diverting pair; Edwards and Dacre in a sketch, viz., What a Life, contribute a good turn; Mlle. Amalia introduces her ponies, dogs, and donkey, and the outcome is a capital turn; Woolmer Young is heard in two good songs, which are well rendered; Toney and Novel in their acrobatic act are clever; Les De Breans are capital jugglers. The pictures are good.

SUNDERLAND.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—This week Mr. George Dance's company is appearing in The Catch of the Season. The part of the Duke of St. Jermyne is in the capable hands of Mr. Frank Lincoln, who does it full justice; and Mr. E. H. Kelly is highly amusing as Lord Dundreary; Mr. Hampton Gordon makes the most of his opportunities as Sir John Crystal; whilst as Bucket Master Grata is capital; Miss Moya Mannering is an excellent Angela; and Miss Belle Napier is a pleasing Lady Cacerham.

KING'S THEATRE.—Directors, Messrs. E. Stevens and R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. H. L. Carlo.—The Fair One With the Golden Locks has now reached its last week, and is as popular as ever.

Glenville gives a masterly impersonation of Jack Manley, and Mr. George Arthur plays with power the part of John Bira; Mr. Lewis Gordon is seen to advantage as Franklyn Fordham; Miss Maud Warburton gives a refined rendering of Elinor Fordham; and Miss Gertie Reid is a bright and charming Carrie Wilber. Miss Mabel Veriton makes a clever Mrs. Manley.

PALACE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Managers, Messrs. Alfred Browne and Stringer.—The Dayton Family head the bills here this week, and prove themselves to be Risley performers of no mean order. Another excellent act is Joe Peterman's The Belle of the Orient. The programme also includes Ernest Montefiore and company, in a musical sketch, entitled The Little Colonel; Rosie Reval, comedienne; Leslie Brothers, musical comedians; Ryan and Hull, eccentric comedians and acrobats; Jimson's novelty sketch, Burglars' Surprise; McAskell, conjurer; and the Palace pictures.

TON-Y-PANDY.—THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barry.—The popular musical comedy, A Country Girl, played by Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, is the attraction here this week. Mr. Martin Pittes gives a painstaking performance of Geoffrey Chaloner; Barry, in the hands of Mr. Arthur Staples, is invested with the true comedy spirit. The Rajah of Bhong is excellently rendered by Mr. Bernard Vaughan; Sir Joseph Verity is amusingly hit off by Mr. W. O. Billington; a charming heroine is found in Miss Violet Leslie, her sweet singing and delightful personality exactly suiting the part; Miss Edith Maynard makes a typical Nan; Miss Irene Wood plays the part of Princess Mechelarah of Bhong with charming piquancy; Miss May Florence essays the character of Mme. Sophie with great success; and Mrs. St. Quintin is effectively portrayed by Miss Florence Brewster.

TREHERBERT.—POOLE'S OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Poole's; Manager, Mr. James Gunn.—Miss Emma Litchfield's company, in A London Actress, is this week paying a return visit here. Mr. Herbert Evelyn gave a capital rendering of the part of Sergeant Crafford; Mr. John Worth made a dashing Lieut. Kingstone; Mr. George Child ably sustained the part of Capt. Mannering; Mr. Edward Swinton kept the audience in a merry mood as Pat Maloney; whilst Mr. Stuart Cleveland made an excellent Moses Mondoza. Miss Emma Litchfield as Hilda Mannering played her part in a manner that stamped her as a talented actress; Miss M. Steeple was good as Phyllis Crawford; Miss Isabel Singleton gave a capital reading of Biddy Maloney; Miss Violet Clarke also scored as Rosie Blythe; and Miss Maud Saxby sustained the part of Nellie in an able manner.

TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—THE OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Carey; Manager, Mr. L. J. Gunnell.—Miss Emma Hutchison's company in Peter's Mother has been very cordially received this week. Miss Ruth Mackay gives a splendid interpretation of the title-rôle, and is ably supported by Mr. Eille Norwood as the Q.C. and Mr. E. F. Meads as Peter; while Mr. Chas. Harley is excellent as the Baronet; and clever studies of the two sisters are given by Miss Mary Griffiths and Mrs. Mallalieu. Others to whom a special word of praise is due include Mr. Mallalieu as Canon Birch, Mr. Mackintosh as Dr. Blundell, together with Miss Mary Bush and Miss Hilda Honiss as the Hewets, mother and daughter.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Baron Harriss's company in the musical play, The Prince of Pilsen, appeared here on Monday night, and drew a large and warmly-appreciative audience. Mr. Harry Kilburn excels himself in his humorous delineation as Hans Wagner; Mr. Frank Crimp as the real Prince of Pilsen gives a capital study of the part, and his vocalism is pleasing; Mr. Roy Sidney is excellent as Lieutenant Wagner; Mr. Bernard Russell is seen to advantage as the Earl of Shrimpton; Mr. Ernest Clifford impersonates the rôle of François, the waiter, in good style. Miss Ada Watson makes a charming Edith Adams; Miss Alice Nixon sings sweetly and acts vivaciously as Nellie Wagner; Miss Molly Wynne-Scott is highly successful as Jimmie, the bell boy; Miss Connie Leon gives a clever rendering as the French Maid, and sings and dances effectively; Miss Sophie Harris sings and acts with charm and ability as Mrs. Crochen.

Telka is a pleasing ballad vocalist; the Camerons, comedy couple, win appreciation; Miss Marie Du Voy, vocalist; Mr. Billie Bint, vocalist; and Wyllie, in a musical act, ably contribute.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Otto Menotti produces an original cycling sensation novelty. Others are Beatrice Renee, comedienne; the Northern Troupe, dancers; Minnie Hunt and Rhys Thomas, musical duologue; Her Birthday; Morimura, Japanese illusionist; Lady Miako, Baker and Balfe, Dusty Rhodes, and the American Bioscope.

GRAND THEATRE. — Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Mr. Lingford Carson's attractive drama The Heart of a Hero is being played here Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday. The hero, Jem Resdale, is portrayed with great power by Mr. Charles Draycott; an equally effective effort is that of Mr. J. Dobson Clyde as the villainous Wilfred Marl; Miss Muriel Thompson displays great ability in the part of Nell Resdale; and Miss Louise Millward is well placed in the dual rôle of Mrs. Barker and Mrs. Ryder.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Mr. Andrew Melville's company opened here on Monday with the drama, In a Woman's Grip. As Frank Haydon Mr. Percy Dawsone was all that one could desire; Mr. Austin Milroy did remarkably well in the character of Maurice Stanton; Mr. F. A. Marston acted very effectively in the portrayal of Dick Langeley; Miss Jessie Yatman made a graceful Lilian Fairley; Mary Langley, Convict 43, and Princess Zaroff, these three characters were cleverly impersonated by Miss Rose Ralph, who deserves the reception given her. The humour of the piece was in the capable hands of Mr. Andrew Emm, who kept the audience in roars of laughter.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Player. —The star novelty this week consists of the original vocal mélange, entitled Girls Will be Girls, by Mabel Bright and company, who get a good reception; some smart juggling is contributed by Massona; Howard and Collinson create much laughter with their funny turn; Miss Florence Yeyman is cheered to the echo for her clever performance as a coon caricaturist; a smart turn is given by Joe Archer; Oakley and James do well in their songs; and some fine pictures are shown.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. H. E. Feather. —Mr. William Maclaren and Miss Lily C. Bandmann on Monday presented Claudian. Mr. Maclaren is seen at his best in the title-rôle. Miss Bandmann as Almida gives a well-studied rendition; Mr. S. Brisco Farbridge plays powerfully as the Holy Clement. Considerable histrionic ability is displayed by Mr. F. Owen Chambers as the Tetrarch; praise is due to Miss Rosa Webster for her Serena; Agazil and Alcares have capital exponents in Mr. Douglas Earle and Mr. Weston Hubbard; and judicious comedy is introduced by Mr. Chal. T. Chaloner as Belos and Miss Maud Garth as Edessa.

PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Julius Simpson.—Carl Rosine, magician, once more presents here his hoop trick, which is as mystifying as ever. The sketch, The Professor and His Pupil, by Wyndham and Waters, causes considerable merriment; Harry Pleon and company are as amusing as ever in P.C. Pudden; the pot-pourri of magic and comedy by Cull-Pitt is worked with remarkable deftness and skill; baritone ballads are well rendered by Dan Robans; Grant and Grant are loudly applauded for their lively dancing; a pleasing reception is awarded Symes and Davies, duettists; and a great attraction is the wonderful quick painting by Speedwell.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE. — KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's company attracted a large audience here on Monday to witness The Christian. Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp gave a thoroughly artistic interpretation of the heroic John Storm; Mr. P. Gedge Twyman showed rare histrionic ability as Lord Robert Ure; as Horatio Drake Mr. Ernest Stidwell was distinctly good, and so, too, was the Father Lamplugh of Mr. Harry Colebeck. Another character exceedingly well acted was the Faro King of Mr. Anthony Rawles. Mr. Phipps Stanley made an excellent Archdeacon Wealthy; and Mr. Courtney was praiseworthy as Brother Paul; Mr. Percy Johnson did well as Parson Quale, and so, too, did Mr. A. Beverley as Mr. Lorimer. Miss Laura Walker possesses a handsome presence and exhibited exceptional talent in the part of Glory Quayle; Miss Constance Stephens presented a fine study of Mrs. Callander; and much eulogy must be accorded Miss Edith Savory's Polly Love. Miss A. Herne (Betty), Miss B. Herne (Netty), Miss K. Graeme (Letty), Miss V. Herne (Liza), and Miss Aggie Royal (Aggie Jones) were all good in their respective characters.

WEXFORD. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietor Mr. E. P. Ronan.—Mr. Ian Maclaren paid his initial visit here this week with his own company in a round of Shakespearean and Old English comedies, and was warmly welcomed. David Garrick was produced on Monday, with Mr. Maclaren in the title-rôle, to which he did full justice. Mr. B. Iden Payne was well suited to the part of Alderman Brackson, and Mr. Arthur Fayne's impersonation of the Hon. Bob Fairley was meritorious. Mr. Peters, Mr. Murmurs, and Mr. Johnston were capitally represented by Messrs. George Westland, J. V. Bryant, and Huston Meharry; and the same praise can be accorded to Miss G. Littlewood as Mrs. Peters and MISS A. Groghegan as Arabella Johnston; while Miss Edith Coleman gave a charming portrayal of Mabel Brackson. The comedy was preceded by Delicate Ground.

WHITEHAVEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. Clark; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Clark.—Mr. Frank Lindo's company is here in Home, Sweet Home. Mr. Lindo appears as Stephen Armitage, a part which he plays most successfully; Mr. M. Hodgson is good as Lucas Lyle; and Mr. George Overs works hard as Dick; Mr. E. Owens acts in a capable manner as Lord Silvermore; and Mr. Helsby Wright is well cast as Gaffer. Miss Ray Rochefort is lively as Sybil, and Miss Marion Wakeford is excellent as Joan.

WIDNES.—ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. Jas. Kiddie.—Mr. Fred Karno's company is here this week with the amusing farce, Saturday to Monday. Mr. W. E. Matthews proves himself a capable comedian as John Willie Jaggs; Miss Amy Rogerson works hard as Clorinda; and Miss Daisy Stone is a successful Violet Blake. Mr. J. W. Bradbury is a capital Mr. Blake.

WIGAN. — ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—The second visit to Wigan of the musical comedy, The Earl and the Girl, has again been attended with great success. The highly-humorous and grotesque character of Jim Cheese is admirably sustained by Mr. Alf. Donohoe; and Miss Lina Hicks in the part of 'Liza Shoddam acts with conspicuous ability. Miss Gertrude Simpson is charming as Elphin Haye; and Miss Ida Stratham as Daisy Fallowfield plays the part gracefully, and is recalled for her fine rendering of the song, "When love comes knocking at the door." Miss Kathleen Gerard as Mrs. Shimmering Black is popular; and the other ladies of the cast all do well in their respective rôles. Mr. Thos. Kennard, Mr. Leslie Owen, Mr. Greville Hayes, Mr. Ernest A. Plumpton, and Mr. Sam Lysone represent their respective characters in a capable manner.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—The Six Brothers Luck give a number of humorous descriptive sketches, which evoke much merriment; La Roland is a great attraction in her mysterious grotto dances; and the Sisters Reno, whirlwind dancers, are also exceedingly good. Geo. Gilbey meets with a splendid reception, and is several times recalled nightly. Other capital comedy turns, &c., are furnished by Smiler Lee, Phil Rees, and Battie Roy, coon singer and dancer.

WOLVERHAMPTON. — GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival. —The Electric Man is being presented here by Mr. J. B. Mulholland's company. Much diversion is created by the smart and admirable acting of Mr. Stanley Cooke in the dual characters of Walter Everest and Prometheus Frankenstein. Mr. Archie Selwyn supports him most effectively as Jack Strange; Mr. Lloyd Townrow does well as Mr. Jobbins; and Mr. E. Vivian Willis ably fills the part of General Pomery. Miss Lucy Edwin cleverly portrays Mrs. Anderson; Miss Gladys Jesson is a charming Stella Pomroy, Miss Amy Francis an attractive Mary, and Miss Sybil Brooke a capable Mrs. Everest. The play is preceded by a smartly-performed comedietta, entitled A Matrimonial Advertisement.

EMPIRE PALACE.—The Athos troupe of acrobats display some wonderful feats here; Horace Wheatley is a diverting comedian; and the McConnell Trio are seen to advantage in A Musical Mistake. Other artists in the programme are Herbert Clifton, mimic; Les Frasettis, instrumentalists; Lottie Collard, comedienne; and Elly Adair, dancer.

THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Mr. Newman Maurice's pantomime of Babes in the Wood is running here for a second week, and providing much mirth and entertainment.

WORCESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Carlton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. F. Le Wards.—After a long spell of pantomime, Worcester theatre-goers are this week welcoming a first visit of The Walls of Jericho. Mr. A. E. Anson and Miss Gladys Mason are two bright particular stars in a brilliant company. As Jack Frobisher and his aristocratic wife, they are responsible for two most powerful impersonations; Mr. George A. Brandram is a particularly breezy Colonial as Hankey Bannister; and Miss Nora Wynne proves a bewitching Lady Lucy; Mr. Cyril Baleine is responsible for a clever character-study as the impecunious Peer; and Mr. A. W. Tyrer is artistic in his rascality as Dallas; Miss Marguerite Cellier is a sympathetic Lady Westerby.

WORTHING.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Manager, Herr C. Adolf Seebold.—Mr. Charles Constant's company is here this week presenting Blue Beard. Mr. C. Constant is to be congratulated on his excellent combination of first-rate artists. As Blue Beard Mr. Chas. Lake puts in some fine work; Miss Isa Bowman excellently enacts the part of Selim; Messrs. Gus Danby, Alec Godfrey, MacStuart, and Johnny Clegg as Bamboozlum, Pimple, Shakabac, and Sister Ann work with untiring efforts and unfailing success. Miss Florence Hersee as Fatima deserves special commendation, her vocalisation, far above the average, being greatly admired; Little Felecia is good as Ashpodel. The scenery is excellent.

READING OF "AS YOU LIKE IT."

The British Empire Shakespeare Society gave a dramatic reading on Sunday evening at the Passmore Edwards Settlement, Tavistock-place, W.C.; the play chosen for the occasion being As You Like It. The cast was an exceptionally strong one, including, as it did, Mr. George Alexander and Mr. Arthur Bourchier (both of whom are vice-presidents of the society) and several other distinguished members of the dramatic profession. It seems hardly necessary to say that the seating accommodation of the hall was taxed to its fullest limits, and the reading was received with the greatest enthusiasm. The full cast was as follows:—Mr. George Alexander, Orlando; Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Jaques; Mr. Charles Fry, Adam; Mr. Vivian Reynolds (who kindly gave his services at the last moment, owing to the sudden indisposition of Mr. Acton Bond), Touchstone; Mr. Kenyon Musgrave, Banished Duke; Mr. Athol Stewart, Duke Frederick; Mr. Cecil Cameron, Amiens (with songs); Mr. J. Fritz Russell, Corin; Mr. Douglas Vigors, Silvius; Mr. Ben Field, William; Mr. Stanley Drewitt, Oliver; Mr. Alfred Bristowe, Le Beau; Mr. Harvey Braban, Charles; Mr. Hugh Tosh, Dennis; also Miss Lilian Braithwaite, Rosalind; Miss Dorothy Grimston, Celia; Miss Claire Greet, Audrey; and Mrs. Lenthal Cheatle, Phœbe. Miss Hilda Fletcher read the stage directions and the reading was arranged under the direction of Mr. Acton Bond. At the close of the evening's proceedings, Mr. Sidney Lee (the president of the society) proposed a vote of thanks in which he congratulated Mr. Arthur Bourchier on having hit on the "happy mean" in the scenic effects of his production of Macbeth, and Mr. George Alexander on the success of the run of His House in Order. Mr. Hermann Vezin seconded, alluding humorously to some of his past experiences of the play, and paying a gracious tribute to the excellence of the evening's entertainment. Mr. George Alexander replied to the vote of thanks.

KING'S THEATRE, HAMMERSMITH.

the D'Oyley Carte Opera Co.

Pantomime having run its allotted course after a very satisfactory career, made room on Monday for the opening night of the series of Gilbert and Sullivan operas. As the revivals at the Savoy are attracting considerable attention, it was only in the nature of things that the engagement at the King's would be productive of a like interest. Judging by the reception accorded to the Gondoliers on Tuesday night, Mrs. D'Oyley Carte and Mr. J. B. Mulholland would have little, if anything, to complain of. Every popular strain of Sullivan's delightful music was vigorously applauded, and Mr. Gilbert's lines had lost none of their pungent humour. In the present company, with the exception of Mr. Fred Billington (who was unfortunately unable to repeat his quaint performance of the Grand Inquisitor) there are no names familiar to old playgoers, but the representation was in all respects excellent. Mr. Charles R. Walenn had caught the true Gilbert spirit, and as the Duke of Plazo Toro earned a marked and well-deserved success. As Luiz, Mr. Leicester Tunk sang and acted very pleasantly. In the absence of Mr. Billington, Mr. John Wills made an efficient substitute, and his songs, distinctly and cleverly delivered, were re-demanded. The gondoliers, Marco and Giuseppe, were in the exceedingly able hands of Mr. Strafford Moss and Mr. Albert Kavanagh, who were all that could be desired, both as actors and singers. Mr. Moss's singing of that delicious morsel, "Take a pair of sparkling eyes," brought down the house. Miss Theresa Rassam made a majestic and dignified Duchess of Plazo Toro, and sang excellently. The daughter, Casilda, was charmingly undertaken by Miss Mabel Graham. The gondoliers' wives, Gianetta and Tessa, were delightfully represented by Miss Hope Hastings and Miss Mabel Burnege, who were equally successful, and gave very spirited performances. Inez, the foster-mother, was capably played by Miss Norma Russell. The chorus and scenery were quite up to the standard, and Mr. T. Silver judiciously directed the orchestra. The operas given during the week's programme included The Pirates of Penzance, Trial by Jury, Patience, Iolanthe, The Yeomen of the Guard, and The Mikado. The younger generation will therefore have had ample opportunities for making acquaintance with the cleverest and cleanest of the comic operas of the 'eighties, or indeed, of any other time.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

On Monday, Feb. 4, the Opera, in three acts, entitled
"THE ROSE OF CASTILLE."

After enjoying an unprecedented run of success for six weeks, the pantomime here came to a conclusion on Saturday last, to give place to another great attraction in Mr. J. W. Turner's English Opera Company, and Clapham playgoers, with pleasant recollections of the last visit, have attended in goodly numbers at each performance to accord it an enthusiastic reception. Upon the popularity of no particular opera in the company's ample repertory do these accomplished artists rely, preferring to vary the week's programme with the new opera Nigel, and such old favourites as The Rose of Castille, Faust, The Bohemian Girl, The Waterman, and Maritana. For the opening night Balfe's charming opera, The Rose of Castille was chosen, and performed to the complete satisfaction of the large audience assembled. In Miss Kitty Brownless was seen an admirable exponent of Elvira (Queen of Leon). She rendered the music in a manner that stamped her as an artist possessed of exceptional gifts, and, moreover, acted the part in a manner that calls for special mention. Miss Jessie Dennis, who appeared in the rôle of Donna Carmen, sang with great charm of expression, and was accorded much applause; and Miss Maud Esdale did all that was necessary in the part of the Duchess of Calatravers. Mr. J. W. Turner was very successful in his embodiment of Manuel, and his fine voice was heard to advantage throughout, the applause with which he was greeted being an excellent tribute to his sterling work. Mr. John Ridding made the most of his oportunities as Don Pedro, and his singing was greatly admired. Mr. R. Cummings as Don Florio, Mr. P. Newton as Don Sallust, and Mr. G. Ridding as Pablo, were satisfactory in their respective parts. Special mention must be made of the well-drilled and large chorus, which rendered with admirable effect the music entrusted to its care, and also to the augmented orchestra under the direction of Mr. T. Lawton. Mr. E. De Hague Body is the courteous acting-manager for Mr. H. G. Dudley Bennett.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 4,
the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"A GIRL'S CROSS ROADS."

The drama-loving portion of Mr. Sonnes's patrons have been without their favourite form of entertainment for some time, and this fact was doubtless jointly responsible with the reputation of the above play for the large audience that gathered here on Monday evening. The part of Barbara Wade could scarcely be in better hands than those of Miss Hill Beverley, who gives a really tragic rendering of the poor woman whose life is ruined by drink. Miss Beverley's acting is convincing throughout, and her skill was particularly evidenced in the scene in Hyde Park, where she holds her audience spell-bound without opening her lips. Nellie Meadows finds a clever exponent in Miss Florence Zillwood, who plays this heartless wretch with the requisite fire and spirit. Miss Jessica Blake is a sympathetic and charming Constance Cornell, her clear-cut enunciation adding to the value of her impersonation. Tilly Vane, the maid, is played skilfully on broadly humorous lines by Miss Mabel Scudamore. As John Meadows, Mr. Charles Franmore proves himself a character-actor of great ability; his speech, his general manner, and his clever make-up combine to form a pathetically realistic portrayal of the poor old countryman. Mr. Wilson Gunning makes a manly Jack Livingstone, playing in sound, straightforward style, and speaking his lines with good effect. Mr. Gerald Jordan is well suited as Cuthbert Lumley, his quiet, reserved manner and incisive speech giving double point to Lumley's villainous suggestions and actions. As Toby Turvey, Mr. Fred Ingram is responsible for much amusement, his great crockery-smashing scene in the second act being received with roars of laughter. The small parts are in safe hands, and the play is well dressed and strikingly staged.

THE TERRISS.

On Monday, Feb. 4, the Pantomime, entitled
"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD."

It is popularly supposed that the good folk of Rotherhithe are especially partial to melodrama fare, and perhaps this is true. Nevertheless, a change is sometimes welcome, and accordingly we are this week presented with a pantomime, written by the local favourite, Mr. Newman Maurice. The pantomime is eminently successful, laughter and applause being continuous, and much of the music is tuneful. Mr. Newman Maurice is the life and soul of the piece as Granny, acting throughout with much humour. He sings two clever parodies of popular songs, and in the Bedroom scene roars of laughter are evoked. Messrs. McKie and McKay prove themselves comical patterers and neat dancers as Pen and Ink, the lawyer's clerks; Mr. Jackson Hayes, who is usually seen in more serious work, is a capital Lawyer Fox; Miss Ida Taylor is a dainty Red Riding Hood, and proves herself to be a pleasing vocalist, her song, "Two little birds," meeting with much applause; Miss Kitty Cerrie is a dashing Robin Hood, and sings "It's a different girl again" in good style; Mr. Fred Walker is an amusing Baron; Mr. Bernard L. Davis makes a great success as the Wolf, acting with dramatic force, and being loudly encored for his song, "A son of the desert am I"; Miss Maudie Tomlinson proves herself the possessor of a sweet voice as the Fairy Bluebell; Miss Ruby Parsonage is a sprightly Jack and Miss Tessie Venn an attractive Jill, both these young ladies joining in some well-rendered duets and dances. The chorus lend very efficient aid, and the whole production is favourably received.

THE STANDARD.

"A DISGRACE TO HER SEX."

After the long and profitable run of A Soldier's Wedding, the pathway to success has been opened for any other play by the same pen, and in Mr. Melville's drama, A Disgrace to Her Sex, an excellent substitute is found. Mr. Ashley Page enacts the part of Jack Dawes with commendable energy. His delineation shows the result of careful study. Considerable mirth is created by Mr. Johnny Chippendale in the character of Barnaby Mugg. He is ably assisted by Miss Mattie Everett, who presents a lively and effective portrayal of Bella Mugg. Mr. John Sargent does some good work as Dexter; Mr. Tom Taylor supplies a painstaking performance as David Carrington; the rôle of Jules Dèlarnet is played by Mr. J. C. Aubrey with his customary skill. He gives due prominence to the callous nature of the part. Mr. William Felton does all that is possible as Arnold Travers, and acquits himself well. As Mabel Valley, Miss Maude Stewart Drewry plays with power and feeling; and Miss Marion Denvile acts with decided skill, and meets with due appreciation as Mildred Carrington. Miss Maggie Lindsay is a highly satisfactory Mrs. McGinty; and Miss Marie McAulay depicts with every success the scheming and unscrupulous nature of Hilda Valley, the woman who is correctly termed a disgrace to her sex. The scenery employed in the production is worthy of special mention, and the staging of the piece is satisfactory in every detail.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Feb. 4,
the Drama, by Gutzkow, entitled
"URIEL ACOSTA."

The patrons of the Pavilion have certainly every reason to be satisfied with the energy and liberality with which their requirements are catered for by the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company, who on Monday evening produced Gutzkow's drama, Uriel Acosta, in which every part had been carefully and diligently studied. In the title-rôle, Mr. S. Feinman makes excellent use of his opportunities, and gives a most picturesque and vivid presentation of the apostate Jew; he develops the character in a natural and artistic manner, giving every expression of emotion, together with the necessary force, fire, and vigour that the exacting part of Uriel Acosta demands. Madame J. Kayzer is particularly successful as Judith, which she plays with fine feeling and rare sympathetic charm, while her acting at the close of the second scene is really a splendid exhibition of dramatic effect, which on Monday roused the house to great enthusiasm. Mr. J. Fineberg is seen to advantage as the Rabi Akivo, and must be congratulated on the way in which he delivers the excommunication and curse on Uriel Acosta. Every commendation is due to Mr. Kempfner for the earnest and faithful portrayal he gives of De Silvio, which is admirable in tone and not wanting in true feeling. Ben Yechoi is represented with clever incisiveness by Mr. M. Gusofsky, and Mr. Isaacowitch is a painstaking exponent of Menascha. Excellent performances during the week have been given of The Brothers; or, Everlasting Hate, The Wise Man, The Savages, First Love or No. 87, and The Viceroy.

THE PRINCE'S, POPLAR.

On Monday, Feb. 4, the Drama, in Four Acts, by William Gillette and A. Conan Doyle, entitled
"SHERLOCK HOLMES."

The ways of the criminal have always exercised a powerful fascination over the mind of even the most blameless citizen, and the methods employed by those whose duty it is to track down the evil-doers are equally, if not more, attractive. Dickens gave us Mr. Bucket, Gaboreau gave us Le Cocq, and Wilkie Collins produced the rose-loving human sleuth-hound, and these were regarded as the embodiments of detective astuteness until Sir Arthur Conan Doyle introduced Mr. Sherlock Holmes to his world-wide admirers. Just at present public interest has again been aroused by the investigation of famous crime by the brilliant author of "The Sign of the Four" and "Micah Clarke." He has brought the deductive methods which Sherlock Holmes expounded in imaginary cases to bear on an actual crime committed a few years ago. The prominence of the author's name probably acts in some measure for the success which is attending the production at the Prince's this week. It is Mr. Hamilton Stewart's company, and that gentleman plays the title-rôle. Whatever may be said of Mr. William Gillette's transcendent abilities applied to such a part, there can be no doubt that Mr. Stewart gives us a carefully thought-out representation of Sherlock Holmes. He presents that apparently adamantine cynic in a thoroughly realistic manner, and the gradual change by which is revealed the presence of a human heart is led up to by almost imperceptible gradations as are only possible to a very finished character-actor. Nothing could exceed the grace and charm and personal attractiveness of Miss Gladys Harvey as Alice Faulkner, and her love scene with Holmes at the end of the play is particularly affecting. A worthy old actor is seen in the rôle of Professor Moriarty. Mr. James Skea enacts every phase of the character of the wily criminal in a singularly effective style. Mr. Stanley Logan is the medical friend of the great detective, and from what we have read he certainly succeeds in giving us a lifelike impression of the Dr. Watson of Doyle's creation. Mr. Fred Bell is distinctly good as John Forman, and Master Leslie Hall relieves the seriousness of the piece by his amusing study of a page boy. The other parts are in capable hands, and the play is admirably staged and mounted.

THE WEST LONDON.

"THE SOLDIER'S WEDDING."

Whenever a play of Mr. Walter Melville's is billed in Marylebone, the West Londoners always look forward to witnessing a production of the highest class. Chief interest in the play centres in the doings of one Jack Brown, a part full of many opportunities, of which the greatest advantage is taken by Mr. Wingold Lawrence. Mr. Lawrence is an actor of experience and ready resource, speaking his lines in a convincing and telling fashion, so that not a point in them is lost. Mr. A. G. Melford's comedy powers are well exploited as Tommy Spratt; Little Albert, with a somewhat harsh voice, is very precocious as Teddy Munro; Mr. Frederick Byron is energetic and determined as David Munro; Mr. Fred Yarnold, an old West London pantomime favourite, gives a clever character impersonation of Farmer Lee; and Mr. Edward Heanley enacts the rascally Charles Courtney, with such realistic vigour that the virtuous Maryleboners' indignation knows no bounds; Miss Jessie Winter sustains Nancy Lee with womanly grace and charming effectiveness; Miss Georgie de Lara is sympathetically natural as the erring Peggy Munro; Miss Ettie Carlisle is bright and cheery as Lizzie Walker; whilst Miss East Robertson brings her ripe experience to bear on the part of Julie de Beauvrais, which she handles with skill and effect. The play is mounted and staged in irreproachable fashion, much credit being due to Mr. Tom Taylor who produces it. Mr. Beresford Whitcomb is Mr. Melville's capable general-manager, and Mr. William Bailey's interests are, as usual, well looked after by his always genial lieutenant, Mr. James Sinclair.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 4, the Comedy, in three acts, by Cosmo Gordon Lennox, entitled
"THE FREEDOM OF SUZANNE."

The first week of the dramatic season at the Coronet has been assured of success by the engagement of Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, in The Freedom of Suzanne, which, like all the enterprises of the Hutchison firm, bears the stamp of West-End approval. On its production at the Criterion in the autumn of 1904, Mr. Cosmo Gordon Lennox's piece entered at once into strong rivalry with the author's former comedy, The Marriage of Kitty, and won added fame for its chief interpreter, Miss Marie Tempest. The play is full of piquant fun, but there are moments of sentiment of the most wholesome kind, and though the Coronet audience were kept in uncontrollable laughter during the greater part of the evening, tears of sympathy were not lacking. For the interpretation of the title-rôle no less a favourite has been secured than Miss Mabel Love, who has already achieved such renown in the provinces with a former tour that a second one has been rendered imperative. Miss Love has long been a pet of the public, and anything she chose to do would be acceptable, but in her latest assumption she wins a success on her merits as a gifted actress. She gives to the part of the irresponsible Suzanne a chic and animation that are quite Parisian, and adopts such a pretty and merry style that the audience surrender themselves entirely to her fascinations. The account of Suzanne's midnight adventure is given with delicate variations of expression, and her acting is at all times agreeably spontaneous and diversified. The pathos of the part is also artistically treated, and it is at these moments that Miss Love's dramatic talent peeps forth most conspicuously and gives promise of a still more brilliant future. The inauguration of the new tour is helped by the inclusion in the cast of Mr. Percy Hutchison, who formerly shared the honours with Miss Love in the part of Charles Trevor. Mr. Hutchison presents the rôle in as favourable a light as possible, the despair and helplessness of the hapless husband at first being assumed realistically. The scene with Suzanne in the second act remains the most memorable, Mr. Hutchison investing his delivery with modulations of tenderness that lend added impressiveness to the lines. His acting throughout is distinguished by deep thought and artistic finish, and its effect is wholly meritorious. As Suzanne's devoted friend, Lady Isabel Bury, Miss Violet Ley acts with stately grace and sweet sympathy, and by her appearance in some handsome dresses, adds valuably to the prettiness of the various stage pictures. Miss Dorothy Lait also makes a prepossessing appearance as Mrs. Tustail, and delivers her lines with a mordant expression that makes them very incisive. Among the oddities of the cast is Fitzroy Harding, Suzanne's uncle, and in that part Mr. F. G. Thurstans makes a hit of a remarkable character. The effect of the rôle lies more in the exercise of facial play than in the utterance of the words, and so adept does Mr. Thurstans prove himself that he is responsible for some of the heartiest outbursts of mirth. Another creation of real worth is that of Lord Datchet by Mr. J. Hastings Batson. The veteran actor has recently proved himself equal to the perfect recital of the morality play of Everyman whole and entire, and it is a tribute to his versatility to say that the drolleries of the elderly nobleman are rendered inimitably, Mr. Batson realising a curious type of character in every detail. Mr. Townsend Whitling rightly adopts the air of a melodramatic villain as Captain Harry Cecil, though the coolness and resource of the ignoble officer are well preserved; and Mr. Patrick Quill as Sir Horace Hatton gives a typical rendering of the legal luminary. The severity and bitterness of Lady Charlotte Trevor are effectively emphasised by Miss Annie Stalman, who assumes the virtuous arrogance of the society lady with skilful expression and marked emphasis. A grotesque figure is made of Miss Minching by Miss Florence Harwood, who causes constant laughter by the quaintness with which she surrounds the part of Suzanne's companion. Mr. Richard Neville as Tommy Keston cleverly represents the ardour of a love-stricken youth; a neat rendering of Mason, the butler, is given by Mr. Bruce Smith; and other parts are adequately played by Mr. Montgomery, Mrs. F. Turner, and Mr. Bruce Franks. The staging and dressing of the piece reflect every credit on the management, the hall of the hotel at Maverly-on-Sea being a charming set, and the costumes worn by Miss Love are exquisite creations.

A good beginning to the evening is made by a new comedietta, by Rosemary Rees, entitled
"HER DEAREST FRIEND."

Molly Anstruther .....Miss Violet Ley
Ursula Hammond .....Miss Annie Stalman
Robert Menteith .....Mr. P. J. Quill

The most gratifying reception awaited the new comedietta, which is worthy of being retained indefinitely in the programme. It is a variant of the familiar love theme, brightly written, and possessing a plot in which the interest is agreeably stimulated. The lonely life of Molly Anstruther is cheered by Ursula Hammond, her "dearest friend," an ardent exponent of "woman's rights," and by Robert Menteith, who, if he does not enjoy the same superlative degree, at any rate occupies a high place in her estimation. "Bobby," indeed, is constantly proposing to Molly, but she will ne'er consent. She invites Ursula to meet him at her flat, and though Ursula's principles are dead against those of "Bobby," who loves to associate himself with the slum children, when she learns that he has inherited a large sum of money she determines to set her cap at him. Taking advantage of the few moments that remain before Robert's arrival she arranges her hair in the most becoming style, puts on her friend's new silk blouse, and greets "Bobby" with her sweetest smile. She sympathises with all his projects, and the pair are soon deep in conversation, while poor Molly is ignored. She loses patience entirely when she hears Bobby arranging with Ursula to take her to the East End in his motor-car, and after "Bobby's" departure gives Ursula a piece of her mind. Molly is left forlorn, but happily "Bobby" has forgotten his cigarette-case, and returns to find his sweetheart in tears, with the result that the motor-car excursion is abandoned, and a wedding arranged in its place. The little piece was very capably acted, Miss Annie Stalman as the treacherous friend giving a talented exposition of the part. Miss Violet Ley distinguished herself greatly in the rôle of Molly, and, despite the distraction of assuming a show of indignation, sang a ballad at the piano in charmingly cultivated style. Mr. P. J. Quill was a diverting Robert Menteith, and displayed a commendable appreciation of the humorous points of the part.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, the Drama, in Four Acts, entitled
"A ROYAL DIVORCE."

Kingstonians have had the pleasure this week of renewing acquaintance with this profoundly interesting play, which has been brought to Kingston several times since its production at the New Olympic in 1891. The company, which is captained by Mr. W. W. Kelly, is a thoroughly good one all round. Chief amongst them is Miss Edith Cole, who again appears as the Empress Josephine, a part that is eminently suited to her personality and her dramatic genius. She gives a fine portrayal of the part. Mr. Frederic Victor also makes an admirable Napoleon, looking and acting the part with great success. A most favourable impression is also created by Mr. Claude Agnew as Tallyrand, the subtle genius of this statesman being excellently portrayed; and Miss Maggie Cardiff is successful as the juvenile King of Rome. The following also render admirable service:—Dr. Corvisart, Mr. Wm. Robins; Grimaud, Mr. Geo. Hudson; Antoine, Mr. Edward Langford; Pierre, Mr. Larton Orme; General Augereau, Mr. Alfred Grenville; Lord Keith, Mr. C. Jackson; Marshal Murat, Mr. St. George Frere; Marie Louise, Miss Agnes Imlay; Stephanie, Miss Helen Richmond; Blanch, Miss Gertrude Entwistle; Angelique, Miss Violet Hudson; and Mother Lomas, Miss Helen Meadows.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

"BLUEBELL IN FAIRYLAND."

Mr. J. Bannister Howard, his pantomime having finished last week, has begun well his dramatic season by the engagement of Mr. E. Graham-Falcon's company in the above play, with all its special scenery and full effects. Miss Mamie Finbow made Bluebell a pathetic and pleasing impersonation; and Mr. Lawrence Emery as Dickie, her companion in poverty, was smart in his songs, dances, and general business. Mr. Frank Lennard, who acted Mr. Joplin in the play and the Sleepy King in the dream, cleverly made his parts as different in rendering as it is possible to imagine. Messrs. J. H. Bishop and Charles Resti were respectively Will and Won't, the footmen, and Blib and Blob, the schoolboys, and had the lion's share of the merrymaking. Mr. Harry Douglas was as stern as Policeman C as he was whimsical as the Reigning King in the second act; and Master W. Blincoe, who was Peter the Cat, and the Dove, sang sweetly in the woodland scene, and showed great promise. Miss Vera Vizard as Bluebell's Good Fairy and Autumn Leaf, sang with specially good effect; and Miss Constance St. Bride also rendered a ballad with taste and finish. Miss Haldée Fitch put in some good dancing as Will-o'-the-Wisp; and little Bertha Johnson and Emily Wall, as Bluebell's sisters, were child-like and interesting. Mr. Edgar Plinge's Yellow Dwarf was a grotesque assumption; and Miss Lily Nesbit was good in the small part of Bluebell's kindly landlady. There were some excellent contortionists, three in number, in the Cavern scene, with weird gambols, and the choruses of Bootblacks, Flower Sellers, Fairies, and Courtiers sang and danced with go and unanimity.

DALSTON THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 4, the pantomime, by Victor Stevens, entitled
"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD."

At the Dalston Theatre this week Mr. George Brydon Phillips presents Little Red Riding Hood, a pantomime that is brimful of fun and amusement. The scenery is pretty and the dresses really artistic. Miss Rose Harvey makes a dashing Prince Amorosa, and is quite a favourite, especially with her song, "Snowflakes," which she sings in most appropriate style. Miss Mamie Iris as Little Red Riding Hood gives an artistic rendering to a pretty part. As to the fun of the production Mr. Henry de Solla, as Lawyer Slyfox, is responsible for much mirth, and his "Lazy" song is quite an achievement in its way. He is ably assisted in his rôle as laughter-maker by Mr. Fred Maple, who appears as the Wicked Squire, a bold, bad man. Mr. Maitland Marler as Granny, brings down the house with his quaint humour and topical songs. A very natural and realistic representation of the Wolf is given by Mr. J. W. Brighten. Mr. Billie Taylor is funny as Simple Simon, the village idiot; and Miss Marie Beaufort as the Good Fairy sings well, as does also Little Vera Sanders as Cupid, the lover's friend. Others in an excellent cast include Mr. Reuben Kitchen, Mr. Dennis Curzon, Miss L. Palmer, Miss Amy Maple, Miss Kitty Wells, Miss Esther Ohlson, and Miss Browning.

GRAND, FULHAM.

"A CHINESE HONEYMOON."

That A Chinese Honeymoon, which enjoyed so long a run in town, has by no means lost its attractiveness is shown by the success with which it has been received at Fulham and elsewhere. Mr. Milton Bode has gathered together a most capable company and chorus for the present tour, and has spared no expense in the way of scenery and dresses. Mr. Rudolph Kloss makes a stately representative of the Emperor Hang Chow; and Mr. P. A. Turner (who is also responsible for the very efficient stage-management) is admirably made-up as the most Chinese of Mandarins, and acts with quiet humour; while Mr. Leonard May as Admiral Hi Lung plays his part on broadly humorous lines with great success. Mr. Harry Jennings as Tom Hatherton sings well, and acts the lover capably. Mr. George Rydon is excellent as the amorous Mr. Pineapple, and is responsible for no small share of the merriment. Of the ladies, Miss Gwennie Harcourt, in the Louie Freear part of Fi-Fi, carries off the palm for cleverness, and must be establishing quite a reputation for herself in such parts. Her quaint manner and make-up, and her dry humour, are irresistibly provocative of laughter, and her rendering of the favourite comic and topical songs delights the house. Miss Gladys Ward makes a charming Mrs. Pineapple, and proves herself an excellent danseuse. Miss Maud Adams, with her imposing personality, is very good as Mrs. Brown, "the official mother-in-law," the part suiting her to perfection. Miss Nancy Rossiter plays the part of the Princess Soo-Soo with charm and skill, and her song, "Egypt," with its effective chorus and subtle light effects, is certainly one of the best things in the piece. It remains only to add that a full orchestra, under Mr. D. J. Damant, does justice to the tuneful music.

FURNITURE TRADES' MUSICAL SOCIETY.

Under the presidency of Mr. Thomas Harris, C.C.C., the twenty-sixth concert of the Furniture Trades' Musical Society took place at Holborn Restaurant on Wednesday evening. The Council Chamber of this famous restaurant was filled with visitors, who had come to enjoy the musical treat provided. Songs, humorous duets, instrumental solos, and conjuring turns were liberally sprinkled over the programme. Miss Marie St. John Firth sang sweetly of "Roses by summer forsaken"; Mr. Thomas Hinde, a tenor, delivered "Maire, my girl," with telling effect. "Chorus, gentlemen," was rendered by Mr. Fred Hardy, an excellent baritone, who enthused his audience to accompany him in the lusty chorus. Then came a turn by Mr. Wilson Martell, who gave "Happy England," an exceedingly funny song, the singer keeping the audience in roars of laughter. The comic element was also contributed to by Mr. Arthur Randal, who told what strange things would happen if the "World were ruled by girls." A truly clever and clean performance of legerdemain, which quite merited its description on the programme—"a humorous and artistic wizard entertainment"—was given by Mr. Owen Clark, who was rewarded by great applause. The hand-bell solos of Mr. Brook Flowers proved quite a treat, the delicate and correct intonation of the bells used giving Mr. Flowers the opportunity of creating very sweet effects. The musical arrangements and stage-management were under the experienced direction of Mr. Alfred H. Botwright, who controlled the programme from start to finish without the slightest hitch or delay.

MUSICAL COMEDY—AND DANCE.

Though the era inaugurated by King Pantomime is over at the bright and beautiful theatre opposite the Cobden statue, Mr. Robert Arthur has seen to it that the reign of mirth continues, and large audiences have this week capitulated unconditionally to the espiéglerie, the winsomeness, and the romance of The Beauty of Bath, brought hither by the chief company pioneered by Mr. George Dance, in whom suburban and provincial audiences recognise an expert in the production of musical comedy. In the weaving of their story, Mr. Cosmo Hamilton and Mr. Seymour Hicks have not been altogether uninspired by The Rivals, and they might have even gone further, and used one or two of Sheridan's situations in the old comedy. But even as it is, The Beauty of Bath is an excellent piece of its kind—light as gossamer, and full of the irresponsible frivolity demanded. The music, by Herbert E. Haines, in its cadences largely enters into the spirit of the fun to be discovered in Mr. Charles H. Taylor's lyrics, and the introduced numbers have all the popularity and tunefulness required.

Mr. Dance's company is headed by Mr. Leslie Holland, who, in the part of Lieutenant Richard Alington, reproduces the Hicks method to a nicety, and plays the part with such irresistible go, and with such complete enjoyment of its humorous phases, that he is already an established favourite in the northern heights. His great successes are "Mr. Chamberlain" and "Humpty Dumpty," the latter with additional topical verses. He is particularly funny in his business with Mrs. Goodge, the cook, who has a predilection for "play-hactors," and in this connection high praise must be given to Miss Ida Laurie for the drollery of her high falutin' antics as the ex-lodging-house keeper. Miss Gladys Guy is as pretty as a picture as the Hon. Betty Silverthorne, and possesses considerable charm of style. She scores mostly in her realisation of Betty's love of fun, but wins honours also in her rendering of "Au revoir, my little Hyacinth," which has been interpolated since the first night at the Aldwych. In this number she is assisted by Mr. F. W. Pedgrift, a young baritone, who sings from the dress circle level, and displays qualities of tone and expressiveness that rightly win for him very hearty recognition. He plays the part of Viscount Gorst, and his excellent phrasing, sweetness, and power are again conspicuous in the number, "She's the prettiest girl in Bath." Mr. Reggie Grey brings into prominence the amusing business of Lord Quorn, being especially funny in the travestie of "Sally in the ballet." Mr. Sheriff Clunes sings exceedingly well, imparting tenderness to the ballad "The sloe-eyed maid," and plays the part of Beverley with a lightness that is particularly agreeable. He sounds the depths of romance, too, in Beverley's duet with Miss Maggie White, who plays Lady Dorothy Bun. This young lady sings uncommonly well, scoring in the imitation of a phonograph gone wrong. Mr. Jack Crichton as Sir Timothy has plenty of funny business at his command. His dances are smart and eccentric, and his number, "Bang the drum," which "daddy" sings with his eight fair daughters, is a very popular item. Miss Edith Cruikshanks looks quite a young British matron, and in the meeting of mother and son in the first act, plays with a delightful touch of sincerity that lifts the scene into the higher regions of comedy. Miss Jessie Fraser dances with grace and refinement as Miss Truly St. Cyr, the actress, and scores in the song, "Lord Gollywog of Grosvenor-square"; Mr. Frederick Leister puts dignity into the important part of Lord Bellingham; and Master Sydney Grata as the programme boy is effective. The piece is beautifully dressed, and the sweetness of English girlhood is well exemplified in the chorus. Mr. Gordon Seamford is the musical director, Mr. Leslie Holland the stage-manager, and Mr. J. Alban Newton the manager, for Mr. George Dance.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

On Wednesday afternoon, at the Royal Academy of Music, Mr. Oscar Beringer, in the presence of a large and interested audience, gave a lecture, or rather, as he modestly called it, a discourse on pianoforte playing and teaching. The esteemed Professor of the Royal Academy remarked that during his fifty years' experience, both as performer and teacher of the piano, he had come in contact with the chief players and teachers of his time. Mr. Beringer said he was an infant prodigy, and his first appearance was at the Crystal Palace in 1857. The lecturer then gave an amusing account of his early experiences as a teacher. "I then charged eighteenpence a lesson, but the mother of my first pupil would only pay fifteenpence, and when the poor teacher's little bill became due it was only paid in instalments." Another anecdote which delighted the audience was a story about his meeting Mme. Tietjens on the concert platform.

"The great singer wanted a glass of water, and when he brought it she, seeing a young lad in a short jacket, offered him half a crown." I drew myself up, saying, "No thank you, I am solo pianist at the Crystal Palace." The Professor, in speaking of the kind of music in vogue half a century ago, somewhat cruelly referred to "The Maiden's Prayer," and he not only referred to it, but to the intense amusement of his audience, sat down and played the thing with all its fearful runs and "twiddly bits." We can nowadays afford to laugh at such music, but no doubt some present could remember the time when a young lady playing "The Maiden's Prayer" correctly was looked upon as quite a musical prodigy, and only a few days ago a teacher told the writer she was asked if she could teach it. In defence of English Art, we may here say "The Maiden's Prayer" was composed by Badarzewska. Musical matters, however, said Mr. Beringer, began to show signs of improvement, for after a certain amount of popularity was gained by Sydney Smith's compositions, which were showy and not difficult to play. The lecturer here giving a characteristic example, the works of Stephen Heller came to the front. As a good example Mr. Beringer played Heller's once-popular "Travantelle." After this came the advent of the famous Thalberg, and his no less famous exponent, Mme. Arabella Goddard. The Professor remarked on the hostile attitude of the Press in those days to Mme. Schumann (whom he considered one of the finest lady pianists ever heard), and to the great Rubinstein, one paper even going so far as to tell its readers, "If they wanted to know how not to play the piano go and hear Rubinstein."

The Professor, after giving one difficult and striking example of Thalberg, said the composer had no sympathy with Schumann, and made Beethoven dry. Mr. Beringer briefly referred to the famous Pachmann, and amidst applause from the audience, to Sir August Mann's saying "That no man has done more for English music." Mr. Beringer then spoke of his early training at Leipsic, where, he said, one could get a good seat at the opera for ninepence, a fact that considerably surprised his hearers. He then referred to Moscheles, under whom he was a pupil; he also told a good story about his master. Moscheles was teaching at a grand house, and one day when he came the footman was angry because he rang the visitors' bell, saying a music-teacher should not think of doing so. Mr. Beringer has been Professor at the Royal Academy since 1865, and in concluding his lecture said he never regretted he returned in 1866 to England.

Love and anarchy are associated in the new play which was performed by amateurs at the Comedy Theatre, kindly lent by Mr. Arthur Chudleigh, on Tuesday afternoon in aid of the Westminster Hospital. The two elements are rather awkwardly blended, there is a poverty of action, and the situations do not present any aspect of novelty. The talents of the authoress seem to point more towards the lighter side of the drama, a few fleeting moments of comedy being brightly written. The piece might be described as a play with a past, as the event upon which it turns takes place many years before the rise of the curtain. At that remote period Ivan Linnovitch, the leader of a revolutionary movement, imprisoned at Strelna preparatory to execution, had been rescued by the youthful Princess Strelezkoff, who had stolen the papers incriminating him and had driven to the Palace alone and taken the prisoner away with her in her carriage. Ivan is subsequently exiled to Siberia, where he has command of the convicts, but returns after thirteen years to St. Petersburg, and receives hospitality in Prince Strelezkoff's house, where the play opens. The affection which had long since existed between the Princess and Ivan grows apace, till at length the jealousy of the Prince is aroused by a note sent to Christina by Vassilitch, another anarchist leader, warning her not to allow Ivan to leave the house on peril of his life. The Prince demands to know why the note was sent to the Princess, and as no satisfactory explanation is given he orders Ivan to be placed under arrest. The flame of the Prince's jealousy is fanned by the Police-Master Count Poloffsky, who was a witness of the Princess's escapade at Strelna, and relates the story to the Prince, who learns of it for the first time. Ivan is banished from the house, and returns to his revolutionary brethren in order to resume command of the band. Learning that the Winter Palace of the Czar has been mined in view of the wholesale destruction of the notabilities who are to assemble there in the evening, he determines that for Christina's sake the Prince Loris must be preserved, and, to the disgust of Vassilitch, gives orders that the diabolical project shall be abandoned. By some inscrutable means Christina has learned of the contemplated explosion, and seeks out Ivan in order to beseech him to save her husband. Ivan hastens to carry out her wishes, but as Christina is about to leave the hut she is confronted by Poloffsky, who threatens to have her sent to Siberia for complicity in the plot. News is subsequently brought that a man, supposed to be the revolutionary leader, has been shot dead in the street, but the victim is found to be Prince Loris, who had been mistaken for Ivan. The latter thereupon declares his love for Christina, who admits her affection for him. The soldiery are in sight, and Ivan, convinced that death awaits them if they stay in the hut, urges the Princess to brave the open street with him, and as the curtain falls the pair go out, leaving their ultimate fate very much in doubt.

An earnest body of amateurs joined in a performance in many respects meritorious. Miss Gwen Fegan's acting and delivery in the trying part of the Princess were especially commendable, and Miss Constance Paul was delightfully fresh and natural as a débutante. Sir Simeon Stuart, Bart., though he looked every inch a soldier as well as a rebel leader in his picturesque costumes, was not impressive in speech or action as Ivan Linnovitch. His voice is lacking in sympathetic quality, and his acting proved to be utterly devoid of any emotional capacity. Prince Loris was strikingly impersonated by Mr. Gerald Carter. Mr. Reginald P. Lamb was admirably distinct and incisive as the callous-hearted Police-Master, and Mr. Noel Curtis Bennett did excellent work by doubling the part of a young aide-de-camp with that of Vassilitch, the latter being taken up very creditably at short notice. The other parts gave little opportunity to their exponents except to display a variety of rich dresses. A crowded house expressed itself very favourably towards the piece and called the authoress enthusiastically to the footlights at the close. It may be added that Miss Jessie Bateman, Miss Lilian Braithwaite, and Miss Sybil Carlisle, assisted by Nurses from Westminster Hospital, had kindly consented to sell programmes.

THE CELLI FUND.

This fund is being raised on behalf of the two young daughters, aged 17 and 18, of the late Frank Celli, well known in the theatrical profession, who died in Charing Cross Hospital two years ago, leaving them totally unprovided for.

Messrs. F. V. White and Co. have published a new cheap edition of "Anna of the Plains," the Boer novel by Alice and Claude Askew, the authors of "The Shulamite," the original of the powerful play produced at the Savoy Theatre last year by Miss Lena Ashwell. "Anna of the Plains" has all the characteristics of "The Shulamite." The simple, elemental passions of rural people are treated in a deep, solemn, passionate way that is irresistibly impressive; the story, though sad and serious, is enthralling, dramatic, and is told with an expressive energy that is sure of its effect on the reader. It breathes in every page the hot glare of the blue African sky, the brown, shrivelled-up grass, and the unending monotony of the plains. It is a tragedy of the veldt, all the more poignant because the materials of which it is composed are so primitive and simple.

ACTORS' BENEVOLENT FUND.

ANNUAL MEETING.

Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree presided at the annual general meeting of the Actors' Benevolent Fund, held on the stage of His Majesty's Theatre on Tuesday afternoon. Mr. Tree was supported by Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Edward Terry, Mr. Cyril Maude, and Mr. C. I. Coltson (secretary), and among the others present were:—Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. Laurence Irving, Mr. E. H. Bull, Mr. Akerman May, Mr. C. Cruikshanks, Mr. Sydney Paxton, Mr. Harry Nicholls, Mrs. C. Gay, Mr. Henry Evill, Mr. P. de Pinto, Miss C. Rivington, Mrs. Ernest Collins, Mr. T. P. Haynes, Mr. J. H. Mote, Mr. G. Gisburne, Mr. C. Cooper, the Rev. C. E. L. Wright, Miss Clara Jecks, Mr. Frank Safford, Miss Edith Blanche, Mr. J. W. Langdon, and Miss Agnes Imlay.

The secretary read the committee's report and the auditors' report, which were as follow:—

REPORT FOR 1906.

The committee have again to deplore the loss of a good friend in the death of Mr. John Lawrence Toole, who was one of the originators of the Fund, and one of its trustees from its inception. He generously bequeathed the Fund the sum of £500, free of legacy duty.

The committee, while able to report a year's work of a most satisfactory nature, inasmuch as the total income has been in excess of any previous year (as will be seen on reference to the annexed accounts), cannot but regret a falling-off in the amount of the subscriptions; the subscribers numbering 805, while the total sum subscribed has been £865 12s., as against £1,136 18s. 2d., contributed in 1905. This falling-off in the subscription it is hoped is but temporary.

The committee desire to remind all those interested in the Actors' Benevolent Fund that the day for collections to be made throughout the whole of the United Kingdom in each theatre and every company on the road is "Actors' Saturday," the last Saturday in January. This date has now passed, but as the collecting lists are not expected to be returned to the offices before Feb. 16, there is still time for those ladies and gentlemen who are kindly collecting for the Fund to urge each member of his or her company to contribute something to the only Fund which can afford assistance in the hour of need.

The committee desire to record their most cordial and grateful thanks to the Fund's president, Sir Charles Wyndham, for kindly presiding at its annual dinner, the result of which has been a record in theatrical festivals. To all those who so generously supported Sir Charles on that occasion the committee tender their most grateful thanks.

The committee are very grateful to those actors and actresses who have generously devoted to the Fund the monies received by them in exchange for their autograph, the amount received during the past year being £90 16s. 9d.

The governing bodies of the Marylebone and the Surrey Cricket Clubs have again generously given the free use of their grounds for the matches played for the benefit of the Theatrical Funds, and the committee tender to them their very grateful thanks. The cordial thanks of the committee are also tendered to the gentlemen who kindly organised the matches.

ACTORS' SATURDAY, JANUARY 26TH, 1907.

The committee most urgently appeal to the whole of the members of the theatrical calling to contribute something to the collection which is now being made throughout the United Kingdom. The smallest sums will be thankfully received and acknowledged in the theatrical papers.

A small subscription carries with it not only a first claim upon the Fund for pecuniary assistance, but it also gives the power to recommend deserving applicants.

It is requested that contributions be handed to the gentlemen who are kindly collecting at the theatres. By order.

C. I. Coltson, Secretary.

London, Jan. 11, 1907.

The Chairman, in proposing the adoption of the report and accounts, said:—Ladies and Gentlemen,—I rise to move the adoption of the report and accounts. As this is a business meeting, I will make my remarks as brief and as business-like as possible. You will see from the report and the accompanying balance-sheet that the affairs of the Actors' Benevolent Fund are in a most flourishing condition. The income this year is the largest on record. There is invested a sum of £24,000, and it is hoped that this sum will increase year by year. In addition, we have the interest of the Covent Garden and the "Betty" Funds. This brings our annual income up to over £5,000 per annum. Fourteen hundred and ninety-two cases have been assisted in the course of the past year, while the sum of £3,399 has been distributed in relief. There are seventy aged actors and actresses who are in receipt of weekly allowances, and these allowances absorb the sum of nearly £2,000 per annum. So, you see, we have reason to be proud of our Fund. You will notice that up to the present the year's subscriptions from actors and actresses are £300 short of the previous year; but this is easily accounted for, for, as you know, the Actors' Day Fund, which was started in October last, has received subscriptions to the extent of £1,400. I hope and believe that a large proportion of this sum will shortly come into our coffers. Nothing could be more noble in purpose than that each actor should give up one night's salary in every year, in order to relieve the distress of his brethren, and it will indeed be a proud day if this custom becomes universal. When that day does come, we shall then be able to do without appeals to the public of any kind. I confess I myself would prefer to do without the annual dinner; I would prefer to do without garden fêtes, but we must remember that there is yet something more important than our amour propre, and that is that distress should be relieved. It should also be remembered that, in the course of the year, we actors are the means of assisting other charities, and the public in return are only too glad to come forward and to help our charities. I will read a few letters which have been received by us. Mr. Lionel Rignold writes:—"We have put up your list, but I think there will not be a response, as the company have already given a subscription to the Actors' Day Fund." Mr. John Hart writes from Bradford to say that he is unable to send any further contribution to the Actors' Saturday Fund, as he has already given his donations from his various theatres to the Actors' Day Fund. Mr. Laurence Irving also writes:—"I dare say you are prepared to find that very many will consider the subscriptions to Actors' Day as covering all further claims." I am also able to tell you that in this theatre my company and I intend shortly to give a performance in aid of our funds. We hope the amount will be considerable, so that is to be taken into account as well. I have a letter from a firm of solicitors in Lincoln's Inn Fields as follows:—

"Dear Sir,—Re Charles James Oldham, deceased: We are directed by the executors of the late Mr. C. J. Oldham, of 30, Brunswick-square, Brighton, who died on Jan. 24, to inform you that the testator, by his will, left the Society the sum of £1,000, from which, of course, will have to be deducted the legacy duty of ten per cent. We shall be glad if you will let us know who are the proper persons to give discharge to the executors for the amount payable."

This will be very good news for the Fund. I will conclude by expressing the hope that all the funds in connection with our profession may flourish, but, above all, I hope that this, the greatest of all our funds, may ever continue to be foremost in our affection and our regard.

Mr. Edward Terry briefly seconded the adoption of the report and accounts, and the proposal was carried by the meeting.

Mr. George Alexander said that he wanted to point out that there was a movement to amalgamate all the funds. The endeavour was to formulate some scheme by which a reduction of expenses could be effected. He thought it as well to say that the new advisory board had been chosen from all ranks of the profession. It would not be a bad idea if they could take upon their shoulders the consolidation of all the funds, and the distribution thereof, in a manner similar to that in which King Edward's Hospital Fund was conducted. A great advantage would be gained if the expenses connected with the distribution of the money could be reduced.

The Chairman, in proposing a vote of thanks to the committee, said that it gave him an opportunity of referring to what Mr. Alexander had just said. He quite agreed with the opinion advanced by Mr. Alexander, and he himself had always advocated the fusion of all the funds into one great controlling body. No doubt the committe, in returning thanks, would probably say a word or two as to the expenditure in connection with the Actors' Benevolent Fund. He had great pleasure in proposing a vote of thanks to the committee, who had on every occasion done their utmost to serve the interests of the Fund.

The Rev. C. E. L. Wright, in seconding, said that he thought it would be a great privilege to the public to be able to assist the Fund, and he thought, too, that the public might have been given the opportunity of taking part in the Irving Memorial. He thought that the committee had done their work very well indeed, and he testified to their excellent business capabilities.

Mr. Edward Terry, replying on behalf of the committee, remarked that he felt not a little proud in being asked to do so. He would like to say a word or two in regard to what had fallen from Mr. George Alexander as to the expenses of administration. These were comparatively small, compared with the fact that they had had to deal with 1,492 cases during the year. Their office and incidental expenses were cut down to the lowest limit. But he wished to urge upon them that, if the committee had to administer to the requirements of 5,000 cases, the expenses would be almost the same. Every care was taken that not a single penny was wasted. Money would, however, be saved if all the funds could be consolidated. He assured them, in conclusion, that the committee would exert their best efforts on behalf of the Fund.

Mr. Charles Cruikshanks proposed a vote of thanks to, and the re-election of, the hon. standing counsel, Mr. J. Safford; the hon. solicitors, Messrs. J. Mote and Son; the hon. auditors, Messrs. W. Westcott, Maskall, and Co.; the hon. physicians, Drs. G. Stoker, F. Horton Villanueva, C. Atkin Swan, and R. P. Middlemist; and the hon. dentists, Messrs. P. de Pinto and Hubert J. Wooldridge.

Mr. E. H. Bull seconded, and acknowledgments were made by Mr. J. Safford, Mr. H. J. Mote, Mr. P. de Pinto, and Mr. Gisburne.

The Secretary asked for three scrutineers of votes, and Mr. Aubrey Smith, Mr. Henry Evill, and Mr. P. de Pinto were appointed.

Mr. Alexander proposed the appointment of Sir Charles Wyndham as a trustee, and Mr. Terry, in seconding, testified to his pleasure at having Sir Charles as a fellow-trustee. The proposal was carried.

The Chairman then announced Sir Charles Wyndham's re-election as president of the Fund.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Mr. Cecil Raleigh says that I have either read an incorrect report of his speech, or that I have misunderstood him. I don't think I have done either, though I admit that my understanding has been somewhat taxed by the various changes of policy adopted by Mr. Raleigh during the last few years, and even if he has now arrived at a finality of policy, it does not alter my original contention as to who are the best judges of the needs, &c., of the rank and file of the profession.

And this brings me to the real object of this, my last letter on this subject, as, whatever the rejoinder, I shall not further trespass on the hospitality of your columns. It is to refute the statement in the "humorously sarcastic" paragraph with which Mr. Raleigh concludes his letter, and in which he says that he has the satisfaction of knowing that he is doing "something" whilst we do "nothing." This statement is so unfair, and unfounded, that, in order to avoid flatly contradicting Mr. Raleigh, one is tempted to drop into his own humorous style, and say that either he does not know of the efforts which are being, and have been made by his less fortunate brethren, or that his deservedly high reputation as an author has prompted him to write—"a story."—Yours faithfully, EDWARD VAN BIENE.

In the Court of Bankruptcy, on the 1st inst., an application for an order of discharge was made by F. C. Moufiet, formerly trading as a licensed victualler and hotel-keeper at the Al Tower, Central Meat Market, E.C., and the Greyhound Hotel, Richmond. Debtor filed his petition in July, 1905, attributing his failure to loss in connection with a theatre at Richmond, and to pressure by mortgagees. The trustee now reported that the sum of £4748 had been realised in respect of the estate, and that a dividend of 2s. 10½d. in the £ had been paid on proofs admitted for £22,035. The offences reported were that the assets were not equal to 10s. in the £, and that the debtor had continued to trade after knowing himself to be insolvent. The discharge was suspended for two years.

The death is announced of Mr. Thomas Threlfall, the well-known musical patron, who passed away last Sunday morning. He was the eldest son of the late Mr. John Mayor Threlfall, of Liverpool, and was born in that city in 1843. He was educated at Cambridge, and called to the Bar in 1868, subsequently joining the Northern Circuit. In 1886 Mr. Threlfall joined the committee of management of the Royal Academy of Music, was appointed chairman in 1888, and also chairman of the Associated Board of that institution and the Royal College of Music for Local Examinations in Music.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

It may be taken as evidence of his popularity in Lancashire that Mr. Chalmers Mackey, the inimitable Irish comedian, had a very full house when he presented Some Day at the Salford Theatre, and he had the satisfaction of seeing the play thoroughly enjoyed. A thick vein of comedy runs through the piece, which also possesses incidents of the most exciting kind. The prologue is laid in India, where Lord Marsden and Captain Valrose are stationed with their regiment, and the scene opens in the grounds occupied by Lord Marsden. Lady Marsden, who had been away in England some years, presently arrives with her companion, Ruth Vernon. Lady Marsden is apprehensive of her husband finding out that the baby she has brought is not her husband's, and Ruth promises to keep her secret. Captain Valrose, an impecunious gambler, partially overhears their conversation, and resolves upon blackmail. On Lady Marsden going indoors, Valrose comes out of his hiding, and recognises Ruth as the woman he had disgraced and left about five years previously. He tries to get Lady Marsden's secret out of her, but Ruth threatens that if he attempts anything of the sort she will show him up, and tell of his cheating at cards at Monte Carlo, when he shot his opponent. As she is about to go indoors the scoundrel shoots her, and she dies, saying "Oh! my child," thus revealing that it was his child that had been foisted on Lord Marsden. The first scene of the first act is in a club house in Piccadilly; which appears to be frequented by Valrose and a confederate, Count de Morney, to whom Valrose is deeply indebted for money lent. During the time that has elapsed Lord Marsden has died, and the child Evelyn has grown up into a young lady, and Lady Marsden wishes to see her married to the son of her brother-in-law Philip. Valrose and the Count come to the club, and discuss a scheme to raise money by getting the Count married to Evelyn, the supposed heiress. Philip—who had promised his dead uncle (Lord Marsden) to follow up and avenge the murder of Ruth—overhears their plot, and the two villains, in order to find out whether he has overheard anything that will incriminate them, invite Philip to a game of cards. Philip, seeing marked cards being used, and his wine being drugged, denounces them, and refuses to play. Lady Marsden subsequently tells Philip of her desire regarding Evelyn, and afterwards reveals her secret to Evelyn. The late Lord Marsden and his brother, she tells her, were rivals for her hand, and she took the richer. On her return from India to England she saw a woman taken out of the Thames, and recognised her as Ruth Vernon (a former companion), who had attempted suicide. Ruth told her of her unhappy position, and shortly afterwards gave birth to a girl. Lady Marsden, fearing that her husband's estate would go to his brother's son, Philip, suggests the adoption of Ruth's child, Evelyn, and the employment of Ruth as governess. This recital only binds Lady Marsden and Evelyn closer in affection, and Philip, having overheard, realises that he is the heir to the estates. Valrose afterwards comes with the Count, whom he introduces for the purpose of marriage with Evelyn, and reveals himself to Lady Marsden as the father of Evelyn. High words ensue, in the course of which Lady Marsden denounces him as the murderer of Ruth.

The last act takes place in the drawing-room of Lady Marsden's house. She does not like giving up the idea of being mother to Evelyn, but cannot refuse to allow Valrose to see his child. Paddy Dolan, Lady Marsden's Irish servant, finds in a newspaper a likeness of the Count, who is wanted by the police as a notorious thief, and intending to get the reward offered, shows it to Philip. Paddy and Philip try to engage the attention of Valrose and the Count until the police arrive, but Valrose is suspicous, and arranges for the Count to seize Evelyn and carry her off to their coiners' den, Valrose declaring he can do what he likes with Evelyn as he is her father. Paddy produces the pistol with which Valrose had shot Ruth, and which bears the murderer's name, and by this means convicts him of the crime. Paddy and Philip find their way to the coiners' den. The villains are attacked, and the Count jumps into the river when the other characters enter with the police. Valrose is arrested for the murder of Ruth, and Evelyn is taken to the arms of Philip, and the "some day" of happiness appears to be near.

Mr. Chalmers Mackey as Paddy, a soldier servant, and then a butler, simply revelled in the fun of the part, and he had excellent accomplices in Mr. St. John Stuart as Dan Watkins, a soldier and waiter, and in Miss Nana Flensburg as Jennie, a housemaid, for whose hand the pair were rivals. Mr. David McFarlane was very successful as Captain Valrose; and Mr. Arthur Rose cleverly played Lord Marsden and Philip. Mr. H. Sainsbury did good work as Colonel Holmes, and afterwards as Count de Morney. Mrs. Chalmers Mackey ably presented Ruth and Evelyn; and Miss A. Liddon made a good impression by her successful rendering of the very trying part of Lady Marsden.

THE WHISKY OF WORLD WIDE REPUTE.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. T. P. O'CONNOR, M.P., will preside at a dinner to be given to Mr. J. M. Glover at the Hotel Cecil, on Sunday, Feb. 24, in celebration of his election to the Mayoralty of Bexhill on-Sea. Mr. Glover, besides filling the conductor's seat at Drury Lane, has interests at Bexhill-on-Sea, and to his energetic efforts towards the promotion of amusements is due in a great measure the popularity which that pleasant resort has acquired.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER has entered upon the arduous duties of an electioneering campaign, and called his constituents together yesterday at the Scala Theatre. Subsequent meetings in support of his candidature for the County Council will be held on Feb. 22, at the Prospect-terrace Council School, and on Feb. 28, at the Whitefield Tabernacle, Tottenham Court-road.

IN his electioneering address the popular actor-manager expresses himself strongly opposed to the extension of municipal trading. If necessary, he will advocate the abandonment of the London County Council steamboat service, but he is in favour of continuing the tramway service, but on sounder financial principles than heretofore. The need for a cheap supply of electricity is also urged by Mr. Alexander, who is convinced that London could be much better governed at considerably less expense. The candidate's committee-rooms are at 133, Judd-street.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE is among the latest additions to the brilliant programme which will be presented at the Royalty Theatre on Friday afternoon in aid of the French Hospital in London and the Lord Mayor's Jamaica Fund. The occasion will be marked by Mr. Maude's first appearance as the Englishman in the French play, L'Anglais tel qu'on le parle, by Tristan Bernard, the author of Toddles. The remainder of the cast will be sustained by members of the Paris Vaudeville Theatre, and of Mr. Gaston Mayer's company at the Royalty Theatre. Mlle. Jeanne Granier, Mme. Jane Hading, Mr. Lewis Waller, Miss Marie Tempest, Miss Edna May, Miss Ruth Vincent, Mr. Basil Gill, and Mr. Lyn Harding have also consented to make contributions to the entertainment.

MR. H. B. IRVING, Miss Dorothea Baird, and company arrived on the 1st inst. from America, where their reception was of the most enthusiastic character throughout the tour. During the voyage to Liverpool on the Saxonia a concert was given by the members of Mr. Irving's company in aid of the seamen's charities. On March 25, at Aberdeen, Mr. Irving will begin a tour with The Bells, The Lyons Mail, Charles I., and King Rene's Daughter, in the first three of which the young actor plays the characters with which the fame of his illustrious father is so closely associated.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER is shortly again to adorn the evening bill at the Garrick, where Miss Gladys Unger's comedy, which is to be called Mr. Sheridan, is now in active rehearsal. The play treats of events surrounding the brilliant dramatist's marriage with Miss Ogle, daughter of the Dean of Winchester, and Mr. Bourchier, in the title-rôle, will be principally supported by Miss Alexandra Carlisle, Miss Nancy Price, and Mr. Sydney Valentine. As Mr. Bourchier finds it impossible to make the necessary preparations for the new piece while the stage of the Garrick is occupied with nine performances a week, he has decided that, after next Thursday's matinée, he will suspend the present series of matinées of Macbeth, which will be made the evening attraction at the conclusion of the run of Mr. Sheridan.

MR. LEWIS WALLER will, for the time being, cast aside the more robustious element in his new production, due at the Lyric next month, which is to be a comedy drama of a lighter texture. The new piece, which as yet lacks a title, is by Messrs. Horace Hodges and T. Wigney Percyval, and is in four acts, Mr. Waller's rôle being that of a young Naval officer of the period of George IV. The only lady characters in the piece will be played by Miss Evelyn Millard and Miss Carlotta Addison, two of the finest representatives of their line of business. Mr. Charles Groves, Mr. Charles Fulton, Mr. Ben Webster, Mr. A. E. George, Mr. Herbert Jarman, and Mr. Herman de Lange will also be included in the fine cast.

ADMISSION to the Academy of Dramatic Art is manifestly to be gained only by applicants of distinct promise, as is evidenced by the fact that Sir Squire Bancroft, Mr. John Hare, and Mr. Cyril Maude, who have just held the entrance examination for the winter term rejected 30 per cent. of the candidates who, in their judgment, failed to show sufficient qualification for the professional stage. The academy now numbers 100 pupils, and the council announces that no more can be admitted before the end of next April. Among the senior students who have received professional engagements are Mr. A. E. Benedict, Mr. Herbert Lomas, and Miss Kehr, whose services have been secured by Mr. George Alexander for the tour of His House in Order; Mr. Charles Maude, engaged at the Playhouse; Mr. Frederick Lloyd and Mr. David Powell, now appearing under Miss Ellen Terry's management in America; and Miss Mary Barton (gold medallist of 1906), engaged by Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker at the Court Theatre.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY concludes a most successful week at the Theatre Royal, Hull, to-night. The bill has included The Corsican Brothers, The Breed of the Treshams, and Hamlet, the Shakespearean tragedy being played on three occasions, in each instance drawing a very large and enthusiastic audience, obviously delighted with the charm, romance, and poetry of Mr. Harvey's reading of the title-rôle, and the grace and delicacy of Miss de Silva's Ophelia. On Monday Mr. Harvey commences a week's engagement at the Opera House, Southport, which, as a theatrical town, is becoming an important item on the tour-card.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER was the object of a popular demonstration at the St. James's on the 1st inst., when an interesting event was celebrated. The occasion, besides being the first anniversary of the production of His House in Order, marked the seventeenth year of Mr. Alexander's entry into the managerial arena, which, it will be remembered, began at the Avenue Theatre on Feb. 1, 1890, with Dr. Bill. A handsome souvenir was provided in a copy in white and gold of Mr. Pinero's play, together with coloured pictures and photographs and a facsimile of the author's manuscript. Mr. Alexander, Miss Irene Vanbrugh, and all the principal artists were applauded to the echo.

AT the end of the performance Mr. Alexander took the opportunity of thanking a "generous public and sympathetic Press." In spite of the incidents of the play, he said, they at the St. James's were a very happy family. Unfortunately, their beloved author, Mr. Pinero, was not with them that evening, having been seriously ill. They would be pleased, however, to know that he was in a fair way to recovery, and at work upon a new play, which he was proud to announce would be produced at that theatre. His House in Order, it should be added, will be played for the last time on the 27th inst., and on Thursday, March 7, Mr. Alfred Sutro's play, John Glayde's Honour, will be produced.

WEDNESDAY was the birthday of the late Sir Henry Irving, and a chaplet of laurel leaves placed on the slab of his grave in Westminster Abbey by "Old Lyceum Pittites" was among the tributes to the great actor's memory.

DESPITE the distractions of municipal canvassing, Mr. George Alexander has found time to score over a contemporary who stated that his pronunciation of Jacques as a French monosyllable at the recital of As You Like It last Sunday was justified neither by metre nor by fact. "Permit me to point out," replied Mr. Alexander, "that Orlando never speaks of the melancholy Jacques at all. In Act I., Scene 2, he does speak of Jaques de Bois, his brother (another man altogether), and I did pronounce this Christian name as a monosyllable. I consider I was right in this, and, in any case, I could not have been guilty of destroying the metre, as this particular speech is in prose."

GRAND opera is to achieve a record in London this year, arrangements having been concluded for a season of English opera at Covent Garden next Christmas by the Carl Rosa Company, a twelve months' run thus being completed. Added interest will be given to the visit of this famous organisation by the performance in English of the four operas constituting Wagner's Ring of the Nibelungs. Up to the present only one of the four works has been performed in the English language, and that is The Valkyrie, which the Carl Rosa Company produced at the Prince's, Manchester, in 1896.

LEADING actors took a prominent part in the reading of As You Like It given by the British Empire Shakespeare Society at the Passmore Edwards Settlement on Sunday. The parts of Orlando and Rosalind, read by Mr. George Alexander and Miss Lilian Braithwaite, afforded a rare treat, and Mr. Arthur Bourchier's delivery of the melancholy Jacques' lines were also keenly enjoyed. Miss Dorothy Grimston was the Celia, Mr. Charles Fry the Adam, and other parts in Shakespeare's popular comedy were taken by Mr. Athol Stewart, Mr. Kenyon Musgrave, Miss Claire Greet, Mr. Vivian Reynolds, and Mr. Cecil Cameron, who sang the incidental numbers, while the two first prize winners in the recent Shakespearean contests at the St. James's also took part.

MR. HALL CAINE has retained Mr. Austin Melford for his original part of the Factor, when The Prodigal Son follows The Bondman at the Adelphi. Mr. Melford, it will be remembered, was one of the conspicuous hits of the production at Drury Lane, and his retention in the cast will be invaluable to the success of the revival. Miss Lily Hall Caine will be the Thora of the reproduction, which is announced for Tuesday, the 19th inst.

MR. GERALD DU MAURIER, who so conspicuously added to his laurels by his impersonation of the redoubtable hero of Raffles, will resume the part at the Comedy this evening. Mr. Henry Ainley, who succeeded Mr. du Maurier when he took up his part of the Pirate King in Peter Pan, now relinquishes the character in order to devote himself to rehearsals of his rôle in La Belle Marseillaise.

MRS. SAM LIVESEY (Miss Maggie Edwards), we are glad to announce, has quite recovered from her serious illness, having spent two months at her home in Torquay. Mrs. Livesey is desirous of thanking all her friends for the beautiful flowers and fruit sent during her stay at the Middlesex Hospital.

THE Runnacleave Hall and Theatre at Ilfracombe has once more come under the hotel management. At a meeting of the Council on Tuesday Mrs. Chown, the manageress of the Runnacleave Hotel, was unanimously granted the stage play licence.

"TOMMY," the new play by Mr. Jerome K. Jerome, which Mr. Bannister Howard will present at the Crystal Palace Theatre on Monday, is sure to draw enormous audiences. Miss Hughes is deservedly a great favourite, and coming, as she does, with an excellent play by so clever an author, the attraction will prove a very strong one to playgoers round about Sydenham. There will be matinées on Wednesday and Saturday. When Mr. Jerome wrote Tommy for Miss Annie Hughes he emphasised the fact by writing her thus: "You are the embodiment of all that is sweet and pure in woman, Miss Hughes. My 'Tommy' is the study of a woman with a big heart, a fine nature, so, Miss Hughes, take 'Tommy,' mould her after your own image."

MR. AND MRS. GODFREY TEARLE, having secured the rights of Mr. Gordon Holmes's new romantic play, A Soldier of Fortune, will, for the present, abandon their Shakespearean tour in favour of Mr. Holmes's piece. This play deals with a stirring incident in the Civil Wars of Charles I., and presents great scope for spectacular effect. The scenery has been specially designed and executed by M. Fissi, and the wigs and costumes will be by Gustave and Hyman respectively.

THE vacancy at Covent Garden caused by the acceptance by M. André Messager of the directorship of the Grand Opéra in Paris has been filled by the appointment of Mr. Neil Forsyth as general manager and Mr. Percy Pitt as musical director. Mr. Forsyth has long been identified with the active management of the Royal Opera House, and Mr. Pitt's promotion to the position of musical director is rendered more noteworthy by the fact that he is the first Englishman chosen to act in that capacity.

"MY DARLING," the new musical play by Mr. Seymour Hicks, will make her first curtsey at the theatre bearing the favourite comedian's name on Saturday, March 2, with Miss Marie Studholme, Mr. H. A. Lytton, and Mr. J. T. McArdle in the chief parts. Meanwhile, The Beauty of Bath will hold court for the last time on the 23rd inst, after which Mr. and Mrs. Hicks will go on a twelve weeks' tour with the piece, starting at the Shakespeare, Liverpool, on March 4. September next will see the popular pair back in London with a new musical comedy.

THE recital of Everyman, given by Mr. John Hastings Batson at Croydon on the 26th inst., was under the patronage of H.R.H. the Princess Louise. Mr. Batson also had the honour of receiving a note from Mr. Beerbohm Tree, wishing him success. Mr. Tree, writes Mr. Batson, is one of the hardest-worked men in London, but he found time to remember me—a fact that I am proud of.

MR. LEONARD AARDALE, who concluded with Her Second Time on Earth at Christmas with Walter Melville, was transferred to his brother, Andrew Melville, with whom he is now in his seventh week of tour as Willie in Driven from Home.

THE Comedy Theatre was well filled on Thursday afternoon for the first of a series of matinées of Mrs. de la Pasture's charming comedy, Peter's Mother, which is to be repeated at matinées every Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday. The cast is practically the same as before, and includes Miss Marion Terry, Mr. Norman McKinnel, Mr. Fredk. Kerr, and Mr. A. E. Matthews in their old parts, of which they give their customary fine renderings.

MME. CLARA BUTT is fast recovering from the illness with which she was seized at Macclesfield last week. The famous diva was taking part in a concert at the Drill Hall, when she acceded several times to the demand for encores. At the end of the performance Mme. Butt complained of sore throat, and it was subsequently found that she was suffering from rheumatic tonsilitis, which developed afterwards into double quinsy. On Saturday, happily, the doctors declared their patient to be out of danger, and her complete restoration to health may now be confidently anticipated.

MR. LUSCOMBE SEARELLE, we are sorry to learn, has had a serious relapse, and is now in a somewhat critical condition at the Savoy Mansions. If he does not show improvement by Monday he will be removed to a private hospital, where he will have to undergo another operation. His illness will not interfere with the contemplated production of his poetical and musical drama, Mizpah, as arrangements are nearly completed whereby its first performance in England will take part on Easter Monday at a West End theatre. Mr. Cecil Barth has control of all Mr. Searelle's business arrangements.

THE usual weekly meeting of the Council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday, when there were present Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. A. E. Drinkwater (deputy chairman), Mr. Henry W. Mote (hon. solicitor), Mesdames Carlotta Addison, Kate Bishop, Beatrice Lamb, Kate Phillips, and Messrs Cecil Barth, J. Cooke Beresford, Clarence Blakiston, Burton Cooke, Thalberg Corbett, F. Cremlin, William Devereux, Fewlass Llewellyn, Herbert Shelley, A. B. Tapping, Spencer Trevor, Frank Vernon, Fredk. Volpe, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary).

THE hon. solicitors reported they had advised two members on points submitted. Mr. Robert M. Taylor was elected a commissioner. Several matters in connection with the holding of the social meetings were discussed. The chairman referred to the opening of the Ramsgate Centre, at Spes Bona, Grange-road, and the suggestions of Miss Gracie Murielle, the hon. secretary, which were agreed to. A case of alleged insanitation at a provincial theatre was considered.

THE agenda for the sixteenth annual general meeting, to be held at the Playhouse on the 19th inst., was referred to the Finance and General Purposes Committee for settlement. A member requested advice, and the question was referred to the hon. solicitors. Propositions as to the appointment of two additional hon. medical officers were considered, and the secretary received instructions. Ernest A. G. Gosset, Millie Hamer, Hastings Lynn, Geo. Stanley-Kenwin, Alfred Grenville, and Helen Richmond were nominated for election to the Actors' Association, and Fredk. Norton, Mary Stuart, Herbert Grimwood, Herbert Clayton, Everard Digby, and Graham Falcon were nominated for reinstatement.

THE Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday to prepare the agenda for the sixteenth annual general meeting. There were present Messrs. J. Cooke Beresford (in the chair), A. E. Drinkwater, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary).

THE Adelphi will give hospitality at Easter to the German Comic Opera Company of Berlin, who will have a season of eight weeks there. They begin with a piece by Offenbach, and will be followed by the most popular productions of the company, which it should be added brings over all the necessary equipment.

STEADY progress is being made with the constitution of the Actors' Day Fund. At their adjourned meeting on Saturday last the Advisory Board decided on the allocation of the money collected in 1906, and had further in consideration a definite scheme for dealing with the funds collected for future years. They will meet again at an early date, when full particulars will be issued.

MR. WILLIAM MOLLISON is attracting brilliant audiences to Mr. Arthur's beautiful new theatre at Aberdeen this week, where his rendering of Macbeth, Shylock, and Jaques have been greatly admired. The Lord Provost and magistrates attended in their official robes of office, while officers representing all the branches of the Services in Aberdeen were present in uniform, giving the theatre quite a gala appearance.

MR. AND MRS. FRANK BERESFORD have been engaged by Mr. Harold V. Neilson for the spring tour of The Perfect Lover, opening on Monday at the Gaiety Theatre, Dublin. Mr. Beresford will play Lord Cardew, and Mrs. Beresford (Miss Dorothy Milne) will resume her old part of Martha Tremblatt.

MR. GEORGE HARTLEY MANNERS, who has made New York his field of operations for some time, has written yet another play, called A Marriage of Reason, which was produced at Washington on Jan. 23 by Klaw and Erlanger, with Miss Fannie Ward in the leading part. Cable advices say that Mr. Manners' play has made a great hit, and that Miss Ward has received unqualified recognition for her work.

WE are pleased to announce that Mr. Henry George has sufficiently recovered from his severe illness to take a trip to the South of France for a few months. He hopes to be able to resume work in the autumn.

ANOTHER of the popular "Socials" at the Actors' Association will be held on Friday next, when Mr. J. T. Grein will read a paper on the subject of an entente cordiale theatre. Mr. Lawrence Grant will take the chair.

MR. CLARENCE SOUNES, who for the past twenty years has so successfully catered for the Aldershot public at the Theatre Royal, was this week unanimously granted an unrestricted licence by a full Bench of magistrates for a new Hippodrome which he proposes to at once commence erecting. The new house will be built on his own site at the corner of Station-road—one of the most prominent positions in the town—from plans prepared by Mr. Bertie Crewe, and recently passed by the local Council.

MISS MAY HART, who has just concluded a successful pantomime engagement as Sinbad at the Theatre Royal, Bath, has been re-engaged by Mr. Lionel Rignold and Miss Ada Blanche for little Sophy in What the Butler Saw. Miss Hart was the original Sophy on tour, her youthful appearance and the amount of vivacity she infused into the part making her entirely successful.

MR. WALTER MELVILLE will produce The Convict's Daughter at the Standard Theatre on Monday by arrangement with Mr. Frank Bertram. On August Bank Holiday Mr. Bertram will make his annual visit to the principal drama theatres with The Convict's Daughter, and will, in addition, send The Breed of the Treshams and Hearts Adrift on tour. Mr. Bertram, it may be added, is fully booked with his sketch The Chaperone up to the end of July on the Stoll tour.

AT the Pier Pavilion, Eastbourne, extensive additions have been made at the back of the stage. Four new star rooms have been added, and they are of the most comfortable and cosy kind. The walls are lined with a fireproof composition, and this has been decorated with a rich red wall-paper. These rooms, with three others, are on the stage level, and conveniently situated.

MR. H. F. MALTBY opens his spring tour at the County Theatre, Bedford, with The Youngest of Three. The second week of the tour will witness the production at the Theatre Royal, Dover, of his new comedy Sir George of Almack's, which will be played in conjunction with the first-named piece at return dates. The company engaged is a very strong one, and will include, besides Mr. Maltby himself, Miss Mara Maltby, Miss Grace Richardson, Miss Janet Hodson, Mr. Wyn Weaver, Mr. Reginald Favell, Mr. Franc Stoney, Mr. R. S. Innes, and Mr. H. L. Dobree.

AT a meeting in regard to the late John A. Atkin Memorial, held at the Standard Theatre on Tuesday, it was resolved that the members of the committee should be requested to communicate at their earliest convenience, stating their views as to when the above fund should be closed. It has been proposed to close the subscription list on Saturday, Feb. 23. All members should endeavour to communicate with their friends, requesting that any amounts should be forwarded to the hon. treasurer, Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, c/o The Era, by the above date.

MR. WILFRED STANFORD has forwarded to the Actors' Benevolent Fund a further sum of £4 3s., which has been collected in the Fund's box at the Camden Theatre.

THE detective drama, The Medium, which is advertised abroad as another Sherlock Holmes drama, is causing quite a controversy between spiritualists and anti-spiritualists on account of its novel third act, which plays at a spiritualistic séance. It is a novel idea to use spiritualism for the unravelling of a plot, and the audience thoroughly enjoy the thrilling scene.

WE regret to announce the death on Thursday last of Mr. Arthur Augustus Wood, who had a long theatrical career, and was known to London and provincial playgoers as a sound and useful actor. He was specially engaged to play the part of Crabtree when the Bancrofts revived The School for Scandal at the old Prince of Wales's on April 4, 1874, and he also appeared as Colley Cibber in the revival of Masks and Faces the following year. In the spring of 1887 he went on tour as a leading member of Miss Fortescue's company, and in the autumn of the same year toured as Sergeant Buster in Forbidden Fruit. On the production of Ned's Chum by Christie Murray, at the Globe Theatre on Aug. 27, 1891, Mr. Wood played the part of Mr. Brocklehurst. His services were frequently secured for matinée performances, and he appeared as Jack Barnard, an old sailor, in The Penalty, by Julian Cross, produced at Terry's Theatre on Dec. 2, 1890; as Gilbert, a faithful old servant, in Hilda, a three-act play, by Mrs. Bernard Wishaw, produced at the Princess's on March 28, 1892; and as Josiah Duckweed in the farcical comedy, A Lost Sheep, by A. Shirley and W. Parke, produced at an Opera Comique matinée on July 30, 1892. Of late Mr. Wood has only occasionally appeared on the boards; and he died suddenly of heart failure at his residence, St. Mary's-road, Peckham, on Thursday last.

ALL will sympathise with Mr. Leslie Gaze, who had the misfortune to break his leg whilst skating at Sunny Vale Gardens, near Hailfax, on Monday. Mr. Gaze, who should have opened in the evening at the Theatre Royal, Halifax, as Major Callabone in Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production of The Blue Moon, was, with a few fellow members of the company, paying a visit to the popular rinks. His part was admirably taken up by Mr. Parti at a few hours' notice.

"AMASIS," the successful Egyptian comic opera, has terminated its career at the Criterion after a run of two hundred performances, and will now go on tour, starting at the Borough Theatre, Stratford, on Monday. Mr. Calvert has been fortunate enough to secure for the title-rôle the services of Miss Constance Drever, who made such a marked impression in The Princess of Kensington at the Savoy Theatre. The rest of the company is the same as that which has appeared during the London run, and includes Messrs. Rutland Barrington, Lauri de Frece, Whitworth Mitton, Roland Cunningham, and Norman Salmond.

A FATAL accident occurred at the Grand Theatre, Leeds, last week, when Thomas Harvey, the property man, attempted to enter a lift, the hoist of which had been left on the ground floor, and fell a distance of 16ft., fracturing his skull. He died from the effects of his injuries on Monday, and at the inquest on Tuesday a verdict of accidental death was returned.

MR. MILTON BODE'S pantomime of Aladdin finishes its successful career at the Opera House, Northampton, to-night. On Tuesday and Wednesday the proprietors devoted the receipts, less actual expenses, to the Northampton Good Samaritan Society.

A PLAYLET, entitled Nelson, was produced, for copyright purposes only, at the Coronet Theatre on Saturday morning last. The author is Mr. Louis Cohen, who, it may be remembered, was responsible for that interesting work The Drummer of the 76th.

MISS MAY PALFREY will make her long-promised and very welcome reappearance in London on Thursday next, when, by arrangement with Mr. Jerrard Grant Allen, she will reopen the Criterion with Three Blind Mice, a comedy by Arthur Law, the author of The New Boy, in which Miss Palfrey made so many appearances with Mr. Weedon Grossmith some years ago. The new piece, which was fully described in our columns on its production at Margate last July, offers many opportunities to Miss Palfrey, who will be aided by an admirable cast, including Mr. Frederick Kerr, Mr. O. B. Clarence, Miss Kate Serjeantson, Miss Annie Hill, and Miss Granville.

MR. WILLIAM J. LOCKE, the author of The Morals of Marcus, has gone in again for alliteration in the title of his new piece, which is to be called The Palace of Puck, and is destined to follow Lady Huntsworth's Experiment in due course at the Haymarket. The play is of a modern tendency, and three of its characters will provide congenial rôles for Miss Marion Terry, Mr. H. V. Esmond, and Mr. Charles Hawtrey. This alteration in Mr. Harrison's plans is due to the fact that Mr. R. C. Carton has been prevented by illness from finishing his new play, and that a suitable young actress to play in Mr. Michael Morton's version of Mademoiselle Josette, Ma Femme, is not at present available.

MISS GERTIE MILLAR wishes to offer her thanks as widely as possible to the very many persons who, from all parts of the kingdom, have written to her to express their surprise and their sympathy at the result of her recent "faked photographs" action in the Law Courts. "Against the verdict in Monckton v. Dunn and Co.," says the lady, "my husband and I have decided not to appeal. I am advised by counsel that the summing-up of Mr. Justice Darling gives me ample grounds for asking for a new trial; but I am content to leave the matter as it is. A jury has told me that I was wrong in bringing my action; the Press and the public tell me that I was right, and uphold me in my view that an actress has as good a claim to consider herself defamed by the publication of an unseemly and fictitious 'photograph' of herself as any other woman in the kingdom. In this public verdict I find all the consolation I need."

MISS SOPHIE HARRISS, whose prowess in the hunting-field and skill in driving a four-in-hand, have won for her a reputation in the world of sport almost akin to that which she holds in front of the footlights, has hitherto eschewed motors of every shape and make, but an accident to her carriage on the way to the theatre recently, compelled her to have recourse to the formerly despised automobile. Since then, Miss Harriss has been seized with the motor fever in its most virulent form, and a week ago became the proud possessor of a lovely 12-16 double phaeton Clement-Talbot, with side entrance, Cape-cart hood, and glass screen, which carried its fair owner on Sunday last from Longton to Wakefield in record time.

MR. J. W. TURNER, the well-known operatic artist and manager, bade farewell on Saturday to the Birmingham Grand Theatre, which has now passed into the hands of the Moss Empires Company. Mr. Turner had been lessee of the Grand Theatre for many years, and the occasion coincided with the twenty-first year of the organisation of his well-known opera company. A crowded and brilliant audience graced the occasion on Saturday, when Maritana was staged, with Mr. Turner as Don Cæsar. At the conclusion of the performance Mr. Turner was presented with a beautifully illuminated address standing on an easel. The presentation was made on behalf of the subscribers by Councillor R. C. Marsh, who gave a short resumé of Mr. Turner's career. The address made special reference to the services rendered to English operatic art in this country, and to the esteem in which Mr. Turner has been held by the public for so many years.

IN acknowledging the presentation, Mr. Turner stated that when he retired into private life the address would remind him of the many pleasant hours he had spent among them. He appreciated their generous support. It had been his endeavour to give the best music of which he was capable—principally in the form of opera—and the response to his efforts all over the country had been most gratifying. It was twenty-one years since he became manager of that opera company on his own account, and it had been twenty-one years of uninterrupted success. He was afraid to say how many years he had been identified with opera before that time. He reciprocated the good wishes expressed in the address.

AT the invitation of Mr. Henry Taylor, the esteemed manager of the Lyceum Theatre, Crewe, the Union Workhouse children paid their annual visit to the theatre last Saturday, and were delighted with The Babes in the Wood pantomime of Messrs. Cullen and Carthy. Mrs. Taylor further ministered to the joy of the youngsters by presenting each of them with oranges and chocolates on entering and leaving the theatre.

MR. CHARLES HANNAN'S fantastic comedy, The Electric Man, which has been touring since the commencing of the year, started this week with a second company at Wolverhampton, with Mr. Stanley Cooke in the leading rôle. Mr. Hannan's play will also be produced in South Africa in the course of the next month or two by Mr. Leonard Rayne, who has secured the rights for that country.

MME. SARAH BERNHARDT is enthusiastic over the visit paid by the King and Queen of England to Les Bouffons in Paris on Tuesday. "They were adorable," said Mme. Sarah Bernhardt, referring to their Majesties. "They told me my acting was superb, and that the piece was delightful, and my theatre the finest in Paris. Then they asked that M. Zanmacois, the author, should be presented to them, so I sent for him, and their Majesties paid him many compliments."

AN amusing incident happened at Terry's Theatre on Wednesday evening, when Mr. W. H. C. Nation produced two new plays, the first being a one-act piece, adapted from a story, entitled Weighed in the Balance. Mr. Charles Groves, who appeared in the part of a farmer, had to speak the "tag," but had barely got half-way through when the curtain descended. It rose again, and Mr. Groves made a second attempt, but had scarcely opened his mouth, when down came the curtain a second time, the audience laughing heartily at the contretemps.

AT the Prince's Theatre, Poplar, on Monday, Mr. Clarence Sounes will stage the Scala Theatre production of A Royal Divorce, with Miss Edith Cole as the Empress Josephine. This will be the first "return visit" of any company since Mr. Sounes's opening of his beautiful and successful theatre, which is not only admirably appointed within, but serves by its brilliant exterior to relieve the dullness of the main road in which it is situated.

THE annual general meeting of the Theatrical Managers' Association will be held at the Tavistock Hotel, Covent Garden, on Tuesday next, at three o'clock. Mr. Herbert Blackmore is the secretary.

MR. J. T. GREIN gave a lecture on "The Ethics of the Drama" before the members of the Leicester Literary and Philosophical Society on Monday, the chair being taken by Mr. H. Ellis. At the outset Mr. Grein devoted his attention to a consideration of the emotions aroused by the drama. He expressed the opinion that its aim, motive, and medium was love—love in all its aspects, mental, physical, and moral. One should go to the theatre with an open mind and open heart, and be ready for every impression, every emotion. He declined to admit that the stage blunted feeling, but what he was firmly convinced of was that the nature of the drama and the peculiar atmosphere of the stage had on the adepts an influence which in the eye of the moralist was not free from danger. The lecturer divided playgoers into four categories—first, the people who went to be amused; second, the critical playgoer; third, the playgoer who went after dinner (the digestive playgoer); and, fourth, the habitual and incorrigible dandy (the deadhead). That class of playgoers who loved the theatre, not simply as a recreation, but because it stimulated the imagination, taught them to think and to cultivate a sense of the beautiful, was not so large in London as one could wish. The theatre in England was not what it was in France or Germany—a necessity of life, an ethical force.

A NEW musical setting to Cavalleria Rusticana, by Maestro Domenico Mouleone, was produced at Het Volkspaleis, Amsterdam, on Tuesday. The young Italian composer won with this setting the prize of £800, given at the Sozogno competition in Milan last year, but owing to Signor Mascagni holding the copyright for the original libretto, the opera could not be produced in Italy, and Maestro Mouleone was obliged to take it to Holland for a single performance, where he conducted it himself. Mascagni's setting was also given, and voting-papers were distributed to the audience, by which they were invited to signify which version they preferred.

IN the Court of Appeal on Thursday, before the Master of the Rolls and Lords Justices Cozens-Hardy and Moulton, was heard an appeal with reference to an accident which happened to Mrs. Burr, a chorus lady in the Drury Lane Theatre pantomime, The White Cat. Mrs. Burr had brought an action against the management of the theatre for damages, and was non-suited by Mr. Justice Grantham, sitting with a special jury. She now appealed, and asked for judgment or a new trial. Mrs. Burr was attired as a chamberlain, part of her costume being a helmet, inside of which was a spike with the point downwards. At the conclusion of a matinée on Jan. 24, after the curtain had fallen, she was leaving the stage, when a piece of scenery fell upon her head, driving the spike into her skull.

AT the trial it was stated, and agreed to by Mr. Justice Grantham, that the injury had been caused by a sceneshifter, and that the sceneshifter and this lady, being engaged in a common employment, no case would lie for compensation against the theatre company. The Court dismissed the appeal, holding that the appellant and the sceneshifter were in common employment, and there was no evidence of the management being guilty of negligence such as to cause the accident, and that the appellant had therefore no claim against the management.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Hawtrey and Maori.

MR. WILLIAM HAWTREY, who recently returned from America, had an interesting meeting the other day at a suburban music hall. Seated in the balcony, he recognised in Miss Henriquette Maude—the young lady from New Zealand who tells the story of her wanderings round the world, illustrated by biograph pictures—a little ten-year-old girl with whom Mr. Hawtrey played years ago in Little Lord Fauntleroy in the Colonies. Mr. Hawtrey, at a fitting point in Miss Maude's lecture, called out in Maori, "Kapai kai, ora!" which, being translated, is "Very fine! good luck!" Miss Maude answered from the stage, "Heri mae kaurne!" (Come down here)—which Mr. Hawtrey very willingly did.

Showing Her Off.

MR. FRED TERRY is very short-sighted, and, off the stage, wears glasses. In his earlier days, whilst playing the part of Maynard in The Corsican Brothers, he had to say to Mme. de Franchi, "My dear madame, make yourself comfortable, and rest," after which he had to show her off through one door. In those days rehearsals were few and far between, and it so happened that one night the stage men put the door on the opposite side. When the time came for madame to make her exit, Mr. Terry spoke his line, and was showing her off in the usual way, through the door as he thought. In spite of her protestations, however, he was forcing her, and actually made her go through what turned out to be a crack in the scenery, left by its being badly joined together, the audience meanwhile being convulsed with laughter.

Children and Circuses.

MISS ELLEN TERRY tells the following anecdote in her contribution to "Stories of Children" in the February number of "Pearson's Magazine":—"The first time I took my child to a circus she was five years old. With great gravity she gazed on the horses and dogs, the cats, birds, and even monkeys; but when the clown, walking timidly over a rope stretched from the stage to the circles, pretended to slip to the accompaniment of a thud on the big drum, she rose slowly, and said, 'Take me away; you should not have brought me here.'"

As Others See Us.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE, says the Daily Mirror, is telling a funny story about himself. The night after the opening of the Playhouse the audience consisted of Old Carthusians, who had been brought together by means of a printed postcard sent to all members of the club, asking them to give their fellow-collegian, Mr. Maude, a welcome to his new theatre. By a strange mistake Mr. Maude received one of these postcards inviting him to see himself act. "That is the last thing in the world I have any ambition to do," was his comment.

Johnny and the Duck.

A LADY who brought her little son from Leicester to London to witness a matinée performance of Sindbad at Drury Lane Theatre, and by mistake took him to Covent Garden Opera House, where Lohengrin was being given, upset some devout Wagnerites who sat near her, but, according to the Daily Mail, she upset herself still more. If she had looked at the programme the trouble would never have occurred, but before the curtain rose she sat explaining to "Johnny" the glories of pantomime. The opening of the first act was voted dull by both mother and son, but hope shone brightly when Lohengrin, drawn by the swan, appeared, and little Johnny in excitement called out, "Oh, mother! Look at Sindbad chasing the duck." Cries of "Hush! this isn't pantomime," awakened the mother to her mistake; and at the end of the act she went down to the vestibule and explained that it was the pantomime she wanted to see. Mr. Frank Rendle wes very courteous, and to compensate her offered two tickets for the Shrove Tuesday fancy dress ball.

Holding it up.

MR. PINERO, says the Daily Mirror, had a comical experience when he was acting with Irving in Louis XI. Mr. Pinero became aware, in the middle of one scene, that a stage tree of considerable size was swaying and rocking about in a threatening manner just behind Irving. Evidently it was about to fall. "This tree is coming down," whispered Mr. Pinero to Irving. "Hold it up, hold it up," muttered Irving in his sepulchral tones. And he continued to throw asides of "Hold it up, hold it up," at the other unfortunate actor during the whole of the speech he was at that moment making. Mr. Pinero did his best to hold it up—he thrust his whole weight against it, and engaged in a kind of death-struggle with it which ended in its crashing with an overwhelming noise almost on top of him. Irving calmly finished his speech, paying no attention to the tree, and then, as though suddenly aware of something unusual happening, he turned and said, "Ha! Where is the Dauphin? Let us go seek him," which gave him a chance to get off the stage, and no doubt suggested to the audience that Louis XI. had heard the noise and had grown anxious about the Dauphin—perhaps imagining that he had fallen downstairs.

Not Long to Live.

AN odd incident occurred at a recent performance of Maritana by J. W. Turner's company at the Birmingham Grand. Mr. Turner himself was the hero, and when he sung "Let me like a soldier fall" an encore was demanded. Mr. Turner gave it. Then the audience wanted more, and Mr. Turned bowed his acknowledgments, but was not disposed to sing again. He was about to retire when a voice shouted from the gallery, "Go on, give it us again; you've only got two hours to live!" Mr. Turner was so much amused that he complied.

Her Ears in the Way.

A GENTLEMAN in the front row of the pit in a certain theatre recently avenged himself upon a lady in the last row of the stalls, whose hat effectually prevented him from seeing the stage. "If you won't take off your hat," he said, in tones of studied politeness, "will you be so kind, my dear madame, as to hold back your ears?"

The Toy Theatre.

THE most beautiful part of every picture is the frame, says Mr. G. K. Chesterton in the Daily News. This especially is true of the toy theatre; by reducing the scale of events it can introduce much larger events. Because it is small it could easily represent the earthquake in Jamaica. Because it is small it could easily represent the Day of Judgment. Exactly in so far as it is limited, so far it could play easily with falling cities or with falling stars. Meanwhile the big theatres are obliged to be economical because they are big. When we have understood this fact we shall have understood something of the reason why the world has always been first inspired by small nationalities. The vast Greek philosophy could fit easier into the small city of Athens than into the immense Empire of Persia. In the narrow streets of Florence Dante felt that there was room for Purgatory and Heaven and Hell. Great empires are necessarily prosaic; for it is beyond human power to act a great poem upon so great a scale. You can only represent very big ideas in very small spaces. My toy theatre is as philosophical as the drama of Athens."

We shall be obliged if our readers will send us any amusing anecdotes they may hear, or accounts of any quaint incidents they may witness while acting or rehearsing.

"THE PHILANDERER."

The Topical Comedy, in Four Acts, by Bernard Shaw, performed at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 5.

Leonard Charteris ..... MR. BEN WEBSTER
Mrs. Grace Tranfield .... MISS WYNNE-MATTHISON
Julia Craven ..... MISS MARY BARTON
Colonel Daniel Craven, V.C. .. MR. ERIC LEWIS
Mr. Joseph Cuthbertson .. MR. LUIGI LABLACHE
Sylvia Craven ..... MISS DOROTHY MINTO
Dr. Paramore ..... MR. HUBERT HARBEN
The Club Page ..... MR. CYRIL BRUCE

Mr. Bernard Shaw is obviously of opinion that the only bad genre of playwriting is the wearisome one; and his two volumes of "Plays Pleasant and Unpleasant" contain various samples of his capricious skill. He was led to publish them, as he tells us in his preface, in pity of the "unhappy prisoners" of the English home, which he describes as peopled by families each member of which, in the evenings, is unsociably engaged in reading a book, the habit of theatre-going not having been acquired by most of the British middle-class. Mr. Shaw wrote The Philanderer, we gather, with the object of denouncing the objectionable practice of philandering; but its effect on the "unhappy prisoners" may possibly be discounted by the fact that the philanderers in Mr. Shaw's play are quite free from "home ties"; in fact, one of the personages, a father with two "emancipated" girls, approves of the "cock-and-hen" club system on the grounds that the absence of your family abroad leaves you the house conveniently to yourself; while, if you want at any time to have them around you, you can easily ask them to dine with you at the club.

Though The Philanderer had a previous production at the Cripplegate Institute in the February of 1905, its presentation at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon was practically its production. It is the old story of a "man and two maids," the characters being taken from the period when the play was written—at the time when the battle between the Ibsenites and the anti-Ibsenites was being doughtily waged, and clubs for men and women were almost a novelty. The philanderer of the play is Mr. Leonard Charteris, who is what the old-fashioned authors used to call a "general lover." The two women who are enamoured of him are Julia Craven, a young lady with a violent passion and a bad temper, and Grace Tranfield, a "new woman," calm, logical, and self-controlled. Charteris is tired of Julia, and is in love—as far as he is capable of being—with Grace; and the action of the piece consists of the embarrassments caused by his false position. In the first act, Julia tries to bully Charteris into a return to love for her. Their interview in a flat in Astley-gardens is interrupted by the arrival of Julia's father, Colonel Daniel Craven, who is supposed to be suffering from a disease which must be fatal in a few years. This disease is the discovery of a doctor named Paramore, who bases his theory on experiments on animals. Craven's friend, Mr. Joseph Cuthbertson, is a representative of the sentimental and "manly" school, the leader of which, a famous dramatic critic now deceased, was evidently aimed at when The Philanderer was written.

The second act takes place in the library of the Ibsen Club in Cork-street, the members of which must all be guaranteed as "unmanly" men and "unwomanly" women. A bust of Ibsen stands in a niche over the fire-place, and Miss Sylvia Craven, a younger sister of Julia's, lounges on a couch in "rational" costume, including knickerbockers. The skirmishing between Julia and Charteris goes on; and she, in despair at his indifference, gives considerable encouragement to Paramore, who is in love with her. Charteris encourages the courtship in the hope of getting rid of Julia; but, in the end, he is deserted by both women, Grace declining to marry him because, as she says, she is so much in love with him that he would have complete power over her, and she, as a "new woman," ought to preserve her moral independence.

The Philanderer does not, however, depend for favour upon its plot as much as upon the amusing ideas and minor incidents with which it is embellished. Great fun is created when Paramore discovers that "his" disease is a myth, and that Colonel Craven is perfectly sound and healthy. Paramore's grief is as comic as the indignation of the Colonel when he finds that all the good deeds done by him under the impression that his days were numbered have been, as he says, "wasted." He has made up quarrels which he would otherwise have maintained; he has been an over-indulgent father, and has endured persons whom he naturally detests, and all under an erroneous impression of his approaching demise. Then there is the curious character of Julia, so well-studied and so subtly-drawn—a really remarkable bit of insight and observation; and there are an abundance of good lines, as when Charteris says "the fickleness of the women I love is only equalled by the infernal constancy of the women who love me." Perhaps the allusions to Ibsen and obtrusive manliness are a little stale at the present period; but the irresistible absurdity of many of the witticisms kept the audience at the Court Theatre on Tuesday afternoon in intermittent laughter.

The piece was well acted all round. Mr. Bernard Shaw had strictly defined in his book the way in which Mr. Leonard Charteris should be attired, and Mr. Ben Webster faithfully carried out the author's directions, which involved a collar-less and "game-keepery" exterior, with "velveteens" and a kind of blue "stock." The character of Charteris is too shallow for an artist of Mr. Ben Webster's ability to find great scope in it; but Mr. Webster did all that was possible with the part, and suggested the humorously callous "philanderer" quite cleverly. Miss Wynne-Matthison, who looked remarkably well in becoming costume, gave full value to Grace Tranfield's dignified self-possession, and delivered her lines with admirable ease, aplomb, and emphasis. Miss Mary Barton, who, owing to the indisposition of Miss LiHah McCarthy, took up the part of Julia Craven at short notice, gave a sharply characteristic and very spirited reading, full of vividness and energy, her acting in the scene with Grace at the club being especially excellent. Mr. Eric Lewis, in the rôle of Colonel Daniel Craven, added just the right amount of briskness and "attack" to his accustomed suavity and finish, the result being a performance of the most satisfying sort; and Mr. Luigi Lablache, most happily cast as Cuthbertson, hit off the tearful solemnity of the character quite cleverly. Miss Dorothy Minto looked very pretty in what was practically a "boy's dress," and gave a very pleasing performance as the boldly frank and cynically ingenuous younger sister. Mr. Herbert Harben looked Dr. Paramore exactly, and enacted the vivisectionist with a quiet consistency and an amusing unconsciousness which made his contribution to the cast really valuable. Mr. Cyril Bruce was efficient as the Club Page. The Philanderer had a cordial reception from a typical Court Theatre audience.

"MR. GULL'S FORTUNE."

Under the title of The Alderman, an adaptation by Mr. James Mortimer of M. Théodore Barrière's comedy was produced at a matinée given at the Criterion Theatre on April 29, 1887, with Mr. George Barrett in the title-rôle, and the piece was revived at the Novelty Theatre—then called the Jodrell—on Nov. 24, 1888, when Mr. Henry Ashley played the leading male character. As the piece did not meet with a very promising reception on either occasion, the reasons for a third experiment with this old-fashioned French comedy are not quite apparent. Twenty years ago plays of this type stood a better chance of winning popular favour than they have to-day. They belong to a past generation, and the attempt to galvanise even the best of them into new life must of necessity fail. As it happens, L'Héritage de Monsieur Plumet was not a brilliant specimen of its class, and it would be surprising were a modern version to win success, seeing that the original proved a failure. The wealthy bachelor surrounded by a crowd of greedy, designing relatives is not an unfamiliar figure on the stage. Mr. Gull had made his money in the fur business, and being of an extremely vacillating disposition, he comes in turn under the influence of various needy relations, who endeavour to conceal their selfish motives behind the cloak of disinterested concern for his well-being. Behind his back they wrangle and quarrel amongst themselves, but a married nephew and niece, supported by their respective matrimonial partners, make common cause against a certain Mr. Croucher, who is related to Gull on the mother's side, and is an inmate of his house. But Croucher cleverly turns the tables on his enemies, by inducing Gull to become suspicious of his other relatives. Having sold his business, Gull is persuaded to take up his residence in East Devon, where he makes the acquaintance of, and proposes to, a charming young lady, Rose by name, who is under the charge of her uncles, two typical Devonshire farmers. However, his interested relatives are quickly in pursuit, and take week-end tickets for East Devon. Great is their consternation when they learn that Gull has matrimonial intentions, and they induce him to break off his engagement with the rustic beauty, thereby arousing the wrath of her uncles. In the last act, the scene of which is a solicitor's office in the city, Croucher brings the news that Gull has suddenly died, and his fortune will be divided between his next of kin. This, however, proves to be only a ruse; and the assembled relations are terrified by the sudden appearance of Gull himself, accompanied by his young bride, the blushing Rose, and her bucolic uncles. It may be added that the adapter has accomplished his task in a workmanlike fashion.

In casting that safe, sound comedian Mr. Chas. Groves for the part of Mr. Gull an excellent selection was made, and it was largely owing to his performance that the piece went as well as it did. He worked exceedingly hard to render amusing and lifelike the character of the wealthy merchant, and his efforts proved quite successful. He played throughout on quite the right lines, and deserved a better reward than the mixed reception which befell the new production. Mr. Frank Stanmore deserves credit for a clever character-sketch of Gull's nephew Pickthank, whose wife had a good representative in Miss Dora Gray. Mr. John Ryder also made effective use of his opportunities as Mr. Clawback, a self-seeking stockbroker. Mr. Frank Collins was alert and well placed as Croucher. Mr. Harold Weston was a manly Ernest Heartworthy, whose sweetheart, Lily Mildway, had a very bright and charming representative in Miss Gladys Archbutt. Mr. George Bellamy and Mr. A. P. Phillips as the Devonshire farmers gave capital sketches of rural life. Mr. Henry Armstrong and Mr. William Dexter did well as the London and country solicitors. Miss Gertrude Robins was pleasing as Rose, and Miss Maud Stamer put much energetic work into her embodiment of the vixenish Barbara.

Farmer Maywood ..... MR. CHARLES GROVES

The story, which originally appeared in the Covent Garden Magazine has for its rustic heroine Patty, Farmer Maywood's daughter. She has two suitors for her hand, Laurence Barthe and Steve Renshaw, both young farmers, and she is undecided which one to accept. On her marriage she is to receive from her father a dowry of £2,500, a sum of money that he boasts of keeping in a safe in the sitting-room at the farm, as he does not believe in banks. When everyone has retired for the night a tramp enters the sitting-room through the window, and, opening the safe, takes possession of the cash-box and departs. When the news of the farmer's loss becomes known Steve Renshaw offers to advance him a sum of money, which, however, is declined; whereas Laurence Barthe, when asked by Patty's father for a loan, makes paltry excuses for declining to grant it. Thereupon the farmer bestows his daughter's hand upon Renshaw, and produces a letter-case containing Patty's dowry, explaining that the cash-box was filled with bricks, and he kept the money in another place altogether. Mr. Charles Groves was a jovial, hearty Farmer Maywood, and Mr. William Dexter was good as his friend, Dr. Williams. The young farmers had able exponents in Mr. Henry Armstrong and Mr. Guy Williams; and Mr. George Bellamy was well suited as Dick Worzel, a farm hand. Miss Gladys Archbutt was a winsome Patty Maywood, and concontributed a song entitled "Is it pity or love?" Miss Mabel Maartens was an attractive representative of Dorothy, a dairymaid, and sang in good style "Tell me why." Other parts were well played by Mr. Terry Hurst, Mr. A. P. Phillips, and Mr. Frank Stanmore. The several songs were imitated from the French by Mr. W. H. C. Nation, and included "Harvest Home" and "The greasy pole."

A.A. SOCIAL GATHERING.

Mr. Granville Barker addressed the members of the Actors' Association on "The Evils of the Touring System" on Friday afternoon last week. Mr. Cecil Raleigh, who presided over an excellent attendance, remarked that these social meetings could be called the Parliament of the Profession, inasmuch as matters of immediate interest to the profession were discussed. He announced that Mr. Archer would deliver a lecture to them in March, and that Mr. George Bernard Shaw would shortly talk to them on "The Ethics of Acting."

Mr. Barker said that he wanted to find out exactly what the feelings of the Association were on the subject of touring. He would remind them that the modern touring system commenced when Robertson's stock company started out into the provinces, and they carried a message of stage-management to the then existing state of things. It seemed to him that that message had come to an end. For the past ten years the conditions of touring had been steadily declining, and the principle of sending out a self-contained company was "out-worn," and therefore they would have to turn to something else. The question was, what were they going to put in its place? If they did not make some effort to destroy the present touring system, that system would destroy many of them. The provinces was no longer a useful recruiting ground for London. If he were to choose a beginner to whom he would pay, say, £2 a week, he would far sooner have a person who had done a year's work at Mr. Tree's Academy than one who had had two years' ordinary experience in the provinces. The young provincial actors would gradually be ousted out by the students of that school. The person who went into a London theatre at £2 a week, and who was at all competent, would never leave London, and there might gradually be a wall built up in London against the provincial actor. But why should not such cities as Manchester, Liverpool, Edinburgh, and Glasgow have as good actors as London, as comfortably found and almost as well paid? Speaking on another point, one of the things that was needed to bring the theatre up to date in England was that the actors and actresses should have some interest outside the work by which they gained their livelihood. So many actors knew acting and nothing else. How different was the position in Germany! The actors in the smaller towns were equal to those in Berlin. The companies stayed from one year's end to another, and they had time to live a life of their own, and were not called upon to get up early on Sunday and spend their time in the train. There was no reason why that sort of thing should not obtain in this country. Then, the economic conditions in our provinces were on the decline. Actors' Day would not help them. What they wanted was not to build hospitals, but to prevent people falling sick. This was an age of organisation. They should insist that no absolutely incompetent people should be allowed on the stage, and they should further insist that no man should be permitted to be a manager who was not able to pay sufficiently good salaries. He could foresee that within the next ten years the theatre would be organised in all the big centres.

In the discussion which followed, the chairman described Mr. Barker's lecture as a most momentous one. He, himself, had not much faith in a school for actors. He complained that the people who had made some little success on the stage did not work as they should do for the Association. If actors and actresses were a little prouder of their profession and less proud of themselves it would be better for all of them.

Mr. Cecil Barth thought that whatever might be said against the artistic state of the present touring system, it was, at any rate, a decided improvement upon the old system. He could not agree that a school was the best method of producing actors. An actor had to be born, not made. He agreed with Mr. Barker that there were great evils associated with the present touring system. Grave troubles and differences existed between resident and touring managers, and what was going to make matters still worse was that the individual managers were selling their properties to syndicates, which meant that the provincial theatre-owners would squeeze another 5 per cent., if not more, and cause a reduction of salaries.

Mr. J. T. Grein contrasted the condition of actors in Germany with actors in England. In the former country there was a great central body which governed the totality not in a spirit of grasp, but in a spirit of equity. The touring system in the United Kingdom corroded the mind of the actor.

Mr. Brandon Thomas and Miss Lamb also contributed a few remarks. A vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Barker for his able address.

AMATEURS AT OXFORD.

Just ten years have elapsed since the Oxford University Dramatic Society revived The Taming of the Shrew, alternating it then with the Greek play, The Knights of Aristophanes. The Petruchio then was Mr. Philip Comyns Carr, and the Master of the present Oxford Historical Pageant, Mr. Frank Lascelles, played Lucentio. This year, fortified by the presence of Miss Lily Brayton as Katharina, the society rightly deemed that The Shrew was a sufficient attraction. In their programme the committee express their indebtedness and gratitude to Mr. Oscar Asche for his kind permission to use some of the business and arrangements of the Adelphi Theatre production; and these, combined with some new scenery, specially painted by Mr. W. T. Hemsley, and handsome dresses and appointments, combine to make one of the best productions ever achieved by the Oxford amateurs. The play was produced by Mr. G. R. Foss, who has for so many years rendered yeoman service to the society, and to whom was doubtless due the smoothness of Wednesday night's performance. Some new music was composed for the occasion by Mr. T. P. Fielden, who conducted a mixed professional and amateur band, and the Shakespearean songs, "Who is Sylvia?" and "O, Mistress Mine," were introduced and sung by Mr. F. C. Rowe, who made a fair Lucentio. As is usually the case, the minor parts were uncommonly well played. Miss Lily Brayton portrays the varying moods of the shrew and the tamed, obedient wife, admirably. It is a part she has made her own, and the house on Wednesday was fairly electrified by her magnificent acting. The O.U.D.S. are lucky, indeed, in possessing Mr. G. Rentoul, who plays throughout with a grip that never fails. In the Induction Mr. Snell made a capital Christopher Sly, and Mr. Williams a good Lud; and Miss Ledward did well in the small part of the hostess. In the comedy, Mr. Corbett was a dignified Baptista, Mr. Greenly a satisfactory Vincentio, Mr. G. J. Colmer was excellent as Gremio, and Mr. Meyer a good Hortensio. Mr. L. Gartside, who did so well last year in Measure for Measure, well maintained his reputation by a bright and clever rendering of Tranio; and Mr. Ledward also evolved fun out of the part of Grumio. Mr. Mercer gave a clever and amusing performance of a pedant; and Mr. Rodley was amusing as the tailor. Miss Agnes Brayton made a very sweet and sympathetic Bianca; and the part of the widow was well played by Miss Edith Hiles. When the curtain fell the applause was loud and prolonged, and tremendous cheers greeted Miss Brayton when she was led in front by Mr. Mercer, president of the society, and Mr. Rentoul, who had so well supported her.

MR. H. ATHOL FORDE has been re-engaged at the Court Theatre by Messrs. Vedrenne and Barker to play Finch McComas in Bernard Shaw's You Never Can Tell.

THE L.C.C. AND AMUSEMENTS.

The usual weekly meeting of the London County Council was held on Tuesday at the County Hall, Spring Gardens.

CORONET THEATRE.

The Theatres and Music Halls Committee, having considered a drawing and particulars submitted by Messrs. D. Watson and Co. regarding the proposed installation of a motor-generator and a battery of accumulators at the Coronet Theatre, Notting Hill-gate, they recommended that Messrs. Watson and Co. be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing submitted by them, provided the undermentioned conditions be complied with—That the electric lighting regulations of the Council be complied with as regards matters of detail, and that the apparatus be not worked until it shall have been inspected on behalf of the Council.

Agreed to.

GRAND THEATRE, FULHAM.

The Committee made a similar recommendation with regard to drawings submitted by Messrs. D. Watson and Co., of a new stage switchboard and regulator, and of two new distribution boards to be fixed in the pay-box of the Grand Theatre, Fulham, provided the undermentioned conditions be complied with:—That the stage board be so fixed and guarded that it will be impossible for the operator to receive accidentally a shock at an electrical pressure higher than 240 volts, and that the regulations of the Council respecting electric lighting be complied with.

Approved.

LYRIC THEATRE.

The Committee recommended that in regard to a drawing submitted by Messrs. Smee and Cobay, showing the proposed alteration of certain doors at the Lyric Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, that these gentlemen be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the drawing, provided that the undermentioned conditions be complied with:—That the new doors be made to open to as great a width as possible; that the iron door to the office be fitted with a chain to prevent its obstructing the new exit doors; that the exit notices affected by the alterations be rearranged to the satisfaction of the Council; and that the glazed portions of the doors be suitably defended.

Approved.

THE PALACE.

The Committee had considered drawings submitted to Mr. J. Emblin-Walker with reference to Nos. 39 and 70 of the suggestions made by the Council in March, 1906, for the structural improvement of the Palace Theatre of Varieties, Shaftesbury-avenue. These drawings show an improvement of the exit from the back of the Royal circle, and the provision of a second means of escape from the dressing-rooms. The Committee recommended that Mr. Emblin-Walker be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the two drawings submitted by him, subject to the doors connecting the dressing-rooms with the public staircase being made satisfactorily self-closing.

Agreed to.

THE PLAYHOUSE.

The Committee had considered drawings submitted by Messrs. Blow and Billerey, of the Playhouse, Northumberland-avenue, showing the deviations which have been made from time to time from the drawings approved on Aug. 1, 1905, and also a proposed modification of the arrangement of the front balustrade of the pit circle at the premises. They recommended that Messrs. Blow and Billerey be informed that the Council has no objection to the arrangements shown on the eight drawings submitted by them, subject to the property-room on the stage being provided with suitable means of ventilation to carry off smoke in case of fire.

Approved.

NEW CONCERT HALL.

The Building Act Committee recommended that consent be given to the erection of a block of shops with a concert hall over upon the site of St. Paul's Church, Great Portland-street, S. Marylebone, to the lines shown on the plan, dated Jan. 5, 1907, submitted with the application of Messrs. Joseph and Smithem, on behalf of Messrs. Perry Brothers, such consent being subject to the usual conditions, and that the applicants be informed that the above resolution does not include any consent to the proposed iron and glass shelter referred to in the letter of application. The shelter must form the subject of a separate application.

The recommendation was adopted.

"LA BELLE MARSEILLAISE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Observing that Mr. Chas. Frohman is to produce shortly La Belle Marseillaise, allow me to point out that a play of mine, entitled La Marseillaise, was produced at the Royal, Worcester, on Sept. 6 last.

I hope I may not be charged with imitation of title.—Yours faithfully,

FRANK E. POTTER.

27, Bemish-road, Putney, S.W., Feb. 2.

One of the London branches of Messrs. Francis and Day is about to lose the services of a valued member of the staff in the person of Mr. John Abbott, who is about to proceed to New York to take up a position of trust under Mr. Fred Day in that city. Mr. Abbott, who has on many occasions proved a veritable sleuth-hound when on the track of "pirates," and by his astuteness been instrumental in the bringing about of more than one enormous seizure of illicit music, will bear with him the good wishes of not only his principals and fellow-workers, but also of those of many of the great houses of the music trade, to whom he was known as for some time assistant-secretary of the Musical Copyright Association. He sails on the 27th inst.

Under influential patronage a matinée performance was given in the Brighton Hippodrome last Tuesday in aid of the Police-Aided Scheme for Clothing Destitute Children, and attracted an overflowing audience. Mr. Thomas Barrasford, with characteristic generosity, kindly gave the free use of his theatre of varieties for that purpose, and the artists who appeared comprised members of the Brighton Grand Theatre and Brighton Alhambra companies, by permission of Councillor Carpenter and Mr. J. L. Graydon and the directors.

Among those who volunteered their services were Gracie Moore, Kitty Clinton, the Florodora Girls, Edgar Budden, H. Sharp, Jack and Evelyn O'Connor, Walker and Lake, the Imperial Quartet, Two Dixons, Lottie de Abbey, Henri Bekker, Diamond and Beatrice, Berlisch, the Smart Set, Leah Adell, Charlie Williams, the Aurora troupe of cyclists, the Pasquali Brothers, Horace Sade, Charles Banks, Phillips and Terry, Kerr and Koe, Ara, Zebra, and Vora, Mr. and Mrs. George Leonard, Lytton and Bland, Alice Leon, Miss Marguerite Broadfoote, Lester Reekie, Miss Taylor, Professor Heno, George Hyde, Miss Jennie Franklin, Miss Lilian Blair, the Highwaymen, and Miss Lily Black. The duties of musical director were shared by Mr. C. W. Johnson and Signor de la Camera. During the interval the Mayor of Brighton thanked the audience for their support, Mr. and Mrs. Barrasford for the free use of the Hippodrome, the artists for their services, and Mr. Arthur R. Hollands, resident-manager of the Hippodrome, and his staff for kindly managing the entertainment. A telegram was received from Mr. Barrasford wishing the matinée every success

A LYCEUM CONTRACT.

Before Sir Gorell Barnes and Lords Justices Farwell and Buckley, in the Court of Appeal, on the 1st inst., came the case of "Gillett v. Barrasford," which was an appeal by the defendant from an order of the Divisional Court, in which special leave to appeal had been granted, affirming a judgment of the Judge at the Westminster County Court in favour of the plaintiff.

The question arose on the construction of a music-hall contract which the plaintiff had entered into with the defendant in June, 1904, under which the plaintiff was to perform for fifteen weeks during 1905, at £30 a week, at a number of London music-halls referred to in the contract. The plaintiff was Mr. Fred Gillett, and the defendant was Mr. Thomas Barrasford, who, so far as is here material, was at that time the lessee of the Lyceum, which was then being run by him as a music hall, and was one of the halls covered by the contract. The plaintiff had appeared for a week at the Lyceum, when he received a letter from Mr. Barrasford to the effect that, owing to extensive structural alterations required to be made in the stage for the production of the ballet Excelsior, the Lyceum would have to be closed during the following July and August, and the contract so far as performing there was concerned would have to end three weeks before the date fixed.

The plaintiff, when the date of closure came, asked to be paid the £90 which, by the closure of the theatre, he was deprived from earning. This request was not met, and the plaintiff thereupon brought this action in the County Court. The defendant relied on a clause in the agreement, which was in these terms:—"In the event of the proprietors closing any theatre through damage by fire . . . or from any other reason whatever in their own absolute discretion, then this contract shall be null and void so far as it may relate to any such theatre."

Mr. Lush, K.C., and Mr. R. W. Turner appeared for the defendant; Mr. Scott Fox, K.C., Mr. Profumo, and Mr. J. Macpherson for the plaintiff.

Without hearing counsel for the plaintiff Sir Gorell Barnes gave judgment. He said that it was for the defendant to show that the closure of the music hall was done by the proprietors. The defendant, so far as he could judge from the Judge's notes, which were somewhat brief, and from what had been said in the Divisional Court, had failed to discharge the onus of proving this, which was a condition precedent to his being able to rely at all upon the clause set out above of the contract on which his defence to the claim was based. The defendant, it seemed, had closed the hall himself, having taken it over from the proprietors. However, he did not think it would be fair to the parties to base his decision on this ground alone. He came to the conclusion that even if the defendant had discharged, or could by calling further evidence do so if the case were retried, he could not succeed, as the words in the contract, "or from any reason whatever," were clearly equivalent to the words "from any other cause whatever" in a similar contract, the construction of which was considered in this Court in 1902 in the case of "Hardie v. Balmain." The Court of Appeal in that case held that the words "cause whatever" meant cause external to that outside the control of the parties to the contract. Here Mr. Barrasford decided for reasons which seemed to him to be to his advantage to close the theatre, and therefore he was liable to the plaintiff to make good the loss which that act had caused him. The appeal, therefore, in his opinion, should be dismissed.

Lord Justice Farwell gave judgment to the same effect.

Lord Justice Buckley differed. In his opinion the proper interpretation of the words was "for any bond-fide reason whatever," and he did not think it was quite clear that the case was covered by "Hardie v. Balmain." In his opinion there should be a new trial, but as his brethren thought the case was concluded by authority it would be useless to send it down again.

The appeal was accordingly, by a majority, dismissed with costs.

THE PALACE, LANCASTER, FIRE.

A fire, which at one time threatened to assume alarming dimensions, broke out on Saturday evening at the Palace of Varieties, Brock-street, Lancaster, owned by Messrs. Fell. The hall was originally used by the Oddfellows for their meetings, and occupies the upper part of a block running almost from Penny-street to Mary-street. The basement is occupied by seven shops, with the large premises of Messrs. Boots, cash chemists, at the Penny-street corner, and Webber's photographic establishment.

P.C. Riding, on point duty, discovered the outbreak about 5.20, and the fire brigade, under Superintendent Wearing, was speedily on the scene. The brigade worked with a view to driving the fire from the valuable business premises on the Penny-street side, and also attacked it in the rear. After saturating the hall from the Mary-street end, the fire brigade attacked the outbreak from the stage windows. The scenery and other inflammable properties created such a furnace that bronze ornaments in front of the stage were melted. The dressing-rooms scarcely suffered damage, and the artists' possessions were saved. Only one artist suffered loss, he being the owner of the "Farmyard." His performing duck was rescued alive, but died soon afterwards, and the cockerels and rabbit were found roasted. A couple of pianos were burnt. Mr. Basto, the band conductor, has made it his practice to leave his valuable violin in the manager's office. On Saturday afternoon he failed to do so for the first time, and the instrument, which he valued at £20, was destroyed. After about an hour and a half's hard work the fire was mastered. The loss, which is mostly covered by insurance, has been estimated at about £2000. Messrs. Fell took over the hall from the Oddfellows several years ago, and it was sub-let to the Salvation Army. The damage will be made good in the course of a week or so.

MUSIC-HALL CONTRACTS.

At Southwark, on Monday, before Judge Willis, K.C., Mr. John Hart, proprietor of the Star Music Hall, Bermondsey, sought to recover from Fred Cullane, of the Cullane Trio, £10 damages, for breach of contract.

Defendant said that a member of the trio left him at a moment's notice, and not being able to fill his place, he could not give the sketch.

Plaintiff: He would not come to Bermondsey for £9 when he could get £25 from Barrasford.

Defendant admitted playing another sketch at Newcastle for £20 per week.

His honour observed that if the member of the trio had been taken ill, that would have been an excuse, but his going off and ending his connection with the trio was no excuse, and did not relieve the defendant.

Plaintiff said he had to engage two "turns" to take the place of the defendants, at a cost of £19, but as he offered the defendant £5 more to keep his engagement, so that he (plaintiff) should not break faith with the public, he had claimed only £5 in that respect.

His honour said he could not allow two turns for the one, nor could he give anything for general damages, because he was sure the defendant's breach did not affect the patronage of the hall. He gave judgment for the plaintiff for £4 6s. and costs.

Asked how he could pay, defendant said he was working at New Cross this week, and would clear only £5 for himself and his wife. He had nothing booked after that. £1 per month was ordered.

THE PARAGON.

On the night of our visit a goodly house and a goodly programme presented themselves at the Paragon. There was the usual full orchestra, under the able directorship of Mr. W. Grimmett.

The twenty-one turns this week comprise an interesting and attractive entertainment. A distinctly novel act is furnished by a young lady who calls herself Venus. She appears in various representations of statuary in such a fashion as to realise to the ordinary British public the meaning and significance of some of the world's greatest artistic achievements. Yet there can never be said that in her portrayals there is the slightest element of impropriety. The beautiful realisation of some of the paintings that are familiar to us, assisted by the marvellous lighting arrangements, shows us what the artistic idea of womanhood, separated from mere sensual notions, must be to the mind of the sculptor and the painter. Venus, we are told, posed for the late Lord Leighton's most famous pictures, and her exhibition at the Paragon this week makes it quite apparent that she is an experienced artist's model. Her studies include representations of Canova's "Venus" and Leighton's work of the same name, as well as Velasquez's "Venus at the Mirror" and Lord Leighton's "Bath of Psyche," all of which are thoroughly and artistically carried out.

The Lodging House Slavey is the title of an extremely amusing sketch presented by Miss Alice Cheshire's company. The story of the young spendthrift who endeavours to secure some sympathy and at the same time some cash from his uncle by a fabrication as to an extravagant wife and a child who did not exist, and how the lodging-house servant acts as a "wife" when the uncle comes on the scene, is told in a fashion that is irresistibly comical. Miss Alice Cheshire distinguishes herself in the character part of the servant, and Mr. Leslie Clare as the spendthrift and Mr. James Delmage as the uncle give us capital representations. The Howes continue to mystify their audiences, by their really wonderful exposition of thought-reading, and their display takes rank as one of the best turns at present to be seen on the halls. A very pretty act is that provided by the artists who call themselves the Four Scarleteers. Their harmonic singing is of a character which is more often heard on the concert platform, and their rendering of such old favourites as "Annie Laurie" at once strikes a responsive chord in the lovers of good ballad minstrelsy. The Lyric Mummers are seen and heard to advantage in a refined entertainment, and Miss Kitty Clay proves a most attractive comedienne. Miss Nora Noble has a pleasing ditty in a song, the chorus of which is "I'm looking for a fellow who'll make a fuss of me," and Miss Edie Anderson, a favourite at the Paragon, acts and sings with much expression and character the chansonette, "Good night, Mr. Brown." Miss Dorothy L. Clarke is a young ballad vocalist of considerable promise, her interpretation of "The Firefly" and "Hark! I hear the bugles calling" being most tuneful and enchanting.

Xavier creates a feeling both of wonderment and amusement by his smart cycling tricks, in which he introduces a humorous element. Mr. Dan Kirtain and Mr. George Bee also contrive to amuse the house with their own special business. Miss Bertha Stuart renders that dear old song "Caller Herrin'" with such intelligence and feeling as to elicit a demand for an encore. Professor Garford, the eccentric clown, with his dogs and pigeons; Miss Vera Granville, an engaging serio; and Miss Mignon Tremaine, a bright and accomplished comedienne, also submit capital items; while Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope shows us some of the latest and best pictures.

The wrestling contests, which are open to anybody who cares to compete, furnish an exciting half-hour or so every evening.

HAMMERSMITH PALACE.

At the popular Hammersmith hall a fine programme is placed before its patrons. The bill is headed by Mr. Fred Karno's company in Moses and Sons, which was accompanied by roars of hearty laughter. Mr. Albert Bruno is exceedingly funny throughout in the part of Perkins, caretaker at Moses and Sons'; and the company is, with that exception, composed entirely of Hebrew artists, including Miss Leah Morris, Miss Janet Reeve, Miss Madge Rockingham, Mr. Herbert Landeck, and Mr. Anthony Gordon. Miss Alice Hollander, the Australian prima donna, sings "Jack and Jill," and "O, dry those tears" delightfully. Mr. H. C. Lovell and company are seen in a musical comedy burlesque, entitled Mam'selle Pom-Pom. The scene is an actress's boudoir, the occupant of which is just completing her toilet. While she is awaiting the arrival of the actor-author of the new duologue she is to play with him that night a titled admirer calls with a basket of flowers, and will not depart when requested. The actor arrives, and the titled dude is hidden behind a screen. As the lady does not feel quite certain about one of her scenes they rehearse it, being interrupted every few seconds by the admirer. The sketch is well played and full of fun, and the audience thoroughly enjoy it.

Miss Amy Clevere wins much applause with her song "I'm sorry, but I can't come out," and by her clever dancing. Mr. Morny Cash is a great favourite; he renders three songs and finishes with a dance, his ditty "Bed" being very amusing. In little Agnes Tina the management have a great draw. She is a very clever child, and is able to sing in English, German, and French. In response to an encore she supplies imitations of well-known artists, her best of the series being one of Miss Vesta Victoria. Messrs. Welda and Wynne do some clever juggling and dancing; and Mr. Chas. Ulrick is here again with his smart barrel-balancing tricks. Barlee and Smith, in the episode entitled The Rehearsal, win much applause, the lady singing and whistling very well. Stephens and Rennior, Harry Cotton, Lauri Stewart, all excellent comedians; One Billy Farrell, cake walk artist; Harry Taft, whistling comedian; The Herald Comedy Four, who sing part songs very harmoniously, and the Edisonograph complete the programme, which is nightly being enjoyed by a large audience. The orchestra, under Mr. J. R. Cleve's control, renders "The Pirates of Penzance" in the interval exceedingly well.

NEW CROSS EMPIRE.

The troubles which have seriously altered the programmes of so many halls during the past month have in no way affected the establishments of Messrs. Moss and Stoll, who have kept absolute faith with their patrons, all the artists engaged having appeared. Business at this hall has been better (if possible) than ever, and the current programme has given complete satisfaction. After the overture to Zampa had been brilliantly rendered by the Empire orchestra, conducted by Mr. Louis la Rondelle, Mrs. John Lawson and company appeared to great advantage in the clever little sketch, entitled The Devil's Sunday. Mrs. Lawson was most successful as Fay Faber. The trifle is brightly written, and was excellently interpreted by all concerned. The American Bioscope exhibited some new and interesting pictures, comic and serious, including naval engagements, which caused much amusement. Another series, most interesting to footballers, entitled "Arsenal v. Bristol City," was specially obtained by energetic Mr. Ernest Bridgen, for the delectation of the patrons of this hall. Miss Fanny Erris, who is next on the list, contributed a bright and taking little turn, and proved herself a capital character comedienne; Messrs. Cairns and Lynch are remarkably smart clog-dancers, and were loudly applauded for their efforts; the Collier and his Child gave a novel and pleasing entertainment, entitled "Thought-reading by Nature"; Miss Nellie Coleman was warmly greeted and loudly applauded for her rendering of the low comedy songs, entitled "Hold on!" and "I'm looking for employment"; Clarence C. Corri's company was very successful in the musical episode called Heart Strings, a pathetic trifle, in which Miss Gladys Hooley appeared; the clever Trapnell Family of acrobats and tumblers delighted all with the skill and agility they displayed; the Cambrian Trio of lady vocalists gave "Alice, where art thou?" in a manner to deserve the enthusiastic applause bestowed on them; Dome, the artist in clay, once more displayed his marvellous skill as a modeller of funniosities; D'Arc's Marionettes gave life-like impersonations of R. G. Knowles, Vesta Tilley, George Lashwood, Victoria Monks, May Henderson, and other popular favourites in the variety world.

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

So successful has the present season of German opera been that it is to be extended another fortnight. Tannhäuser is in preparation, and we are promised Mozart's Die Zauberflöte and Nicolai's Merry Wives of Windsor. On Thursday, Jan. 31, Beethoven's opera Fidelio was revived, and as this fine work is now seldom heard, it attracted a large audience. Fidelio, when first produced at Vienna in 1805, was not appreciated as the great beauty of the opera deserved, and Beethoven even rearranged the entire score for the new performance, which took place in 1806. In this form the three acts of the opera were reduced to two. The experience Beethoven had while setting his Fidelio for the Vienna stage must have been very disappointing, as we cannot otherwise explain his neglect of the operatic form. Though pressed by singers and impresarios, he often promised to write, but never attempted, another opera, although this fine work represents all that is best in German musical art, so ideal, noble, and pure in style, and elevated and touching in dramatic expression. The part of Leonore has had many famous exponents in the past, and no doubt there were some among the audience on Thursday who remembered Mme. Tietjens's splendid treatment of the character. That Frau Leffler Burckhardt completely realised all the part requires it is not possible to say, but she sang with considerable power and expression, and her acting was always intelligent. Herr Hinckley was excellent as the good-hearted gaoler, Rocco; but Herr Bertran attained only a moderate success in the part of Pizzaro. Herr Hans Bussard as Florestan, and Herr Dr. Felix von Kraus as Don Fernando, were both thoroughly satisfactory; while Fräulein Nast made a most attractive Marzelline. The orchestra, under M. Eugène Ysaye, gave a fine performance of the "Leonore" overture.

In the performance of Lohengrin, given on Saturday afternoon, Feb. 2, Mme. Agnes Nicholls, an English artist, appeared in the part of Elsa with, it is pleasant to record, complete success. Her voice is pure in quality and admirably produced, while the romantic side of Elsa's character was most cleverly portrayed. As Ortrud Mme. Brema repeated her powerful impersonation, and Herr Kraus made a striking Lohengrin. Dr. von Kraus was the King, and Mr. Frederic Austin the Herald.

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

The Royal College concert on Thursday evening, Jan. 31, opened with Brahms' "Quartet for Strings, in B flat major, Op. 67," the executants, Miss May Harrison, Mr. Enoch Parsons, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Miss Marion Harrison displaying no little ability in the bright opening movement and the fine andante. Beethoven's "Sonata for Violin and Piano, in F major," played by Miss Gladys Raymond and Miss Sylvia Capel-Cure, proved another very attractive feature of the concert. Miss Gladys van Niekirk sang "Tears, idle tears," by Arthur Sullivan, and "Ewig mein bleibt," by Edward Schütt. The young lady, who appeared extremely nervous, caused some excitement among the audience by suddenly fainting during her first song. She was assisted off the platform, but after a few minutes reappeared, receiving a most hearty and sympathetic reception, and bravely sang "Tears, idle tears" again, as well as her second song. Miss Niekirk has a pure and flexible voice, to which she will do full justice in time. Miss Winifred Gardiner was much applauded in her piano solos of C. V. Alkan's "Prelude in C minor," "Fa," and Rubinstein's "Etude" (sur de fausses notes), the latter proving Miss Gardiner a skilful executant. Miss Lillian Davis sang "Ruhe, meine Seele," by R. Strauss, and Tschaikowsky's "Nur wer die Sehnsucht kennt," with considerable success; and Miss A. Christa Wood gave a brilliant rendering of Chaminade's showy song, "L'Eté." The concert ended with Beethoven's "Trio for Piano and Strings, in D major, Op. 70, No. 1," performed by Miss Humphery, Mr. Arthur Beckwith, and Mr. Gershom Parkington. Miss Alice Cotton and Miss Ellen Tuckfield acted as accompanists.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

The concert of Wednesday evening at the Guildhall School of Music began with a pianoforte solo of Chopin's, "Fantaisie" in F minor, neatly executed by Miss Jessie Attwell. Miss Dorothy Melton may be heartily commended for her violin solos, Air on G string (Bach) and a "Berceuse," of a pleasing character, by Beatrice Parkyns; but Miss Dorothy Holden was not well advised in attempting Liszt's "Grand Polonaise" in E for her piano solo, although the young lady has a light and delicate touch, only marred by a bad habit of raising the hands after each passage. Mr. Norman Attwell, a most promising violoncello student, played De Munck's "Matinée de Printemps" and Popper's "Papillon" with considerable fluency and a really good tone; while Miss Jessie Willis was heartily applauded for her piano solo of Brahms' "Rhapsody" in G minor. The vocal items included a "Coon Lullaby" (Riego) and "Castilian Maid," by Lehmann, sung by Miss Rita Milner. Miss Dorothy Crompton gave a fairly effective rendering of Clay's song, "The Sands of Dee," and Mr. Andrew Pace skilfully used a most pleasing voice in Godard's beautiful song, "Angels guard thee." Miss Nellie Watson had a certain amount of success in Gounod's "O Divine Redeemer," though the music was of too ambitious a character. The concert concluded with an attractive duologue, The First Anniversary, written by Estelle Burney. The character of Kate Bell was sustained by Miss Ethel McDowall, a pupil of Miss Rorke's, and that of Frank Bell by Mr. Maurice A. Rossiter, one of Mr. L. F. Chapuy's pupils. The little piece was produced by Miss Kate Rorke. The accompanist on Wednesday evening was Miss Kate Richards.

FIFTY YEARS OF THE DRAMA.

Owing to pressure on our space, we have been compelled to hold over the weekly instalment of the above. The series will be continued next week.

Mr. Editor,—Sir, in last week's notice of Red Riding Hood you mention Miss Annie Purcell in the part of Boy Blue. As Miss Purcell did not appear through indisposition for several days, it should have been, yours faithfully, Agnes Tandy.

BOROUGH THEATRE, STRATFORD.

"THE NEW ALADDIN."

Mr. Fred Fredericks has secured a strong attraction in The New Aladdin. The piece is mounted and dressed on a very lavish and highly artistic scale, and Mr. George Edwardes has engaged a company of much all-round ability. Mr. George Gregory is a host in himself as the irrepressible Tippin, and this exceedingly clever comedian has rarely been seen to greater advantage. Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., is eminently successful as the Genie of the Lamp, being always brisk and alert, and singing and dancing with animation and verve. Miss Ida Rene is an exceedingly charming and graceful Princess, and quickly wins her way into favour. Miss Eva Sandford plays in genial, buoyant style as Lally, and looks the part admirably. Miss Irene Verona's performance as the goodly-proportioned Spirit of the Ring is a gem of broad comedy acting, and her characteristic songs go wonderfully well. A breath of the Highlands is wafted into the part of the maid Jennie, who is quite Scotch and a great favourite in the hands of Miss May Fraser; Miss Nellie Lonnen's terpsichorean efforts as Loalah win warm approval; and Miss Beatrice Dunbar is dainty and coquettish as the Charm of Paris. Mr. Frank Hector submits a sound performance as Cadi; and Mr. J. W. Manning plays Ebenezer on most appropriate lines. Mr. Ernest Mahar acts in the right vein as General Ratz; Mr. J. Sims Woolley does well as the imitation Genie; and Mr. John Brabourne submits a clever unexaggerated piece of comic character-acting as the lost constable. Other parts all have very capable exponents. The orchestra is this week augmented, and under the direction of Mr. Ernest Vousden, who secures an excellent ensemble.

THEATRE ROYAL, STRATFORD.

On Monday, Feb. 4, the Drama, in Five Acts, by Horace Stanley, entitled

"THE 10.30 DOWN EXPRESS."

A return visit from that popular drama, The 10.30 Down Express, forms the attraction at the Stratford Theatre Royal this week, and was exceedingly well received on the opening night. Mr. Horace Stanley's company interprets the piece with entire credit, and the staging and scenic effects are most appropriate. Mr. George Beverley is a manly exponent of Jack O'Malley; and Mr. Charles Burdon handles the rôle of James Inderwick with skill and power. Mr. Edwin Clarke acts convincingly as Huntley Mason; Mr. Alaric Burton plays Cuthbert Leigh very appropriately; Mr. Tom Roydon submits a well-defined sketch of Seth Coombes; and Mr. Arthur E. Francis is exceedingly droll as Bletherby Baggs. Mr. Horace Stanley as Sam Wagstaffe is always amusing and highly popular; and is ably supported in the fun-making by Miss Kate Kilpack as Peggy Potts. Miss Elsie Capell very charmingly impersonates Bessie Leigh; Miss Evelyn M. Walton cleverly realises the elderly spinster, Letitia Leigh; and Miss Josephine Lee plays with sympathy as Olive Coombes. Remaining parts are handled with intelligence and care.

"HUMPTY DUMPTY" comes to the end of its career at the Kennington Theatre to-night, and next week will be succeeded there by The Beauty of Bath, a favourite musical play, which should prove equally popular.

PRESENTATIONS.—Saturday being the last night of the pantomime Cinderella at the Elephant and Castle Theatre, Mr. Chas. East was in the last scene presented with a suitable testimonial given by the company, which he accepted with thanks. Miss Gracie Taylor then called for Mr. E. Godfrey, the assistant stage manager, and presented him also with a suitable testimonial, in appreciation of his kind assistance. Mr. Godfrey expressed his thanks, and then called for three cheers for Mr. John East, the manager, which were given with musical honours.

BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES.
For Sustaining the Voice.
Indispensable for PUBLIC SPEAKERS
GENTLEMEN,—For sudden affections of the Bronchial Organs I use and most cheerfully recommend "Brown's Troches." They are regarded as most eligible, convenient, and indispensable by numerous artists of my acquaintance, BOTH IN EUROPE AND AMERICA. They seem to act specially on the organs of the voice, and produce a clear enunciation.—Yours truly (Signed), MARIE ROZE MAPLESON.

Using the "Nutshell" Stropper.

Can YOU Strop a Razor?
Not one man in twenty-five gets satisfactory results from an ordinary strop. It's the bugbear of self-shaving. It drives men to the barber—it even makes them buy "Safety" Razors, sometimes.
The "NUTSHELL" AUTOMATIC STROPPER
is a British invention which entirely disposes of this difficulty. Users have no trouble with their blades. Half-a-minute in the "Nutshell" before shaving keeps the razor in perfect condition. Regular use lengthens a blade's life.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT FOR ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Chapter I
COPYRIGHT AS OPPOSED TO PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter II.
PERFORMING RIGHT.
Chapter III.
Chapter IV.
MUSICAL COPYRIGHT.
Chapter V.
INTERNATIONAL AND COLONIAL COPYRIGHT.

Mr. A. A. Strong has published a book on "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," which should be in the hands of everyone who is obliged to know about this perplexing subject. Dramatic copyright in England is in a particularly unsatisfactory state, and it is much to be hoped that ere long some more rational method of securing protection for a play may be devised than the slovenly and sometimes costly "production for copyright purposes," which is at present required.—St. James's Gazette.

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chase Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

"The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer," by Albert A. Strong, LL.B., solicitor, author of "Dramatic and Musical Law" ("The Era" office), seems to be the one compendious and indispensable authority on the subject, as vexed as the "Rermoothes" and as tortuous as a Chancery suit, that has long been wanted. It is in every essential a text book for the perplexed layman, and no solicitor or barrister worth his salt ought to think of taking or appearing in "proceedings" without consulting its pages. It must suffice, after what has been said, to state little more than that the contents include five chapters, respectively named "Copyright as Opposed to Performing Right," "Performing Right," "Infringement and Remedies," "Musical Copyright," and "International and Colonial Copyright." The work, for all its precise authority is not dry reading. The statutes, with the elucidatory notes, necessarily impose a task on the reader which takes some tackling, but they had to be there. The cases adduced, however, are full of interest. Certain of them might fitly find a place in the romance of copyright. There was the fight of Charles Reade with George Conquest over "It's Never Too Late to Mend," for instance, and the equally interesting conflict of Mr. J. A. Cave with Chatterton over "The Wandering Jew." The latter was a famous battle. Chatterton took it to the House of Lords, and was finally beaten, to the unspeakable relief of Mr. Cave, who is never weary of relating the story. Had the result been otherwise, it would have meant his ruin. I well remember meeting him on the day of his victory and "crashing a cup with him" in honour of the same. "The Law of Copyright" is dedicated to Mr. A. W. Pinero.—Sportsman.

THE ERA

SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 9, 1907.

THE TOURING SYSTEM.

Mr. GRANVILLE BARKER, in his interesting lecture at the Actors' Association "Social" on the 1st inst., reiterated arguments which we have heard again and again during the last twenty years. According to Mr. BARKER, "the service" in the country is "going to the dogs." The provinces, he says, "are no longer a useful recruiting-ground for London." A year's work at Mr. BEERBOHM TREE'S academy is better than three years' experience on tour. It does not pay to send out a thoroughly good company. The "economic condition of affairs" is also, says Mr. BARKER, on the decline.

The remedies which he proposes for these defects are, apparently a limitation of the incompetence of artists and a parallel limitation of the lowness of salaries. He proposes, in short, to interfere with the law of supply and demand, in the same way as is done, in the cases of certain mechanical trades, by their "unions."

The touring system is the offspring of the old "circuit" system, by which travelling companies of actors used to cater for a whole county or group of counties, giving a series of performances in the theatre of every town at certain fixed dates. Successes produced at the "privileged" theatres in London were thus brought before the audiences of the country towns. The life of the travelling company was hard, sordid, and humiliating. On its arrival in a town, the manager's wife had to go about "soliciting the patronage" of the ladies of the place. The manager had to "turn his hand to anything"; his wife or his mother often kept the box-office; and the calling was one of dire drudgery, often leading to intemperance and want. If the "strolling player" of the early eighties found life tolerable it was because he was so imbued with squalid Bohemianism that he knew not the want of anything higher or better.

The larger towns were catered for by stock companies, which were excellent academies of dramatic art of a sort rather strong than subtle, and more vigorous than refined. The tremendous amount of study required from the artist, necessitating his almost living in the theatre, kept his mind in a narrow groove. He was like a horse in a mill; he had to go round week after week, and, if he stopped, his salary stopped too. It was much the same even with the London actor and actress. TOM HOOD, in his "Model Men and Women," describes an actress as going late to bed, rising early, learning her parts while washing her children's linen, rehearsing in the afternoon, performing in the evening, and having no time to eat or to attend to her toilette.

The touring system was a development of the circuit system, just as the multiplication of London theatres was the development of the patent theatre system. The extension of railways, the increasing number of "London successes," gradually ousted the old stock companies, who could not compete with the attractions of a bran-new metropolitan triumph brought down from London week after week. The discredit attaching to the calling had the advantage of keeping off the stage all who were not prepared to endure contempt, hardship, and squalid surroundings.

With the organisation of the touring system and the rise in the public estimation of the art of acting, came a great change. Acting was soon a calling which young ladies and gentlemen could follow contentedly and even pleasantly. In the old times, a man had either to be born of a dramatic family or to be genuinely "stage-struck" to face the life, with its vicissitudes and its slavery. The stage is now "taken to" by hundreds who would never have dreamt of doing so in the early eighties.

STUART MILL, in one of his essays, remarks that certain callings are so attractive that those who follow them are content to receive less remuneration in consideration of the pleasure derived from their work. All the arts suffer more or less from this influence. But how is it to be helped? How are you to prevent a manager engaging a novice who will suit his—the manager's—purpose as well as an "experienced" mediocrity, and who is willing to "come" at a smaller salary than the "experienced" actor? The idea of a trade union is to keep wages up to a level and down to a level, to prevent the exceptional mechanic earning more so that the average mechanic may not earn less. But how would trade union methods be possible in the case of engagements each of which must be a matter of negotiation between manager and artist? How could a bricklayers' union be maintained if the attractions of bricklaying were so great that people were found willing to pay to be allowed to lay bricks? The only check on the downward progress of dramatic salaries is the necessity of keeping the quality of the work done up to a certain standard. It will not pay a manager to cheapen his company so much as to give the public a "rotten show."

Companies might be cheapened and receipts reduced to a vanishing point; but, if that were the course being pursued at present, we should hear of theatrical bankruptcies all over the country, and of theatres being applied to other purposes than those of entertainment. But, as a matter of fact, what do we find? New theatres being built, old theatres being reconstructed, and a public "playhouse" of some sort in every third-rate place in the provinces. And as to artistic merit—well, it is impossible, of course, to speak from sufficient experience; but we have an impression that the average of acting all over the country is as high now as it was in the early eighties. The actors of that period were, perhaps, better technicians; but they were less intelligent, worse educated, and too often mechanically "wooden." The "stock company system," which has been vainly advocated for many years past could only be returned to if the touring system had been brought to an end by managers ceasing to send out companies. If the London entrepreneurs found that touring was not, financially, "worth doing," the supply of companies would fall off, dates would be left vacant, and the local managers would be driven to resort to a stock company, for at least part of the year, in sheer desperation at being unable to fill their dates. At present there is no sign of any such movement being at hand.

GLASGOW VICTORIA THEATRICAL LADIES' CLUB.

A fashionable matinée in aid of the funds of this new club, which, as we have recently noted, has met a very much-felt want in the great Scotch city, took place on Tuesday afternoon in the theatre of the Glasgow Athenæum, and was very largely attended by a fashionable audience, Mrs. Wm. Bilsland, wife of the Lord Provost, being also present, as representing her husband. The entertainment was of a varied and enjoyable nature, and was greatly appreciated by all present. The overture was admirably rendered by a selected orchestra, comprising the principal players in the local theatres. The conductors were Mr. Alfred Carpenter (Theatre Royal), Mr. Harry Henderson (Grand Theatre), and Mr. Henry Vollmer (Princess's Theatre); while the management was undertaken by the ladies of the Victoria Club Committee. The stage-managers were Messrs. W. H. Morgan (Theatre Royal), T. Buxton (Grand Theatre), and S. K. Alexander (Princess's Theatre).
The following artists appeared:—Madoline Rees, Lena Vere, Mena Brae, Aimee Grey, Bransby Williams, W. F. Frame, Downes and Langford, Devorah Volar, May Mars, Wee Mona, Fred Kitchen, Ethel Campbell, Austin Lenton, Joseph B. Montague, Mamie Gould, and Christine Rasinsky. Encores and recalls were very frequent. Mr. H. J. O'Neil was accompanist, on a fine piano lent by Messrs. Paterson, Sons, and Company.
During the afternoon Mr. Percy Humphrys, manager of the Theatre Royal, on behalf of the Ladies' Committee, moved a vote of thanks to the various artists who had given their services. It was, he said, gratifying to the club to find that so many people had an interest in what the speaker held to be a unique venture for Glasgow. The Victoria Club was still in its infancy, but already it had been a great advantage to ladies of the theatrical profession. The matinée had been organised to raise funds to try to place the club on a permanent basis. The vote of thanks was very heartily responded to. A handsome sum will result from the matinée.

RICHMOND THEATRE.

On Thursday, Feb. 7, the Comedy, in Three Acts, by Cosmo Gordon Lennox, entitled "THE FREEDOM OF SUSANNE."
The production of this successful comedy at Richmond left little to be desired, and the general interpretation of the play was excellent in the extreme. Miss Mabel Love had an excellent predecessor in the part she assumes, and it is amazing how very like is she to the original Susanne in her treatment of the rôle. The brunt of the work fell to her, and very charmingly and admirably did she sustain the burden. Never for once did the play suffer at her hands; she was delightful throughout. In Act 1, where she related with refreshing naïvéte her escapades in Piccadilly, in Act 2, her jealousy of her husband in the photographic episode, and in Act 3, her business at the telephone, were all instances of her ability and skill as an ingenué of a refined type. We doubt if Miss Mabel Love will ever be better suited with a part than as Susanne. Mr. Percy Hutchison was excellent as Charles Trevor. He handled the part with marked ability, and lent valuable assistance throughout; indeed, his performance considerably added to the success of the afternoon. Mrs. F. Turner caused considerable hilarity as the charwoman, Mrs. Putman; and Miss Annie Stalman played Lady Charlotte Trevor with becoming dignity. Miss Florence Harwood was droll in the extreme as Fanny; Mr. J. Hastings Balson made the most of his opportunities as the hypochondriac, Lord Datchet; and a capable impersonation was that of Mr. P. Quill as Sir Horace Hatton. The remaining parts were in safe hands. The orchestra added to the success of the entertainment with some dainty selections; and a good word is due to the stage-manager, Mr. Townsend Whitling.

AT the Pavilion Theatre on the 31st ult. Mr. Kempfner, of the Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company, at very short notice undertook the difficult part of Uriel Mazik (Mephistopheles) in Man and Devil, which he played with great success.

PRESENTATION.—At the Theatre Royal, Rugby, on the 1st inst., in the absence of Mr. Geoffrey Fulton, the manager, Mr. Frank Ridge, on behalf of the staff, presented Mr. Arthur Young, the stage carpenter, who is leaving Rugby to join Mr. Percy Hutchison's Freedom of Suzanne company, with a handsome case of briar pipes and tobacco pouch. Mr. Ridge, in a little speech, referred to the excellent way Mr. Young had performed his duties, and, on behalf of the staff and himself, wished him the best of luck and every success. Mr. Young suitably responded.

MR. EDWARD COMPTON AT SHEFFIELD.

The twenty-sixth anniversary of the Compton Comedy Company was celebrated at the Lyceum Theatre, Sheffield, on Thursday evening, when a large audience assembled to witness the performance of Davy Garrick.
Mr. Edward Compton, on being called before the curtain, spoke as follows:—"Ladies and gentlemen, many and sincere thans for your presence here to-night. It is good to be back in Sheffield once more, and it is good to be playing Davy Garrick once more to such a friendly and enthusiastic audience. And now about to-night's celebration—the completion of twenty-six years' hard labour with the Compton Comedy Company. How do I feel about it? Well, I must own to a great pleasure and a little natural pride, for I believe such an event is absolutely unique in theatrical annals. When I started out on Feb. 7, 1881, I was told that I was a rash young man; that old comedy, like Shakespeare, 'spell ruin'; and that I should live to repent my foolhardiness in sackcloth and ashes. And yet here I am, after twenty-six years, still holding aloft the standard of legitimate comedy, not by any means sitting on any stool of repentance, but standing up before you elated with triumph, flushed with success, and more than ever determined to emulate Tennyson's brook and 'go on for ever.' During the period I have named I have always taken care to have a first-class, all-round company. I have always rehearsed every play thoroughly and often, and I have always costumed them correctly and well. I have revived numbers of old comedies and produced several new ones, and I have always clung to the ideal I started with—namely, to play only such pieces as made for good; and I think my audiences will bear me witness that 'the evening's amusement' has always borne 'the morning's reflection.' But there is one thing I am very sensible of—the constancy and support of the Press and the public all over the country, without which I could have done nothing. 'Beggar that I am, I am even poor in thanks, but I thank you,' and I can never thank you enough. By the way, I must not forget to tell you that to-night marks a double celebration, for my Mr. David Garrick, who first came into being on Feb. 7, 1884, attains his twenty-third year to-night. I hope you have found this rising young actor going strong and well, and not looking a day more than his twenty-three years. Again, let me thank you for your attendance and enthusiasm to-night, and permit me to wish you 'a grateful, warm adieu.'"

"HAMLET" IN HULL.

An air of eager expectancy filled the Theatre Royal on Thursday evening, when Mr. Harvey presented Hamlet to an audience which was as representative as it was vast in numbers.
From the outset it was obvious that the actor meant Hamlet to be a melancholy man. The question, Was he mad? was one that Mr. Harvey did not leave unanswered. There is too much method in it all; he has no tricks; he takes the audience into his complete confidence. They realise what his intention is from the first. The key-note to his conception is sounded in Act 1, "As I perchance shall think meet to put an antic disposition on," soon again emphasised in his answer to Polonius, "You are a fishmonger."
The reading is for the most part traditional, the only omission of importance possibly being "I might do it pat," in the King's Prayer scene. An interesting innovation is his mode of delivering the soliloquy, which some of our great actors have before to-day delivered sitting. Mr. Harvey spoke these familiar lines standing until just on the close, whilst another feature is the presence of Ophelia in the corner. A novelty is furnished also in the scene between Hamlet and the King respecting the body of Polonius: "At supper! Where?" Not where he eats, but where he is eaten of, in which the worst and barbaric side of Hamlet's nature is revealed, thus giving a fine finish to a magnificent act. In addition, we learn that Hamlet is really sent to England, a fact not usually cited.
Omitting the presence of the Ghost from the Closet scene, the audience appreciate more the force of the Queen's words, "This is the coinage of your brain." It is possibly in the Players' scene that Mr. Harvey scored most, the audience rising in their enthusiasm. The reading, whilst in the main is traditional, still allows Mr. Harvey many opportunities for revealing his own striking individuality and temperament, as well as the sincere reverence he bears the Divine Bard.
Admirable was the Polonius of Mr. Fred Wright, sen., who sees Polonius with true Shakespearean eyes, senile, yet sage at times, the comic relief amidst all the tragedy. Miss H. de Silva's Ophelia was winning for its sweet womanliness—weak and pitifully pathetic in the Mad scene.
The mise en scène was admirable, the colour scheme gorgeous. History was respected in every detail of the costumes, and the stage pictures were such as were well worthy so notable a production. The full resources of the Royal and the Morton management were freely given, and Mr. Tom Boyne and his assistants deserve praise for the work done, in conjunction with Mr. Harvey, in setting the heavy scenes.

PRESENTATION TO MR. STANDEN TRIGGS.

Mr. Standen Triggs, who recently resigned the position of managing-director of the Devonshire Park Company, Ltd., Eastbourne, has just been presented with a magnificent illuminated address from the staff of the establishment. The inscription is as follows:—
"Eastbourne, Dec., 1906. To A. Standen Triggs, Esq. Dear Sir,—We, the undermentioned 'old members' of the Devonshire Park and Baths Co., Ltd., beg your acceptance of this address and record of our service, as a token of the regard and esteem in which we have held you during the twenty-three years you have been our respected chief:—F. Baker, 28 years' service; J. Clement, 28 years; J. Kay, 28 years; J. Venus, 25½ years; H. Diplock, 23 years; S. Daw, 22 years; G. Gold, 19 years; Sergt. Goff, 18½ years; W. Lelliott, 15 years; A. Hedges, 14 years; E. Mockett, 13½ years; H. Mewett, 13 years; H. Bays, 11½ years; H. Streeter, 11½ years, W. Maddocks, 9½ years; E. Rich, 9 years; E. Allen, 7½ years; F. Webb, 6½ years."
In acknowledging receipt of the gift, Mr. Triggs sent the following letter:—"Moss Side, Purley, Surrey, Feb. 1, 1907. Dear Mockett,—I was in due receipt of your letter of the 30th ult., and yesterday afternoon the case advised came safely to hand. The receipt of this beautifully illuminated and happily worded address has afforded me most sincere gratification; and I desire through you to return my cordial thanks to all the old members whose names appear at the foot thereof. I hold them one and all in very kind remembrance for their many years of good and faithful service, and shall always be pleased to hear of their advancement and success. I should also like a word of thanks and appreciation to reach the artist for the excellent taste and execution displayed in his work. I am proud to give it a prominent position in my new home. Kindest regards to the whole staff.—Yours very truly, A. STANDEN TRIGGS."

MESSRS. H. LAZARUS and SON, the well-known theatre furnishers of 21, Great Eastern-street, E.C., have been favoured with the order to re-seat Olympia with their latest model tip-up chairs. The order, it may be said, was gained in face of strong competition.

THE DRAMA IN PARIS.

"MADAME TANTALE."

Vaudeville in three acts, by MM. Henri Kéroul and A. Barré, produced at the Palais-Royal on Feb. 2.

Suzanne	MLLE. CHEIREL
Germaine	MLLE. SUZANNE DEMAY
Carmen	MLLE. MARTHE DERMINY
Odette	MLLE. LUCIENNE DELMAY
Justine	MLLE. CHARLOTTE DESROCHES
Cabassol	M. NUMÈS
Dubrisard	M. HURTEAUX
L'Inconnu	M. TREVILLE
Isidore	M. HAMILTON
Chapotel	M. BELLUCCI
Amilcar	M. JULLIEN

PARIS, THURSDAY, Feb. 7—The Palais-Royal, as we all know, gives us as a rule highly spiced farces. This time, however, they have beaten their own record, for anything more peppery than Madame Tantale cannot well be imagined. Moreover, the authors have helped themselves rather freely to incidents and situations already seen in other plays, like in Mlle. Josette ma Femme and Vous n'avez rien à déclarer? But this proceeding is now becoming so general that it is useless protesting against it. The plot is as follows: Suzanne has lost her husband. He went on a long sea trip, the steamer was shipwrecked, and his body never found. All that remains of the poor man is his plaster bust, at which his widow, who loved him dearly, gazes every day for hours. Although she is only thirty, and has had already many offers, she remains faithful to his memory, and does not think of remarrying. But two years have elapsed since her husband's death, and Suzanne finds herself placed in an awkward position. The departed owned an important factory whence she derives her principal income, and which she cannot manage by herself. She could easily find a capable man to conduct the business, but she deems it more prudent to entrust her interests to a second husband, provided that gentleman consents to treat her like a sister; and she commissions her friend Dubrisard to hunt up this rara avis. Dubrisard does not hunt very long, for, by a fortunate chance he receives the visit of his friend Cabassol, whom he has not seen for years. Cabassol has squandered his money; he has also squandered his health, and might be safely engaged as keeper of the harem. Suzanne ignores this latter peculiarity, and allows him to conduct her to the altar. They marry in a small seaside place, and take up their abode in a villa owned by a Mlle. Carmen. But Mlle. Carmen has a bracelet to which is affixed a miniature, in which Suzanne, to her horror, recognises the features of her late husband. And then she learns that the woman has been that gentleman's mistress for many years. She at once banishes from her sight the bust of the late lamented, and informs Cabassol that henceforth she will no longer be a sister but a wife to him. Cabassol receives this good news without enthusiasm. A curious-looking man then makes his appearance, a sunburnt creature, tattooed all over, his head shaven, wearing an Indian war bonnet. He is, he says, Suzanne's husband, and has just returned from Papouasia, where he reigned over a savage tribe. But he is so drunk that he is promptly put to bed; and when he wakes up sober he explains that he is only Suzanne's first spouse's servant. He confirms that his master was really drowned; and as Cabassol recovers his health, everything ends to everybody's satisfaction. I have drawn a veil over the objectionable scenes, and have purposely omitted to refer to a bronze statuette that plays an important but unpleasant part in the piece. I think we want a Censor very badly, and the sooner this functionary is reinstated the better. The new farce was very well interpreted. Mlle. Cheirel, whom we were glad to welcome once more on the boards of the Palais-Royal, was as amusing as ever; Mlle. Lucienne Delmay supplied a charming sketch of a little lady who leaves her corset in a cab; and the remainder of the cast worked with a will.
MM. Henri Kéroul and Albert Barré have also brought out a three-act vaudeville at the Folies-Dramatiques. It is called Le No. 13, and can be disposed of in a few words. M. and Mme. Chobert expect their friend, a Dr. Brodard, who wants to introduce his wife. This Mme. Brodard, whom nobody knows, is the heroine of "number 13," the number of a room in a hotel. She has an intrigue with Chobert, which the doctor discovers by sending Chobert into a hypnotic sleep. The doctor tries to avenge himself by laying a trap for Mme. Chobert, but fails. The piece is not particularly funny, but it caused the easily amused audience to laugh heartily, which is all the authors wanted.
The Comédie-Française gave us an excellent performance of Electre, the three-act tragedy by M. Alfred Poizat, after Sophocles, a full report of which has appeared already in these columns. Every justice was done to the work.
At the Odéon we had a capital revival of Alfred de Vigny's Chatterton. English readers are familiar with this powerful work; and we cannot but feel grateful to M. Antoine for having placed it once more on the répertoire.
THIS week has been a record one for theatrical lawsuits. First we had the action brought by the management of the Gaîté-Rochechouart against Mlle Parisette, from whom they claimed £400 forfeit. Who is Mlle. Parisette? The lady called herself a music-hall star, and was engaged as such for three seasons by the before-mentioned management. On the night, however, when she was to have made her first appearance she had mysteriously vanished, and her mother, who belongs to the honourable corporation of concierges, stated that her daughter had gone on a pleasure trip to South America, without even saying good-bye to her respected parent. Under these conditions the Court awarded the damages claimed; but as the fair defendant took all her property away with her the claimants will have to wait for their money.
ACTION number two is one by Mme. Jeanne Granier against M. Samuel, manager of the Variétés, from whom she claims £3,200 forfeit. M. Samuel had engaged the popular artist to take a leading part in M. Lavedan's new piece, to have been brought out in the course of this month. In the contract it was stipulated that Mme. Granier was to give one hundred performances at a salary of £28 per night. Instead, however, of producing M. Lavedan's play, M. Samuel gave a revue; and the lady applied to the Court for redress. The case is still under discussion.
THE heroine in case number three is the beautiful Liane de Pougy. It will be remembered that a few months ago Mlle. Liane met with a severe accident when her chauffeur ran into a cab. The public prosecutor took the matter up and hauled Roussin, the chauffeur in question, before our seventh police court. But as no witnesses answered to the call, the case was dismissed, but poor Mlle. Liane was mulcted in a fine for not having put in an appearance.
THAT charming actress Mlle. Berthe Bady is being subjected to a kind of "Bady-nage" that is anything but pleasant. A few months ago a young débutante took the pseudonym of Berthe Body. This gave rise to a few misunderstandings, but Mlle. Bady put up with the evil. Now, however, that a lady is making her bow to the audience under the name of Berthe Brady, the original Berthe Bady has become frantic, and asks herself what will occur if some more members of the theatrical world take liberties with her name and call themselves Baddy, Biddy, Bahdy, Bohdy, Buhdy, &c. Possibly, too, this delicate matter will be fought out in a court of law.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The Grand Order of Water Rats have contributed one hundred guineas to the Strike fund, and a like sum has been allocated for the same purpose by the Music Hall Artists' Railway Association.

Mr. Henri Gros denies the statement made in a contemporary by "One Who is Not a Star" that he had been transferred without his consent from one music hall with six performances to one with twelve performances weekly. "If the writer," says Mr. Henri Gros, "can prove that he was changed without his consent being asked in the presence of his agent, I will redress any grievance, and over and above give £5 5s. to the Music Hall Benevolent Fund."

The order of The Scribe is to represent the song-writers and composers, who on Thursday at a meeting at the Savoy Palace Hotel founded the society, which will care for and foster the best interests of the melody-makers for the masses. The chair at the gathering was taken by Mr. Charles Wilmott, the pantomime author and lyricist, who will be the first president of the new organisation and its treasurer. Mr. Orlando Powell is the first vice-president; the secretary is Mr. Gilbert Wells. Among those present were Messrs. Harry Castling, H. E. Pether, Orlando Powell, Alfred Ellerton, Charles Wilmott, Dan Lipton, and Harry Adams, the veteran author of "On guard." It will be remembered that The Nibs was the first fraternity that represented song-writers and composers, and though even now this society is not actually defunct, the necessity for a league with larger aims has long been recognised.

Mr. Hayden Coffin will shortly appear at the Palace, and will present what is for him a novelty in some song scenas. Owing to the large number of requests Miss Vesta Tilley has received during the past week, she will revive some of the old favourites from her répertoire. "Following in Father's Footsteps" has already regained its popularity, and Miss Tilley has accomplished another hit in her rendering of "The Seaside Sultan."

The present strike in no way affects the Palace, and crowded houses are the rule at the fine variety theatre in Shaftesbury-avenue, so capably directed by Mr. Alfred Butt, who is popular with his staff, with his company, and with the public, whose servant he is proud to be.

The entertainment to be given on Monday at the Scala, under the auspices of the National Alliance, has been widely proclaimed by poster. It will be stage-managed by Mr. G. H. Dyball, late of the Tivoli. As Dr. Distin-Maddick holds a licence from the Lord Chamberlain the variety turns will become incidentals in a burlesque, in two acts, A Night With the Stars, with two scenes of an Oriental character, painted by Mr. Fred Storey. The burlesque, which will occupy about two hours, will have something of the character of a revue!

Mr. Max Goldberg (Mr. John F. Preston), its author, wrote the play, The Secrets of the Harem, which, it will be remembered, was interdicted by the Lord Chamberlain on June 26, 1901, while it was being presented by the author's company at the Shakespeare Theatre, Clapham. The Turkish Embassy objected to some dialogue, which it was alleged directly attacked the Sultan, and the Lord Chamberlain felt bound, for diplomatic reasons, to take action. The play was produced in 1896.

Miss Marie Lloyd, it is stated, will be in charge of a programme brigade of ladies, but the popular little comedienne, at the time of going to press, is in bed with a severe cold.

A special feature of the programme will be pictures of the "Music Hall War," shown by means of Raymond's Bioscope. Mr. Neale, late the director of the orchestra at the Ealing Hippodrome, will lead a band of thirty.

We are pleased to state that Miss Rosa M. Lyons has recovered from a serious throat trouble, and will shortly resume work with the interesting sketch entitled Nelly of the Veldt.

Owing to the great increase of business in Neimann and Co.'s agency a partnership has been arranged with Mr. Ernest Leathley, well-known amongst concert and variety artists.

The usual monthly meeting of the Music Hall Sick Fund Committee will be held on Wednesday next at the York Hotel at 2 p.m.

The Terriers gave their fourth social concert of the season on Sunday last at the Dover Castle Hotel. The brethren and friends present numbered about sixty. Amongst those who contributed to the entertainment were Charlie Cornish, Steve Cooke, Miss Salter, W. L. Murray, Miss Rose Bancroft, Ernest D'Almaine, Miss Catherine Leslie, Herbert Knight, and Charlie Stelling. Mr. J. C. Moore presided at the piano; Mr. G. P. R. Burgess (hon. solicitor) was in the chair; and Mr. B. Woodger acted as M.C. The arrangement of the social and the comfort of all were well looked after by the secretary, Harry Lester.

There will be no meeting on Sunday of the Terriers, in consequence of the M.R.A.R.A. dinner and ball.

Mr. Frank Lynne, who has been laid up for the last two weeks with an attack of influenza, is now on his feet again, and hopes to resume work on Monday at the Hippodrome, Putney.

The weekly competitions introduced as additional attractions at the Stratford Theatre Royal are meeting with much favour. For this week, weight-lifting competitions are being held, with valuable prizes, and Volcano, billed as "the strongest man on earth," has been engaged to give exhibitions.

Miss Lily Lonsdale was presented by the ladies and gentlemen of Fred Karno's Football Match company with a magnificent bouquet also a valuable bag and purse at the Palace, Manchester, on Saturday night last, on concluding her pantomime engagement there.

Mr. Frank Poynton desires through our columns to give emphatic denial to the announcements of his death which have been inserted in some of the theatrical papers. He is very much alive to the essentials of his art, and though always anxious to add touches of realism to his portraits of living celebrities, he has no desire just at present to verify his impressions of dead heroes by meeting them in the "beyond."

Once again, for the fourth year in succession, will the Oxford and Cambridge crews visit the Alhambra on Boat Race night, a striking example of the popularity of the house.

Mlle. Von Etta, who claims to be "the world's greatest illusionist," made her first appearance at the London Hippodrome on Monday, when she gave a most mystifying performance. Von Etta enters a curious box, which rests on two stools, and is promptly locked inside. The box and its contents immediately float about in mid-air, and one is surprised to find mademoiselle tripping gaily along from the back of the theatre and right through the auditorium again. The box is unlocked, and, behold! there emerges from the box a lovely young lady. Von Etta performs all her illusions and makes twelve distinct changes of dress in a period of ten minutes.

The Palace of Varieties, Lancaster, was partially burned on Saturday afternoon, the damage being estimated at £2,000. Much valuable property belonging to the artists engaged at the house was destroyed, including a troupe of performing ducks belonging to the Prinellas.

Considerable interest is being evinced in the Palace of Varieties which is now being erected in Cheapside, Reading (opposite McIlroy's, Ltd.), and which is to be ready for opening by the end of September. The new theatre will have a handsome and imposing frontage to Cheapside, and will accommodate some 2,000 persons.

The plans, prepared by Mr. W. G. R. Sprague, the well-known theatrical architect, have been approved by the Reading Corporation, and the building is being erected by Messrs. T. H. Kingerlee and Sons, of Oxford. It will be run by a local company, whose intention it is to provide really high-class entertainments on the "Two-houses-a-night" system.

At the annual meeting of shareholders of the Hackney and Shepherd's Bush Empires on Wednesday morning, at which a 15 per cent. dividend for the year was declared, Dr. B. W. Broad, of Cardiff, proposed the following resolution, which was seconded by Mr. Price, of Cardiff:—"That this meeting of Hackney and Shepherd's Bush Empire Palaces, Ltd., heartily approves of the action of their chairman, Mr. Oswald Stoll, in connection with the pending strike of artists, and tenders to him the thanks of the shareholders for his exertions on behalf of themselves and the patrons of their theatres."

To this Mr. Oswald Stoll replied as follows:—"At the present moment I should not like to dwell upon the matter of the strike. It does not trouble me very much, and I don't think there are any real grievances. When a strike is serious, there must be something of that kind underlying it, but there is nothing underlying it now, and in the nature of things the strike cannot last. I am at all times pleased to do the best I can in the interests of the shareholders and those employed by the companies, because I believe that unless there is harmony among them the business cannot be sound."

At the Sheffield County Court, before the Deputy Judge, on Friday, Feb. 1, Mr. S. H. Laycock, recently assistant manager at the Palace of Varieties, Attercliffe, brought an action nominally against Mr. T. Allan Edwardes, the proprietor, for three weeks' salary in lieu of notice. The Deputy Judge, in summing up, said the defendant had acted in a very upright and honourable manner towards the young man, and gave a verdict for the defendant with costs, to be paid at the rate of 2s. per month.

Mr. Walter Norman, the popular manager of the Hippodrome, Hastings, organised on the 1st inst. an entertainment for the benefit of the old and young inmates of the Rye Workhouse Infirmary. The programme was contributed by artists entertaining at the Hastings establishment named. Mr. Tom Maltby, late of the Bedford and Queen's Poplar, who now resides in the old Cinque Port, with his usual generosity provided tea, tobacco, fruit, and sweets for the old folks, and was ably assisted by Mr. Kings North Reeve, "The Mayor," Mr. Bert Maltby, and Mr. Charles Shotter.

Mr. Geo. Formby presented Mr. Will Dalton (Dalton's Agency) at the Palace, Plymouth, on Thursday, the 1st inst., with a handsome case of briar and meerschaum pipes. It was Mr. Will Dalton who first picked up Geo. Formby and placed him on the music hall stage, and his recent successes have been stupendous. Mr. Oswald Stoll is booming Formby, and he is topping bills. "I have seen him every house this week," says Mr. Dalton, "and he is no better than he was when I saw him eight years ago, which shows there must be talent lying idle waiting on golden opportunity. Mr. Dalton's recent letters re "Latent Talent" to this paper caused interest, and it is he who has pushed of recent years many unknown acts that are now receiving large salaries. Mr. Formby's gift is inscribed: "To W. Dalton, the person who started me."

During the winter nearly 4,000 hungry children have been entertained to substantial hot dinners at the Palace, West Hartlepool. Mr. Macnaghten, the proprietor, and Mr. Julius Simpson, his indefatigable manager, set the ball rolling by entertaining at their own cost 300 of the poor children of the town. This excellent example was followed by local tradespeople, including the "Buffaloes," who defrayed the cost of material for providing for further meals until the number of starving children fed has reached the above total.

The comic sports on Wednesday afternoon at the Powderhall Grounds, Edinburgh, in the cause of sweet charity, were a great success. Brilliant sunshine broke forth shortly before eleven, when the procession'sts began to assemble in the Waverley Market. First to arrive at the Market was a miniature battery on wheels conveying "The Boys of Chelsea School" from the Empire. Mr. Mark Sheridan headed a long string of motors. The Brothers Egbert came as the acrobatic dustmen in a cart drawn by an immense horse. Mr. Dan Rolyat, as well as the other leading pantomime personages, was present in mufti. An immense variety of costumes included a magnificent Fitz-James from the Lyceum, accompanied by an equally splendid Charles II. The pick of many beautiful set pieces was Cinderella's coach, a gorgeous equipage drawn by eight little Shetland ponies, awarded the first prize. Second came "St. Helena," and third an illustration of "Hello! hello! hello!" from the Empire, a young lady looking out from a bower observing that with her former adorer it was a case of "a different girl again."

A most amusing event was set forth as follows:—Each competitor to find his own coal. Each competitor to carry shoulder-high one ton of coal twice round the field. Anyone dropping same will be disqualified. Artists entered—Mr. Mark Sheridan, Mr. Dan Rolyat, Mr. Harry Conlin, Mr. Humphries (to carry overweight), Mr. Harry Lupino, Mr. Stephen Adeson, Big Ben Brown (also to carry overweight), Little George Le Clerq, Master Nipper Lupino, the Brothers Egbert, and Wee Wallace. No one allowed to carry the coal loose; must be in sacks or bags. Principal ladies were not allowed in this event owing to so many applying. First prize—nothing, presented by Haven Gottit. Second prize—ditto, but nicely decorated, presented by Hive Nixey. Third prize—twice the amount of ditto, presented by Dr. Stoney, I.O.U. These prizes to be received blindfolded in case of accidents.

The 120 yards' race caused great excitement. In the first heat the Egbert Brothers led the field. Amid loud shouts of "Hurry up, Walter," the couple struggled up the track, and Walter (Mr. Albert Egbert) broke the tape. Mr. Harry Conlin was hampered by his costume, and the young Lupinos, the Nipper, and Wee Wallace were nowhere. Another "lady," Mr. King, from the Empire, figured in the next lot who faced the starter, but he was nearest that official when Mr. Bay Russell (King's) finished. The order in the final was:—1, B. Russell; 2, Jock Thomson (Cooke's); 3, B. Elliot (Cooke's); 4, Phil Terry (Royal). The Egberts saw a chance of making up for lack of success when a big hamper of prizes was left "doing nothing." They were observed, however, and the prizes were lodged, much to the amusement of the crowd, in a place of security.

Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess of Wales, with Prince Edward, visited the London Hippodrome on Saturday afternoon.

Princess Christian has given her patronage to a matinée performance at the Bedford on March 14 in aid of the North-West London Hospital, Kentish Town-road.

The annual dinner and dance of the M.H.A.R.A., to celebrate the tenth anniversary of the formation of the Association, will be held on Sunday at the "Horns" Assembly Rooms, Kennington. Mr. W. H. Clemart, the president, will occupy the chair, the vice-chair being taken by Mr. Douglas White (hon. treasurer). Seven o'clock is fixed for the reception; dinner, 7.30; conversazione, 10.30; dancing at 12.

Mr. Bert Clark (Clark and Hamilton) was on Tuesday formally expelled from the Federation by the Executive Committee, who passed a resolution condemning his attitude as calculated to retard the progress of the Alliance in general, and the Federation in particular. Mr. Clark is alleged to be the promoter of the conference among leading artists held at Frascati's on Friday of last week.

Father Bernard Vaughan, referring to the music-hall dispute in a speech at Lambeth Baths on Thursday night, said he regretted the strike because it has thrown thousands of the most charitable and best-disposed people in the kingdom out of work, and because it deprived the public of a much-needed recreation, which was supplied by the versatile talents of that most charming section of the community, the humorist, the comedian, the singer, &c.

No doubt many cranks would find fault with him for saying a good word for the music-halls, but why should he refrain from doing so? They supplied a demand that was needed in their befogged lands, where its citizens were driven under cover for their entertainments. He thanked God with all his heart that his toiling brethren and sisters had access to music-halls, which, with very rare exceptions, gave the people a very wholesome recreation for a very few coppers.

It will be remembered that the directors of the Palace Theatre some time ago sent out four bioscope operators to South Africa with instructions to take animated pictures of all phases of life in that country. The hippo hunt on the Zambesi is being shown nightly, but on Tuesday afternoon next will be seen a complete section of pictures from Rhodesia. This comprises some very striking films showing the now famous Victoria Falls, and depicting labourers accomplishing the feat of laying a mile of railway line in sixty minutes. This is understood to be a great engineering record, and is included in that section of the Cape to Cairo Railway which reaches Broken Hill. On Tuesday afternoon the audience will be composed of guests of the British South Africa Company, and will include many distinguished visitors.

The Music Hall Ladies' Guild desires to acknowledge with grateful thanks a cheque for £24 7s. 6d., received from Miss Maud Mortimer, collected by that lady on board the Kenilworth Castle after a concert given by herself and fellow artists. The following sums have also been received:—Miss Robinson (Oliver Holmes), 5s.; Miss Lottie Albert, 5s. 6d.; Miss Rose Harvey, 2s. 6d.; a gift of clothing from Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bawn (My Fancy). Contributions, in money or kind, should be sent to Anna de Grey, 69 Primrose-mansions, Prince of Wales's-road, Battersea Park, S.W.

The Three Golden Graces, in all the brightness of their youthful beauty, will, so Mr. Blyth-Pratt informs us, pose in graceful position as gold bronze works of art at the Oxford on Monday. Their representations of "The Bacchante" and "The Water Carrier" have been acknowledged both by the Continental Press and leading Academicians as perfect. The artistic exhibition once more emphasises the immortal words of Robbie Burns that "Auld Nature" "her 'prentice hand she tried on man, and then she made the lassies, O!"

Mr. Fred Reeves, the variety agent, whose illness we announced in these columns last week, is not progressing as favourably as was anticipated, and has had a slight relapse, owing to an attack of bronchitis. He hopes, however, to be about again shortly. Mr. Reeves is very sensible of the kindness of his friends who have sent letters (117) and telegrams (48), wishing him a speedy recovery. His medical adviser has ordered him away (as soon as he is able to leave his house) to Bournemouth or Hastings to recuperate.

Mr. Carter Livesey and Miss Lilian Rosebery were suddenly called upon by Mr. Alfred Butt to fill an important vacancy in the Palace programme on Tuesday evening with their successful skit, The Would-be Actors Rehearsing a Drama, and are being retained for the remainder of the week, by kind permission of Mr. Frank Glenister, of the London Pavilion, with whom they are now starring.

These talented artists will establish something like a record on Saturday, commencing with the Palace matinée, thence to Pavilion matinée, appearing again at the Palace 8.30 p.m., Pavilion 9.5, Queen's Hall 9.40, and Putney Hippodrome 10.50. Another company is now touring the provinces, and meeting with unbounded success.

Mr. Chas. M. Daly, the popular comedian and sketch producer, has, we are notified, joined forces with that successful song-writer and lyric composer Mr. Harry Taylor, the author of "Cecilia," "Never show the palm of your hand," "When the right little girl comes along," and many other successes that are published by Francis, Day, and Hunter, and William Hargreaves, &c. The first two productions under their joint-management are "I must have it" and "Oh, what a night!" The firm will trade and be known as Chas. M. Daly and Co. They commence on Monday at the Empire, Camberwell.

Camilla D'Alberg, who, by her impersonation of Vivette in the wordless play La Main, has proved, not only in the halls, but also in theatres, that she is a queen of pantomime, will shortly present a novelty to the public—a contrast to La Main, in that it is conceived in a spirit of comedy and is most humorous in its development.

The 499th meeting of the executive committee of the M.H.A.R.A. was held on Wednesday afternoon, when the following were present:—Messrs. W. H. Clemart (president), Joe O'Gorman (chairman), Douglas White (hon. treasurer), Pat Carey, Geo. Booker, Fred Neimann, Joe Elvin (hon. trustee), Wal Pink, Bernard Stavordale, Frank Gerald, Charles Pastor, Fred W. Millis (V.P.), and C. Douglas Stuart (secretary). Mr. O'Gorman presided for a portion of the proceedings, and Mr. Pat Carey for the remainder. The weekly financial statement was submitted, and was passed as read. Mr. Clemart proposed, and Mr. Frank Gerald seconded: "That this Association donate the sum of one hundred guineas to the Emergency Relief Fund of the Variety Artists' Federation." Mr. Dougles White proposed, and Mr. Fred Millis seconded, an amendment: "That one hundred guineas be donated to the Emergency Relief Fund of the V.A.F. and one hundred guineas be also donated to the railway charities." Three voted in favour of the amendment and five against it. The amendment was lost and the original proposition was carried.

The proceedings started by the common informer against Mr. Walter Gibbons, of the Empire Music Hall, Holborn, for producing stage plays in a building not licensed for that purpose, and made returnable for Monday, have been abandoned.

The annual ordinary general meeting of the Alhambra Company, Ltd., will be held on Monday at the Alhambra, at noon. The balance-sheet for 1906 shows gross receipts £85,908. After providing for debenture interest, &c., the net profit for the year is £11,075, which, with £10,558 carried forward from the previous year, makes a net balance of £21,633 to the credit of revenue. The dividend on the ordinary shares for 1906 is ten per cent., together with a bonus of two and a half per cent., or twelve and a half per cent. altogether. £9,633 is to be carried forward to this year's account. Mr. Alfred Moul and Mr. George Scott are to be congratulated.

Mr. Arthur Jefferson is responsible for another sketch, which was produced for copyright purposes at the Metropole Theatre, Glasgow, on Saturday last, the chief parts being played by members of the Albert and Edmunds troupe. The title chosen is The Amateur Fire Brigade; or, the Fire Fighters of Frizzlington

Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter, and his old friend Felix McGlennon, were among those who shared the expenses of the funeral of the late Albert Hall, who died at Bradford on the 20th ult. in practically a state of destitution. The deceased wrote many successes, and his brains and pen did much for the advancement of more than one variety vocalist. It is sad to think, therefore, of the suffering and privation he must have endured during the hopeless struggle with the penury of his last days.

Mr. Jay Laurier, a comedian new to London (another of Mr. Joseph Wilson's finds), makes his first appearance on Monday at the Tivoli. This most promising turn is of a novel character, and report speaks highly of Mr. Laurier's refined and unforced humour. Miss Madge Lessing, supported by a full chorus, is appearing nightly in her pretty snow scene (specially painted for her by Mr. Bruce Smith), and achieves enormous success with her song, "Snowland," and the Prince and Princess de Broglie enter on the last week of their engagement, owing to contracts previously made for the Continent and elsewhere.

Messrs. Stanley Damerell and Cecil Rutland have written a new and original sketch entitled In Bed, which they will produce in a week or two. The two principal characters are a broker's man and an artist. The latter character will give the actor a chance of a rest during the performance, as it is enacted entirely in bed. Is In Bed a farce in pyjamas, we wonder? Mr. Cyril Maude plays a whole act of Toddles in these garments, and Mrs. Grundy was much exercised in her mind at the time of its production. The dear old girl has, however, quite calmed down since. Mr. Willie Edelsten has secured the novelty, and is booking it in conjunction with Messrs. Damerell and Rutland's successful sketch, House Full.

Two men were remanded at Clerkenwell on Saturday on a charge of being concerned in the theft of a silver skin rug, belonging to Miss Peggy Pryde, the rug being taken from her motor car while it was kept waiting for her during her performance.

Mr. John Lawson, who is announced to present Vanity at the Metropolitan next week, has been under the doctor with the prevailing "flue."

Miss Verona Philis, now playing with conspicuous success on tour the title-rôle in Messrs. Little and Darcy's Red Riding Hood company, is a daughter of the late Sara Beryl, whom we remember in the days of our youth as a delightful Tina, in My Sweetheart. Miss Philis is also a niece of the popular Miss Lelia Roze.

Mr. Richard Garnsey, who as "Field-Marshal Tom Thumb," created somewhat of a sensation at the Egyptian Hall fifty years ago, has just died at Wellington, Somerset, at the age of seventy-four. He was born on April 23, 1832. The original "General Tom Thumb," who was 31in. high, died in June, 1883.

The Scottish Meisters, who are this week at the Hippodrome, Coventry, will sail on Wednesday for the States, opening at the Colonial Theatre, New York.

Mr. Will Murray, the manager of the Palace, Blackburn, has been suffering for some time past with appendicitis, and on Monday was operated upon successfully at Guy's Hospital, where he is progressing favourably.

Mr. J. C. Whiteman, the indefatigable manager of the City Varieties, Leeds, took his eighth annual benefit at that house on the 1st and 2nd inst., and a bumper house assembled each evening for one long whole-night performance, at which every artist in the city appeared.

Mr. Collins's See-Saw Girls are making a great success in the Aladdin pantomime, now playing at the Grand Theatre, Birmingham. Under the direction of Miss Sybil Matthews, this dainty troupe go through their songs and dances in a graceful and captivating manner.

The annual theatrical football gala, in aid of the Liverpool charities, and several societies belonging to the profession, will be held on Tuesday, 19th inst. This event, which has been going on regularly for about twenty years, has been the means of raising many thousands of pounds.

Mr. Frank Leo writes from Hanley, under date Feb. 6:—"In your list of successes by the late lamented Albert Hall you include Wilkie Bard's 'One-and-a-penny a day.' This song was written and composed by yours very truly."

The success of the San Carlos Trio in Bonnie Scotland at the granite town has completely justified Don Juan A. Caicedo in launching this artistic enterprise in which Señora Caicedo, his accomplished wife, takes a leading part. The Aberdonians are delighted with the artistic combination, and the Northern capital, "Caledonia stern and wild," have a fine appreciation of what is really good in operatic art. We hope to see and hear the San Carlos Trio in London shortly.

Mr. Scott, father of Great Scott, the ladder king, whilst playing at the Scala Theatre, Antwerp, was accidentally shot in the leg by a cannon whilst passing under the stage. A very ugly and painful wound was inflicted, but, happily, he is now on a fair way towards recovery.

A matinée performance at the Birmingham Theatre Royal was given on Tuesday by a number of music-hall artists, in aid of St. Jude's Church Fund. At the close the Rev. Arnold Pinchard, vicar of the church, said, "Here you have an object lesson showing what ought to be the right relationship between the Church and the Stage. This prejudice is one of the most difficult to kill. From the bad old times it has come down to us, this bad old prejudice, which I and others are doing our best to kill. I believe it is the first time that this kind of thing has ever been done in England in order to help a poor church in a poor parish."

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

A number which is confidently expected to be in very great demand, and which is from the joint pens of Murray, Hilbury, and Leighton, has the striking title of "All alone in Old Cologne," and its publishers, Messrs Francis and Day, have received the gratifying intelligence that the song went so well in public on the night of its "trial trip" that it was deemed expedient to play the audience out with it at a well-known place of entertainment. The ditty is of the "free" order.

A song which will be much in evidence during the coming season in the hands of humorists is "Round the Clock; or, The Strenuous Life," sung by Mr. Fred Curtis. The words are by Frank Redmond, a member of Mr. David Day's staff, who has written more than one smart ditty for the firm, and the music is by T. W. Thurban.

Lovers of broadly comic songs are enquiring with avidity for "When they grow old," which, in the hands of Messrs. Tennyson and Wallis, has greatly pleased during the current week visitors to the Holloway Empire. It is by W. H. Wallis and Charles Collins, and is published by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

Three songs by those justly-celebrated writers, Clifton Bingham and Edward St. Quentin, have, by arrangement with Messrs. Morley and Co., of Great Portland-street, been published in America by the Wood Co., of Boston, Mass. They are "Hope," "Wanderers," and "Beyond." The well-known song by the same pens, "Queen of Love," is enjoying a great popularity in the States, it having been published in America by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

Miss Dora Lyric this week has made a hit with a song by Harry Castling and Maurice Scott, entitled "What's the use of knocking at an empty house?" This number is issued by the Star Music Co.

Miss Gladys Mavius, who is working the Stoll circuit, has arranged to feature an entirely new song by Mills and Scott, entitled "Jeannie McGregor," which will be issued shortly in the Star sixpenny editions.

Advices from America inform the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. that their delightful "song of sentiment," by Paul Pelham and Herbert Rule, "I'm thinking always of you" (which is couched somewhat in the same strain as the popular "Remember me to mother dear"), has "caught on" in the realm of Uncle Sam, and Mr. Fred Day, with an American edition of this popular song, is now wooing the suffrages of the New York song-buying public.

Mr. Jock Whiteford, who goes to America in a week or so, will make a special feature during his engagement in New York of Harrington and Le Brunn's "Waitin' for ma bonnie Jean," published in this country by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co., who are represented for all their publications by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter in America.

Messrs. Fred Godfrey and John Neat have just supplied the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. with a most original and tuneful comedy waltz-song, entitled "Come for a sail in my yacht," and so highly do the "placers" of this enterprising young firm think of this number that they are according permissions to a select number of prominent artists to sing the song, and already have the number in the press for early inclusion in their "Sixpenny Successes" series.

Mr. George Lashwood's two latest successful songs, which he is now exploiting on the Stoll tour and purposes producing in the West End on his return to London, entitled respectively "Georgie from Georgia," by Pelham, McGhee, and Rule, and "Don't forget to-night," by Harrington and Tate, form two important additions to the "Sixpenny Successes" series issued by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.

No. 59 of the Monte Carlo Publishing Co.'s "Sixpenny Successes" is Messrs. Percy Edgar and Kenneth Lyle's charming song, entitled "No, thanks, Mr. Octopus," which tells an idyllic story of an amorous many-armed denizen of the deep and a mermaid unwilling to respond to his "fishy" advances. This most original number will have a special production in New York at the hands of dainty Miss Alice Lloyd, when she opens there in a week or two's time.

One of the most charming songs that has yet emanated from the ever-busy pens of Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford is their tuneful new Teutonic number, "I'm going back to the Fatherland," which will be specially "featured" shortly by a prominent artist at a leading West End music hall. It is published by the Monte Carlo Publishing Co. in their "Sixpenny Successes" series.

The Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have in the press two new coon songs, entitled "When you've time to spare," written by Percy Edgar and composed by Fred Douglas, and "I'm going to leave you now," written by Percy Edgar and composed by Walter Wilson (author of "Ain't dat a shame!"). A few permissions will be granted for these two numbers.

Miss Daisy Dormer will shortly feature a new coon song, entitled "The wedding bells won't ring for you and me," written and composed by Mr. Chas. Collins, which the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have secured.

Miss Madge Lessing is at the Tivoli this week with a new song, entitled "Sleigh Bells; or, Come and sleigh, little girl, with me." This attractive number is written and composed by Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford, from whom the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have secured the publishing rights.

Miss Annie Purcell, fresh from her pantomime triumphs, makes a welcome reappearance at the Tivoli next week, where she will feature Castling and Murphy's dainty Welsh love song, "On the Isle of Anglesey." Miss Purcell will sing this song (which is issued by the Star Music Co.) in character, and hopes to make it a worthy successor to "Zuyder Zee."

Miss Nancy Langtyre is another charming principal boy who has been persuaded to take to the "halls." This week Miss Langtyre (who made a conspicuous success at the Camden Theatre as the Prince in Cinderella) has been appearing at the Holloway Empire, where her rendering of the ubiquitous "Sailing in my balloon" has secured for her hearty applause.

Mr. A. E. Darewski will, on the evening of Thursday next, the 14th inst., manage at Bechstein Hall a grand concert, under distinguished patronage, in aid of the Home for Incurable Children, N.W., and the programme will be contributed to by many celebrated artists by kind permission of their respective managers. Among the names in the preliminary list are those of Misses Marie Dainton, Winifred Hare, Annie Mars, Mabel Green, Mabel Love, Pearl Lyndon, and Gladys Marsden, and Messrs. Boris Hambourg, Barclay Gammon, Richard Green, Walter Hancock, Humphrey Bishop, H. Lane Wilson, Stanley Adams, Ward Cowdery, Albert Archdeacon, Percy Frostick, and Master Max Darewski. At the piano will be Signor Valenza, Mr. Otley Marshall, and Miss Irene Asdaile.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE OXFORD.

Mr. Blyth-Pratt has secured a very remarkable attraction for the Oxford in The Stunning Grenadiers, whose "call to arms" at this fine house every evening reveals a brigade of lady guards of rare charm, beauty, and shapeliness. They bivouac, they drill, and they sing their choruses with as much entrain as if they were barrack-room ballads. They are officered by Meredith Meredro, who is termed the American prima donna. Though we think it is quite likely that the United States possesses more than one prima donna, Miss Meredro is quite good enough to go on with, and sings really well, displaying a wonderful range of voice in her burlesque of the methods of a lady star in New York. The novelty is in three scenes, and with the second—The Purple Palace—the pretty and chic military costumes, specially designed by Comelli, tone exquisitely. In one of the scenes a French soubrette sings a vocal waltz, and is presently joined by the conductor, Jesse L. Losky, who has charge of Mr. W. Burgess's orchestra during the exploitation of the novelty, which is staged by Bothwell Browns. A "striking" item of The Stunning Grenadiers is the cymbal clashing accompaniment to one of the selections, and the note of humour is sounded in the final item, in which the ladies burlesque Sousa, the march composer, and his method of conducting. The Stunning Grenadiers is a brilliant production, and its attractiveness is beyond dispute.

It is pleasant to encounter in one's travels round the halls such a well-written and amusing sketch as 327 Finsbury, which is being presented here nightly by Mr. Arthur Playfair and Miss Maud Wynter. The actress represents Mrs. Leslie, a fascinating and rich widow, who wishes to gain a name on the turf. Under the name of Jones, she has backed winners to the discomfiture of the Paddocks Bureau, represented by Rolf Tremayne, who has come by mistake to her flat. Taking him into her confidence, she tells him she has backed a "treble" with his firm. It comes off, and to save himself from bankruptcy Tremayne offers his hand, heart, and a share in the Derby favourite which he owns, to Mrs. Leslie, who, delighted at the prospect of becoming a turf celebrity, consents. A very amusing bit of business in the sketch is the ecstatic description of an imaginary race for the Derby by Tremayne, whose alternating anxiety and joy are shared by his fiancée. Mr. Arthur Playfair, who is no stranger to the variety boards, makes a light-hearted and amusing Tremayne, and Miss Maud Wynter plays very naturally and breezily as the widow.

Among the single turns is the popular and dainty comedienne Miss Amy Clevere, who long since joined the cohort of Oxford favourites. Miss Clevere 'witches and captivates us in a sentimental ballad which throws a halo of romance round an old oak tree—a pretty melody indeed, and one that is sung with heart and voice by the artist, who looks exceedingly pretty in her costume of blue. Miss Alice Hollander scores a great success with Teresa del Riego's "O, dry those tears"; and Mr. Bert Coote's Yankee-Doodle Girls interest us all the time they are on the stage in their spirited evolutions and well-executed coon dances.

Mr. F. A. Martell presents a remarkable act, and performs the very singular feat of dancing on his finger-tips—a piece of topsy-turveydom which creates a decided sensation. The Sisters Caselli are extraordinary dancers, being much applauded in their lissome legmania; Mr. Robert Dohn imperils his cervical vertebræ at every performance with his formidable weights, but always comes up smiling; Percival, the pianist and humorist, deputises with success in both capacities; and on the night of our visit Mr. Rex King presented an impersonation of the hardy tar who nearly discovered the North Pole with Dr. Nansen. The best thing in Mr. King's entertainment was his imitation of the facial expression of two speakers at a political meeting. The audience laughed heartily at the whole business, for which we predict a very great success. Other turns announced in a most attractive bill are Mr. James Fawn, Mr. Morny Cash, Mr. Frank Lynne, Mlle. Olga Doré, Miss Bertha Stuart, the Great Ikondo Japanese Troupe, the Five Whiteleys, Lanos and Montes, Xaver, and Ruffell's Bioscope.

THE BEDFORD.

Despite the exigencies of the music hall war, by which the Camden Town Hall, in common with many others, is affected, Mr. B. P. Lucas and his able lieutenant, Mr. A. F. Lovesey, have got together an excellent programme. Perhaps the names are not those of artists as well known as those which it is customary to find in the bill, but on acquaintance one finds them of a high order of merit, and on the evening of our visit the hall was filled with a large audience, who seemed thoroughly satisfied with the fare provided. The top of the bill consists of a sketch, entitled The Power of Music, which is presented by Messrs. F. S. Jennings and Jan Rudenyi. The plot is quite slight, but it serves to introduce that fine violinist, Jan Rudenyi, who is a perfect artist and master of his instrument. His selections are greatly admired, and fairly brought down the house. Miss Dora De Winter and Mr. J. D. Saunders also lend valuable support in this little dramatic episode. Another popular turn is that of Miss Evelyn Taylor, who thoroughly merits all the applause she secures for her smart singing of her excellent numbers.

Wrestling has always been a great attraction at the Bedford, and the habitués of this hall are very keen critics of the sport. Mr. Lauritz Neilson, the world's ex-middle-weight champion wrestler, is also in the bill, and is offering £25 to the person who succeeds in throwing him in fifteen minutes. He has met with several very strong opponents during his visit, and the matches are watched with intense interest. A very smart illusionist is Selvini, who seems to be able to produce anything out of nothing, as it were, and at the art of card-manipulation he is a master. Mr. Bert Kemble is to the fore with his songs, and goes well; and another entertaining comedian is Mr. Charles Harvey, who patters along and keeps the audience in rare humour, winding up his turn with a decidedly quaint song, "I ain't a-going to wait any longer," which was so diverting that the audience wanted more. The Sisters Julian are a very charming couple of ladies, who have a very pretty duet, "Will you love me in December as you used to do in May?" the refrain of which catches on decidedly. They also sing another, "Honey, will you miss me when I've gone?" and wind up their pleasing turn with a neatly-executed dance.

Miss Lena Penrose and company appear in a short dramatic sketch, The One Too Many, the scene of which is laid in Peru, and is elaborately mounted. The sketch is well acted, Miss Penrose being admirably suited to her part, and acting with skill. The names of the characters and the actors are omitted from the programme, but we should specially like to pay a tribute to the gentleman who played the title-rôle. It is a capital piece of work, and deserving of high praise. The Four Sisters Victoria are most entertaining in their musical selections, and Miss Vera Mayne sings well "All that glitters is not gold," the chorus of which is enthusiastically taken up by the gallery boys. Miss Ethel Collins, the South African prima donna, meets with success; and Kid Johnson and Maisie Pelham are most welcome with their act, "The Golf Match." Ruffell's Imperial Bioscope, with several fine films, brings the programme to a close. The orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. G. R. Hatley, and acquit themselves well. Mr. A. F. Lovesey, the courteous manager, as usual, does all in his power for his patrons' enjoyment and comfort at this comfortable hall.

THE METROPOLITAN.

The outside of the "Met.," on the Edgware-road, was being patrolled by pickets and police when our representative arrived, and "literature" was distributed among the crowd, who were exhorted by good-humoured policemen to "pass on, please." Mr. Edgar had grappled manfully with the "boycott," and had provided deputies for the Federationists who had been called out. Among those "missing" were the Sisters Pine, Mr. Harry Grey, the Leonards, Miss Elsa Joel, Miss Millie Payne, and Mr. Will Cornish. Mr. D. M. Trytels' orchestra and the stage hands mostly remained loyal. Early in the evening Mr. George English and Miss Flo Penley appeared in a musical comedy duologue, and laughter and applause were evoked by the winsome ways and vivacious acting of the lady, who proved herself to be irresistible in an impersonation in which she displayed her ability to great advantage. Mr. George English, a sound actor, who learnt his business in the "legit.," gives excellent support, and the trifle is entirely agreeable.

At the end of the bill tragedy is in the air while Mr. John Lawson and an excellent company are presenting The King's Minister, written by that apostle of the commercial drama, Mr. Cecil Raleigh. The chief of the Cabinet of the English Empire dines at a Soho restaurant with a lady, who knew him and loved him in his salad days. She can help him in a matter that can only be satisfactorily dealt with by a woman of resource and tact. It concerns the future of his daughter, who has written indiscreet letters to a lover who no longer commands anybody's respect. The packet of billets-doux are handed over at the little dinner. The tragedy turns on a trifling incident. The Minister leaves his pocket-book behind. It contains a number of notes, and is marked with his initials in gold. The lady takes care of it, but the greedy eyes of the restaurateur are watching her, and he coolly murders her for its possession. He endeavours to blackmail the Minister, who outwits him and commits suicide to save his honour. Mr. John Lawson in the title-rôle plays in a powerful and interesting manner.

We have heard many ballad-singers at the Edgware-road house, but few of the calibre of Miss Louise Zetland, who is well suited with Tosti's "Good-bye," a favourite selection of the great prima donna, Melba. "Sing me to sleep" is also a popular melody that Miss Zetland interprets with much taste, and her reception is a pleasing proof that a music-hall audience invariably appreciate the cultured vocalist with a voice. Miss Clara Mathers, who is taking the place of one of the absent turns, displays considerable ability as a trick pianist, playing blindfolded, and imitating both the church and the piano-organ. As she is not supposed to be a character actress she should avoid appearing in the short dress ornamented with a sash that would be worn by a child of ten. Mr. George Croft, another entertainer at the piano, was much too hurried in his delivery. He introduced a scene from The Mariners of England, with the characters of Nelson and Captain Lebaudy—a tactical mistake when one takes into consideration that but one or two of the audience had ever seen the piece. Miss Violet Carlyle, divinely tall and endowed with a telling voice, has a couple of songs of domestic sentiment, to which she does full justice. "My snowdrop pearl" possesses a haunting refrain, and there are qualities of melody in "Two loving eyes" that appeal to any popular audience. Mr. Jack Charman has a favourite ditty in "May I come home again?"; and Miss Bessie Benson puts plenty of go into the coon number, "Good-night, Mr. Brown, I'm out." Miss Mabel Bardini and company interest everyone in the story of Nell of the Music Halls; the Romsakoff Troupe of Japanese Guards present a turn numbering many bright and interesting features; and an excellent series of films is projected by Jeapes. Tom and Edith Felix as clown and clowness are popular; and Mr. Jock Whiteford is also announced.

For Notices of other Halls, see Page 16.

GEORGE GRAY

AT THE EMPIRE THEATRE, BRADFORD.
UNIVERSALLY POPULAR.

The Fighting Parson has at last met more than his match. Parson Gray, V.C., is unquestionably his superior in every way. When one remembers the universal popularity of Mr. George Gray's well-known sketch, the probability of the new-comer soaring to what must be the first position in anything the author-actor has yet attempted may, to some people, appear difficult to realise. In Parson Gray, V.C., however, there is a concentration of dramatic effect which is rarely seen. It would seem next to an impossibility almost to compress into a short music-hall sketch incidents so grim, so sternly realistic, and at times so intensely pathetic. Though but a thirty minute piece, one seems to go away with the impression of having witnessed a melodrama of three or four full acts. It may fairly be claimed for the general idea underlying the sketch that it does not overstep the bounds of reason in giving opportunities to a particular class of character which the chief actor's name has always been familiarly associated with. The domestic complications that are responsible for "Parson Gray" quitting the scene of a work to which he is so devoted and transplanting him amid the din of the battlefield need not be told. But all is cleverly worked out. From succouring the wounded to achieving acts of gallantry, culminating in his winning of the "V.C.," this fearless spirit seems endowed with qualities that stand out for admiration. Altogether, it is a stirring sketch, and one that is certain to make a name for itself in the present hands. It was produced last night for the first time, and when the curtain went down the applause was indeed great. Mr. Craig, the general-manager, congratulated Mr. Gray before the footlights on the success of the piece, and the many admirable things that gentleman said of it were cordially approved by the audience, as was evidenced by the applause which punctuated his remarks.—Bradford Telegraph.

SAN CARLOS TRIO

A CORDIAL RECEPTION.

The San Carlos Trio of operatic vocalists, at the Aberdeen Palace, entered on their second week's engagement with marked success. These cultured singers appear in entirely different rôles this week, and, if anything, appear to better advantage. The Aberdeen public appear to appreciate them more the more they see of them, and last night they had a most cordial reception. — Aberdeen Free Press, Feb. 5, '07.

FINE SINGING AND GRACEFUL ACTING.

Those accomplished operatic artists, the San Carlos, who created so favourable an impression last week by their fine singing and graceful acting, made an equally attractive and successful appearance last night in a complete change of programme.—Aberdeen Daily Journal, Feb. 5, '07.

MOSS EMPIRES' PURCHASE.

The report of the directors of Moss Empires, Ltd., states that the profits from theatres, rents, &c., during the year amount to £144,621, against £108,766 in 1905.

The directors have entered into a contract to purchase the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, under which the company got possession on March 1. The directors were of opinion that they would have been neglecting the interests of the shareholders had they failed to avail themselves of the opportunity which presented itself of acquiring this large centrally-situated theatre.

THE LATE MR. JAS. CHAPPELL.

Amid many tokens of sorrow and regret the funeral of the late Mr. James Chappell took place on Monday, when the remains were conveyed to London for interment in the family grave at Bow Cemetery. A special mortuary car was attached to the 7.35 London express from Southtown Station, Yarmouth, in which the coffin, which was accompanied by a large number of wreaths, was placed. The coffin, which was of polished oak with massive brass plate and fittings, bore the inscription:—

JAMES CHAPPELL DOSSETT,
Born Dec. 15, 1829;
Died Jan. 30, 1907.

Among those present at the station to take a last glimpse of the coffin of their old friend were Mr. J. Ellis, Mr. C. Ellis, Mr. C. Panchen, Mr. G. Baxter, Mr. E. B. Orpen, Mr. Walter H. Nightingale, and Mr. Leslie Reed, an old member of the Beach company. Under a provision in his will the deceased gentleman expressly exempted any ladies from the mournful duty of attending his funeral.

The following is a list of floral tokens sent to the Southtown Station with the coffin:—Harp, with broken string, a token of fondest love, from his loving and sorrowing wife. The harp was composed of lilies of the valley, roses, arum lilies and palm leaves and tied with white ribbon. Wreath, a love token to dear father, from James and Clara. Wreath, a love token to dear father, from his loving and devoted daughter, Sara. Wreath, in fond and loving memory of dear father, from Emma and John. Chaplet, in loving memory of our dearest grandpa, Bert, Di, Jim, and Nan. Cross, to grandpa, Bert, Di, Jim, and Nan. Cross, to dear grandpa, from his loving granddaughters, Kate, Annie, and Daisy. Cross, to dear grandpa, from his loving grandchildren, Burdett-road, Bow. Wreath, in loving memory, George and Arthur Baxter. Harp, in affectionate remembrance of an old friend, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Nightingale. Wreath, sincere sympathy and deep regret, Mr. Walter Nightingale. Wreath, with deepest sympathy, from Mr. T. Green and Miss Green. Wreath, sincere sympathy and remembrance of a dear friend, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Ellis. Cross, in loving remembrance, from Chas. and Freda Ellis. Anchor, with deepest sympathy, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gilbert. Wreath, with deepest sympathy, Jenny Wilshak and family. Wreath, with deepest sympathy, John Symonds, Great Yarmouth. Wreath, with deepest sympathy, John Buck, Great Yarmouth. Harp, with deepest sympathy, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Trew, Forest Gate. Heart, in affectionate remembrance, from Dr. James Riley and directors of Britannia Pier Co. Wreath, in remembrance, from his Friday evening friends. Wreath, with sincere regards from an old pal of thirty years, Tom Maltby, London and Sandgate. Wreath, in sincere sympathy, Messrs. J. and W. Goode. Wreath, with sincere sympathy, Mr. and Mrs. Holmes and family, Cromwell Hotel. Wreath, sincere sympathy, Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Wharton. Cross, from Joyce and Ruth. Harp, deepest sympathy, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gilbert, Lowestoft. Cross, in loving memory, from Mrs. Fred Riley and daughters. Wreath, deepest sympathy, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Reed. Floral tokens of regard were also received from Messrs. Morris, Michael and Fred Abrahams, Ernest D'Almaine, Ellis W. Laing, Fred Brown, P. Hynes, Langdon, Bartlett, Gibbon, the Terriers' Association, staff of Chappell and Co., &c.

At Liverpool-street Station the coffin was placed in a funeral car with glass case. Four pair-horse broughams conveyed the mourners, who were Mr. James Chappell (son), Mr. J. Lawton (grandson), Mr. J. Bartlett (son-in-law), Mr. J. Bartlett, jun. (grandson), Mr. F. Bartlett (grandson), Mr. Charles Cavalier, Mr. W. Johnson, Mr. J. C. Baker, Mr. E. Thomas, and Mr. H. Bartlett. Proceeding by way of Houndsditch and Whitechapel-road, and slightly halting outside the Pavilion Theatre, Bow Cemetery was reached about 12.15. A large assembly had congregated here to meet the cortège, including Messrs. Morris Abrahams, Isaac Cohen, D. Munroe, Michael Abrahams, Fred Brown, Philip Rutland (family solicitor), Dr. Ambrose, the Rev. Father Murphy, Tom Carney, Ralph Hart, Barney Hart, J. Wright, J. and L. Abrahams, J. Howell (G.E.R.), G. Barnard, W. Jacobs, F. Moscatti, T. Deeks, Col. Diver, J. Richards (Willing's), A. Abrahams ("Coach and Horses"), W. G. Ulph, James Smith, Ernest D'Almaine, Fred Riley, C. Cox, H. Moore, J. Wright, H. W. Hillier, Samuel Gunton, W. Laing, G. Herring, R. J. and B. T. Tucker, C. Oxford, J. R. Roberts, M. Gostling, Alderman Pascoe (Hammersmith), E. Davy (Davy and Son), President of London Billposters' Association, W. Barry (Bruton and Co.), Jones, Wigg, Gill, Baker, J. Davy, staff of the firm, staff of the Queen's, Poplar, &c. Needless to say the cemetery's pretty little church was packed to its utmost capacity, and the scene was very affecting. In impressive tones the minister, the Rev. J. T. Wyatt, read the funeral service, and then all proceeded to the family grave in the rear of the sacred edifice, where the remains were laid to rest.

AT THE PALACE, DERBY.

A DELIGHTFUL MUSICAL TURN.

Popular as the entertainment provided at the Palace Theatre of Varieties invariably proves, there are weeks when it may be said to be of a very specially attractive character, and the present is one of those occasions, the bill including the Seven Savonas, whose most elaborate and delightful musical turn, though not new locally, is sure to be received with rapture by those who see and hear it. The Savonas who, by the way, constitute the only Saxophone band in existence, enjoy a deservedly high reputation for the entertainment they provide, and there is no mistaking the popularity which they have established by their performances locally. Perviously they have only presented their musical festival at one of the two performances given each evening, but for the present visit special arrangements have been made for it to be given at each performance, and such being the case none need fear disappointment. From a spectacular as well as from a musical point of view the turn ranks in a class by itself, and those who have not seen the Seven Savonas as they appear and perform in a scene entitled "The Palace of Orpheus," the cost of which is said to be £2,000, have a treat in store. Most notable of all is "The Storm Scene" from the famous overture of William Tell, a masterly and most realistic performance, in which the elements of a storm are reproduced with wonderful effect. In the course of their performance they introduce many new and quite novel instruments, and we would repeat that a visit to the Palace merely to make the acquaintance of the Seven Savonas will well repay one.—Derby Express, Tuesday, Feb. 5, 1907.

"KING BABY."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—"Her Majesty the Baby," as a song (also suggested by the famous picture) is now nearly seven years old, having been born in May, 1900. As Miss Vesta Tilley declined to adopt her, she became the protégée of Frank Dean and Co., and was very successfully sponsored by Miss Edith Rose, Mr. Bert Dansie, and other well-known artists. And her only parent is, Yours faithfully,

Kentish Town, Feb. 5. CHARLIE OSBORNE.

THE MUSIC HALL DISPUTE.

PEACE IN SIGHT.

We had scarcely gone to press last week when we heard that level-headed advice had been allowed a hearing, and that conciliation was in the air. This good news seemed to receive confirmation from the speech of Mr. Joe O'Gorman on Sunday at the Scala, where he announced that he had been on a most important mission in connection with the dispute—"a mission which I hope sincerely, and I have every reason to be convinced, will now lead to an honourable and amicable settlement to all parties concerned." Mr. O'Gorman had evidently founded his hopes on a conference that had been arranged for Monday at the Trocadero. This took place under the presidency of Mr. Joe Lyons, a friend both of artists and managers. The managers were represented by Mr. Henri Gros, Mr. Henry Tozer, Mr. G. A. Payne, Mr. J. L. Graydon, Mr. Tom Barrasford, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Henry Sutton, and Mr. H. H. Wells; and the artists by Miss Marie Lloyd, Mr. Arthur Roberts, Mr. John Kurkamp, Mr. Carl Hertz, Mr. Arthur Rigby, Mr. Bert Clark, Messrs. Fairbanks and Parker (Gotham Quartet), Mr. Joe Elvin, Mr. Wal Pink, Mr. Alec Hurley, Mr. Joe O'Gorman, and Mr. Paul Martinetti.

At the outset there was trouble. The managers declared that in no circumstances would they treat with the Alliance as a body, and would recognise its members and officers merely as artists and employees. Mr. O'Gorman, the chairman of the V.A.F., immediately withdrew, and his example was followed by Messrs. Elvin, Martinetti, and Pink. The other artists remained, and took part in the conference.

Mr. Henry Tozer, who acted as secretary, at the conclusion of a protracted session, made the following official statement:—

"A definite and satisfactory agreement between the chief 'stars' and the managers has been arrived at.

"Certain clauses in contracts were open to misinterpretation, and gave the idea that the managers held a giant's power over the artists. By agreement these clauses have been modified and defined.

"The question of the stage hands and musicians was mentioned at the meeting, but nothing was done with regard to their position. Their case will be considered separately and individually later on.

"So far as the 'stars' are concerned, the matter is now at an end. The agreement which I have in my pocket will be signed to-morrow by all of them, and they will recommend their brother artists to accept it. Until it is signed, we cannot publish the terms.

"Legal proceedings will be dropped, and the 'stars' will reappear at the different halls in the course of a few days."

ALLEGED AGREEMENT.

Late on Monday night a manifesto was issued, signed by Mr. Harry Mountford, the chairman of the Alliance, and by the three secretaries of the joint organisations, Messrs. Frank Gerald, J. B. Williams, and William Johnson. It ran as follows:—

There is no truth in the rumours of an approaching settlement of the music hall war. There is no "third party" in the National Alliance. The result of the conference between certain members of the V.A.F. and the managers has in no way affected the strike.

The happenings of the next few days will doubtless convince everybody of the fact that the strike is still in progress, and the National Alliance still firmly entrenched in its position. It is regrettable that a few artists, led away by the misrepresentation of a member, since expelled from the V.A.F., consented to hold a parley with the managers. However injudicious it may have been on their part, we are convinced they had no idea of abandoning the cause, and that they will never do so.

The last word of the National Alliance, composed of the V.A.F., the A.M.U., and the N.A.T.E., is that the National Alliance must be recognised, and that no settlement will be possible other than between the directors as accredited representatives of their companies and the official representatives of the allied societies.

The alleged agreement was also repudiated by Mr. Arthur Roberts in the following telephone message to the V.A.F.:—"Please tell the committee, on behalf of Miss Marie Lloyd, myself, and others, that the report that is all over London that we have settled affairs with the managers is a lie. We only went to listen to this proposal, and signed and settled nothing."

The London Entertainments Protection Association had previously issued the following official statement:—"While ready, as it always has been, to listen to and discuss with artists any real grievances in order to remove such, if any, as may be found to exist, the Entertainments Protection Association refuses absolutely to recognise the Alliance, or to treat directly or indirectly with its officials. The Association will consider all important questions that have been raised with a view to harmony and confidence being fully restored."

TRADE UNION INTERVENTION.

On Tuesday the situation was further complicated by the intervention of three representatives of the General Federation of Trade Unions. At the offices of the Entertainments Protection Association, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. H. Tozer, and Mr. G. Adney Payne, acting on behalf of the managers, met Alderman Mitchell, secretary of the General Federation of Trade Unions; Mr. W. C. Steadman, M.P., secretary of the Trade Union Congress Parliamentary Committee; and Mr. Edmund Browne Browne, standing counsel of the General Federation. It is understood that these three officials, who represent the two million trade unionists in the United Kingdom, intervened with the object of securing a settlement not affecting the artists alone, but embracing the whole body of the strikers. As a result of their deliberations with the three managers, it was agreed to recommend that all questions in dispute, including the modified form of contract provisionally agreed upon at the Trocadero conference, should be referred to a committee of eight—the managers to be represented by Mr. H. Tozer, Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Henri Gros, and Mr. Walter Payne, and the artists, musicians, and stage employees by Alderman Mitchell, Mr. Steadman, Mr. Browne, and Mr. Arthur Roberts.

ANOTHER ALLIANCE MANIFESTO.

Under the heading "The truth about the present situation," the National Alliance has circulated the following, signed by Messrs. Johnson, Gerald, and Williams, secretaries of the three bodies composing the Alliance: "The time has come for introducing the public to the true inwardness of the recent developments in the music hall war. It is a matter of regret to the executive committee of the National Alliance that misconception of the actual state of affairs has grown in some quarters. The actual facts are these: Messrs. Steadman, Mitchell, and Browne came into the case as a result of the Alliance's appeal to the great Labour organisations which these gentlemen represent. This was a movement which we always contemplated, and one which we consider of far weightier import than the closing of a few music halls, and it formed part of our programme from the very beginning of the strike. Messrs. Steadman, Mitchell, and Browne have been, during the last few days, inquiring into the situation to obtain the statements of both sides as to what they considered their rights and grievances. When this inquiry is concluded they will report to their respective organisations and to the National Alliance. This, then, is the explanation of the goings and comings of this commission and the conferences to which they have been party. The settlement of the strike can only come by all the music hall managers recognising the authorised representatives of the Variety Artists' Federation, the Amalgamated Musicians' Union, and the National Association of Theatrical Employees."

It is also understood that the National Alliance is fully prepared to take over and operate as an Alliance house a London music hall now running. This matter has been in negotiation for some days, and all preliminaries have been arranged. Unless the strike is settled meanwhile to the satisfaction of the Alliance it is stated that this music hall will be opened to the public under the new régime within a fortnight.

MORE HALLS BOYCOTTED.

On Tuesday the executive of the National Alliance decided to attack two more halls, and an attempt was accordingly made to close the Metropolitan and Chelsea Palace, of which halls Mr. Henri Gros is the managing-director. It is understood that this step was taken as a sufficient answer to the managers' contention that the strike was over. At the conclusion of the first house Mr. J. Norman Berlin stated that in consequence of the fiat of the National Alliance three of the artists under contract to appear had refused to do so. He trusted the two extra turns he had provided were to the satisfaction of the audience, but if any were not satisfied he would be pleased to see them at the box-office. In the second house Mr. Henri Gros, after making a similar statement, declared his gratification that the orchestra and stage hands had remained loyal to him. As far as he could see, the grievances of the artists were few and far between, and he thought that it was highly probable that an arrangement of the whole matter would be arrived at shortly; but, at any rate, he could assure his patrons, no matter what the result was, no efforts would be spared by him to provide them with a programme of the usual standard of excellence.

At the Metropolitan Mr. Jack Edgar explained the situation to the audience, and Mr. Henri Gros also spoke, the gist of his remarks being contained in the following manifesto:—"The sudden attempt by professional agitators to prevent your evening's enjoyment is based upon misrepresentation. No grievance by any artist, musician, or stage-hand employed at this theatre has ever been alleged. The amounts of salaries and wages paid will be published, so that the public can judge for themselves. The performance will positively take place to-night and every evening."

LATEST FROM THE FRONT.

The feature of the negotiations on Thursday for a settlement of the dispute was the fact that Mr. Wal Pink was summoned to attend at the conference between the Trade Unions Inquiry Committee and the music hall managers—jointly known as the Conciliation Board. This consists of eight members—Mr. Oswald Stoll, Mr. Henri Gros, Mr. Henry Tozer, and Mr. Walter Payne, representing the managers, and Alderman Mitchell, L.C.C., Mr. W. C. Steadman, M.P., Mr. Edmund Browne, and Mr. Arthur Roberts, representing the artists, musicians, and stage employees. The conference lasted all day, but nothing definite has as yet come of its deliberations. The only official statement which was communicated to the Press was the following:

A meeting of the Board of Conciliation was held to-day and discussion took place, at considerable length, upon the matters in dispute. The deliberations have not yet been concluded, and the Board have adjourned until to-morrow.

It is now believed that the negotiations will extend over several days, and it is understood that the conclusions will be submitted to the two parties concerned before they are made public. Anything which may be arranged will amount to nothing until it has received the consent of the managers and of the Alliance.

It was stated by a representative of the managers that Mr. Wal Pink only attended to lay certain facts before the members of the conference, but the Alliance claims that he has been called in for consultation, which is considered a point of considerable significance.

The latest pronunciamento of the Alliance says: "If terms are arranged at the conference between the managers and the 'inquiry committee,' which are regarded by the Alliance as equitable, the Alliance committee will then have to consider those proposals. However good the conditions are, if the managers refuse to recognise the Alliance, as the Alliance, there will be no settlement, and certainly no truce is possible until the deed of settlement is signed and sealed."

The Union of Music Hall Artists of France have written to the Variety Artists' Federation, tendering their English comrades on strike their fraternal regards, and assuring them of their devotion and best wishes for the full and complete success of their legitimate claims.

An impression has got abroad that the production of the revue will be indefinitely postponed if a settlement should be reached; but Mr. Frank Gerald—who is conducting the rehearsals at the Scala—said on Thursday: "The Scala will open, and the production of the revue will continue as long as the business done is sufficient to warrant it, just as is the case with every stage production. Settlement or non-settlement of the strike does not affect the situation in any way."

Mr. Frank Macnaghten, who controls five London and ten provincial halls, sent a message yesterday to the V.A.F., announcing that he has sent in his resignation to the London Entertainments Protection Association. That Association has not yet received Mr. Macnaghten's resignation.

Members of the Variety Artists' Federation at present in Leeds, met on Thursday at the Mitre Hotel. Mr. George Gray (the Fighting Parson) presided, and a resolution was unanimously passed expressing the hope that no settlement would be accepted which did not fulfil the conditions laid down by the National Alliance.

TO ALL WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.—I desire to return my heartfelt thanks to all those friends (comprising London and provincial proprietors and managers, artists, and brother agents) who have written to me during my present illness; also to those friends who have called at my house, but, owing to the doctor's orders, have been unable to see me. I have received no less than 117 letters and forty-eight telegrams, and the expressions of sympathy contained therein have deeply affected me. I should like to reply to each one separately, but that is impossible. However, I hope to be about again shortly, then I can thank each one personally. In the meantime, they may rest assured that the interest they have taken in me is greatly appreciated, and that their kindness will never be forgotten by me. — Signed, FRED REEVES, The Cedars, Grove-road, Brixton, S.W.

THE V.A.F. VICTORIES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—It is customary to review the field of battle and its forces. In doing so, I claim your indulgence to state that I at once admit that the leaders of the strike have gained several victories and, with your permission, I herewith detail their trophies.

First success.—They closed up the Hippodrome at Brixton, and they have deprived the workers of a salary list of from £200 to £250 per week, £60 of which would have gone to the wage earners behind the stage, in front of the house, and the musicians, &c., and close upon Christmas these people were thrown out of employment; and, had it not been for Mr. Gibbons subscribing 50 guineas, Mr. Payne 10 guineas, and another odd £40, the produce of the matinée, these people might have been in very sad straits Christmas week. Trophy No. 1.

Trophy No. 2.—They succeeded in throwing out of employment a set of contented workmen from the various halls that were attacked.

Trophy No. 3.—Property has been damaged at several places. Charter signed by Mr. Grimes without the consent of his board for the Empress, Brixton, and Putney Hippodrome, and by making a statement to Mr. Macnaghten they induced him to sign, which to-day he regrets.

Trophy No. 4.—They succeeded in doing that which neither iron will, indomitable pressure and continuous hard work could have accomplished: They have overcome petty jealousies of proprietors, have vanquished the various differences that existed between competitors who looked at each other askance; and in a small association, which up to now has consisted of from 35 to 40 London halls, banded together for parliamentary and licensing protection, they have managed to erect a solid phalanx of comrades and friends, hand in hand, consisting of 180 establishments, and daily growing in number, to resist the slanders, the attacks, the vilification, and the egregious attempts of a combination which has gone far beyond every conception of the usual methods of labour strife. I believe it is usual when a strike is ordered for the executive to consult its members. I may be wrong, but I have read in the press frequently that on such occasions a ballot is taken. Here 4000 members of a society, originally intended for redress and benevolent purposes in one combination, have been suddenly allied with socialistic strike leaders, and in questions of which they knew nothing and in which they have no interest, artists, without being allowed to express a voice or vote, have been led astray and misguided to a sufficient extent to be thrown out of work and to interfere with those with whom they have lived for years on amicable terms, and with whom they held contracts on which they never expressed a grievance.

The demand of pay for the wage-earners on the stage and musicians exceeds by from 50 to 100 per cent. and more what was conceded to the hazardous employment of railway workers, who work ten hours a day, and which was accepted by the secretary of their Amalgamated Union, Mr. Bell, M.P.

At a time like this it is well that facts should be placed bluntly before the public who patronise the artists and the various establishments at which they perform. Neither the manager who controls them nor the artists who are paid large or small salaries are demi-gods; both of them alike are servants of the public, with this difference, that the managers have all the responsibility, and when the artists betray their contracts and their trust the manager is held to be responsible for the disappointment.

As to contracts, I am not a lawyer, but my opinion is that the result to the artists of not having fulfilled their engagements is that they will have to pay to the respective proprietors whose contracts they have broken such an amount by way of damages as will place the proprietors in the same position as if the contracts had been performed. The loss to date runs into several thousand pounds, and whatever sum that may ultimately be, added to the law costs, will represent the sum for which they will be answerable.

So far as concerns any breach of contract by performing at any place within the limits of the barring clause, such breaches proprietors will apply for injunctions to restrain, and the cost to the artist of contesting an action for an injunction will, I believe, be not less than £100 in each case. Inasmuch as injunctions have been granted on innumerable occasions on the present form of barring clause in our contracts, proprietors have no fear of their success in these cases.

These few lines are not penned in any vindictive spirit; they are written in the hope that they will open the eyes of those who have been led astray, and show them to what extent they are jeopardising their reputation and the trust that the public have a right to place in them and to expect a response thereto.

In this connection, many grievances have been aired, real or fancied; salaries have been spoken about and compared to theatrical salaries. I will not talk of the stars who receive huge amounts for doing two or three turns a night; I will not here remind them that if they are to become trade unionists they must adhere to that principle of "one man, or woman, one job," and that one turn at a hall, according to the tenets of their leaders, is all-sufficient for their needs. I would compare the salaries of the smaller artists to the salaries received by educated ladies and gentlemen in theatres. I have read in the paper of music hall artists who have been paid £1 a week, and had to walk home long distances. I can only say that these either exist in the imagination of the writers, or they are part and parcel of a sketch company, or troupe, or combination, where a huge salary is received by the principal, and doles dealt out by him to the smaller fry. In the theatrical world I know of several cases where educated men and women receive in touring companies £2 per week to play first-class parts, out of which they have to buy gloves and other little accessories. I know of leading ladies and leading gentlemen who play in the provinces for four or five months of the year in companies owned by managers with high-sounding names at £4 or £5 per week. They are not at the same time at liberty to perform at any other house, even if circumstances permitted it. Indeed, sir, the smallest turn, which is supposed to be beggarly paid at £3 or £4 per week on the music hall stage, if it has the least merit is at once engaged by other managers, either direct or through a respectable agent, at the same salary for two or three halls, and that salary of £3 or £4 per week becomes £9 or £12, and if it goes to the provinces it probably gets £8 or £10. These are not salaries to be despised even in these days of socialist tendencies.

That artists should associate themselves with a strike that is iniquitous in its conception without being called upon to have a voice therein; that they should support a campaign that is supported by every slander and every falsehood that it is possible for evil genius to invent; that they should endeavour to assist in misleading the public, by whom they have been petted and spoilt; that they should talk of slavery, when they are the tyrants, continuously evading their contracts, desiring at all times to alter their time, seeking to impose what position they should occupy on the bills, continuously asking for permission to postpone their dates, and, alas, too frequently receiving it, and thus imposing upon the good-natured management and seeking to undermine those who are in a position of trust by their shareholders, or those who as single proprietors try to earn an honest five to ten per cent. on their capital invested in a speculative business which is presided over by a licensing authority, passes the wit of any sane man. In my mind's prophetic eye I can see the leaders of this movement raising themselves to the L.C.C. off the backs of the artists, dreaming at night that they will shortly sit at St. Stephen's, Westminster, and hereafter dreaming that they will be Cabinet Ministers, and invited to dine with the King at Windsor; but I would remind them that men like John Burns, whatever may have been his defects in the past, do not grow on trees.

If you can find space in your columns for these few lines you will not only render a service to the writer, but to those who have been led into this trouble without knowing what they are about. I am prepared to think that when artists, as artists, in a combined body, putting aside their self-appointed leaders, who have only their own part to play, will approach those with whom they are at strife and put before them any reasonable and sensible demand for redress, they will be dealt with in the kindest spirit, providing it is just and fair. In justice to the public, for whom my colleagues and the members of my Association cater, I am bound to say that these grievances have never been put forward, and it is not many weeks ago since the prime leader of this strike wrote to me for engagements with all the obnoxious barring clauses; and I venture to say that the members of my Association, who have done me the honour to place me in the position in which I now am, expect of me a firm attitude on their behalf against the audacious demands, outrageous in every respect, that have been recently made.—Yours faithfully,

HENRI GROS.

OUTSIDE THE V.A.F.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Mr. Harry Mountford declared in his speech at Manchester on Feb. 1 that every person who was a bond-fide performer was a member of the Federation. In this I must beg to differ. I have had twelve years' experience on the variety stage, have taken salaries ranging from £4 10s. to £60, have topped the bill at £4 10s. and £60, have been seen on the variety stage and booked from it for Drury Lane, and yet, according to Mr. Mountford, I am not a bond-fide performer because I am not a member of the V.A.F.

There are, according to Mr. Mountford, 2,000 artists who are non-members, though I contend, judging from the last census, that there must be many more than that number; but, accepting his figures as correct, one-third of the variety profession is outside the V.A.F., and this third Mr. Mountford is trying to silence by veiled threats and open abuse. Surely these non-members may be excused if they hesitate to join a society whose committee, though composed of 126 members, oppose so strenuously that it has to be withdrawn such a just and equitable proposition as the following:—"That 15 shall form a quorum, and of that quorum 10 shall form a majority," thus placing the most vital issues in the hands of some half dozen committee-men, who, if they are going to work in the same bellicose and offensive spirit as Mr. Mountford, can hardly be expected to bring a matter involving so many varied interests and requiring so much tact to a satisfactory conclusion.

Undoubtedly grievances existed, but those grievances were very much nearer being removed a month ago than they are to-day, when the committee, having lost its head, demands a total surrender on possible and impossible points from the managers, at the same time rendering it almost against human nature for the managers to concede anything by applying to them opprobrious terms. Both the committee and members of the V.A.F. are down on managers and proprietors, but they forget that these are the men who had the brains to conceive and the ability to carry through those ideas which have placed a variety theatre at the corner of almost every main thoroughfare; and surely these men, who by their energy and pluck have induced the British public to invest its money in variety theatres, have as much right as the artist to make money out of the work of their brains.

Mr. Mountford said he would be glad to know the names of the men who would support Mr. Stoll and the managers. Well, should he read this he will know mine, and I am willing to publish it, because I believe it is only necessary for someone to come forward who has the courage of his opinions to put backbone into those who fear that if they don't join the Federation they must sink in the struggle. In my opinion they are more likely to sink if the V.A.F. gets its own way, for in that case enterprise will stop, as investors will pause before placing money in ventures which will not be controlled by the directors appointed by them, but by a society which is so headstrong that it must have all or nothing, whether just or unjust.—Yours, &c.,

H. A. LANGLOIS (Lonsdell).

THE CHRONO-MEGAPHONE.

100TH PERFORMANCE.

The famous firm of cinematograph specialists, Messrs. L. Gaumont and Co., have added a novel and attractive show to the entertainment world in the wonderful Chrono-Megaphone. On Wednesday the 100th performance took place at the Empire Theatre. The Chrono-Megaphone is the latest variation of animated photography. The invention may be said at once to be a distinct and, at the same time, a pleasing novelty. The Chrono-Megaphone combines the representation of sound and action, and, as heard and seen at the London Hippodrome this week, the innovation repeated its remarkable success as a factor of entertainment. It seems but a short time ago that the introduction of realistic animated pictures called forth from us expressions of wonder and admiration. And now not only is the photographic reproduction of scenes in actual life possible, but there can be reproduced as well the sounds, vocal and otherwise, which in reality were associated with those scenes.

This, then, is the work of the Chrono-Megaphone, and it need hardly be said that a new source of delight has been tapped by this dual contrivance. One of the Hippodrome series of pictures is illustrative of the song "In Montezuma." Various characters come before us, attired in picturesque, if not fantastic, dress and headgear, and they sing and dance. Their movements synchronise with the time and tune of the song, a very clear gramophone-like rendering of which is heard, as if proceeding from the voices of the people in the picture. The whole thing is most cleverly arranged, and it seems to us that the Chrono-Megaphone opens out great possibilities for future operations. For instance, it would be perfectly within the range of easy possibility to secure an exact pictorial fascimile of every scene in a play or musical comedy, from the rising of the curtain to its fall, along with an audible representation of every word spoken or sung on the stage. In this way there would be a unity of sound and action, or, rather, the sound would be appropriate to the action, and we should witness on the screen the actor performing certain bodily and facial movements and at the same time hear what he was saying. One would not be wrong in predicting a great sphere of attraction for the Chrono-Megaphone, and, in any case, as we have already said, the little stories it tells at the Hippodrome prove an intensely interesting and attractive feature of the programme, and the warmth of the appreciation shown by the audience seems a very happy augury.

NATIONAL ALLIANCE MEETING.

Mr. Joe O'Gorman presided on Sunday evening at a mass meeting of music-hall artists, musicians, and stage hands, convened by the National Alliance, at the Scala Theatre. The stage was occupied by a large assemblage of members of the executive of the allied associations, amongst whom were Mr. Frank Gerald, Mr. Harry Mountford, Mr. C. C. Bartram, Mr. Gus Elen, Mr. Joe Elvin, Mr. Alec Hurley, Mr. J. B. Williams, Mr. C. Jesson, Mr. George D'Albert, Mr W. Johnson, and Mr. A. Schafer.

The Chairman, in opening the meeting, said: I have been on an important mission in connection with this dispute—a mission, I hope, which will lead to a settlement honourable and amicable to all parties concerned. I therefore wish to ask that, under the circumstances, we shall show a conciliatory spirit in all our proceedings here to-night, and do nothing that might accentuate the difficulties of the present situation. When in a few days this thing is in all probability settled, as I sincerely hope it will be, I think that you will re-echo my words and say, "Well, Paddy O'Gorman was justified in asking us to show the spirit in which he approached us that night." We have all been called agitators, but I am not going to agitate to-night. We want to deal fairly and fearlessly with our opponents, and if nothing comes of it—which is, I think, very doubtful—then I say that we must resume the attitude we had adopted heretofore.

At this juncture the cards of two of Mr. Stoll's representatives were handed to the chairman, who agreed to admit them to the meeting.

Mr. Frank Gerald stated that the remarks which had fallen from the chairman placed him in an awkward predicament, but he would follow his lead, and he trusted that nothing he would say would tend to throw back any chance there was of arriving at a settlement. He would not be a party to any peace-making which was not absolutely honourable and above board, nor would he be a party to any settlement that did not combine the interests of their friends the musicians and stage-hands. He spoke thus strongly because during the past few days he had heard suggestions that had made his blood boil. Insinuations had been made which had caused him to bow his head with shame. Some of them were anti-Alliance. The only way of gaining the point they had started out to gain was by adopting Trades Union methods. It was only by joining all the forces of the three societies and showing a united front that they could hope to win. They must not let the enemy split them up. The artists might take example from the musicians and stage hands. Whether they were five-pound or one hundred pound turns, let them take their stand with the thirty-six shillings a week musician and the stage employee who earned half-a-crown a night. The chairman had spoken of a settlement. As one of the three secretaries he (the speaker) would say that he would leave no stone unturned to bring about such a settlement. To-morrow week they would open that theatre as their own theatre, and he wished from his heart that on that night it would be possible to announce from the stage the conclusion of hostilities, and they would welcome there the men against whom they had been fighting. In conclusion, he would beg Mr. Adney Payne and his co-directors to unbend from the attitude they had assumed in refusing to acknowledge the Alliance.

Mr. W. Johnson said they had made too many sacrifices, and had suffered too long under bad conditions to permit of a settlement which was not entirely satisfactory to the Alliance. For his part he would do his utmost to meet those who represented the other side in a friendly spirit, but he would not be performing his duty to his society if he did not avail himself of every means that lay in his power to secure the satisfaction of their demands, and also to secure the recognition of the Alliance. But it must be understood that the claims which they had put forward should be met as far as it was possible to meet them. They had never refused to consider the proposals the managers might make, but they did say, on behalf of the organisations, that they had the right to submit the views of the members of the societies, and that these should have a voice in deciding the future conditions of employment. He would like it to be understood that, to the best of his knowledge and belief, there was the same determination to proceed with the struggle that had been evinced in the early days of the campaign. It was to be hoped that there would be no dissension among them and no betrayers. He hoped the artists would not permit the humbler ranks of the profession to outdo them in loyalty to the Alliance. The struggle had been a wonderful one, and it would be deplorable now, on the eve of victory, that there should be any attempt to delay a settlement or to leave it incomplete.

Mr. J. B. Williams stated that he was a firm believer in the policy that if they wanted peace they must be prepared for war He had seen the conciliatory game worked before, and he would warn them not to be gulled on this occasion. Mr. Stoll had been writing to the Press saying that he would not meet the Alliance, and that he intended to ignore it. He said that the musicians and stage hands were well paid for the amount and the quality of the work they did. He (the speaker) was perfectly willing to supply Mr. Stoll with any information in regard to the societies and the work they did. At Leicester the musicians were told that an extra matinée was going to be put on, and, as the management could not afford to pay for it, those who did not agree to those terms could go. What could be more coercive than to place the pistol of non-employment at a man's head? They said they were going to give two special matinées, and any further matinées were to be paid for. He had been working for the payment of the extra matinée, and he told Mr. Stoll that they expected payment for these matinées, and that they intended to have it.

Mr. B. Tillett harangued the meeting, and gave it as his opinion that the Brixton contract would not be offered to any Chinaman in South Africa.

Mr. J. B. Williams, in making an addition to his previous speech, stated that Mr. Stoll had in the past called musicians for Sunday rehearsals. Their standpoint was that if Mr. Stoll wanted them on Sunday he must pay an extra night's salary; in fact, they would have "double time" for Sunday work. They did not want Sunday work, and they believed that the higher they made the rate of pay the less chance there was of rehearsals taking place on the Sabbath. In regard to the conduct of the present campaign, the Alliance committee had fought the fight well. Not one action of theirs was of such a nature as to forfeit the respect and confidence of those who had elected them. Had it not been for the unwarrantable interference of one individual, the strike would have ended this week-end. The individual referred to told Mr. Payne that he was prepared to work, and Mr. Payne's reply was to the effect that he was not prepared to accept his services unless the others came back too. Everybody would agree that Mr. Payne had shown that he was a gentleman and a man of honour. The present dispute had been accompanied by no suffering at all. The only thing to complain of was the slight inconvenience caused by it.

Mr. Harry Mountford moved, and spoke in favour of the following resolution:—

"That this meeting reaffirms its confidence in the Alliance, its officers and committee, and, convinced of the justice and the moderation of the claims set forth in the charter of this Alliance, this meeting authorises, subject to the discretion of the Alliance committee, a conference between such representatives as the Alliance committee may appoint, and representatives appointed by the Managers' Association, or by the managers whose halls are affected by the dispute, with a view to a settlement acceptable to the allied societies; and, pending such settlement, the terms to be in writing and duly signed by the contracting parties, all members are hereby urged to give their loyal support to the Alliance and to continue the struggle with unabated vigour."

Mr. Mountford referred to various letters which had appeared in The Referee, and dealt with the arguments contained therein. Speaking of Mr. Stoll, they had heard that that gentleman was perfectly confident as to his position in the dispute. Mr. Stoll had been writing to the papers saying he could defy the Alliance, and apparently he had been making preparations for the possible withdrawal of his artists. On Tuesday a grand piano was brought on to the stage of the Ardwick Empire, and the conductor told to be in readiness. At Manchester, too, a pianist was secured, and at Liverpool a pianola was borrowed. Then, Mr. Stoll endeavoured to get expressions from the artists to the effect that they did not believe in the strike. The question was asked: "Are you a member of the Variety Artists' Federation? Say yes or no." The answer was "Yes." "If a strike is called next week, will you go out?" The artists refused to answer. A manager and one of Mr. Stoll's representatives requested the artists to answer this question, and they were told that if they did not answer it they would not be allowed to go on the stage that night. In the provinces the artists had been faithful to the Alliance. There were seventy-five clauses in the Stoll contract, and they meant to strike those clauses out.

Mr. Wal Pink, in seconding the resolution, remarked that they did not want compromise but a peaceful settlement that would conserve their interests. They knew they could go in and settle their own grievances, but they must be fair to the musicians and stage-hands. The strike was not doing the music-hall business any good.

Mr. Joe Elvin, who received a hearty ovation on rising to speak, said that he was proud of the Variety Artists' Federation, and "the grand amalgamation." He was proud, too, to see the grand fight they had put up during the past two weeks. They were certainly fighting very strong. His heart was with the Federation, the National Alliance, and "the grand amalgamation." He felt certain that the star artists, including Miss Marie Lloyd, would stick by them, "but if they are nobbled—well, there you are!"

Mr. Gus Elen expressed his determination of standing out and fighting to a finish. It would not worry him one iota if he never sang another song again. He thanked God that he had made preparation for himself, and placed himself in an independent position.

The Chairman had an explanation to make as to why the Alliance did not attack the Chelsea Empire and the Metropolitan Music Hall. Mr. Henri Gros was away in the country ill at the time, and they did not wish to take an unfair advantage of him. It was not true that they wanted the salaries of the artists who were performing there for the purposes of continuing the fight. But, as their Chairman, he did not wish to say anything which would tend to embitter the situation. So surely as the sun rose to-morrow, so surely would they all go back. The managers would never be able to run a bill with all the newly-found talent at the Tivoli and the Oxford.

Mr. Mountford's resolution was then put to the meeting, and carried unanimously; and a vote of thanks to Mr. O'Gorman for presiding, proposed by Mr. Hollis, and seconded by Mr. Clemart, brought the speeches to a close.

Mr. Editor.—Sir,—In your report for the Empire, Newport, it said Agnes Hazel was repeatedly recalled for a smart Scot song and dance, and was quite a favourite. It should have been—Yours truly, Dot Hardy.

Miss Lois Du Cane and her clever company will play A Prodigal Wife at the Middlesex next week. The beautiful costumes worn by Mrs. Du Cane in this sketch have been specially designed and executed by Mrs. Louise Biddulph, 96, Alderney-street, S.W.

Miss Bertha Stuart, the popular Scotch character vocalist, is again gaining golden opinions for her charming singing of Scotch songs, and receives a warm welcome both at the Tivoli and Oxford.

An amusing feature of Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, is the hilarity provoked by the continual incursions of Grapho and Jackson, who have a very novel and original act entitled, In a Restaurant.

MISS MARIE LLOYD EXPLAINS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA

Sir,—There has been so much controversy re the music hall strike, and I have been credited with making so many mis-statements during the conflict, that I think it my duty now to try and make clear the points that we are aiming at. In the first place, the public are led to believe that the artists are fighting for larger salaries. That is entirely wrong. What we are fighting for are better terms and conditions for the smaller turns re the barring clause. It is very rarely there is any friction between the star artist and manager over this clause. In the majority of cases they have written on the margin of their contracts, "with or without permission to appear at certain halls," which has been initialled by both parties. Personally, I do not think the barring clause makes one iota of difference to the star turns, as their engagements extend for a long period at each West-end hall. Not so with the smaller turns. They only get six nights, and very likely barred from other halls for twelve months or more. Now, is this fair? My suggestion to proprietors would be, by all means bar your drawing power, but let the smaller turns get a living when and where they can within a reasonable radius.

Re the leaflets distributed called "Marie Lloyd's Appeal to the Public." I did not mention anything about "they are using the shareholders' money," &c. What I did say, I said on the stage of the Empress Music Hall, also the London, Shoreditch, and the following was (in effect) what I said:—"Ladies and Gentlemen,—I want it to be thoroughly understood that I and other star artists are not fighting for ourselves, but for our less fortunate brother and sister artists. We are the first to come forward and help every charitable cause, and our services are willingly given to amuse at a millionaire's banquet or to help at a blind man's friendly lead. We do not ask for money; we have helped you, now we want you to help us in this fair and just cause."

In conclusion, I should like to see a speedy settlement, "Peace with honour" to both sides.—I am, Sir, yours, &c.,

MARIE LLOYD.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

THE early spring round of fairs begins next week with Shrovetide. The East Anglian round commences at King's Lynn, including such towns as Downham, Peterborough, Wisbech, March, Lowestoft, and Norwich—a round right away up to, and including, Easter. Another excellent round of fairs begins on Shrove Tuesday at Longton, and includes towns like Oswestry, Wrexham, Hereford, Abergavenny, Monmouth, and other Welsh border towns. The Lancashire and Cheshire round begins at Bury March fair, and includes Colne, Haslingden, and Todmorden, Blackburn, Chorley, Rochdale, Oldham, St. Helens, and Manchester for the Easter Holidays.

AT Maesteg (Wales) Fair were Wadbrooke's electrograph and theatre of varieties, Danter's steam horses, North's big boats, Winchester ranges, bottle-smashers, and varieties by North, jun., and other caterers. Dooner and Son's cinématograph theatre is at Neath; Chipperfield's show at Pontycwmmer.

WE have dealt at considerable length with the legal aspects of the Mitcham Fair dispute, but there is one point of great importance that we have not treated in the special article, and that is the fair rights and franchise of the people of Mitcham. It is to us an extraordinary thing that public bodies promote Private Bill legislation to deprive the people of their old-time liberties and privileges embodied in the fairs and other holidays of the nation. Amongst the many societies engaged in preserving the liberties of the people there does not seem to be any organisation in existence (except and only the Showmen's Guild) to conserve the popular rights in fairs, feasts, and wakes. It never seems to occur to public bodies that it is their duty to consult the people, and to carry with them public opinion in their manifold schemes and enterprises. It seems to be considered a clever thing when Private Bills can be carried through without any consultation with the people, whose rights and liberties are being either destroyed or restricted. The extraordinary example of this kind of legislation afforded by the Private Act of Parliament obtained sixteen years ago by the Mitcham Board of Conservators fully illustrates this danger to the rights and liberties of the common people. We wonder what the people of Mitcham will think now that their old-time fair and its ancient and privileged fair-ground are taken away from them without their consent, and, what is of much more importance, without their knowledge.

THERE is, to our mind, an urgent demand for some sort of organised machinery for preventing the liberties of the people being destroyed or encroached upon by public bodies in Private Bill legislation. Showmen have been driven by sheer necessity to organise themselves, and to take action against all legislation touching their business; but the general public appear to be without any means of defence, and wide ranges of individual liberty are being taken away from the public by the unopposed mass of Private Bill legislation. Mitcham is a case in point, and fully emphasises the serious nature of the danger to the common rights and liberties of the people of the Empire. Again, the serious nature of this danger may be gauged by the fact that over one hundred Private Bills are entered for consideration at the beginning of every Session of Parliament, and that unless they are vigorously opposed by traders or others having vested interests, these Bills become Acts of Parliament, and are as effective for all purposes as though they had been openly challenged and discussed in the House of Commons.

ANOTHER example of this encroachment upon the rights of the general public by local authorities is afforded by a Private Bill promoted by the Corporation of Rawtenstall, and will be considered in the forthcoming Session of Parliament. Amongst other things, the Bill proposes to give to the Corporation of Rawtenstall a monopoly of markets, and this is important for showmen—markets includes fairs. The Bill does not specifically mention fairs, but from negotiations now proceeding between the officials of the Showmen's Guild, it has been made clear that the Corporation intended their Bill to cover fairs as well as markets. That being so, a petition against the Rawtenstall Bill will be deposited. The issue is too serious, for the proposed powers would completely throttle the fair, such as it is, on its present restricted ground, and would also prevent showmen occupying private land, and so carrying on the fair in accordance with the wishes of the people of Rawtenstall.

THIS example of Rawtenstall is a significant one. Here was an apparently innocent proposal to prevent enterprising outsiders competing with the Corporations by opening a market ground. The word "fair" is not mentioned in the Bill, yet when the Guild asks them to clearly define what they mean by "market," the Corporation refuses to restrict it to weekly markets, and, when pressed, admit that they meant to include the annual fairs. This Bill, but for the vigilance of the Showmen's Guild, would in all probability have passed without challenge into law.

LEYBOURNE'S theatre is at Goldthorpe Lane End, and Totten's theatre at Featherstone.

THREE of this week's Urban film productions call for special notice, on account of beauty of subject, excellence of photographic results, and novelty of theme. These are "The Atlantic Voyage," "Caller Herrin'," and "Miss Annette Kellermann's Diving and Swimming Display." In the first are witnessed beautiful sea effects in storm and calm, dawn, sunset, and moonlight; but the chief attraction of an attractive series lies in the exquisitely coloured cloud and seascapes. In "Caller Herrin'," the Scottish herring fishery is demonstrated. every stage of this little-known industry being depicted in engrossing sequence. The last of this trio of marine subjects represents Miss Annette Kellermann in a series of swimming feats, in which the champion lady swimmer is seen to better advantage on the screen than would be possible to casual spectators on the beach or quay. In all the series under notice the photographic clearness, sharpness, and absence of flicker are very pronounced.

TO-DAY witnesses the last performance for the season of the World's Fair at the Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, for which Mr. T. E. Read has provided another change in the circus performances, the Great Caicedo, king of the high wire (so described by His Majesty the King), is still a big draw; the Siegrist and Silbon Troupe of nine mid-air marvels are as popular as ever. The Mammoth Menagerie, with its varied collection of animals of every description, is another source of attraction; while its latest addition of a litter of lion cubs, born on Friday last week, and now on view with their mother, are receiving special attention from an admiring public. There are numberless other attractions in addition to the above, and the admission is still the popular sixpence.

FIELD-MARSHAL TOM THUMB, otherwise known as Mr. Richard Garnsey, died, on Tuesday last, at Wellington, Somerset, at the age of seventy-four. He was supposed to be the most perfectly-formed dwarf in the world, and his height was just over 3ft. Fifty years ago he attracted large crowds to the Egyptian Hall. He appeared before the late Queen Victoria on more than one occasion, Her Majesty taking the greatest interest in him. He subsequently toured through Britain, attracting large audiences, medical men especially being particularly interested in his perfect formation.

AFTER leaving the stage he settled down as a farmer near Wellington, and proved himself a keen business man. At the various markets he delighted the farmers with his anecdotes, and would often cause the greatest fun by losing himself amongst the crowd of buyers. He was of a most genial disposition, and was a familiar figure in the town in which he lived. He enjoyed splendid health almost up to the time of his death, but for the last few years he walked with a crutch, one of his bullocks having knocked him down and broken his leg. He never married, and was a somewhat heavy smoker nearly all his life. He voted at the last General Election.

MR. REYNOLD'S is quite right in his doubts about the dwarf of Wellington, Somerset, being the original Tom Thumb. Charles S. Stratton, General Tom Thumb, died in the year 1883. His wife married Count Magri, and toured through Europe about six years ago.

THE original Tom Thumb, of course, was quite a celebrated character in his day, and it is suggested in the above message that Mr. Garnsey and he were the same. Of this there would appear to be some doubt. In the first place, the original Tom Thumb's name was supposed to be Stratton. "I know of no Field-Marshal Tom Thumb," said Mr. Maskelyne, of St. George's Hall, and formerly of the Egyptian Hall, where General Tom Thumb made hundreds of conquests in the long ago. "Barnum brought General Tom Thumb to the Egyptian Hall first in 1842, and he paid his last visit there in 1862. As a matter of fact, he wasn't by any means so small as some of the midgets who have succeeded him, but Barnum worked the business very well, and he had a tremendous series of receptions.

"GENERAL TOM THUMB was born in 1832. The chief reason why he made so great a success was that the late Queen Victoria was pleased with him, and had him to see her at Windsor Castle several times. He used to drive through the streets in a little carriage drawn by a pair of tiny ponies. His wife died some time ago in America.

"THE most interesting dwarf I knew was a little fellow whom we called the 'Pocket Sims Reeves,' and who appeared at the Egyptian Hall about thirty years ago. He had a really nice voice, and used to sing Sim Reeves's songs. He was a healthy little chap, and after his marriage to a tall girl he went sheep-farming in Kent. I don't know what has become of him, but some time after he married he brought his wife to see me, and it was extremely amusing to see the way he took care of her."

RESPECTING the report published during the week of the death of "Field-Marshal Tom Thumb," Mr. Charles Reynolds, the proprietor of the well-known exhibition in Lime-street, Liverpool, expresses much doubt as to its accuracy. He declares his belief that the famous midget expired some time ago. At all events, Thumb's widow, Countess Magri, presented him, about twelve years ago, with the Napoleonic costume and boots in which the little man was exhibited half a century back all over Europe.

HARRY ASHINGTON, with singing pictures, marionettes, and varieties, is making a big hit at Methley, near Leeds. With Ashington are Messrs. Blackburn and Bassett, with varieties, &c.

THE early bird catches the worm, and the early applicants will get the best pitches at the forthcoming Whitsuntide Fair at Wolverhampton. The Markets Inspector has the letting of the land.

THE British South Africa Company has arranged for a private exhibition at the Palace Theatre on Tuesday, at 3.45 p.m., of a most interesting series of cinematograph views of the Cape to Cairo Railway, which will vividly illustrate the actual building of the railway through Rhodesia, the Victoria Falls, big game hunting, &c. A large and distinguished audience is expected. The views were taken by the Bioscope expedition to South Africa, which has just returned after a very successful tour.

SHOWMEN'S PROFITS.

JUDGE WOULD LIKE TO BE A PARTNER.

Interesting disclosures regarding the profits of showmen were made in the course of a case heard at Devon Assizes on Monday, when Hermon Ward Larcher, amusement caterer, of Hammersmith, claimed £460 damages from Mrs. Chichester for breach of contract in respect of a lease of land for show purposes.

Mr. Larcher said he had proposed setting up a toboggan slide, a hall of mirrors which showed the visitors in ten thousand shapes, kiosks, and an electric shooting gallery. He estimated that his profits would have been 140 per cent.

"You do not want a partner?" asked Mr. Justice Grantham, possibly with a view to business. There was, however, no response.

An illustrated circular of the proposed shooting gallery was produced, and the judge said he observed a picture of Lord Roberts on the cover. He was not surprised, for Lord Roberts appeared to be exploited for every purpose now.

Counsel remarked that Lord Roberts was quoted as saying that "good shooting was England's last hope," and beneath the quotation was a picture of a boy in the act of shooting his father.

The jury awarded £250 damages.

MR. CHARLES M. DALY has purchased the rights of an original comedy-sketch, entitled An Unwilling Burglar, from the pen of Mr. Ernest Bliss.

MR. HARRY CLYO AND MISS ROSE ROCHELLE have produced their new act, entitled An Actor's Antics, which is from the pen of Mr. Harry Boden. Its success in the provinces has induced them to bring it to London, where it will be seen shortly.

MITCHAM FAIR DISPUTE.

We have refrained for some months past from making any reference to the High Court of Chancery action concerning Mitcham Fair. As our readers are aware, Messrs. Alf. Ball, C. Hill, and Wilson, were the defendants in an action brought against them by the Conservators of the Mitcham common lands, to restrain them from trespassing upon the fair-green to carry on their business at the time of the fair. Our readers also remember that up to the time of the last fair there seemed to be no reason why the fair should not be held as usual, and also that, having regard to the fact that the Home Secretary had refused to abolish the fair, not only was custom and long-established usage on the side of the showmen, but that the law was also with them.

There is no doubt whatever that if the case for the showmen had remained where, as to all appearance it was when the three defendants were summoned, that their case would have been a very strong one. As far as the showmen knew the fair had not been abolished. The strong presumption for this opinion was found in the Home Secretary's refusal of the petition of the Conservators and others to abolish the charter privileges of the fair. The issue between the contending parties was a straight and clear one. If the fair was not abolished, the showmen had a right to draw on to the green, and carry on their business. Without the order of the Home Secretary abolishing the fair, it still remained a legal and proper fair. The defendant showmen, having no other view of the matter set before them, felt justified in ignoring the notice of the Conservators and the owners of the fair franchise, and, by drawing on the ground, bringing the matter to a final decision.

It was not until two months after the action had been entered in the High Court that the Conservators disclosed the strength of their position, and it seems to us to be quite inexplicable that a public body, having the extraordinary powers set out in their statement of claim, should for sixteen years past have neglected to proclaim or exercise the powers they possessed. It was an absolute bombshell in the camp of the showmen when the plaintiffs set out in their statement of claim that as far back as sixteen years ago they had obtained "extraordinary powers" in a Private Act of Parliament, which entitled them to abrogate the charter rights of both the showmen and the inhabitants of Mitcham.

This was their claim, and the defendants, through their legal advisers, had to consider it, and also to determine how far this extraordinary claim affected their defence. Every care was taken, numerous conferences were held with their legal advisers, counsel's opinion was taken, and everything was done to enable the showmen to arrive at a wise decision. Before going into details, we think it wise to state at this point that this new discovery of extraordinary powers possessed by the Conservators raised issues of such legal complexity, and involved many points of special interest to Mitcham, and to Mitcham only, that to have fought it and brought it to a decision of what would have been a long and expensive High Court action, would have taxed the resources of the showmen tenants, and, in the end, would have only settled the special case of Mitcham.

This is of importance, because it brings out into prominent notice the careful action usually observed by the organised showmen through their their Society, the Guild. It is the invariable practice of the Showmen's Guild to only fight cases that affect the whole body of showmen throughout the kingdom. Where the case in dispute only affects one particular locality, and does not establish a dangerous precedent governing fairs in general, the committe of the Showmen's Guild consider very carefully before action is taken that would involve serious expenditure. There is very little consolation, however, for the defendants, in stating that if the executive of the Showmen's Guild had undertaken the defence of the Mitcham Fair, that probably greater caution would have been advised, and some effort made to force the Conservators to disclose their extraordinary powers, before advising the showmen to draw on the ground.

We can all be wise after the event, and one of the lessons of experience that Mitcham Fair dispute teaches us is, always endeavour to get to the bottom of the case before taking action that may lead to serious consequences. At the same time, we are obliged to confess that, with the evidence before them, the three defendants appeared to have every justification for their action. The time between the Home Secretary's decision not to abolish the fair and the fair time itself was so short that, only by taking decisive action upon the evidence they had, could the tenants of the fair hope to carry on their business. Messrs. Ball, Hill, and Wilson were merely singled out of the whole body of tenants, and it was quite understood that the settlement of the powers claimed by the Conservators would be determined by the result of the action against these three representative showmen.

We want it to be clearly understood that if the action had been carried forward on the straight and clear lines of the right of the Conservators under ordinary Statute Law to abolish a fair, without the consent of the Home Secretary, that such a claim would have been fought to the end; but that, unfortunately, turned out to be not the issue and not the case at all. The Conservators, in their statement of claim against the defendant showmen, set out that under a private Act of Parliament obtained by them in 1891, they possessed powers to originate and carry through schemes for the improvement or better use of the lands under their control. This was the fatal flaw in the showmen's case for the defence, and it was on account of this, and this alone, that the defendants were advised to accept an arrangement by which the matter could be settled and withdrawn from the High Court.

Technically, this means that Messrs. Ball, Hill, and Wilson accepted an injunction against them restraining them from trespassing on the Fair Green, or disputing the power of the Conservators to exclude them from the use of the Fair Green in future. There are elements of considerable hope involved in the settlement. Negotiations are pending whereby it is hoped that the fair will still be continued, though not on the Fair Green. It would be a great loss to the people of Mitcham and a serious business loss to Metropolitan showmen if the old fair at Mitcham came to an end, and we have no doubt that what has happened in scores of other towns will also take place at Mitcham—the fair will be held, if not on public ground owned and controlled by the public authorities, on private land organised by the showmen themselves.

In fact, already at a representative meeting of London showmen, held at the World's Fair, a most useful suggestion was made—that the fair at Mitcham be organised and controlled by the Showmen's Guild, in order that both the public and the showmen may be satisfied as to the thorough and effective carrying out of the old fair upon its new ground. We are not without hope that the Conservators, having some regard to two important facts—(1) that public opinion is overwhelming in favour of the continuance of the fair, and (2) that the showmen have acknowledged the right of the Conservators to control the Fair Green—they will afford the showmen every facility for the provision of popular amusements at the fair time. We see no reason why the Conservators should not settle the matter upon broad and public lines by permitting the use of the admirable site for the annual fair pointed out to them last year, and known locally as the "Three Kings' Common."

RE APPLICATIONS FOR ENGAGEMENTS

All applications by either Artists or their Agents must be made to the Head Office.

Lowest terms must be stated, and distinction made between salaries required for larger and smaller towns.

Vacant dates should be stated. If a list of existing bookings be sent, it will render selection easier.

Artists employing Agents should accredit one only at one time, as the friction arising when several Agents are employed at the same time, all expecting the one booking to go through each of them, often renders it expedient to avoid that booking altogether rather than give undeserved offence to several Agents.

New Acts seeking Engagements, or turns not rebooked (possibly because they have played a series of dates without introducing new business), will facilitate matters by having their acts seen by our District Managers. Their Districts and Postal Addresses are as follows :—

MANCHESTER, LIVERPOOL, AND DISTRICT,
MR. ALAN W. YOUNG,
Empire Theatre, Liverpool.

EDINBURGH, GLASGOW, NEWCASTLE, AND DISTRICT.
MR. S. GETHING,
Empire Theatre, Glasgow.

MR. T. GERALD MORTON,
Empire Palace, Leeds.

BIRMINGHAM, NOTTINGHAM, LEICESTER, AND DISTRICT.
MR. HATTON WHARTON,
Empire Theatre, Nottingham.

SOUTH WALES DISTRICT.
MR. W. LEA,
Empire Theatre, Cardiff.

MR. WILLIAM COLLINS,
The Empire, Shepherd's Bush, W.

N.B.—Mr. OSWALD STOLL or Mr. FRANK ALLEN can be seen by appointment on all matters arising out of the above, and for the discussion of entirely new Numbers.

All Artists or Agents who communicate with our District Representatives must have made definite applications, in accordance with above directions, to the Head Office, at the same time, or just previously.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for 1907, published at a shilling from 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, is, as usual, a happy combination of record, almanac, and literary symposium. The last-mentioned aspect is one that most commends the work to the lay reader. The literary contributions are signed by well-known artists who have contributed personal experiences of remembered incidents, and whose portraits adorn the pages. A touch of pathos is lent to an otherwise cheery publication by the inclusion of stage and music-hall favourites who died last year, one of whom was Mr. J. L. Toole.—Financier and Bullionist., Feb. 6.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1907 is up to its usual standard—in fact, it is, if possible, smarter than ever. There is an excellent budget of articles from the pens of Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Cicely Richards, Miss Pollie Emery, Messrs. Frank Cooper, Arthur Collins, Charles Collette, Frank Curzon, Edward German, Cliff Ryland, and many others. The illustrated obituary, the alphabetical list of plays produced in London and the provinces, and all the other valuable features of the Annual are as complete as ever, and make this handbook extremely useful not only to members of the profession, but to the infinitely wider circle interested directly or indirectly in the drama.—Whitehall Review.

WE LEAD, OTHERS FOLLOW.

MONT BLANC. Code Word, BURNOUS.
This is indeed a grand film, and shows this mountain being climbed by a daring party, over snow, passing ravines, glaciers, waterfalls, &c., creeping across narrow bridges. The top is reached. The finest quality picture ever taken of this subject.
906ft. The Subject £15 2s.

CLEVER THIEVES. Code Word, BULBEUX.
The clever thieves, disguised as ragpickers, send two lads into a mansion to steal. The lads, surprised by the police, drop into the ragpickers' baskets with their booty. The police are completely gulled.
148ft. The Subject £2 9s. 8d.

SEEN BY MOONLIGHT. Code Word, CACTUS.
A series of beautiful sea pictures taken by moonlight. Ships sailing. The sea dashing on the rocky shore.
198ft. The Subject £3 6s.

LITTLE TICH.
A wonderful picture of this amusing comedian in a series of his famous impersonations, ending up with his well known big-boot dance.

THE OLD MASHERS. Code Word, BUGLE.
About a dozen old mashers follow a young, pretty, and dainty dressmaker, each trying to carry her box. On to a bus, into a restaurant, and finally she eludes them to join her lover and tell him of her amusing escapade.
478ft. The Subject £7 19s. 4d.

THE PORK BUTCHER'S NIGHTMARE. Code Word, CHEVRETTE.
The terrible dream of the Pork Butcher. The pigs come to life and conduct him to their domain, where he is prodded with spears, and put in a mincing machine
345ft. The Subject £5 15s. 4d.
Colouring extra, 9s.

TWO LITTLE SCAMPS. Code Word, CABOULOT.
A very amusing film, showing the adventures of a little baker's boy and sweep. They ring bells, jump on to motor cars and cabs, pull off the table cloths from a restaurant table, and generally annoy everybody—finally arrested by the police. Absolutely perfect quality.
280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

A DIFFICULT ARREST. Code Word, CHEVREAU.
396ft. The Subject £6 12s.

THE INDIARUBBER MAN. Code Word, BRUSQUE.
264ft. The Subject £4 8s.

CRIME ON THE RAILWAY. Code Word, CIPAYE.
One of the most dramatic films ever shown. A guard is egged on to drink by two rogues. In this state he boards his train. The rogues sneak into his carriage while the train is in motion, attack him, steal the mail bags, and escape. The guard is reproved and dismissed the Company. In revenge he kills a signalman, gives a favourable signal to the on-coming express. An awful disaster ensues. Very exciting and dramatic.
528ft. The Subject £8 16s.

THE YAWNER. Code Word, CABOSSER.
This is ridiculously funny. A poor man has a tendency to yawn on every occasion, and being very infectious, every one who meets him catches the complaint. Very droll.
280ft. The Subject £4 13s. 4d.

POLICEMEN'S RUN. Code Word, CABANE.
This is quite a novelty in pictures. A powerful bull dog steals a leg of mutton. Pursued by one policeman, the number is increased to several in a very short time. Through streets, over roofs they go. Finally the tables are turned and the dog pursues the police to their station. Intensely funny.
379ft. The Subject £6 6s. 4d.

ONE HUNDRED CONSECUTIVE SUCCESSES.

Gaumont's Chronophone and Chronomegaphone at the London Hippodrome.

In spite of many "prophecies" to the contrary, the Chronophone has had an unbroken run of success at the London Hippodrome. On the evening of Wednesday last, before a crowded house, it made its 100th consecutive appearance which, to the gratification of everyone concerned, went off without the suggestion of a hitch to mar a perfect evening. The Chronophone subjects at the 100th appearance were "Home to Our Mountains," from the grand opera "Il Trovatore," "Montezuma," from the well-known light opera "The Belle of Mayfair," and "Lakme les Stances"; the beauty of these selections was above comment, and they were received with unstinted applause.

Not only at the London Hippodrome, but in every part of the country, the Chronophone is attracting much attention and is everywhere received with applause and every sign of approval by the pleasure loving public.

No. 1284.

PILLAGE BY PILLAR BOX.

A gentleman busily engaged at his desk one morning receives a call from a traveller, who upon producing his goods is delighted to find an immediate sale. The purchaser promises remittance shall be sent on, and the salesman leaves pleased with his morning's work. Upon being left alone once more the gentleman picks up his cheque book and proceeds to fill one up. He is so intently engaged on this work that he does not observe an intruder who steals quietly in at the window and glances over his shoulder. Seeing apparently all he requires, the watcher goes to the window and beckons a companion in, and they feast their eyes upon the cheque already made out. Both leave the room, closing the window after them without being discovered. These two plotters no doubt have waited for this event for some time, and are well acquainted with the traveller's movements. We see them now completing their well-thought-out plans. In a dingy hole not far away they add a few finishing touches to a dummy pillar-box, and carry it away in great glee. Outside a very large house by the roadside a pillar-box stands; one of the conspirators is seen leaning against it smoking. Presently out rushes a gentleman from the house with a letter in his hand which he places in the box. The gentleman is seen to be the one the confederates have designs upon. The coast being clear the pillar-box walks away, accompanied by its "look-out." Once again we see inside the room, where the gentleman sits at his desk writing, when he is suddenly disturbed by the entrance of the man from whom he has lately made a purchase. Rushing up to the desk the incomer peremptorily demands payment, and produces the letter sent to him with no enclosure indignantly. Being thus rudely spoken to in his own den, the man pooh-poohs the statement, and threatens to kick him from the room. Both getting very heated, the intruder is summarily kicked out. Returning again, he is accompanied by a policeman, who, after hearing the tale, drags the occupier from his room. The gentleman, now realising the serious situation, breaks away from the grasp of the other two, and makes a run for it. Outside his own house he points to the place where he believes the letter was posted, but much to his dismay there is no box. Now thoroughly losing his head he goes full speed down the road. The bobby and salesman give hot chase, and call upon every other pedestrian to "stop thief!" The crowd swells tremendously, and gradually gain ground despite all efforts of dodging and turning. After traversing many roads, he suddenly sees a pillar-box standing at the corner of a street which attracts his attention, being peculiarly like the one which stood outside his own house. Making a dash for this, he shouts to the oncoming crowd to search it. Turning the box over they discover an occupant, who is somewhat roughly handled. The cheque is discovered in the thief's pocket, and matters are soon put right between the dealer and customer.

PAUL'S Latest Film.

A MUSIC HALL MANAGER'S DILEMMA.

"HOUSE FULL" is the notice at a variety palace. Manager's delight at the heavy cash box. Thief steals box and manager cannot pay artists, who attack him. Audience meets manager's apologies with derision and "boots." Finally manager brings in advertisements from outside hall, and the various "turns" come to life, to the great satisfaction of the audience.

WALTURDAW

THE WORLD'S BIOSCOPE OUTFITTERS.

THERE IS ALWAYS ANOTHER.
Code Word, "ANOTHER."

A very interesting and exciting story. In the eighteenth century it occurs. The stern father, his wayward daughter, and the ardent lover. The elopement—the chase—the marriage—the final reconciliation after years, when the daughter presents her father with his bonny little grandson.

565ft. £14 2s. 6d.

Code Word, "LETTER."

A pathetic story of the little girl who wants to rejoin her dead father. She asks her mother to put a stamp on her and post her to Heaven. The little girl goes out, unfortunately gets run over, is killed, and fulfils her mission. The letter is posted. Very beautiful quality.

275ft. £6 17s. 6d.

Code Word, "RAGS."

This is a very fine film, of sterling and dramatic quality. In a restaurant the rag-picker's daughter comes to sell flowers. She takes the fancy of one of the diners, who makes love to her. She spurns him. He pursues her to her humble lodgings one day, and carries her off in his motor to his mansion. She keeps him away, and manages to throw an old coat in the street with a letter enclosed for her father. One of the rag-pickers comes along, picks up the coat, discovers the letter, gives it to her father, who hurries to the mansion and rescues his daughter, nearly killing the villain in the attempt. At the police-station next day the old man is brought up. The bad man confesses his would-be evil deed, and dies. This film arrests the attention and amuses all the time.

640ft. £16 0s. 0d.

Code Word, "POET."

The ecstatic poet calls at the office of the newspaper to present his inspiration, is met rudely by the editor and his office-boy. He harangues a crowd in the street, is run into the padded cell. Finally goes on to the stage to recite. He is not favourably received. Intensely funny, and grand quality.

305ft. £7 12s. 6d.

An indestructible Lime, that laughs at moisture and needs no tin. An operator can now carry a Lime in his pocket.

MABOR LIMES

A perfect Lime at last.

Unaffected by damp.

Need not be kept in a tin.

Can be used several times.

There are two kinds of Limes, Mabors and the others.

The others can only be used once crack, break, and must be kept in air-tight tins, and very rarely will they keep through the summer. Mabor Limes are indestructible, can be used repeatedly, can be left exposed to the air, do not pit so easily under high gas pressure, give a better coloured and brighter light, and are altogether more serviceable and useful than the other ordinary Limes.

Dear Sir,—I enclose you cheque in payment of your account for cleaning dresses. I may say that I consider it perfectly marvellous that you should take away at 9.30 p.m. sixty-two elaborate Pantomime dresses from Clapham Junction and return them perfectly cleaned by 3 p.m. the following day. I am sending you about 150 dresses next week which will have to be done at lightning speed, feeling perfectly confident that they will be returned at the time promised. You are at liberty to make any use you like of this letter.

Yours very faithfully, ROBERT CROSSMAN.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for the current year, besides having all the usual valuable features which make the work so necessary for reference, has, for a special feature, a series of short articles, stories, or sketches by prominent members of the dramatic and musical profession, a well-executed portrait of each writer accompanying the text. The obituary for last year—unfortunately a heavy one—is given in a series of photograph likenesses of those departed. The full-page portrait of Mr. J. L. Toole is, indeed, worth more than the humble shilling at which the Annual is sold. The monthly calendar is, as usual, a storehouse of interesting facts connected with the stage.—Weekly Times and Echo.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
That welcome little book, "The Era" Annual, has just appeared for 1907, issued from the offices of "The Era," and costing, as usual, 1s. It is always worth a welcome, and is as good this year as ever. In addition to the usual pages of theatrical statistics, there are a number of stories and sketches by well-known actors and actresses, signed with their autographs and illustrated with their photographs. The first, and one of the best, is a description by Miss Ellen Terry of an average day in her busy life. Most of us have, at one time or another, in our artless way, sighed for the glory and triumph the popular actor and actress enjoy. Alas! Miss Terry gives us a peep behind the scenes which takes the gilt off the gingerbread with a vengeance. If this describes the average day of a great actor or actress, better, a thousand times better, to be a man of no importance!—Pall Mall Gazette, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual for 1907. 1s. "Era" Office, 5, Tavistock-street, Strand, W.C. Once again this useful publication comes out with its useful tabular information concerning things dramatic, such as the date of the production of new plays and important revivals produced at the London, provincial, and Paris theatres. In addition are many portraits and short stories given over the signatures of many prominent theatrical and music hall people, and a variety of other interesting matter.—Financial Times, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual, a most useful record of theatrical events, has just been issued. It contains, as usual, many short stories by well-known players.—Globe, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Annual deservedly ranks high as a record of the passing theatrical show. The new issue, in a comprehensive survey of the drama, mentions in proper order all the productions and revivals of the year, both at home and abroad and gives a list of the theatres and music halls of the United Kingdom, with the names of their respective managers. The lighter side of the publication, to which many well-known managers and performers contribute, is of exceptionally high literary merit.—Morning Leader, Jan. 21, '07.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
Once more, stuffed with good things, "The Era" Annual appears from its office at 5, Tavistock-street. The edition for 1907 is as nicely got up as its predecessors, and, in addition to a calendar and other theatrical memoranda, contains two lists of the year's productions, one arranged under the names of the theatres and the other alphabetically. In addition there are a number of striking or humorous contributions by leading actors and actresses—Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Arthur Collins, Mr. Charles Collette, Miss Alma Murray, and Mr. John Lawson are among those who have contributed bright experiences to this up-to-date shilling theatrical handbook.—Star, Jan. 22.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
That invaluable annual, "The Era" Almanac, has just made its appearance for 1907. In addition to its usual record of the important productions and revivals of the past twelve months in London and Paris, there is a series of bright contributions by Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Edward German, Mr. Frank Cooper, Mr. Frank Curzon, Mr. Charles Collette, Miss Alma Murray, and other well-known members of the profession.—Sunday Times, Jan. 27.

THE ERA ANNUAL, 1907.
"The Era" Dramatic and Musical Annual for 1907 is up to its usual standard—in fact, it is if possible, smarter than ever. There is an excellent budget of articles from the pens of Miss Ellen Terry, Miss Cicely Richards, Miss Pollie Emery, Messrs. Frank Cooper, Arthur Collins, Charles Collette, Frank Curzon, Edward German, Cliff Ryland, and many others. The illustrated obituary, the alphabetical list of plays produced in London and the provinces, and all the other valuable features of the Annual are as complete as ever, and make this handbook extremely useful not only to members of the profession, but to the infinitely wider circle interested directly or indirectly in the drama.—Whitehall Review.

THE LAW OF COPYRIGHT
ACTOR AND COMPOSER,
BY
ALBERT A. STRONG, LL.B. (Lond.).

Copyright confusion is, like the poor, always with us, and as it seems likely to remain so until at least the crack of doom, it were well for all concerned, or likely to be concerned, to take immediate steps to secure a copy of Mr. Albert A. Strong's new work, entitled "The Law of Copyright." Mr. Strong is already favourably known to the profession for his text-book on "Dramatic and Musical Law," which, like his latest production, is published at "The Era" Office. "The Law of Copyright for Actor and Composer" essays to make clear to the non-legal mind what is—or, in some cases, what probably is—the law as to musical and dramatic copyright. The chapters on the Berne Convention and on the Chace Act, passed by the United States Congress last March, are full of interest.—Referee.

BERLIN, Thursday, Feb. 7.—The opening night of the famous playwright's new piece was unfortunately the occasion for one of those scandalous scenes that have taken place repeatedly at a "Hauptmann première." After the first three acts had been attentively listened to, and the author warmly applauded, a certain portion of the audience began to exhibit impatience, and the falling of the curtain upon the fourth act was the signal for a perfect storm of hisses and loud whistles—the latter being made with house-keys. Herr Hauptmann's admirers and friends—who were present in great numbers—attempted to drown the opposition by applause, which naturally did not succeed, and thus the conflict was continued ad. fin. well into the last act. The same thing occurred at the end of the play, and any pleasure derived from the acting was spoilt in consequence. It may at once be stated that Herr Hauptmann's latest production is a great falling off from his former plays; it is, in fact, surprisingly poor; but respect for one of Germany's greatest authors should have restrained such an exhibition of rowdyism as was witnessed on Saturday. There is, moreover, a plenitude of humour in the piece, and the dialogue is rich in poetic fancies such as might be expected from Hauptmann. It is a modern comedy, the action passing in the neighbourhood of Naumburg. The four sisters Sabine, Adelheid, Agathe, and Ludowike (in the family her pet name is Lux) live together—their parents being dead—and are known round about as the "Jungfern of Bischofsberg." The joys and griefs of the sisters—and especially Agathe's love story—form the theme, for plot is too important a word to use. Agathe is still in love with the man who wanted some years ago to marry her, a certain Dr. Grünwald. Her father would not agree to the betrothal, the suitor's position not being good enough, so the lovers parted, the doctor going off to America. News of him came at long intervals and finally ceased, and Agathe's father has died. She is ultimately—against her convictions—persuaded into accepting the attentions of a cousin, Dr. Nast—a pedantic schoolmaster, full of his own importance. Nast dabbles in archæology, and believes there is a treasure of antiquities hidden away in the well of Bischofsberg—a delusion which mischievous Lux later on makes use of to turn him into ridicule. An amusing scene is where one sister after another comes cheerfully to poor Agathe, who so infects each in turn with her sorrowful mood that all four weep in concert at the end. Just as the engagement has come about Dr. Grünwald turns up, and the lovers find that their hearts still belong to each other despite all obstacles. An original way is found by Herr Hauptmann out of the difficulty, for, it must be remembered, a German betrothal is a very serious matter. Egged on by Lux, Nast is determined to get the treasure out of the well, and a passing tramp is pressed into the service. When the box comes to light it is found to contain—in place of the relics of the past that Nast had fondly believed—a quantity of fresh sausages and other material delicacies. The ridiculous situation in which the pedant finds himself so irritates him that he goes off, leaving the field to Dr. Grünwald, and naturally nobody regrets his absence. All the sisters having gradually become engaged, the end is all that is desirable, and the lovers go two-and-two into the fascinations of the moonlit garden, singing and dancing. The acting was faultless all round, and Dr. Brahm lavished his perfect taste upon the stage arrangements. Herr Hauptmann appeared before the curtain, and smiled his enigmatical little smile while the storm raged around him. No matter how much below the author's usual standard the present work was, there was no justification for the behaviour of his opponents, which must ever remain a crying shame and disgrace.

A new play by Hans von Kahlenberg, entitled Meissner Porcelan, is to be produced at the Neues to-morrow. At first there were difficulties in the way, but the Kaiser has now given his permission—which must always be obtained when a member of the Hohenzollern family is impersonated. In this case it is Frederick the Great who appears on the stage.

The New Schauspielhaus has recently included Grillparzer's classical comedy Weh dem, der lügt (woe to him who lies) in its repertory, and the first performance took place on Friday before a most appreciative audience. The part of Leon, the cook's boy—one of the most grateful in any play, either ancient or modern—was a favourite of Herr Kainz, and usually associated with that famous actor. To Herr Walden's capable hands the important rôle was entrusted, and though comparisons are naturally out of place, it was a fairly satisfactory impersonation. Fräulein Böttticher as Edrika was adequate, and the remaining rôles were all well sustained, while the work was staged in a tasteful and highly effective manner.

"Romeo and Juliet" (by the way, why does the otherwise excellent German translation always call Shakespeare's sweetest heroine "Julia"?) has just been produced at the Deutsches. The reception was enthusiastic, due—as usual at this theatre—to the magnificence of the mounting. The title-rôles were given by Herr Moissi and Fräulein Eibenschütz, and neither was to my mind entirely satisfactory. Herr Moissi is an actor who has come to the front very rapidly—chiefly in Oscar Wilde's plays—but although his talent is undeniable, he has much to learn before he is ripe for Shakespeare; and the same may be said in a more marked degree for Fräulein Eibenschütz. Herr Schildkraut, too, as Capulet did not come up to his usual standard. The best renderings were those of the Nurse (Frau Wangel) and Mercutio (Herr Wegener).

At the Lortzing The Mikado has been revived after a long interval. The interpretation is, for the most part, good; the scenery is effective, and the delightful music exercises its old fascination.

"Der Kaiserjaeger," three-act comedy by Herren Brennert and Oswald, has been revived with considerable success at the Schiller O. The piece made its first appearance some ten years or more ago; it has not been given since, and having undergone a little modernisation has come out very fit and fresh. The humour is wholesome and the "situations" effective. As the cast is a thoroughly good and even one there will probably be a long run for the piece.

At the Royal Schauspielhaus Schiller's triology Wallenstein is being given, by the Kaiser's express wish. These fine historical plays of the great German dramatist are justly considered by His Majesty as important factors in the education of young Germany, and upon the interpretation unusual pains have been spent.

Herr Karl Costa, the famous veteran farce-writer of Austria, was the recipient of many honours on his seventy-fifth birthday last week. The Emperor sent him a signed photograph, while the Government presented him with a purse containing notes to the amount of 3,000-kronen.

ABERDEEN.—His Majesty's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Adair Nelson.—The annual visit of the Compton Comedy Company is always eagerly looked forward to here. Mr. Compton opened on Monday with Davy Garrick. The distinguished actor never did more justice to the title-part, his interpretation showing all the old sympathy, pathos, and delicate shading of character. Miss Mackenzie made a delightful Violet; Mr. Crocker was excellent as Alderman Gresham, and Mr. Dennis Cleugh a capital Tom Tallyhant; while Messrs. Philip Gordon, G. Wallace Johnston, and Vernon O. Crabtree gave first-rate impersonations of Rumbelow, Sowerberry, and Simpkins. Miss Marie Hassell and Miss Pigot made a successful appearance as Mrs. Rumbelow and Selina. The repertory for the week includes The School for Scandal, Edmund Kean, She Stoops to Conquer, and The Rivals.

Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Resident Manager, Mr. Walter Gilbert.—Mr. Leoni Clarke gives a wonderful performance with his vast collection of highly-trained monkeys, cats, rabbits, and other animals; the Dayton Family are both graceful and dexterous; Doody and Wright are, as usual, very popular; the Forestiers Comedy Trio appear with success in the farcical sketch, Brought to Her Senses; and among the other artists in an excellent company are Mr. Frank Vallance, a resourceful conjuror and illusionist; Miss Olive Zeno, a capital dancer; the Musical Kemps, who make a great hit; and Mr. Barney Noble, a first-rate singer and raconteur.

ABERTILLERY. — Theatre Metropole. — Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. W. Ventom; Stage-Manager, Mr. Fred Thomas.—The attraction here this week is Miss Emma Litchfield's principal company, under the direction of Mr. Stuart Cleveland, in A Clever Impostor. Mr. Stuart Cleveland as Manuel Teixeira is excellent; as also is Mr. Herbert Evelyn as Captain Osmond. Miss E. Litchfield displays histrionic abilities in the multiple rôles of Nora Grosvenor, Sarah Ellen, Old Rebecca, and Molly O'Flynn; the comedy element is well sustained by Mr. Ed. Swinton and Miss F. Gomer as Jim Brightside and Annie Pleasant; the mare, Twilight, is well trained, and goes through its part of the performance admirably.

ACCRINGTON.—Prince's Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. B. Ormerod; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. E. Barnes.—Mr. J. A. Campbell's company opened here on Monday with The Little Bread-Winner, which is admirably staged. Mr. Eugene Santley gives a clever representation of Lord Dorrington; Richard Lawrance is well depicted by Mr. Mathew Boulton; the part of Joseph Prior is capitally played by Mr. Alfred Maurice; Mr. Stanley Leedham gives a good reading of Charles Prior; Mr. Lea Hair makes the most of the rôle of Monty, and Messrs. Wallace Cary, Thomas Minns, and Henry Gooch are good in their respective impersonations. Miss Mary Fulton must be complimented for finished acting as Margaret Daventry; Miss Jenny Bostock is seen to advantage as Bridget O'Flanaghan; Kate Cherry is a good performance by Miss Nelly Thorn Hallam; Misses Kitty Melville and Lissa Young are meritorious as Ruth Cherry and Bobby Trott, and little Emmie Thomas acts the title-rôle with charming sympathy.

Hippodrome. — Proprietors, Messrs. Willmot, Potter Vandy, and Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Parsons.—A smart bill is provided here this week. Miss Cunningham fairly brings down the house by her clever rendered songs; the Mezzettis are both funny and clever on the bars; Mr. E—— is an amusing patterer; J. H. McCann is well received; Harry Edson does well; Loudoun Cameron must be complimented on his sleight-of-hand; the Evalos are good; and J. H. Carney is quite successful.

ALDERSHOT.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Clarence Sounes; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. E. Williams.—The Knellwood company gave amateur performances of The Idler on Monday in aid of military charities. Starting on Tuesday night, Bluebeard is being presented by Mr. Chas. Constant's company, and a hearty reception is accorded. Excellent and well-arranged specialities are contributed by Stuart and Stuart, the Sisters Warner, Arabian Troupe of Dancers, and Little Felicia. Miss Isa Bowman gives a dashing and highly-successful conception of Selim; a winning manner and charming appearance are combined in Miss Flo Hersee's Fatima; Miss Cissie Thompson invests the rôle of Cashim with the necessary "go"; Miss Maud Brock (Noolah) and Little Felicia (Asphodel) also do well; a highly-amusing Sister Ann is given by Mr. Johnny Clegg; and three other able comedians are Messrs. Gus Danby, Alec Godfrey, and MacStuart, and their efforts are greatly appreciated.

ASHTON-UNDER-LYNE.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Chas. Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. Revill.—Messrs. Dottridge and Longden have brought their premier pantomime company here for the week with Aladdin. In the character of Abanazar, Mr. Daly Cooper is inimitable. Fun flows fast and furious whenever he is present, and he is seldom absent. Miss Fanny Wright is chic, a good singer, and smart dancer, and full of life as Aladdin; Miss Molly Woolstenhulme as Rhodinuti, the genii of the cave, makes the echoes with the power of her musical voice, and her cultured singing is full of charm; Miss Jennie Hallworth as the Prince and Miss Kitty Brewster as the Princess are sprightly, fine of figure, and clever singers and dancers. Mr. Picton Roxborough is very diverting as the Emperor, and Mr. Julian Mack as Widow Twankey is the masculine female with a decided talent for mimicry and grotesque acting and singing; Mr. Joe Robins, as the Emperor's G.O.M., is also responsible for a full measure of laughter. He is most eccentric in speech and action. The Bros. Brooks as a couple of comic knockabouts are also immensely funny. The Brewster Troupe of dancers and Robins and Collier present specialities.

Empire Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. H. Broadhead and Sons; Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy B. Broadhead; Resident-Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Leech.—The chief item of the bill here is a comic absurdity by Mr. Chas. Baldwin's comedians and pantomimists. Marjorie Cannon is a clever trick pianist, soubrette, and dancer, and Phil Conway and Reg. Garland are responsible for laughter in a burlesque. Miss Florence Smithers, supported by Owen Dacroy and company, gives a good comedy sketch, Hard Lines; Eastwood and Watson are acceptable in a song-scena and Jap cake-walk; Herbert Bates sings sweetly as a tenor vocalist; Macdonald and Huntingdon are famed comedians, and Barfoot and Carson are smart.

ATTERCLIFFE.—Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Lacy Lyne; Assistant-Manager, Mr. T. Edward Owen.—The management again present a varied and attractive programme this week. A laughable and amusing scena, under the title of What a Life, is given by Edwards and Dacre; the Cymros, Welsh duettists, are heartily appreciated in their vocal items; Li-Chang-Hi is an exceptionally clever illusionist, most of his tricks are new, and cleverly performed, and he proves himself a past-master in the art of deception; the Wallys are a decided acquisition to the bill as comedy and expert jugglers; Mr. Bert Lytton, the "swell" comedian, is excellent, and his songs are well received; the Zelovas (lady and gentleman) are both graceful and clever in a trapeze and equilibristic act; Miss Katie Marsh, refined and versatile comedienne, is heartily welcomed on her reappearance; and Mr. Clayton's "Attergraph" pictures, which include "Curfew Must Not Ring To-night," is a strong feature.

BACUP.—New Court Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Denman-Wood; Acting-Manager, Mr. Dudley Harcourt.—Mr. Dickie Clare's company in the musical absurdity, Lucky 'Liza, is here this week. Mr. Dickie Clare in his triple characters of Silas Slim, the Judge, and a French waiter proves himself to be a capable artist, and a nimble and expert dancer; Mr. T. W. Benson, a laughable Peter Pettitoe, is fully appreciated; and Paul Pettitoe is in the safe hands of Mr. Syd Flind. Mr. A. W. Thompson fills the part of Barnaby Blatherwick in a capital style; Mr. J. W. Forrest shows ability as William Biffins; Miss Madge Brownie is to be commended on her lively impersonation of Lucky 'Liza. Miss Bella Russell gives an admirable character-sketch of Marie Pettitoe; and Miss Nestor Brownie may be praised for her clever efforts as Virginia. The Sisters Mascott are seen in some skilful dances, and Miss Queenie Bell supplied some clever Scotch dances.

BARROW-IN-FURNESS. — Royalty Theatre and Opera House.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. Stone.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime, Dick Whittington, is here. The hero is brightly played by Miss Adele Rose; the Alice of Miss Leah Lawrie is very pleasing; Mr. J. H. Wakefield is a humorous Fitzwarren; Mr. Alec Kendall an entertaining Idle Jack; and Mr. Fred Spencer a funny cook.

His Majesty's.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. and Mrs. Calvert Routledge.—Mr. Walter Maxwell's company is paying a return visit here with The Lion and the Mouse. Miss Christine Silver as Shirley Rossmore is forceful and sympathetic; Mr. Leslie Carter as John Burkett Ryder is impressive; Mr. Lewis Edgard is a capable Jefferson Ryder; Mr. John Wheatman a characteristic Mr. Roberts; Mr. George Roland a typical lawyer; and Mr. Herbert Chown an amusing secretary. Miss Margaret Nybloc as Kate Roberts, Miss Elspeth Dudgeon as Mrs. Ryder, and Miss Maude Townsend as Mrs. Rossmore are all commendable.

Tivoli Theatre of Varieties.—Lessee and Manager, Signor Pepi; Stage-Manager, Mr. Tom Whiting.—The Brothers O'Brien are remarkable triple bar performers; and Florence Yaymen is a quaint coon caricaturist. The Four Avocas do an operatic scene, "The Reckless Miners," well; W. B. Raby is an agreeable comedian; Edie Gray and the Boys, in harmony, are pleasing; and Miss Rosie Archer is a clever mimic on the piano.

BATH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Egbert Lewis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lewis A. Long.—After several years absence The Private Secretary comes quite fresh again, the evergreen farce on Monday last, capitally presented by Mr. Eugene C. Stafford's company, going as well as ever it did. The only representative who remains in the cast of former visits is Mr. W. Hargreaves as Mr. Cattermole, and constant repetition of the part has not in the least diminished the humour of his impersonation. Mr. Donald Price-Evans proves himself to be one of the best Robert Spaldings we have witnessed; Mr. Marsland is portrayed by Mr. W. T. Elworthy, who is the country squire to the life; Mr. Vivian Gilbert makes the vulgar tailor, Sidney Gibson, stand out prominently; Mrs. Alfred Davis fills the rôle of Miss Ashford with excellent results; the quartette of young lovers have spirited exponents in Mr. Randolfe Reade (Douglas), Mr. James P. E. Hussey (Harry), Miss Dorothy Shawe (Edith), and Miss Beth Elliott (Eva). Mrs. Stead is played by Miss Cecily Wade and John by Mr. D. Benford. The curtain-raiser, My American Admirer, is also highly amusing, and is well performed.

Palace Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Chas. Schuberth.—The management have had to slightly change their programme this week on account of the indisposition of Mr. John E. Coyle, his place at the last moment being taken by Dare's Anglo-American Minstrels. The Alskarno Trio, in their comedy tumbling act, meet with a good reception; two ladies who have the house with them in their songs are Rose Elliott and Dora Lyric, both being old local favourites. The simultaneous dancing of the Twin Brothers Dean brings them great applause; the Lorrisons give a smart comedy dance act; D. W. Watson plays the cornet and posthorn as effectively as ever. Raymond's Bio-Tableaux, as usual, are a standard attraction.

BATLEY.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitty; Manager, Mr. Alfred Taylor.—Her Lost Self is the attraction at this theatre. Miss Frances Delaval gives a strikingly successful portrait of a revengeful woman; Miss Clara Sullivan acts with intense feeling as the injured wife; Miss Nell Ingram as the Irish maid is lively and effective; and Miss Johnson is an intelligent child. Mr. Cecil Grey is sound in his work; Mr. G. Osmond Tearle is natural; and Mr. Leslie Yorke has an arduous part, which he undertakes with much success. Mr. L. W. Halfpenny gives a good account of himself as a typical stage Jew. The scenery is good.

BEDFORD.—Royal County Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. E. Graham Falcon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter R. Wilson.—Are You a Mason? is being played here this week by Mr. Charles Macdona's company. Mr. Ernest Corsant is very funny as a French modiste; Mr. E. H. Patterson and Mr. Buchanan Wake as Amos Bloodgood and John Halton put plenty of go into their parts, and Mr. Howard L. Tracey cleverly impersonates Frank Perry. As Hamilton Travers, Mr. G. R. J. Austin is soon on good terms with the audience. Miss Adelaide Grace is a dignified Mrs. Bloodgood; and Miss Babs Stuart and Miss Madge Merrique are charming and vivacious as her two daughters. Miss Dora Gregory is a capital Irish maid. The farce, A Bad Penny, by W. Lestocq, is an interesting "curtain-raiser."

BELFAST.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W Warden; Acting-Manager, Mr. James M. McCann.—Mr. Charles Harrington's company, after an absence of six years, is paying a return visit this week with the well-known piece, Uncle Tom's Cabin, which met with a capital reception on Monday. In the title-rôle, Mr. J. Carr is most successful; and the villainous Legree is realistically portrayed by Mr. J. Henry Rogers. Miss Helen Hathaway furnishes a sympathetic interpretation of Eliza Harris; and Miss Holly Haslewood presents a pathetic picture as Little Eva. Much amusement is created by Miss Sylvia Stella as Topsy; and Mr. J. H. Renney acquits himself with distinction as Phineas Fletcher. Mr. Charles Harrington's appearance as Mr. St. Clair is in every way a success; and Mr. Leslie Beaufort is all that could be desired as George Harris. Mr. Walter Langford is amusing as Marks; and satisfactory impersonations of Aunt Ophelia and Aunt Chloe are submitted by Miss Jennie Malcolm and Mrs. Carr. Specialities are provided in the fourth act by Miss Sylvia Stella, plantation songstress and whirlwind dancer; Mr. Ben Rowe, champion bone soloist; Rowe and Holden, cake-walkers; Mr. Walter Langford, banjoist; Mr. H. Nott, tenor; and Rich and Moore, coloured duettists.

Palace Theatre of Varieties.—Proprietors, Warden, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Fred W. Warden; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Freece; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Harris.—Raku, the well-known exponent of ju-jitsu, has been accorded a great reception; Galletti's Monkeys exhibit the very acme of training, their feats being simply wonderful; and the Robertys Family appear to advantage in their original equilibristic and juggling pantomime. Mr. Herbert Clifton appears in his astonishing performance, his mimicry of famous actresses being startling in its realism; Mr. Gerharde Moir appears in a series of leaping and jumping feats, which are certainly very clever; and Miss Mignonette Kokin is a charming comedienne and fine dancer. Also here are Mr. Harry Russon, comedian; Mr. Andy Fagan, comedian; and the Palace pictures.

Empire Theatre of Varieties, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager, Mr. John S. Walker.—La Milo is the star here this week, and appears with much success in a series of striking and beautiful classical poses; Cruickshank, aptly described as the lightning caricaturist, appears in conjunction with La Milo, and his clever performance has been loudly and deservedly applauded; Bellonini's feats of juggling cause much amazement; Princess Pauline is an accomplished comedienne; and Frazer and Mac appear to much advantage in their clever comedy act. Mr. Harry Lawson is a droll comedian; and the Brothers Schenk's feats of head and hand balancing are undoubtedly marvellous. Mr. Harold Hughman is a mimic of exceeding merit; and the programme is completed by Miss Hettie Chattell, comedienne.

New Alhambra Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Henry T. Downs.—The Alhambra Dramatic Company, under the personal direction of Mr. M. Montgomery, produce here this week the sensational drama, Her Fatal Past. Mr. Horace Denton appears to the utmost advantage as Mark Desmond, his acting being superb; and Miss Nina Blake Adams furnishes an exceedingly skilful impersonation of the somewhat difficult rôle of Honor Symes. Mr. Cyril Grier, a most capable actor, plays the rôle of Leonard Fernside with much credit to himself; and Mr. Balfour Dennistoun's assumption of the rôle of Gilbert Fernside leaves nothing to be desired. Mr. Elmore Frith would indeed be hard to surpass as Reuben Treadaway; Mr. T. H. Solly's humour as Johnathan Buckstone Nobbs is quite irresistible; and Miss Mattie Crawford appears to advantage as Kitty Springwell, furnishing a vivacious rendering of the part. Miss Kathleen Osborne made her first appearance on the stage on Monday, and exhibited much promise in her assumption of Little Leonard; and much praise is due to Miss Roma Tremayne, who was most successful in the dual rôle of Ruth Fernside and Belle De Lara. Mr. Ed. Smythe acquits himself with honour as Dicky Bird; and Miss Alice Clarke furnished an unequalled impersonation of Martha Springwell. Mr. J. E. Davies as Constable Smithers completes the cast. The Alhambra Bioscope, under the direction of Mr. W. E. Newlove, exhibits a fine picture this week, entitled "An Author's Dream."

BILSTON.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager Mr. Harry Battersby.—No artist is much more popular in this town than Mr. Harry Starr, and his programme for the week includes his three musical dramas, Otto, the Outcast, The Unseen Power, and Carl, the Clockmaker. On Monday the first-named of these was presented, with the indispensable author and actor (Mr. Starr) in the title-part. He is ably assisted by Miss Kate Norris, who, as Lara, the flower girl, was much appreciated. Miss Madge Blundell (Corinne), and Miss Blanche Leroy (Susette) rendered valuable aid. As Daddy Bruneau, Mr. David Beattie was well cast; and Mr. Edwin Firth made the most of the part of Roderique.

BIRKENHEAD.—New Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. W. W. Kelly; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Pell.—Mr. Louis Calvert's company is on a welcome return visit with Sunday, a play with an excellent reputation in this town. On the present occasion the title-rôle is represented by Miss Eurelie Polini, who in a charming and telling performance fully maintains the traditions of the part. The "Boys" are irreproachably acted by Mr. William Lockhart, Mr. Sidney Rennef, Mr. Cecil Yapp, and Mr. Arthur Vézirs. Mr. Leonard Pagden is an ideal Colonel Brinthorpe; Tom Oxley is capitally undertaken by Mr. Ernest A. Douglas; and Mr. Max Montesole does all that is possible with Arthur Brinthorpe. The small part of the Nun is carefully handled by Miss Muriel Pope; Miss Rosalind Ross is well suited as Mrs. Naresby, and Mr. Ernest Harrison shines as the manservant, Abbot. The piece is liberally staged, and the visit has proved highly successful.

Argyle Theatre of Varieties. — Manager, Mr. D. J. Clarke.—The Stavordale Quintette, a clever combination of instrumentalists, supply the premier turn; and Selkirk's juvenile spectacle, Bonnie Scotland, is also an attractive item. Hayman and Franklin, Hebrew comedians, have made a hit in the sketch The Matrimonial Agency; and Rezene and Robini, comic acrobats, are fulfilling one of many successful engagements here. Miss Madeline Rossiter (coon vocalist and dancer), Will Vayes' Juveniles, and Brown's Royal Bioscope complete the company.

BIRMINGHAM.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Tom B. Davis; Acting-Manager, Mr. Philip Rodway.—The Queen of Hearts is now in its eighth week, and shows no falling off whatever, which is as it should be with such a splendid production and popular company.

Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Rodgers, Limited; Manager, Mr. J. F. Graham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Henry Johnston.—Crusoe's Adventures is also in its eighth week, and is still playing to crowded houses. The pantomime closes on Saturday next.

Grand Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Turner; Manager, Mr. Victor Turner.—Aladdin has found great favour since its introduction last week, and Miss Winifred Hare and company are eminently successful in the production.

Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Lester Collingwood.—Cinderella, with Miss Bessie Butt's exquisite portrayal thereof, has reached its eighth week, and is still going strong and well. Miss Marie Le Franc (Cinderella's clever understudy) is one of the salient successes here with her arch ways and smart singing and dancing as the Duchess.

Metropole Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Andrew Melville; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Hindle Taylor.—Dangerous Women is staged here by the Metropole company in an able manner. Mr. Percy Dawsone, always a popular figure with Metropole audiences, is excellently suited as Ronald Courtney; Mr. Austen Milroy shows his sterling value as Dr. Dysart; Mr. Fred A. Marston is again a pillar to the structure with his virile acting as Colonel Rothwell; Mr. Edward Finlay enacts the rôle of the burglar, Dick Pudsey, with his habitual skill; Mr. Francis Everard plays the rôle of Sir Reggie Hopgood to much advantage; Mr. Andrew Emm (Melville) keeps his admirers and followers delighted with his never-ending humours as Elijah Smudge; Miss Rose Ralph sustains her reputation for charm and ability admirably as Sylvia Rothwell; Miss Florence Nelson is a luminous figurante as Cora Fay; Miss Kate Walfred is successful as Lola Lascelles; and amongst others who shine are Miss Bella Power as Mrs. Raby, Mr. A. Winters as Mark Raby, Miss Amy Corelli as Bessie Basket, and little Miss Elsie as Polly Perkins.

Carlton Theatre, Saltley.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Alexander.—The Moore-Kennedy Combination are here in Dick Whittington, in which Mlle. Lucretia towers above all with her dashing assumption of the hero; Miss Helena Barton proves herself a graceful heroine; and Miss Josephine Townshend as Princess Charming, Miss May Vincent as Viscount Piccadilly, Mr. Percy Victor as Fitzwarren, Mr. Will Sandes as Idle Jack, and Mons. Pauletti as the cat are prominent. The Sisters Dunville are successful in "The Zuyder Zee," and the Lily Godfrey troupe score.

Theatre Royal, Aston.—Lessee, Mr. Charles Barnard; General-Manager, Mr. E. Hewitson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Whittles.—Little Red Riding Hood forms the fare here, and is put on in Messrs. Fred J. Little and Fred D'Arcy's best style. The title-rôle is sustained by Miss Verona Philis, who is possessed of coniderable charm and ability, and wins the hearts of all; Miss Ada Twibell scores with her vivacious style and clever singing as Boy Blue; and Miss Emma Don as Prince Charming, Miss Molly Hackett as Miss Muffit, and Miss Cissie Robey as Margery Daw act, sing, and dance in a most becoming style. The comedians include Mr. J. Templar Ellis as the Baron, Mr. Harry Howe as the Dame, Mr. G. H. Penn as the Page, and the Bros. Lavelle as Johnny Green and Jimmy Stout, each being genuinely funny and highly popular. The specialities come in for much praise, and include the Don Black and White Comedy Team, the Bros. Lavelle, the Acme Quartette, and the Four Hearns in their comedy acrobatic entertainment.

Empire Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. A. W. Matcham.—Gus Elen pays another visit to the Empire, and, if anything, is more cordially received than ever. The new songs he has seem likely to prove as popular as the old favourites; Edward Arthur and his company give a couple of scenes from The Lily of Killarney in grand style; Frank and Jean Latona are a pleasing musical comedy couple, their item being much above the average turn of this class; Lee and Kingston have an artistic comedy scene, entitled Practical Joking; Conway and Leland give an interesting turn, and Victor Newman's selections from famous plays are quite Irving-like; Frank Harwood has some good songs, while Azela Wilson is a clever gymnast and trapeze artist, and Bralt and Hemsley are splendid dancers.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—Miss Victoria Monks' reception here this week shows that she has not been forgotten. She has several capital songs, the refrains of which are quickly picked up by the audiences, a sure indication of popularity. The tableaux of classical statuary and other works of art, presented by Henriette de Serris, are remarkable for their fidelity to detail and regard to artistic effect. Lily Lonsdale quite captivates the audience with her flexible and well-trained voice; Mlle. Marjutti has a striking show, entitled From Demon to Fairyland; Mons. Slippere is a blind pianist and vocalist of much ability; while the Two Dixons are clever bâton swingers, musicians, and dancers. Bishop and Hanlon, Ernie Myers, the Wattons, and Clarice Greta are all responsible for good turns.

Bordesley Palace.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Edward Foster.—The chief item on the programme of the above hall this week is the powerful American dramatic sketch, entitled Number 99; this is presented by Mr. Frank Lister in the title-rôle, and supported by a capable company. The well-known Hebrew comedians, Jordan and Harvey, create lots of amusement, and earn for themselves well-deserved applause; the Avolos, Charles Robinson, Lilian Dundas and company, the Goldinis, and the Bioscope all help to make a successful show. The management have also secured a number of local artists.

BISHOP AUCKLAND. — Eden Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. R. Addison, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. Addison; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. J. Huntley; Mr. F. B. Woulfe is paying a welcome visit with Robin Hood, being seen to conspicuous advantage in the title-rôle. King Richard is admirably interpreted by Mr. James Stillwell; Mr. Harry Ernestine is well placed as Prince John. Villainy is ably supplied by Mr. Clifford Rean as Wm. Fitzalwyn; and comedy is furnished by Mr. Bob Anderson as Friar Tuck and Mr. Edward Dunstan as Eustace le Beau. Miss Ethel Griffies is a popular heroine.

BLACKPOOL.—Her Majesty's Opera House.—General-Manager, Mr. J. R. Huddlestone.—The Moody-Manners' Opera Company is in possession this week, and drawing tremendous houses. Lohengrin was presented on Monday in the most adequate manner. Miss Enriqueta Crichton as Elsa, Miss Marion Broom as Ortrud, Mr. Charles Carter as Lohengrin, and Mr. Marshall Vincent as Frederick interpreted their respective parts with intense power. On Tuesday Carmen was submitted, with Mlle. Zelie de Lussan in the title-rôle. Needless to say, she scored a great artistic triumph. The other parts were also in capable hands. Maritana, Il Trovatore, Faust, Tannhäuser, and The Bohemian Girl have also been equally well interpreted during the week.

Grand Theatre.—Owner and Manager, Mr. T. Sergenson.—Mr. Frank Denman-Wood's pantomime company is here this week with Dick Whittington, the title-rôle being assumed by Miss Daisy Morrell, a very capable vocalist. The fun providers are Messrs. Fred Acton (Alderman Fitzwarren), Frank Daleno (Martha Muggins), and Will Dennis (Idle Jack), whilst Messrs. Juan and Billy McQue are also favourites.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. G. H. Harrop; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred. Waller.—The star of this week's bill is Theo. Bouwmeester, the Dutch protean actor, whose one-act tragedy, entitled Who is Guilty? is warmly appreciated. Sarah Berry, the eminent Lancashire contralto, also finds favour. Other creditable turns are contributed by Spry and Austin, vaudeville artists; Eno, a clever mimic; the Grosvenors, glee singers; Vasey and Ramsey, in a sketch; Montague Biggs, comedian; Charles Banks, with his performing dog; and Harry Player, comedian.

BLYTH.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur C. Moody.—The comic pantomime, Sinbad the Sailor presented by Messrs. Little and D'Arcy's company has met with an enthusiastic reception here, large audiences being the rule. The specialities introduced by the Les Beaux Belles, Newco and Sullo (comedians), the Callcotts (banjoists), Dobito and Buxton (operatic vocalists), the Westwood Comedy Cyclists, and others have proved an attractive feature of the production.

BOLTON.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. F. Elliston; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Melvin.—After many years absence a return visit of The Gay Parisienne is this week being made by Mr. Charles Macdona's principal company. Mr. Will Harman evokes much merriment by his rendering of Ebenezer Honeycombe; Miss Lillian Talbot (a Bolton actress) is dainty and lively in the part of Mlle. Julie Bon-Bon; Mr. Squire Day scores as Major Fossdyke; Mr. Clifford Seyler acts cleverly as M. Pompier; Mr. Philip Moore is admirable in vocal efforts as Tom Eversleigh; Miss Madge Soutter is quaint and amusing as Ruth; Miss Holford Beringer is seen to advantage as Mrs. Honeycombe; and Miss Nance O'Neill is pleasing as Norah Honeycombe. Mention should be made of the Imperial Glee Singers, Messrs. Jones, Rose, Moore, and Fitzjames.

BOSCOMBE. — Hippodrome.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. De Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. De Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Ball.—A novel turn is put forward here in Holden's Comic Mannikins, most cleverly manipulated; Bosanquet introduces his novelty instrument, the "Bosanquephone"; the Maxmilian Trio

Grateful—Comforting.
EPPS'S

COCOA
Breakfast and Supper

are clever in their unique equilibristic act; Mr. and Mrs. Leonard are well appreciated in Coming Home; Bob Hamilton is a mirth-provoking Scotch comedian; Edith St. Clare is a pleasing comedienne; and Fred Herbert scores with his songs. The Hippodrome pictures are up to their usual standard.

BOURNEMOUTH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, David Allen and Sons; Sole Lessee, Mr. Mouillot; Manager, Mr. Rowland Stewart.—A Pair of Spectacles, under the management of Mr. Russell Rosse, is again attracting good houses here. Mr. David James as Benjamin Goldfinch is particularly excellent; a remark which also applies to Mr. Norman Clark as Uncle Gregory. Miss Ida Phillips as Mrs. Goldfinch, and Miss L. Kingston as Lucy, are very good. Other characters are well represented by Mr. Charles Wray, Mr. Eric Maxon, Mr. F. J. Hampson, Mr. Maurice Denham, and Miss Lorna Doone. A comedietta, entitled A Silent Woman, in which Mr. Norman Clark, Miss L. Kingston, and Mr. Eric Maxon do good work, precedes the comedy.

BRADFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. T. F. Doyle; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Richardson.—Previous arrangements will compel the management to withdraw Robinson Crusoe, although the pantomime is in the height of its prosperity.

PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. F. Laidler; Acting-Manager, Mr. N. Hepworth.—The second edition of Cinderella has proved very attractive, and the pantomime maintains its popularity, the theatre being crowded nightly with delighted and appreciative audiences.

THE EMPIRE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Resident-Manager, Mr. Percival Craig.—Jake Friedman presented for the first time here on Monday night his bright Dutch operetta, Happy Holland, a quaint combination of musical comedy and comic opera, in which, as Jakey Oodevassal, he has excellent support from Miss Florence Hunton as Gretchen and a numerous company of capable artists. The Five Bogannys contribute a remarkably clever Risley act, which secures great applause; Lidden and Hayward's musical speciality is an acceptable item of the programme; the clever actress, Mrs. Lucas, is on a return visit, well supported by Mr. E. H. Lucas, in Scenes from Dickens; a clever turn is furnished by Prince Kokin, the Japanese juggler and equilibrist; in their bright, well-acted sketch, The Order of the Bath, Lilieth Leyton and John Spurling are again entertaining; Harry Drew, Welsh basso, contributes songs in good style; a clever pot-pourri by the graceful Macarte Sisters, on the wire and trapeze, earns applause; in dainty and graceful style Ethel Ra Leslie sings of courtly knights of old; and there are some fine pictures shown by the American Bioscope.

PALACE THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. R. H. Foster.—The Three Clarions contribute to the programme here this week an amusing absurdity, The Would-be Tenor; and in their American speciality Meier and Mora dance well and do some clever ball-punching. Francis O'Flynn, in clever style, executes a banjo solo; there is a fund of humour in the rough-and-tumble turn, Historical Maniacs, by Story and Trigg; Charles Torbay, the comedy silhouettist, does some clever and amusing work; with their sketch, Pets at Home, and the Burglar's Surprise, the Jimsons provide an entertaining novelty; great applause greets the novel acrobatic act by the clever Juanitas Troupe; and Raymond's Bio-tableaux show some fine pictures.

BRIDLINGTON.—PALACE AND WINTER GARDENS.—Manager, Mr. J. W. Delmar.—A capital variety company is appearing here this week, under the title of The Merrymakers. The three ladies and three gentlemen give an excellent pierrot programme and also as individual entertainers. Miss Nellie Pender proves a capable comedienne and mimic; Mr. Bob Pearson is a character impersonator with some clever imitations of various personages; Miss Maud St. Malo is a charming soprano vocalist; Mr. Harry Combs shines in his baritone songs, and the duets of these two talented vocalists are rapturously received. The "Record" pictures are amusing, and the company appears in a capital burlesque, Peter's Blunder, with great success.

BRIGHTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. H. Cecil Beryl; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Harcourt M. Beryl.—Mr. and Mrs. Kendal and their company opened here on Monday with The Ironmaster. Mrs. Kendal achieved a distinct triumph by her artistic impersonation of Claire de Beaupré; Mr. Kendal was earnest and convincing as Phillippe Derblay; Miss Sara De Groot acquitted herself admirably as Athenais; Miss Marie Lohr made a charming Susanne Derblay; Mr. C. W. Standing's Octave, Mr. Bassett Roe's Duc de Bligny, and Mr. Ernest Hendry's Moulinet are well played; Mr. A. B. Tapping as the Marquise de Beaupré, Miss Dora Fellows as the Baronne de Préfont, Mr. W. M. Rutherfurd as Biehlin, and Mr. Metcalfe Wood as the Baron de Préfont also merit praise. The répertoire for the week included The Housekeeper, The Elder Miss Blossom, A Tight Corner, and The Melcombe Marriage, the last-named being announced for production for the first time yesterday (Friday) evening.

ALHAMBRA.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. L. Graydon; General-Manager, Mr. Ernest Lepard.—There is a capital company here this week. De Biere, "the mysterious," performs some marvellous sleight-of-hand and vanishing tricks; Cora Corina is a charming Anglo-Spanish dancer; Stylo displays clever juggling with hoops; the Three Gilbert Girls sing and dance admirably; the Norman and Leonard Trio are well received in the musical incident, The Itinerant; Reta Ransdem gives capital male impersonations; Laune Stuart is a pleasing comedian; George and Leila are good comedy duettists; Beatrice Bonnie is an artistic comedienne; Dale and Vale find favour with their duets and dances; Susie Marney is an excellent descriptive vocalist; and the Alhambrascope pictures are interesting.

HIPPODROME THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford and Smith; Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—An excellent programme is sustained here this week. The Violas give a clever "second sight" turn; the Three Demons, daring cyclists, perform some sensational feats; Ted E. Box, quaint comedian, is very amusing; Gustave Fasola, Indian fakir and Oriental wonder-worker, submits a capital turn; Woolmer Young is a pleasing actor-vocalist; King's College Boys achieve great success in their treatment of excerpts from operas; Mark Leslie wins applause for his coon impersonations; the Three Transfields are very effective in their refined musical mélange; Prof. Norton is a skilful conjurer; the Sisters May are dainty duettists and dancers; and the Barrascope pictures are entertaining.

WEST PIER.—Entertainment-Manager, Mr. A. D. Norman.—Mr. Charles Carey and company opened here on Monday with Little Lord Fauntleroy. Owing to an unfortunate accident Miss Dorothy Cacey was unable to appear as Mrs. Errol ("Dearest"), and the part was read by Miss Gertrude Netterville. Mr. Charles Carey gave a finished impersonation of the Earl of Dorincourt; the title-rôle was ably undertaken by Master Harold Duval; Mr. Walter Russell was well suited as Mr. Haversham; and Mr. Buckstone Clair presented a capital enactment of Mr. Hobbs.

BRISTOL.—PRINCE'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Macready Chute.—There was a large attendance here on Monday afternoon attracted by Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company in The Morals of Marcus. Mr. C. Aubrey Smith and Miss Alexandra Carlisle presented exceptionally clever expositions of the leading parts of Sir Marcus Ordeyne and Carlotta; Miss Mabel Hackney acted cleverly as Judith Mainwaring; and all the remaining parts had full justice done to them by other members of the company. The pantomime, Humpty Dumpty, is still attracting crowded houses at each performance.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Ernest Carpenter; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. F. Crowe.—Cinderella at this old and historic theatre continues to be highly attractive. No company of artists could work more conscientiously than the one Mr. Carpenter has been fortunate to obtain for this pantomime.

PALACE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace Livermore; Treasurer, Mr. F. J. V. Welchman.—George Formby, comedian, is greatly appreciated here; Alburtus the First and Jessie Millar are successful in a comedy scena, A Scene at the Fairgrounds; the lady plays the cornet in good style, Alburtus scores with eccentricities, and they both are experts in club manipulation. The Musical Keiths (Carlina and Charlie) present a pleasing instrumental act; Jane Temple, American comedienne, does a good turn; Ben Harris and his Nippers amuse with a comedy speciality, A Promising Pupil, in which song, dance, boxing, and comicalities are introduced; Will Dalton, patter comedian, has a good reception; Ethel Yorke is a pleasing comedienne; the Cambrian Singers are harmonious exponents of trios, &c.; and there is also Vernon's Imperial Bioscope.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor, Mr. B. Pearce Lucas; Resident-Manager, Mr. Sid Macaire.—The Marvellous Howards head the programme here with their thought-reading entertainment, and obtain considerable appreciation; A Trip to Coontown is a musical sketch presented by a company of coloured persons, who sing and dance in excellent style; Marguerite Broadfoote, comedienne, has some pleasing songs, and is highly successful; J. H. Newell Quartette scores with a mediæval musical comedy, The Jester Knight, the singing, acting, and scenery being above the average; Connie Milton, comedienne, does an acceptable turn; Mephisto, assisted by Marie, obtains applause for his contortionist act; William Griffin, descriptive vocalist, has a good song; and Walter Stanley, eccentric comedian, obtains applause. The performance concludes with up-to-date animated pictures.

BROUGHTON.—VICTORIA THEATRE, LTD.—Manager and Licensee, Mr. J. Fred Watson.—We are visited by Messrs. Alfred Paumier and Walter Howard's company in the romantic play, The Midnight Wedding, written by Walter Howard. The rôle of Paul Valmar is ably sustained by Mr. Alfred Paumier; Princess Astrea is played with exquisite power by Miss Annie Saker; Mr. Fredk. W. Freeman makes an excellent Prince Leopold; Mr. Ernest E. Imeson carefully attends to the part of Lieut. von Strelsburg; and Captain Rudolph is a thorough villain in the hands of Mr. Clinton Baddeley. The audience are kept in roars at the comedy of Mr. James E. Park, Mr. Edward Fletcher, and Mr. Algie Spalding as Max, Otto, and Bobs, in conjunction with Miss Ada Champion as Kathie. The staging is excellent, and the dresses and uniforms of good quality.

BURNLEY.—VICTORIA OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. C. Horner. — A bright, breezy, and rollicking pantomime, Babes in the Wood, is to be seen here this week. Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's company is a very good one, and is well equipped in the matter of humour and vocal talent. The principal boy and girl, Miss Amy Allnutt and Miss Avena Walton, are a most vivacious pair; they infuse plenty of vigour into their singing and their acting and dancing are most enjoyable. The humour is well served up by Mr. Harry Albery as Araminta, Dawson Dewick as Soft Sammy, Messrs. Grapho and Jackson and Messrs. Farr and Farland as the Baron's pages; add to these Mr. D. J. Dandy as the Baron, and the fun is kept merrily going throughout the performance. Excellent work is done by the chorus, smart dancing by the clever ballet, and the scenery is most effective throughout.

BURTON-ON-TRENT.—NEW THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. H. Dudley Bennett; Acting-Manager, Mr. John Waller.—Mr. Silvanus Dauncey and Mr. M. V. Leveaux are presenting The Walls of Jericho. Mr. A. E. Anson capitally portrays the rôle of Jack Frobisher, his diatribe on the "smart set" being a splendid piece of acting; Mr. G A. Brandram is natural and easy as the bluff, good-hearted colonial, Hankey Bannister; effete aristocracy is ably represented by Mr. Cyril Baleine (the Marquis); and Mr. A. W. Tyrer is well placed as Harry Dallas. Miss Gladys Mason cleverly portrays the irresponsible wife and mother of high society; the Lady Lucy of Miss Nora Wynne is a bright and pleasing conception; while Miss Marguerite Cellier is eminently successful as the sympathetic Lady Westerby. The play is admirably staged.

BURY (Lancs.). — THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. J. Gar Kiddie's company is here with the funny pantomime, Little Bo-Peep. Miss Susie Beaven is a dashing Boy Blue; and Miss Lizzie Payne a charming Bo-Peep. Miss Katie La Blanche as Marjory Daw is a capital dancer; an excellent band of humorists include Mr. J. W. Groves as Granny Brown, Mr. Fred McLean as Baron Hardup, Mr. Harry Wren as Tommy Long, Mr. Bert Allen as Johnny Stout, and Mr. Albert Kail as Jimmy Green. Specialities are given by the Solon Trio, the Lohrentz Quartette, and the Hammersley Troupe of lady dancers.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Broadhead and Sons.—General-Manager, Mr. Broadhead, jun.—Corman's Youngsters are paying a return visit. Alec Hulme and Tom Le May, clowns; Walter Curtis, comedian; Primavesi, juggler; Arthur Stacey, eccentric comedian; Janette Hall, lady baritone; and Sid Myra and his performing dog contribute to a good show.

BURY ST. EDMUNDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Eade Montefiore.—The boards are occupied this week by the drama, A Warning to Women, which is elaborately staged, and abounds in thrilling situations. Mr. C. Watson Mill wins much favour by his performance of Shaun; a like remark applying to Mr. Henry Rutland as Squire Kennion; the villainy of Dr. Marcus Dread is vividly portrayed by Mr. Chas. Vivian; Mr. Carter Slaughter creates amusement as Lord Eversleigh; and Mr. Wilson Benge and Mr. George Harvey creditably fill the respective rôles of Fergus McNaughton and Rev. Emmanuel Wallace. Miss Rosalind Tate wins applause as Moira; the Molly O'Moore of Miss Ellen Beverley is a good study of the Irish peasant; Miss Grace Barton is a sympathetic Sheila, and the crippled boy, Miles, is nicely played by Miss Edith Rutland.

BUXTON.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager and Secretary, Mr. Arthur Willoughby.—East Lynne is played by Messrs. Armitage and Leigh's company. Miss Julie Kennard acted with much appreciation and sympathetic touch as Lady Isabel and Madame Vine, and Mr. Eric Mayne was a polished scoundrel as Captain Levison; Mr. Alfred Beaumont's Archibald Carlyle was distinguished by many touches of clever acting; and Mr. C. C. Grattan provided some mirth as the irascible Justice Hare. Mr. H. C. Rutland was capable as Richard Hare, and Mr. Cyril Hayward was a humorous Lawyer Dill; Mr. Alfred Tate's P.c. Bullock greatly amused the audience; and Mr. Spencer Goodwin was efficient in the small character of Lord Mount Severn. Miss Ethel Hardacre played consistently as Cornelia Carlyle, and Miss Ethel Savill was an agreeable Barbara Hare.

CARDIFF.—NEW THEATRE.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Robt. Redford.—Mr. Milton Bode's principal company, with The Belle of Mayfair, is on a very successful visit here this week. The piece is staged in the magnificent style always associated with Mr. Bode's productions, and the costly dresses have caused quite a sensation. Miss May Yates is a captivating Julia, singing and dancing tastefully; Miss Mabel Dent as Pincott submits an admirable impersonation; Miss Emily Stevens as Lady Chaldicott is responsible for a successful impersonation; while Miss Daisie Irving's dignified portrayal of the Princess and Miss Aurelle de Loriere's picturesque rendition of the Gibson Girl are both excellent. As Sir John Chaldicott, Mr. Harry Parker works with much effect from start to finish; Mr. Haddon Cave as Lord Mount Highgate being an able partner in his amusing antics. Mr. Gwyn Alwyn, Mr. Edward Hugonnet, Mr. Laurie Lisle, and Mr. George McCloskie are all suitably cast. The chorus is well balanced, and reflects credit upon Mr. Thomas M. Tunbridge.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Robert Redford.—The Trumpet Call occupies the boards at the Royal this week, and proves very attractive. Mr. Leonard Yorke does well as the hero, Cuthbert Cuthbertson; and Mr. John Dennys as Richard Featherstone undertakes creditably the responsibilities of the villain. Mr. Charles F. Cooke as Sergt.-Major Milligan acts with much ability; while Mr. Freddie Bentley as Tommy Dutton and Miss May Foster as Lavinia succeed in livening the piece with clever comedy. Miss Helena Millais presents a pathetic delineation of Constance; Miss Doris Gilham is suitably placed as Astrea; and Miss Helena Rigby as Mrs. Wicklow deserves special mention.

EMPIRE.—Managing Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. W. Lea; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. H. S. Dring.—The Boy Army is presenting a remarkable and interesting turn at the Cardiff Empire, the military manœuvres and fine horsemanship causing well-deserved applause; Peggy Pryde, with her up-to-date songs and patter is as lively and sprightly as ever; as clever and entertaining cyclists and jugglers, Newhouse and Ward would be hard to beat; while Orpheus renders pleasing melodies in his musical scena, The Solitary Rehearsal. The pictorial songs rendered by Lilian Warren are admirable; Ike Scott and Son prove themselves good comedians; and Gladys Mavius, the Canadian girl, is well received in her song-scena, assisted by Dot. The Karno Four cause roars of laughter in their comic pantomime; the Bioscope picture this week is exceptionally good.

CARLISLE.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Mr. Thos. Courtice and Mrs. R. Stewart McKim; Manager, Mr. Thos. Courtice.—Mr. Fred Benton and company are appearing here in The French Spy. Mr. Benton again gives an artistic portrayal of Fritz, and is ably supported by Mr. Beresford Lovett, an excellent Captain Somers. Miss Madge Devereux shows power and resource as the Countess Andé (the French spy); Miss A. Harrison-Tate is effective as Olga; Mr. Max Coutts plays Count Romanoff is a masterly manner; and Mr. Hugh Travers could scarcely be improved upon as General Trepoff. Mr. Seymour Perry is funny as Nicholas Knipps; and is ably assisted by Miss Ella Seton as Julie and Mr. Chales Digby as Viscount Alexis.

THE PALACE.—Proprietors, the Palace Theatre, Carlisle, Limited; Managing-Director, Signor Rino Pepi; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. E. Nicholls.—Nat Clifford tops the bill here this week, and is scoring a big success. The Three Orros meet with an ovation for their clever gymnastic display; the Farcical Comedy Trio are amusing in a sketch entitled The Maiden and the Tutor; J. H. Crew sings comic songs acceptably; Fielding and Hull are much appreciated; Miss Maud Marlow is a pleasing comedienne; and the Luberts submit a comedy acrobatic act. The Pepiscope is still a popular item.

CARMARTHEN.—ASSEMBLY ROOMS.—Proprietors, Public Rooms Co.; Secretary, Mr. Edward Baldwin.—On Monday evening Mr. Joseph Poole's Myriorama and Myriograph commenced a week's visit. The animated photographs are up to date, amusing, and original. The variety company includes the Paulastos, sensational eccentrics; the Silly Selbys, musical clowns; the Veronas, lady dancers; the Two Daniels, negro comedians and dancers; Miss May Finch, in characteristic songs; Felix Somers, with impersonations; and Mlle. Juanita M. di Olivera, in a wonderful performance with cockatoos. Mr. Natt Abbat was a capable and amusing guide.

CASTLEFORD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor and Licensee, Mr. Chas. Gadsby; Business-Manager, Cr. Hy. Masterman.—Mr. Edwin C. Jazon brings a popular pantomime, Aladdin, capitally dressed and up to date. Miss Edna Latonne sings remarkably well as Aladdin; a fascinating Princess is Miss Florrie White; Miss Lila Lingard displays a good voice as Pekoe; and Miss Blanche Vernon makes a capital Caramel. Mr. Cyril Carle has a fine presence and good singing voice as the Emperor; Mr. Harry Vernon extracts fun from the part of Abanazar; Mr. B. Best makes a first-rate Grand Vizier; Mr. J. C. Morris is a capital Widow Twankey; and Messrs. George and Edwards as Ping and Pong are clever knockabouts. Misses Pattie Holden and Beatrice Sinclair, as Geni of the Ring and Slave of the Lamp, are a marked success; as an equilibrist and cannon-ball juggler Kavados works with conspicuous success; the Sisters Varley are pleasing; and Max Merlin wins loud applause as a contortionist.

QUEEN'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, Messrs. J. Beanland and W. Emerson; General-Manager, Mr. Will H. Emerson.—An attractive programme is provided here this week. Among the popular favourites may be mentioned Dickenson and Johnson, ornamental swimmers and divers; Mr. Frank Coyle stands high in popular favour; Sabino manipulates ten different instruments very cleverly; Mlle. Rosini provides an excellent turn with her miniature menagerie; Mr. Claude Tomlin is vigorously applauded for his songs; Mr. J. H. Kavanagh makes a boisterous and energetic comic and descriptive vocalist; Gipsy Ann and her fortune-telling dog, Rosie, win success; as a comedienne and dancer Miss Violet Gerald has a taking style; and animated pictures by the Loyal Dominion Co. are still as popular as ever.

CHATHAM. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Proprietors, Messrs. C. and L. B. Barnard; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lionel Barnard; Secretary, Mr. Geo. G. Ridley.—Mr. Walter Melville's combination is presenting A Girl's Cross Roads here this week. In a lengthy cast, the artists who are chiefly deserving of mention are Miss Hilda Beverley, who gives a powerful and convincing representation of Barbara Wade; Mr. Charles Tranmore, whose John Meadows is an excellent study; Mr. Fred Ingram, a merry Toby Turvey; Mr. Fred Withers, a capital Luke Ramsden; and Miss Florence Zillwood, a successful Nellie Meadows.

BARNARD'S PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. L. B. Barnard.—Here we have Cee Mee Marie, whose smart feats of contortion are quite new to local audiences; E. J. Sheldon, speciality comedian; the Dancing Gilberts, the lady partner being very nimble; Ethel Arundel, comedienne; Les Montaldos, in a novel slack-wire act, introducing highly-trained parrots and cockatoos; Miss Esther Phillips and company, who receive every attention during the performance of a sketch in two scenes, entitled The Sorceress; Zarmo and Arno, who get a capital reception for their performance on the parallel bars; the Erascope, with amusing films; and Martin Conway, the well-known North Country comedian, who "catches on" decidedly.

GAIETY THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Captain H. E. Davis; Manager, Mr. Frank J. Donne.—Katie Lawrence is being well received on a return visit, her songs finding much favour; the vocal contributions of the Crown Trio prove enjoyable; Les Frassettis score with selections on the harp, xylophone, and violin; the Mayvilles are a neat and dexterous couple; the Edisonograph continues to interest; Will E. Haines, comedian, and Ethel Dove, comedienne, also appear; and one of the most enjoyable items consists of quaint songs and eccentric dances, by Amber Austa.

CHESTER. — ROYALTY THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. B. Fountaine.—The pantomime of Dick Whittington is attracting large audiences here. Mr. Rolando Martin as Idle Jack, Mr. Bob Hutt as FitzWarren, and The Fimans as the Captain and the Mate find ample scope for their talents. Miss Gladys Warren is full of dash and go as Dick; Miss Kathleen Severn is a dainty and winsome Alice; Miss Flo Challis does good work as Tommy Trot; Miss Nellie Lauraine makes an imposing Fatima; Miss Wanda Kaleski is well placed as the Fairy Queen; Mr. Carne Curry is a clever and agile Cat; Miss Marie Wilson makes a satisfactory appearance as Rose; and specialities are contributed by Wallan and Collins' Six Lancashire Lasses.

CHORLEY (Lancs). — GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. G. T. Santé; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. Hemingway.—Messrs. A. Hamilton Warden, and Chas. V. Sandford's company is paying a return visit here with the drama, A Woman's Past. Miss Maisie Hanbury gives a delightful and intense rendering of Bessie, Dorothy Heath being vivaciously undertaken by Miss May Dallas; and Miss Eva Bertram cleverly appears Clara Darrel; Mr. W. Henry Hargreaves is conspicuously successful as David Heath; Mr. A. Hamilton Warden capitally presents Clement Harper, while Mr. Chas. V. Sandford creates an excellent impression as Frank Dellannoy; and Mr. G. Moreton-Williams is prominent as Uriah Craven.

TOWN HALL.—This hall is occupied for six nights by Dr. Carl Herman, the electric king, who is supported by a capital vaudeville company, including very fine living pictures.

COLCHESTER.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Charles Macdona; Resident-Manager, Mr. F. C. Upton.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company, in a revival of A Night Out, opened on Monday for six performances with Mr. Chas. Sugden in his original part of Paillard. Mr. Edward Thirlby played Pinglet with rare humour, his facial expression at times convulsing the audience; whilst as the ever-obtrusive Mathieu, Mr. Mark Lester made a great hit, his stage stammering and convenient deafness being quite a feature. Mr. Geoffrey Saville was nicely placed as Maxime; a like remark applying to Mr. Fred Penley and Mr. Thos. Barry as the two waiters. Mrs. Chas. Sugden presented a charming picture of the neglected Mme. Paillard; and the shrewish qualities of Mme. Pinglet were ably portrayed by Miss Constance Groves. Miss Lillian Stafford played Victorine with great vivacity; and quite a pretty picture was the quartette of daughters, as represented by the Misses Emmie Kemp, Elvira Stuart, Dorothy Dance, and Doris Scott.

HIPPODROME. — Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Fredk. Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. Jack de Frece; Resident Manager, Mr. Ben de Frece.—Lockhart's Elephants are on a return visit this week, and Captain Taylor is being heartily congratulated on all sides; Derenda and Green, comedy jugglers, in addition to being a really entertaining pair, are clever; Mersano, the mysterious sailor, is a card and coin manipulator of great ability; Albert Wallace, vocalist, has a pleasing reception, a similar remark applying with equal force to Lily Black, a very charming comedienne. Bert Kemble is a capable raconteur; and, as usual, the pictures conclude.

CONSETT.—NEW THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Resident-Manager, Mr. Lloyd Clarance.—Mr. Chas. Macdona's company is appearing here in The Toreador, with excellent results. Mr. Richard Adams as Pettiter, Mr. Frank Thompson as Sir Archibald Slackett, and Mr. J. Herbert Willis as Augustus Traill are very good in their respective parts; Mr. Sidney Granville does full justice to the rôle of Carajolo; Miss Leah Howard scores as Susan; and as Dora Selby Miss Florence Wood is exceptionally clever. Mrs. Malton Hoppings is well played by Miss Gwen Clifford; and as Nancy Stanton Miss Mabel Gregory is very pleasing. The solo dance in the second act by Miss Mabel Lawrence is most favourably received. The augmented orchestra and full chorus are under the direction of Mr. Lui Levalion.

CORK.—OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. John Horgan.—The pantomime Sinbad the Sailor entered on its second and concluding week here with new songs, dances, and business. Miss May Beatty as Sinbad continues to delight the audiences with her splendid singing; Miss Blanche Astley sings and acts well; and Miss Gunn is as pleasing as ever as the Spirit of Adventure; Mr. Edward Lauri as Tinbad and Mr. Gus Walker as Mrs. Eliza Sinbad are humorous and mirth-provoking; Mr. T. E. Figlass is amusing as Pompey; Mr. Fred Arthur as the Sultan and Mr. Cecil Kingsley as the Grand Vizier are capital; and Mr. G. H. Snazelle as Captain Smackanhit is excellent.

PALACE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Henry Kemble.—A big attraction here is the sketch, La Vivandière, founded on Ouida's novel, "Under Two Flags." The title-part is ably taken by Miss Isabel Derrie; Miss Cora Patey as Princess Corona filled the rôle with much success; Mr. Charles D. Pitt as Colonel Chateauroy does extremely well; Mr. Race Lorraine as Louis Victor acts cleverly; as Marshal Neil Mr. Reg. Maurice is entirely successful; and Mr. Frank Godfrey makes an excellent Arab Chief; Mr. J. C. Mannix, comedian and dancer, meets with great success; the Four Herberts prove themselves a clever troupe of acrobats; Salida and Vone are capital vocalists and dancers; the Three Phantos, in The Phantom Ship, cause great laughter; and Clito, who poses in famous female studies, is most entertaining.

COVENTRY. — THE EMPIRE. — Proprietor, Mr. Geo. Dance; Manager, Mr. A. Rand.—An interesting programme is this week headed by a welcome visit of Auguste Van Biene in a one-act playlet, entitled The Master Musician; Barton and Ashley are successful with some smart patter, the gentleman being an expert step-dancer and humorist; Ryan and Hall are clever comedy acrobats and burlesque wrestlers; Morimura introduces some wonderfully clever Japanese illusions; Phil and Nettie Peters give an amusing comedy duologue; Little Santry is a merry comedian; Miss Madge May is well received; the usual Vernon's Bioscope pictures conclude.

CRADLEY HEATH.—EMPIRE THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Jno. H. Morton.—Miss Lena Stanton and Mr. Harry Joseph's company is here in Sinbad the Sailor. Miss Lena Stanton undertakes the part of Sinbad in dashing and finished style; Little Keeno plays Tinbad in a manner all his own; Miss Norah Neville makes a winsome Irza; Miss Marie Santley is well received as Princess Yazora; and Miss Ethyl Errol is excellent as Captain Selim. Miss Lillie Richardson deserves praise for her Princess Fatima; and Miss Jennie Bradbury as the Queen has a suitable part. Mr. Harry Joseph himself gives a good show as King Krusty; and Mr. Will Terry is well to the fore as Shipwreckos. Messrs. Farrell and Gorman introduce their musical eccentricities as Bizbad and Quizbad; Mr. Fred Derby is an up-to-date Captain Cuttle; and we must not omit to praise Mr. Geo. Millard for his Caliph, nor Mr. Chas. Leamington for his Grand Vizier. Special mention must be made of Mr. Bruce Greene for his very funny Mrs. Sinbad.

CREWE.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Taylor, J.P.—Messrs. Little and D'Arcy's pantomime, Robinson Crusoe, is drawing good houses here this week. In the title-rôle Miss Marion May is a big favourite, her various musical numbers being well rendered. Miss Nellie Moore possesses the charm necessary for the success of the rôle of Polly Hopkins, and Miss Cissie Conyers is a dashing Captain Billie Taylor. Miss Beatie Moore is a graceful Fairy Queen, and as Princess Flumeza Miss Bertha St. Ruth is well placed. Mr. Fred Lloyd is an excellent Mrs. Crusoe, his droll humour causing much merriment; Messrs. Sandy and Carl as Billy and Jimmy Crusoe are also clever fun providers. Richard Hopkins is well sustained by Mr. Will Hicks; Mr. Tom Shenton is an admirable King Hyapakoola; Mr. Sydney T. Russell is good as Friday, and Mr. Geo. Rapley is commendable at Will Atkins. The Sidney Quartette are experts in the terpsichorean art. Specialities by the Three Zaracs, Sandy and Carl, and the marvellous Ladderites are enjoyable.

CROOK.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Wallace Davidson, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Wallace Davidson.—Mr. Harry Foxwell's company opened here on Monday night with An Abandoned Woman. Mr. Henry Walston gives a vigorous delineation of Herbert Seaton, and Mrs. Harry Foxwell submits a sympathetic conception of Eleanor; Mr. Harry Foxwell as Paddy Boyle is well to the fore; Mr. Bernard J. Leill portrays in fine style the rascality of Phillipe Malvoisin, and Miss Georgette Thierry as Ninon Malvoisin is deserving of much praise. Other artists are Mr. J. G. Gormley, Mr. P. M. Wright, Misses Elsie Dean, Lily Addison, and Francis Maddocks.

CROYDON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Lawson Lambert.—Peter's Mother is being admirably played here by Miss Emma Hutchison and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company, the visit giving great pleasure. Miss Ruth Mackay is quite equal to the responsibilities of the title-rôle; Miss Mary Griffiths gives a clever impersonation of Lady Belstone; Mrs. Mallalieu is in every way a suitable Miss G. Crewys; Miss Hilda Honiss makes a charming Sarah; and Miss Ethel Rayale does well as Mrs. Hewell. Mr. Percy Hutchison is commendable as Peter Crewys; Mr. Charles Harley gives a scholarly portrayal of Sir Timothy Crewys, Bart.; Mr. Eille Norwood speaks his lines with good effect as John Crewys; Mr. W. Mallalieu hits off to a nicety the rôle of Canon Birch; Mr. Drew Mackintosh is satisfactory as Dr. Blundell; and Messrs. J. Mitchell and T. Salver complete the cast as Ash and a footman. The curtain-raiser is Chalk and Cheese, capitally played by Miss Ethel Rayale as Sybil Raymond, Miss Hilda Honiss as Perkins, and Mr. Drew Mackintosh as Walter Raymond.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Samuel James; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Herrick.—Mr. Frederick Melville's company in the well-known drama, Her Forbidden Marriage, is paying a welcome return visit here this week, and attracting large audiences. Mr. Henry Lonsdale distinguishes himself as George Madison; Mr. Louis Hector plays the part of Chas. Devereux with considerable skill; Mr. Leonard Maxwell as Geoffrey Broughton deserves mention; Mr. Rawden Vivian ably fills the rôle of the Rev. Mr. Dean; Mr. Philips submits an excellent representation of Joe Lambkin; Mr. Fred De Vere as Timothy Tuttut creates much laughter and deserves the well-earned applause; and Mr. Herbert Goddard gives a clever interpretation of Sir George Lanacster. Miss Gertrude Bonser is particularly good as Lucy; Miss Madge Yates as Patty Lovejoy is a success; Miss Gertrude Hunt is smart as Lady Lucretia Lanacster; and Miss Nelly Fletcher depicts the Mother Superior in a pathetic manner.

DARLINGTON.—THEATRE ROYAL AND HIPPODROME.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. James Bell.—Crowded houses are witnessing Mr. Fred C. Somerfield's drama, The Tyrant, Miss Marie Dagmar as Tisbe delights the audience by her powerful acting; Mr. F. C. Somerfield as Homodei fairly holds the house by his powerful impersonation of the avenger; Mr. Roy Fortescue scores in the heavy part of Angelo; the Prince de Roma is successfully played by Mr. Lionel Atwell; Miss Millie Ford as Lady Katherine is most effective; as Eulie, Miss Lallah Shelton is admirable; and the comedy characters are well played by Miss Cissy Podmore as Reginella, Mr. Percy Brown as Victor, and Mr. Albert Rogers as Nobbo.

DARWEN.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee, Mr. A. M. Loader; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. J. Robinson.—Messrs. Alfred Northway and W. V. Garrod's company is here this week in The Prodigal Parson and Still Waters Run Deep. The former was played on Monday night to a good house. Mr. Garrod gives a well-balanced rendering of the Rev. Tom Godley, Mr. Northway appearing to advantage in the heavy part of Enoch Jaggins; Mr. Owen Redmone as Phil Drive, and Miss Lydia Hart as Gretchen work together exceedingly well in providing the comedy element; Fern Godley is in the capable hands of Miss Gwen Stewart, and as Myrtle Godley, the blind child, Miss Violet Jeffries does well; Mr. Wm. Hayward is well suited to the part of Ben Jaggins, and as Fräulein Korale Miss Dot Russell dances nicely.

Co-operative Hall.—Mme. Lambert's Animated Pictures and Vaudeville Company are occupying this hall this week with a really excellent set of films. Le Wist, ventriloquist; Reno, conjurer; Arthur and Isa, in a refined comedy duo, and Mme. Lambert's sketch combination are included in the programme.

Public Hall.—The Royal Animated Picture Company are present here for a second week, with a complete change of pictures.

DERBY.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Sole Proprietor and General-Manager, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Denley.—Mr. Lester Collingwood's pantomime, Blue Beard, continues to run smoothly. Two of the principals, Miss Millie Warde and Mr. Fred Lyndo, give new songs. As Ibrahim, Mr. Fred Lyndo is immensely funny, and also has two new songs, which serve to increase his success. Miss Millie Warde is a fascinating Fatima; and the principal boy, Miss Marie Liston, has become a favourite. The Three Rubys are eminently successful; and the Sisters Wingrove have caught on. Mr. S. Lockbridge and Mr. Harry Tilbury, clever comedy merchants, continue to create plenty of fun, as also do the Two Jays. To the specialities have been added Fontainbleau's leaping dogs, who supply a fine example of canine sagacity.

Palace.—Lessee and Manager(Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Herbert Taylor.—The Jackley Trio, including George, whistling comedian, whose drolleries keep the house in roars of laughter, provide a smart acrobatic turn, which well merits the first position this week. Another excellent turn is that of Mlle. Amalia, who presents her miniature hippodrame, which includes a number of cleverly-trained ponies and dogs; also Tony Watson, a donkey bareback rider of great ability. Little Cliff is a promising young comedian; Toney and Novel, equilibrists, submit some difficult feats in a praiseworthy manner; Maxford and O'Neill, a couple of smart comedians, cause much amusement; Takio is an accomplished mimic; Amy Marsden proves herself a charmingly quaint comedienne; and the Palace Bioscope is again to the fore.

DONCASTER.—New Grand Theatre and Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. J. W. Chapman.—The Silver King met with a cordial reception here on Monday. Mr. Fred D. Davis's conception of the title-rôle was extremely artistic; Miss Daisy Scudamore as Nellie Denver gave a realistic impersonation; Mr. Edward J. George upheld the character of Daniel Jaikes faultlessly; and winsomeness marked Miss Flossie Hale Daviss as Cissy, with an able coadjutor in Master Douglas Thomas as Ned. Mr. L. St. George Lowther gave a neat presentation of the Spider; and Mr. Arthur Wright was exceedingly smart and humorous as Combe. Miss Bessie Wright was a captivating Susie.

DUBLIN.—Gaiety Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mrs. Michael Gunn; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. Charles Hyland.—The boards are occupied this week by Mr. Harold V. Neilson and company in the play entitled The Perfect Lover, which has attracted large audiences. Mr. Neilson appears in the principal character, Joseph Tremblett, and displays considerable dramtic ability; as Wm. Tremblett, Mr. W. Lemmon Ward acts with great judgment; Miss Amy Sangster as the ill-used wife submits a careful reading of Lilian Tremblett; Mr. Frank Beresford plays admirably as Lord Cardew; and Miss Dorothy Milne is effective and pleasing as Martha Tremblett. Miss Gertrude Sterroll's portrayal of the Hon. Susan Lesson is very good; Miss Lilian Kevill-Davies is clever in the rôle of Mrs. Morphitt; Miss Renée de L'Estrade is excellent as May; and Miss Edith Dent as Mrs. Barter and Miss Elsie Saville as Mrs. Bonham are both well suited in their respective parts. A capital representation of John Collis is given by Mr. John Detliv; Mr. A. C. Bute does well as Harris; Mr. Reginald Hargreaves creditably sustains the part of Morgan; and Mr. Donald Gow ably portrays the character of the Porter.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. George Parrington.—The pantomime of Mother Goose has had a very successful run, and this being the last week, all the principal artists are taking benefits. Miss May Moore Duprez, who has made such a big hit as Gretchen, took her benefit on Monday, when there was crowded audience present. On Thursday Mr. Martin Adeson (Mother Goose) had his benefit, and Miss Carlotta Levey's is announced for Friday night.

Queen's Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Whitbread; Acting-Manager, Mr. John M. Dawson.—On Monday night Mr. John M. Dawson, the acting-manager, held his first annual benefit. His genial manner has gained him hosts of friends and his popularity can be well judged by the house being crammed from floor to ceiling. The programme was of an excellent and varied character. With the permission of the directors of the Theatre Royal the following artists, appearing in Mother Goose, gave their assistance with great success:—Mr. Martin Adeson, Mr. W. G. Cromwell, Miss Anna Kenwick, and Miss May Rawlinson; and from the Tivoli, Mr. "C." and Maud Courtney, the American Girl, were warmly appreciated. A host of local amateurs gave their services, and added greatly to an enjoyable programme. Mr. J. W. Whitbread's Irish players appeared in a new farce, A Matrimonial Bureau, which was well appreciated. Mrs. Mary Glenville was most amusing in an absurdity entitled Kitty's Troubles; she was ably assisted by Mr. Teddy O'Malley (who sang and danced in capital style) and Mr. Alex Allan. Mr. Dan Clarke fulfilled the duties of stage-manager. During the performance Mr. Dawson came before the audience and thanked them for their attendance.

Empire.—General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Acting-Manager and Secretary, Mr. George H. Marsh.—A capital bill of fare is provided here this week. G. W. Hunter, the versatile comedian, with clever songs and smart patter, is most heartily welcomed; Manning's Entertainers in their sketch, The Hotel Boots, cause a deal of hilarious fun; Harry Trevanion and company are paying a return visit with A Bolt from the Blue, an exciting Russian sketch, which is cleverly acted and well received; Nina Gordon, a clever Scottish mimic, gives an entertaining performance; Jemmy Shields, one-legged comedian and dancer, is always a big favourite here; Winnie Gordon excels as a lady whistler; Paulinette and Piquo, in their clever gymnastic display, are duly appreciated; and Musical Silvo and Lazern also appear with success. A new series of animated pictures of up-to-date events are attractive and interesting.

Tivoli.—General-Manager, Mr. Charles M. Jones; Secretary, Mr. H. A. Murphy.—Another capital list of turns are billed here this week. The Leopolds in their acrobatic and tumbling act, are rapturously applauded; the Primrose Quartette score in their vocal scena; and Mr. "C." is a comedian with a style peculiarly his own. Rogers and Weston give an amusing and clever absurdity entitled In Answer to an Advert.; Maud Courtney makes a favourable impression as a comedienne; the McKays, duologue artists, are accorded a good reception; and other acceptable turns are provided by Arthur Goodman (tramp juggler), the Brothers Barker (patter comedians), Recco, the impossible tumbler), and the Bioscope is, as usual, interesting.

DUMFRIES. — Theatre Royal. — Lessee, Mr. W. E. Potts; Manager, Mr. Payne Seddon.—The first three nights of this week we have Mr. Benson's North Shakespearean company. Mr. Gerald Ames is a marked success as Antonio in The Merchant of Venice; Mr. Dagnall as the Duke of Venice, Mr. Charles Francis as Bassanio, and Mr. Reignald Owen as Lorenzo left nothing to be desired in their delineations. Mr. Henry Herbert made a capital Shylock; Miss Dorothy Green was very good as Portia; Miss Louisa Graeme as Jessica was very charming, and Miss Mary Webb as Nerissa was well placed. School for Scandal and Romeo and Juliet followed during the rest of the week.

DUNDEE. — Palace Theatre. — Managing-Directors, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Manager, Mr. E. J. Dexter.—The Gentle McKweys present a very laughable turn, their comedy acrobatic work being exceptionally clever; Zaid, the Spanish Moor, gives a marvellous performance on the rings; and Cookson, in his well-worked ventriloquial act, introduces several decided novelties. That prettily-staged comedy vaudeville, A Bit of String, is capitally played by Mr. H. Leslie Bell and L. Pearl company; Walter Wade, raconteur and mimic, and Jack McCormack, comedian, are a mirth-provoking pair, and both score heavily; Ford and Barris Trio appear as legmania dancers, vocalists, and bone soloists, and their entertainment is a decided success. Amy Bathurst, a stylish serio and dancer, has a good budget of tuneful ditties; Allsopp and Bekwith are a bustling couple, their comedy act, I'm Coming Upstairs, being very refreshing. The Bioscope has a capital assortment of new films.

Gaiety Theatre. — Lessee and Manager, Mr. R. A. P. Williams.—Place of honour is accorded to Stanley and Vandyke, who appear in a well-acted sketch, entitled A Broken Promise. Percy Maye, impersonator, an artist of undoubted ability, scores a well-earned success; Harrie Brooks and Gerald Wood are very entertaining in their duologue, The Banana King; Miss Yetta, wire-walker, is decidedly clever; Adey North, comedian, and the Letard Clowns are responsible for much hearty laughter; while Philip Sefton's fine baritone voice is heard to advantage in his songs. The Bioscope completes a varied and very enjoyable programme.

Empire Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Frank Percival.—Drama gives place this week to the animated pictures, an entirely new series being presented twice nightly by the British Empire Picture Company. Several very pretty coloured films are shown, including a dramatic love story, entitled "The Bridge of Sighs." The varieties, consisting of male and female vocalists of a high order, complete the programme.

DUNFERMLINE. — Theatre Royal and Opera House. — Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. W. E. Potts.—The Aplex Animated Picture Company is fulfilling a week's engagement here this week. The cinématograph exhibition is excellent, and the pictures include "The Tramp's Temptation," "Opium Smoker's Dream," "The Prospector's Romance," "His First Silk Hat," "The Fireman's Wedding," and "The Watch Dog." The chief interest, however, is centred on the Chronophone turn, which made its first appearance here. Miss Marie Rosebery's turn was much appreciated.

EASTBOURNE. — Pier Pavilion. — Manager, Mr. George Hayes.—Mr. Edward Graham-Falcon's company is appearing here in Bluebell in Fairyland. As Bluebell Miss Mamie Finbow displays a natural charm of manner and a sweet and pleasing voice, which is admirably used. Mr. Lawrence Emery is a particularly smart and effective Dickie; Messrs. J. H. Bishop and Charles Resti as Will and Wont, and later as Blib and Blob, supply a liberal amount of fun; Mr. Harry Douglas as the policeman and the King has a delightful fund of original humour; and Mr. Frank Lennard is an excellent Mr. Joplin, and an equally efficient stage-manager, while he does fine work as the Sleepy King. W. Blincoe's work as Peter and the Owl deserves special eulogy. Miss Constance St. Bride displays dignity and attractiveness, both as the Queen and the Water-Lily; Miss Haidee Fitch is an extremely graceful embodiment of the Will-of-the-Wisp, and her finished dancing is redemanded; Miss Vera Vizard is a bright and prepossessing Good Fairy; and other parts are well played. An ideal item for children is the beautifully-dressed scena, The Death of Cock Robin. The Three Sisters Holman are agile dancers.

Devonshire Park Theatre.—Proprietors, The Devonshire Park and Baths Co., Ltd.; Managers, Messrs. Murray, King, and Clarke.—Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company is appearing here during the week in Under Two Flags.

ECCLES.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Proprietor, Mr. C. Hamilton Baines; Manager, Mr. Albert Orton.—Mr. Arthur Linforth's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, is occupying the boards this week. Miss Mary Ambrose makes an ideal Robin Hood, and is repeatedly encored for her violin solos and catchy songs; Miss Lily Maxwell makes a pleasing Maid Marian; the Babes are creditably undertaken by Miss Maisie Richardson and Miss Zeta Russell; Miss Violet Worth and Miss Vera Glynn are very taking as Robin's lieutenants; the Brothers Harrison are exceedingly clever as Raitz and Taxes; Mr. Fred Lincoln is amusing as Mary Ann Spankhurst; as Buttons, Mr. Frank Lawton, the unrivalled whistler, is a pronounced success.

EDINBURGH. — Theatre Royal. — Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. William Whitehead.—The closing weeks of the pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, are announced. The company has worked well together; the performances of Mr. Mark Sheridan, the Brothers Egbert, Mr. Harry Conlin, Mr. Harry Lupino, and Master Nipper Lupino Lane have been full of brightness and fun; while Miss Gwladys Elvey as Robin Hood, Miss Daisy Dormer as Maid Marion, Miss Mildred Claire as Allan-a-Dale, and Miss Edna Loftus as Molly have gained hosts of admirers by their clever, charming acting. There is much that is worth noticing in the delightful impersonations of the Babes by the two pretty children, Wee Wallace and Baby Bettie Green, and Miss Lottie Stone's troupe of dancers have given colour and exhilaration to the scenes in which they appear.

Royal Lyceum Theatre. — Proprietors, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham, Ltd.,; General-Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Minskull.—Mr. Arthur Bourchier's company with The Morals of Marcus opened here on Monday evening. The play has been very heartily received. Mr. H. Nye Chart gave a fine performance of the title-rôle; Mr. David Domville was good as Pasquale; and Mr. A. H. Leveaux was impressive and forceful in his one scene as Hamdhi Effendi; Mr. Cecil Brooking was excellent as the butler. Mrs. H. Nye Chart as Judith Mainwaring was tastefully gowned, and acted with great pathos and dramatic power. Her scene with Ordeyne in the fourth act was wonderfully moving; Carlotta was played by Miss Hilda Antony, a young actress who possesses not only much personal charm but notable dramatic ability; Miss Mary Weigall was an admirable Mrs. Ordeyne; Miss Gladys Purnell a vivacious Dora; Miss Conyers Radcliffe an elegant representative of Mrs. McMurray; and Miss Eleanor Gilbart a lively Antoinette. The company is under the direction of Mr. M. V. Leveaux.

King's Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Amand Mascard.—The pantomime, Cinderella, closes to-night. Mr. Courtneidge put every effort into the production of this spectacle, and the result must have justified his most sanguine expectations. Miss Phyllis Dare has played the title-rôle with singular charm and unfailing vivacity, and her benefit, which took place on Friday evening amidst a scene of much enthusiasm, demonstrated her great popularity. Mr. Dan Rolyat, Mr. John Humphries, Mr. Stephen Adeson, Mr. Bay Russell, Miss Violet Englefield, Miss Gwennie Hasto, Miss Vera Vere, and Miss Marie Rignold have all contributed to what has been a marked success.

Empire Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Parham Wells.—The leading item in a good all-round bill is provided by Miss Kate Carney and her company in the effective scena, 'Liza Johnson. The Stein-Eretto Troupe introduce some clever feats of hand-jumping; and a pleasing turn is that of Gurrie Lindon's vaudevilles, entitled Monks at Play; while the Renard Trio display both novelty and neatness in their gymnastic acts; and great skill in playing stringed instruments is manifested by Messrs. Simms and Simms. Miss Sybil St. Elmo is exceedingly happy in her vocal contributions, which are delightfully rendered; Professor Vox is as successful and amusing as ever in his ventriloquial sketches; Mr. Harry Clifford and Miss Alice Maple give realistic and smart comedy turns; Messrs. Carney and Armstrong are responsible for a good speciality entertainment; and "The Policeman's Little Run" on the Bioscope is extremely diverting.

Albert Hall.—"The Follies," whose charming entertainment made them so deservedly popular in Edinburgh on a former appearance, are paying a return visit to this city, and opened at the Albert Hall last Wednesday evening. Mr. H. G. Pelissier, the versatile manager of the company, is responsible for the excellent programme, which takes the form of a skit on the turns at an average music hall. Mr. Pelissier as the ventriloquist is extraordinarily funny. One of the company, Mr. Norman Blume, a young Edinburgh actor, has made a great advance in his profession within the last year or two.

EXETER. — Theatre Royal.—Chairman and Managing-Director, Mr. Edward J. Domville, J.P.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy M. Dunsford. — Mr. H. A. Saintsbury and company are appearing here this week in Anna of the Plains. Mr. Saintsbury depicts the character of the old burgher farmer to the life; Miss Dorothea Desmond is capital in the title-rôle; Mr. Hilliard Vox is a manly Michael; Mr. C. H. Croker-King does well as Piet van Heller; and Miss V. Vivian is amusing as Sarah. The play is followed by The First Night.

FALKIRK.—Grand Theatre and Opera House.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. Horace W. Ebbutt.—Mr. J. Maundy-Gregory's company opened a week's engagement in the striking military drama, Lights Out. The company is a very strong one. The most difficult work fell to Mr. Lionel D'Arragon as Sergeant Volkhardt, and it was accomplished in a manner which stamped him as a first-class actor; Mr. Kenneth Brampton (Lieut. Von Howen) spoke with clear and intelligent enunciation; the part of Lieut. Von Lauffen was well undertaken by Mr. Charles Esdale; Mr. Richard Fielding's Corporal Helbig was an excellent piece of acting; Corporal Queiss (Mr. Francis J. Bithell) provided what little humour there is in the piece, and he filled his part with marked success; Miss Frances Davie, the only lady in the cast, appeared as Klara Volkhardt, and sustained the curious interest in the character till the tragic ending of her ill-timed love. Among others worthy of mention were Mr. George Hanbury, Mr. Lambert Plummer, and Mr. Arthur Stone. The drama was preceded by the one-act play, Nan.

FLEETWOOD.—Mr. Henry E. Leigh presents his company here this week in the musical farcical comedy, The 'Varsity Belle. Mr. James Danvers gives an excellent portrayal of Professor Septimus Stoney; Mr. Edward Chester acquits himself well in the difficult part of Theocritus Ward Sparleton, and Mr. Frank Lilliput as Runyard, the College scout, is very amusing. Miss Josephine Ellis as Gaye Sparkleton, the 'Varsity Belle, looks well, acts well, and sings well. Miss J. Sullivan displays a good voice in the part of Eve Stoney, the Professor's wife. The whole of the company are good, and the result is completely successful.

FOLKESTONE.—Pleasure Gardens Theatre.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland.—The Shulamite made a first appearance here on Monday, and was finely played by Mr. Charles Fancourt's company. Mr. Algernon J. Hicks scored a success in the difficult rôle of Simeon Krillett; Mr. Charles Fancourt ably sustained the part of Robert Waring; Mr. George Rammell played powerfully as Jan Vanderberg; Tante Anna was ably portrayed by Miss Emily Levettey; Miss Chrissie Bickerstaff played very cleverly the Kaffir girl, Memke; and Miss Ruth Shepherd acted with decided skill as Deborah Krillett.

GATESHEAD. — King's Theatre. — Lessees, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; General-Manager, Mr. Harold Arnold.—Occupying top place on the bill here this week is Mr. Joe Peterman's company in the musical comedy extravaganza, The Belle of the Orient. Will Gordon is a favourite character-vocalist; Gus Harris makes an eloquent appeal for fair play for the Jews in a song-scena, named The Synagogue; Oakley and James present an act which includes singing, dancing, and juggling; the Clavers are two smart and amusing jugglers; T. E. Johnstone is an actor-vocalist of merit; and Little Lizzie Leaver, comedienne, and pictures by Vernon's Imperial Bioscope complete the bill.

Metropole Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thomas France.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's excellent pantomime Dick Whittington is in its last week here. Tom Foy has achieved a noteworthy success; Miss Maidie Scott (Dick) and Miss Veronica Brady (Alice) do excellent work in their respective parts.

Queen's Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Bolam and Bacon; General-Manager, Councillor Sidney Bacon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Stephen Smith.—Mr. Arthur Carlton is presenting the drama, In Sight of St. Paul's, here this week. Mr. Ernest R. Allen plays Tom Chichester with success; Mr. Herbert Cecil presents a polished Captain Gridston; Miss Gussie Everitt is seen to advantage as Cynthia Dell; Miss Cissie Bellamy makes a charming Aileen Miller; and the other parts are capably filled.

GLASGOW.—Theatre Royal, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Humphrys.—Mr. Arthur Hardy's company in Beauty and the Barge follows the pantomime here, and the lively incidents of this amusing play are heartily enjoyed. Mr. Blake Adams revels in the part of Captain Barley, and his various escapades and the artful way he wriggles out of difficulty prove most exhilarating. Miss Dido Drake makes a pretty Ethel Smedley. Mr. Edward Coventry acts well as the lover, Lieut. Boyne. The other pair of sweethearts are well played by Miss Mary Pemberton as Lucy and Mr. Pennington-Gush as Herbert Manners. Mr. Walter Pemberton is very funny as the irascible Major, and his subdued spouse is ably played by Miss Mona Robin. Miss Ruby Wyndham as Mrs. Baldwin, Mr. Charles A. White as John Dibbs, and Messrs. Fred Knight and Forrester Harvey as two sailor men lend able assistance in their respective parts. Mrs. J. W. Braithwaite as the attractive landlady of the "Old Ship" and Mr. Ewart Drake as her diminutive husband are also well suited. The comedietta entitled Cinders was given in front, with Miss Lillian Locke in the name part.

Royalty, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. W. Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Wm. M. Downie.—Messrs. Gatti and Frohman's company in The Belle of Mayfair is now running the concluding week of a month's engagement, which has proved very successful.

Grand, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. D. Macfarlane.—Crowded houses continue to patronise The House that Jack Built, and the fun all through is kept going merrily. Miss May Mars, the dashing Prince of the cast, is suffering from a severe cold, which forces her to omit several of her best songs, but she is pluckily keeping to her post, and singing those songs which do not tax her so heavily. Mr. Fred Kitchen, Mr. Harry Lappo, Mr. Fred Whittaker, Miss Luna Love, and the Harmony Four, continue to be leading factors in the success of this year's annual.

Royal Princess's.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Hugh Murdoch.—The pantomime, Mother Goose, continues to meet with undiminished popularity. On Monday the ninth week was entered upon, and the house was crowded with an audience that thoroughly enjoyed the performance from start to finish.

Metropole, Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Gillespy.—Considerable interest is being shown this week in the engagement of Mr. Junius Booth, who is appearing here in an adaptation of his own of Dumas' novel Monte Cristo. This talented actor is a nephew of the famous Edwin Booth, and in such a part as Edmond Dantes proves himself a capital exponent of the romantic drama. He has two able lieutenants in Mr. Augustin Bowerman, who essays the rôle of Danglers with much success, and Mr. Beckitt Bould, in whose hands the part of M. Nortier becomes very effective; Mercedes is represented with great refinement and taste by Miss Mona Grey; the other female rôles being well filled by Miss Alice West (La Carconte) and Miss Amy Manfree (Sophie Danglers); Mr. Walter Huron gives a good idea of M. Villefort; Mr. C. W. Crowe bears himself well as Fernand Mondego; character is given the part of Caderousse by Mr. Walter Manfree and Mr. Leonard Marshall cleverly doubles the parts of M. Morel and Lieut. Albert de Morcef.

Lyceum.—Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. H. Oakden.—The catering for the Govanites continues to be excellent. This week the Paisley pantomime, Goody Two-Shoes, which was in Perth last week, is produced, and must be considered one of Mr. Savile's successes. From start to finish the production runs merrily, and leaves little to be desired. Miss Maggie Bowman, who takes the part of Goody, is a talented little actress, who early makes herself a favourite; as Roland Miss Marie Adair does admirably, and gets through her work in a business-like fashion. To Mr. Harry Gribben is allotted the part of Baron Grabb, and his appearance is highly gratifying; Mr. Tom Morton makes an ideal Simon, while Mr. Jack Foley deserves eevry credit for his performance as the Dame. The life of the panto, however, is Mr. Peter Birmingham, as Sandy Sapps. This clever comedian gets through an immense amount of work, and evokes shrieks of laughter. A clever pair of knockabouts are the Messrs. Passmore, and Messrs. Claremont and Victor make a capital Smirk and Smile; as Peter Piper and Dolly Dimple Miss Carrie Foy and Miss Adela Crispin respectively appear with much acceptance; Miss Florence Lister as Mephisto is excellent, and her singing is highly appreciated. Miss Lena Wylie makes a splendid Fairy. The dancing of the Tricky Trio is talented and graceful.

Empire.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Chas. Mussett.—The 14 Black Hussars top the bill here, and have had a good reception, their musical pieces being rendered with spirit and precision; Howard and Harris cause much laughter in their amusing sketch entitled The Happy Hooligan; and the efforts of Bijou Russell are duly appreciated; Fred Elton is a clever entertainer, his songs and piano playing being a feature of the evening's entertainment; the Bros. Redmond are first-class acrobatic comedians; owing to illness, Miss Marion Scott was unable to appear, but the management found an able substitute. Other acceptable turns include Carrie Joy, comedy artist; Watson's dogs; Herbert Lenton, speciality act; and the American Bioscope, with new pictures.

Zoo-Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd., and E. H. Bostock; Resident-Manager, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—Paul Cinquevalli is the chief attraction here this week, and his feats of jugglery are as astonishing as ever; Edie Veno has a pleasant voice, and a lively style of singing, which is very attractive; Kitty Clover and her clever company appear in a comical sketch called Mr. There's Heir, which evokes much laughter; the Coloured Meisters have finely blended voices, and their melodies are good to hear; Kelly and Ashby do so wonderful feats on their elastic billiard-table; the O'Gorman Brothers rattle off their jokes with amusing effect; Lily Tiso has a fine voice, with a goodly presence, and dances with grace; J. A. Wilson and his funny military recruits, especially the canine "Private Towser," cause unlimited mirth. The Bioscope winds up an excellent entertainment, punctuated with occasional growls from the lions in the adjoining Zoo.

Pavilion, Ltd.—General-Manager, Mr Samuel Lloyd.—That quaint comedian, T. E. Dunville, with his merry patter and characteristic songs proves a big draw, in a long and strong programme this week; the Paragon Trio are well received for their singing, and as fine a troupe of acrobats as the Pichel troupe has not been seen for some time; Aimee Grey is well received for her tasteful singing of pleasing songs, and a delightful song and dance scena, entitled, Little Looking-Glass, by Josie Delaine, is warmly appreciated; Tom Yorke, Coster comedian, and Ned Graydon, instrumentalist, contribute acceptably to the programme; Williams and Warden, in their comedy act, Mr. Dooley, evoke much laughter with their Irish cross-talk; they also sing and dance well; Florrie Gallimore is a great favourite with her catchy songs and graceful style; the Three De Veres are clever society and comedy acrobats; Dolly Elsworthy and her Orange Girl company are seen to advantage in the sketch, in which the lady named gives a fine portrayal of the part of Nell Gwynn.

Coliseum.—Proprietors, Moss Empires, Ltd; District-Manager, Mr. S. Gething; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Burdette.—Crowded houses continue to patronise Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime, Puss in Boots here. The humour of Messrs. Sammy Shields, Harry Levaine, George Hestor, and Harry Rogerson; the animated singing and dancing contributed by Miss Minnie Jeffs and Miss Jennie Johns; and the speciality items of Avon and Crest, Curtis and Vanity, &c., constitute a most enjoyable and lively entertainment.

Palace.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. Rich. Waldon; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry McKelvie.—J. W. Hall, the popular comedian, proves his title to the term by a hearty reception; Helen Charles, pianist, mimic, &c., is always welcome; the humour of Downes and Langford is as enjoyable as it was in the recent Royal Pantomime here; they get a big reception; the Brothers Ralston, "the boys with voices," provide a pleasing entertainment; Bonnetti and Corrie are responsible for considerable merriment in a clever juggling act; the Schiavony troupe are seen in a fine acrobatic display; a most enjoyable time is spent while Jack Collinson and Co. occupy the stage; in the Topsy-Turvy School there is plenty of variety in songs, dances, and rollicking fun.

Gaiety, Ltd.—Manager, Mr. W. H. Howard; Assistant-Manager, Mr. H. Bowerman.—An attractive programme has been arranged here for the week. Miss Ada Fawn, comedienne, is the principal turn, and had a cordial reception on the opening night; other turns of interest include the Dunlops, comedy cyclists; J. Cosgrove, Irish character comedian; Jessie Thorne, chic comedienne; Gus Merriman, comedian; Poole and Poole, high-class comedy couple; Sandy M'Nab and company in an amusing sketch, The Egyptian Mummy; and the Bioscope, with a select display of pictures.

GLOUCESTER.—Palace.—Owners, Messrs. C. W. and J. R. Poole; Manager, Mr. R. T. Rea.—Dainez animals give a really clever and original performance, which is highly appreciated. Hearty laughter is predominant when the stage is occupied by Mr. Harry Wenburn; and Messrs. Clyo and Rochelle are a talented pair whose abilities are duly recognised. The Vyponds give an excellent turn, in which the lady of the duo represents a doll, whilst her partner is a capital pianist. Rappo and Ella perform some difficult and interesting balancing feats; T. C. Callaghan, comedian, goes well; and Lilian Neville, ballad vocalist, is favourably received. The Lashmars perform acrobatic feats with ease; and Miss Flo Banks, comedienne, is an immediate favourite. George Raper is a good comedienne, and some excellent Bioscope films make a fitting conclusion to a good entertainment.

GREENOCK.—Alexandra Theatre.—Proprietors, The Greenock Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident Directors and Managers, Messrs. A. B. and J. J. Wright.—Messrs. Buchanan and Stevens' pantomime, Little Red Riding Hood, is the attraction here this week. Miss Lilian Lea as the Prince delights the audience with her charming manner and expressive singing; Miss Nancy Herne as the Marquis has a prepossesing appearance and a sweet voice; in the title-rôle, Miss Decima Brooke is a decided success, and fully merits the applause she receives; Miss Helene Rose sings and dances as Ruby in an exceedingly bright and clever manner; Miss Katie Butler is decidedly pleasing as Blondina; Miss Rose Florence is a delightful Fairy Queen; and Miss Florrie Durant and Miss Beatrice Wilson are both good in their respective parts. Mr. George Le Clerq infuses great humour into the part of Johnny Stout; and as Jimmy Green, Mr. Ben Brown is responsible for much fun. As the Widow Horner Mr. Harry Nelson is well suited; Mr. L. W. Harris scores as the Village Squire; Pepper and Peter Piper are ably represented by Mr. Alfred Bennett and Mr. Wil. Cutler; and the Wolf has an exceptionally able exponent in Mr. Fred Zaranella.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—General-Manager, Mr. H. L. Skivington.—Mr. R. A. P. Williams's pantomime, Mother Goose, is being presented here twice nightly. Fun in abundance is provided by Mr. Sam Thompson as Sandy Cook; he is ably assisted by Mr. J. T. Dillsen as Mother Goose, Mr. Arthur Lee Todd as Sergeant Muttonhead, and Mr. Jas. Chartres as Toby Truncheon. As Colin, Miss Gertie Douglas infuses plenty of dash into the part, and her singing is distinctly pleasing; Miss Wynnie Darrell as Dollie Dimple is well suited to the part; and Miss Catherine May makes a graceful and effective Fairy Kindheart. Mr. Michael Kemble (Monopoly) is the possessor of a fine voice; and the Goose is well embodied by Master Jones. Excellent specialities are introduced by the Stuart quartette of vocalists and dancers and the Brothers Bright, hand-balancers.

Pavilion Theatre.—General-Manager, Mr. Samuel Lloyd; Resident-Manager, Mr. Chas. A. White.—The Five Abadaroffs, in a quaint comedy act, entitled Prehistoric Times, prove themselves very diverting; another popular turn is that presented by Huxter Brothers, acrobats; Mr. Charles Russell, descriptive vocalist, is good; Billie Burford, comedienne, wins favour; Pat Carey, Irish comedian and dancer, obtains considerable applause. Other artists are the Zampas, duettists, dancers, and bâton swingers; and Charles Gardener and Bert Marsden, comedians. The Paviscope pictures complete the bill.

GRIMSBY.—Prince of Wales's Theatre.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry.—In Holy(?) Russia is a drama illustrating the unhappy social condition of the Czar's empire, and is capitally performed by Mr. J. Rice Cassidy's company. Mrs. Rice Cassidy wins complete approval for her work as Rénee Rubinoff; whilst Mr. Cassidy presents entertaining light comedy as Colonel Dick Forrest, and in this is admirably supported by Mr. Joe Cuthbertson in the part of Micky Nolan. Mr. Frank Copeland plays Sir Harry Beresford with becoming dignity; Mr. Claude Havilland is sufficiently grim as the Chief of Police; the Nihilists, Count Gregori Petrolski and Laurice Steragoff, are suitably impersonated by Mr. Martin Sands and Mr. Carl Rovinelli; Mr. Frederick Lloyd well realises the character of Michael Natolski; and Miss Florence Creagh makes the most of the part of Catska Lavotski.

Curry's Tivoli.—Chairman of Directors, Mr. H. J. Curry; Managing-Director, Mr. J. H. Curry; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. W. North.—Mr. Charles Parker's concert combination, the Six Æolians, give a comprehensive entertainment of singing and dancing, which is at once smart and refined; the Edgertons perform a daring trapeze act upon apparatus which is fixed high above the heads of the audience; the Two Anartos combine amusing cross-talk with capital musical selections; the Meymotts display originality in their sketch Semi-detached; Chas. Richards' eccentric dancing is a popular feature; whilst the programme is further contributed to by Marie Blythe, a singer of favourite songs, and the Maros, comedy bar performers;.

The Palace Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. T. A. Edwardes; Resident-Manager, Mr. T. W. Moyes; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. V. Allton.—The Countess Romanow is delighting all visitors with her artistic statuary poses; much merriment is caused by T. W. Rawson and Lily Bertram in their sketch, Would-be Actors; and the MacDonald Trio also score a success with their horticultural and musical scena. Welda and Wynne prove smart jugglers; Maston faithfully mimics farmyard sounds; Fred Eric is a successful comedian; Mabel Le Roy sings good songs; and Jack Rae is a clever gymnast.

GUERNSEY.—St. Julian's Hall.—Lessee, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—Mr. John A. Thomson's pantomime Little Red Riding Hood opened here on the 8th inst. Everything is bright and sparkling, well mounted and dressed, and brimming over with merriment. Miss Beatrice Farley is a charming Prince, Miss Ella Willmer a captivating Red Riding Hood, Miss Fay Desmond is highly successful as Queen Flora; and Miss Kate Pennington (Rosa) and Miss Ivy Boulton (Boy Blue) are meritorious. Mr. Fred Latimer is responsible for the very necessary Dame Trot, and Mr. Geo. Newham is Baron Holmer. Some capital turns are introduced by Miss Fay Desmond, Mlle. Bastinelli, lady gymnast, and Pulo, the boy juggler. Crowded houses are the rule.

HALIFAX. — Theatre Royal, Ltd. — General-Manager, Mr. Otto C. Culling.—Mr. J. Bannister Howard's talented company is giving very realistic representations of the Four Just Men here this week. Mr. Bonhote Wilson makes a statesman-like Foreign Secretary; as the leader of the four Mr. Oswald Gray cannot be too highly commended for his consummate enactment of the rôle; his confreres are most strikingly depicted by Mr. Wernham, Ryatt as Knight and Mr. Cecil Warde as Selkirk; while Mr. Chas. McCann has the appearance of a boulevard prowler as Miguel Thery; Mr. John Hames, is distinctly humorous as Mr. Greenham, M.P.; the Spanish fugitive, Manuel Garcia, is enthusiastically portrayed by Mr. Charles Percival; while his lover, Juanita Ramon, is entrusted to Miss Florence Radcliffe, and Miss Kate Samson is most interesting to follow as the American widow.

Palace and Hippodrome, Ltd.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Ed. Harrison.—George Brookes, with his two contributions, "Would you mind passing the salt" and "Happy land," extorts enthusiasm here this week; Speedwell, lightning drawer; Dene and Dawson, in Stage Aspirants Lizzie Daniels, soubrette; Percy Hannan, baritone; the Great Northern Troupe of International Dancers; Curt Pitt and the Bensons, in a new act, are also here.

HANLEY.—Royal, Ltd.—Managing-

Mivens Mr. Lionel Victor is a distinct success; Mr. E. Statham Staples makes an excellent Sam Brudenell; as Dr. O'Byrne Mr. Forbes Dawson is well placed; Miss Violet Lloyd makes a charming Peggy; Miss Cissie Sepleton proves a successful Eliza; and Miss Rhoda Gordon is most pleasing as Winifred; Miss Beryl Vaudrey sings nicely as Helene; Miss Edith Blanche as Lady Brudenell does good work; as Lieutenant Brudenell Mr. George Desmond is excellent; Mr. Alec Fraser as Captain Fred Leverton is seen to advantage; and Miss Madge Avery as Miss Pychase is good.

GRAND.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. Elphinstone; Manager, Mr. Alfred Edwardes.—The Three Olympiers head the bill this week with their classical poses, which are beautiful and interesting; Miss Billie Barlow is a huge success, her items being capitally rendered; the Beau Ideals are a wonderfully trained troupe of children; Howard and Collinson have a funny sketch, The Porter and the Parcel; the Bros. Onda contribute a capital triple bar act; Hesketh Meade has a good voice; his illustrated song is much appreciated; Maudie Ford is a good dancer; Will Rain and company in The Motor Maniac cause much laughter. The Biograph shows interesting pictures.

HARROGATE. — GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. F. Smith.—At the beginning of this week we had a return visit from Alfred B. Cross and company in The Manxman. He still gives a spiritual reading of the title-rôle, and has good support from Miss Minnie Watersford as Kate Cregeen and Mr. Frank Etheridge as Cæsar Cregeen.

HARTLEPOOL.—EMPRESS.—Proprietors, Messrs. Councillor Everton and J. W. Cragg; Manager, Mr. Harry Burns; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Charlie Ferrier.—The Bounding Navvies, by Wild, Willie, and West, is a huge success here; David Pool is clever in his ventriloquial turn; charming music is provided by the Cecilians; the Three Dusky Princes, in comedy and dance, are successful; Mary Newall possesses a good voice; daughter is caused by the patter of Crosby and Walker; Sid Bandon is popular; and the pictures are interesting.

HASTINGS.—GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Rowland; Resident Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles E. Scutt.—Mr. Wentworth Croke's No. 1 company is here this week in The Christian. Miss Grace Chalmers plays Glory Quayle with convincing earnestness, and in the earlier scenes with a charming buoyancy; Mr. Frank Tennant is effective as the Hon. John Storm; there is a fine adaptability shown by Mr. Charles Hill in the character of Parson Quayle; Mr. Edward Ling plays well as the ascetic Father Lamplugh; and the sleek Archdeacon Wealthy has a good exponent in Mr. Charles E. Dering. The dissolute Lord Robert Ure is well presented by Mr. Frederick Scarth; and Mr. Wilfred Noy acquits himself well as Brother Paul.

PAVILION THEATRE.—Resident-Manager, Mr. Elvey Thomas.—A visit is being paid here this week by Mr. Leigh Lovel and company in Ibsen's The Master Builder. Mr. Lovel plays with much skill as Solness; and as his jealous wife Aline Miss Ethel Carlyon is equal to the difficulties of the rôle. Miss Octavia Kenmore plays very effectively the half-mystical and romantic rôle of Helda Wangel; Mr. A. Collins Rolfe is capable as Knut Brovik; Mr. Wilton Ross is a forcible Ragnar Brovik; and Kaia Fosli is gracefully impersonated by Miss Dora Levis. Mr. Bruce Lindley as Dr. Herdal completes the cast.

HEREFORD.—GARRICK THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. Harry Barnsley.—Mr. and Mrs. J. Tomlinson's company visited the Garrick Theatre this week with the successful Oriental play, Secrets. Miss Lizzie Palmer took the part of Ismalia, her acting being most realistic; Mr. Wilson Summers gave a successful and well-studied rendering of Captain Herbert Markham; the part of Kara Mesroua was well played by Mr. Lal Abdul Cottman; Mr. John Tomlinson's delineation of the fiendish Ibrahim was a clever piece of acting; Miss Katie Lever and Mr. Victor Raymond supplied the comic element as Winnie and Peter Wilkins; the character of Nouredin was in the capable hands of Mr. Wilton Richards.

HOYLAND.—METROPOLE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Geo. S. King; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geo. R. Baker.—On Monday Messrs. Griffin and Drake's pantomime company opened here in Beauty and the Beast. Miss Vesta Fay is an excellent Prince Charming, her singing being heartily applauded; Miss Emmie Hands as Beauty is very good; and Misses Gertie and Nellie Newman are attractive as Bon-Bon and Daisy Madcap. The humorous element is well supplied by Mr. Mark Lane as Twiddleums, ably assisted by Mr. Charles Rowen as the Baron. Mr. Walter Rollitt and Mr. Mark Merritt as the sisters are quite successful; and Will Atom and Owen Edwin as Flip and Flop are very amusing. Miss Florence Gibbs as Starlight and Mr. Sam Griesley as Spitfire are effective. The specialities include Mlle. Collard and her dogs, the Stanley Urchins, the Griffin troupe of dancers, the Sisters Geronde, and Miss Carrie Sylvester.

HUDDERSFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. W. J. Andrews.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime is here for the week. The particular version presented is entitled The Sleeping Beauty and the Mystic Yellow Dwarf. A strong cast is engaged, which includes that fine singer, Miss Agnes Molteno, as Silver Star; Miss Esme Gordon as the Prince; Miss Lily Vane as the Beauty; Mr. Lonnen Meadows as the Yellow Dwarf; a clever set of comedians are Messrs. Alf Bishop, Dave O'Toole, W. J. Churchill, and Ralph Howard; Ganty's illuminated fairy grotto and Miss Lottie Stone's dancers are worthy of note.

HIPPODROME.—Resident-Manager, Mr. N. M Robinson.—Pantomime also reigns here. Messrs. Cullen and Carthy are heading their company in The Babes in the Wood, in which the chief parts are played by Miss Florence Carlile, Robin Hood; Miss Nancy Thornton, Marian; Miss Daisy Volbecque, Little John; Miss Rose Volbecque, Phyllis; Little Cluley, Bantam; Mr. Geo. Casey, Dame Peggy; and Mr. Arthur Stratton, Baron Toodle.

HULL.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. W. Morton; Resident-Director, Mr. W. F. Morton.—Mr. Wm. Maclaren and company are here in Claudian. In the title-rôle Mr. Maclaren is eminently successful; Miss Lily Bandmann-Palmer makes a capable Almida; the Agazil of Mr. Douglas Earle is a capital conception; Edessa is prettily presented by Miss Maud Garth.

GRAND THEATRE AND OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr John Hart; Resident-Manager, Mr. Wynn Miller.—Mr. George Edwardes's See See company is paying a first visit to Hull. In the cast are such well-known names as Miss Amy Augarde, Mr. W. H. Rawlins, Mr. Frank Danby, Miss Topsy Sinden, Miss Lily Elsie, and Mr. Leonard Mackay, the last-named, owing to a bad attack of laryngitis, being obliged temporarily to give up his part of Yen, which was played by Mr. Francis Rayne.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Graham; Manager, Mr. Tom Lunn.—Motoring pays a return visit; U. L. Granville, Marie Bruce, Alex Arthur, Herbert La Martine, Maudie MacDonald, and Kier and Kempton are also here.

HYDE.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Acting-Manager, Mr. A. R. Feather.—Large houses are being entertained here this week by Messrs. H. B. Levy and J. E. Cardwell's juvenile company in the pantomime, Sleeping Beauty. Miss Kitty Trewhitt makes an excellent Prince Florizel; Miss Dolly Dodds is a sweet and lovable Beauty, singing with artistic effect; Miss May Gibson, a charming Queen Claribel, renders several numbers in delightful style; Miss Daisy Fielder is a dashing Sir Alfonso; and Miss Isa Gibson a bewitching Trixey. Plenty of boisterous fun is supplied by the Brothers Armstrong; Doyle and Gibson assist materially as Colonel Dreadnought and Major Flashlight; Master Jack Harrison is full of energy as King Fearnought; and Pat Sloan and Tayloe Snowball humorously impersonate the Gollywogs; Wee George Wood also displays exceptional ability as a comedian and mimic; the Margueritta Quartette go through some graceful dances, and the ballets are a special feature.

OHMY'S CIRCUS.—The chief attraction this week at this popular place of amusement is Charles Matthews, who is nightly applauded for his clever jumping feats; M. Loucotti is an expert performer on the wire; Zanglo is vociferously applauded for his agility on a swinging pole; M. Du Calion performs some astounding feats on ladders; Professor McCann's troupe of performing and jumping dogs exhibit marvellous intelligence; Miss Lily Ohmy is a graceful equestrienne; and Claude Ohmy is as popular as ever in his horsemanship; August and September are excruciatingly funny in several sketches; Ohmy's Living Pictures are as popular as ever.

ILKESTON.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. L. F. A. Rogers.—The Coal King is being presented here this week by the company of Messrs. G. M. Polini and L. Maitland. As this is a mining district, the play is proving quite an attraction. Mr. Cole Aspinall in the title-rôle meets with a warm reception; Miss Gertrude Valentine's rendering of Grace Shirley is a good one; Mr. Lauderdale Maitland as Tom Roberts gives a manly impersonation; Mr. John Coghlan is well suited to the part of Seth Baker; the humorous side of the piece is well worked out by Mr. Alfred Terriss as Jim Williams and Miss Enid Ross as Araminta Green; Miss Sinna St. Clair is successful as Mad Ann; Walter Harford is well represented by Mr. Escott Robson; and Mr. Frank Dalton as Dick Shirley deserves mention.

IPSWICH.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Acting-Manager, Mr. Leonard Grey.—Mr. Milton Bode's Chinese Honeymoon company has occupied the boards during the week. Chief honours are accorded to Miss Gwennie Harcourt, whose impersonation of Fifi is humorous and vivacious; Prince Soo-Soo also finds a capable representative in Miss Nancy Rossiter, whose singing and acting are equally good; Miss Maud Adams, as the Mother-in-law was well suited; and the same may be said of Miss Crawford as Mrs. Pineapple; the part of Mr. Pineapple was capitally played by Mr. George Rydon, and Mr. Rudolph Kloss was an imposing Hang-Chow; Mr. Leonard May as Hi-Lung and Mr. F. A. Turner both contributed to the success of the piece.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. E. H. Bostock.—At this popular place of entertainment Leo Dryden's songs are greeted with unstinted applause. Another attractive turn is that of Roma and Romani, whose flute and piccolo solos are well executed; other items of a varied bill of fare include Craig, Rose, and Craig, whose daring gymnastic feats are both neat and clever; Miles, comedy juggler; Will Bacchus, coster comedian; Miss Addie Dorina; Harry Carlton, in sketch, Dr. Spot's Patients.

JARROW.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Hugh Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr Jerold E. Reed.—Mr. James Kiddie's pantomime company is here this week with Cinderella. Miss Edith Harmer is excellent in the title-rôle, while Mlle. De Rose is charming as Prince Perfect; Mr. Tom Payne causes much amusement in the part of Pimples; while Mr. Dick Thomas is quite at home in the rôle of Baron Shiptatte; Mr. Sidney Benson and Mr. W. G. Wesley cause much amusement as Ethel and Maud, the Baron's two daughters; while Miss Zena Pana does full justice to the part of Dandini; and the part of Viscount Nappe is entrusted to Miss Pollie Kiddie; Mr. J. H. Hawtry is good as the Spirit of Mischief, and Miss Rose Pareezer simply revels in the part of Sunbeam. Agreeable specialities are introduced by Messrs. Houpla and Hecla, and a powerful chorus of singers and dancers add largely to the success of the pantomime.

JERSEY. — OPERA HOUSE. — Lessee, Mr. C. Robert Perkins.—Mr. John A. Thomson's excellent Little Red Riding Hood company is amusing audiences here this week. Mr. Fred Latimar is a particularly funny dame, and Mr. George Newham's Baron Sherlock Holmes is the cause of much mirth; Mr. Fred Anderson as Tommy Green, Mr. Fred Boulton as Paddy, and Mr. Lovell Rowland as Simple Simon add their quota to the humour of the entertainment; Miss Fay Desmond sings sweetly as good Queen Flora; Miss Ella Willmer is a fascinating Red Riding Hood; and Miss Beatrice Varley is a charming principal boy; a clever skipping-rope dance is introduced by Miss Ivy Boulton; Mlle. Bartenelli is an agile contortionist; and Pulo is a nimble boy juggler; whilst the novel acrobatic dancing of the Boultons brings down the house. The chorus is bright and attractive.

KEIGHLEY. — QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; Acting-Manager, Mr. Will Carson.—Messrs. Carson and Kendall's répertoire company holds the boards here this week. On Monday A Modern Adventuress was staged. Mr. Charles Draycott gave an artistic assumption of Pietro Donelli; and Miss Muriel Thompson scored as Violet Meredith. By special desire Mr. Carson presented The Shaughraun on Tuesday night, and a large audience assembled. Mr. Morley Carroll's Conn was a capital performance; and Mr. Ernest Fare cleverly sustained Corry Kinchela. Captain Molineux was ably played by Mr. Sydney Cranston; and Mr. J. D. Clyde was well suited to the part of Robert Folliot. Mr. Charles Draycott was a humorous Harvey Duff; Mr. Harry Leatchard's Father Doolan calls for high praise; he played the part with much finish and power. Miss Muriel Thompson as Clare was admirable, and was well seconded by Miss Marie Robson (Arte O'Neale), Miss Louise Millward, and Miss N. V. Warden are excellent in their respective parts. East Lynne is billed for Friday evening.

KILMARNOCK.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. S. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Major Ward.—Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer and company are appearing during the week in a répertoire of popular plays. Mary Queen of Scots was presented on Monday, with Mrs. Bandmann-Palmer as the unfortunate Queen—a brilliant success. Mr. Sydney Bland as Sir Edward Mortimor displayed artistic skill; and Mr. F. Skein depicted the unstable Earl of Leicester with marked ability. Miss Katherine Herbert looked and acted Elizabeth to perfection; and Miss More Dumphie as Hannah Kennedy and Mr. Leonard Cheetham as Lord Burleigh added much to the success. Sapho, East Lynne, From Washerwoman to Duchess, Jane Shore, and Hamlet were also billed.

KIRKCALDY.—KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Burton.—Leah Kleschna, presented by Messrs. Armitage and Leigh, has proved a strong attraction here this week. In the heavy rôle of Kleschna, Mr. Paul Belmore is powerful and life-like in every respect; for the part of Schram, no one could be better suited than Mr. Campbell Goldsmid; Mr. Wm. F. Grant is conspicuous with fine acting and elocution in the rôle of Paul Sylvanie; the Raoul Berton of Mr. Hamilton Deane reaches a high order of merit; worthy of special notice is the Leah of Miss Bessie Rignold, who is gifted with considerable histrionic power, and much of the success is due to her untiring efforts; Mr. Roland Daniel is good as the General, and in the first scene makes a capital Valentine; Mr. Frederick Bannerman, and Misses Ethel Russell, Helene Belgrave, and Violet Thorold are all responsible for excellent work.

LANCASTER.—ATHENÆUM.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Stanley Rogers; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alfred Hook.—This week Mr. Clifton Alderson's company is occupying the boards with the drama, Held Apart. Mr. Leonard Lawrence is good as John Douglas; Mr. H. K. Ayliff is seen to special advantage as James Douglas; and Mr. E. G. Batley gives an amusing portrayal of Hugh Trevor. As Captain Ford, Mr. A. W. Norman is successful; and Mr. Robert B. Drysdale is to be warmly congratulated for his clever rendering of the part of the Scottie. Miss Ruby Loncraine plays with much grace and feeling as the heroine, Sybil Grey; and as Quila Garcia, Miss Ethyle Murray makes a handsome adventuress.

LEAMINGTON. — THEATRE ROYAL. — Lessees, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Manager, Mr. Harry Hunter.—Pantomime is once more in possession of the local playhouse, and this week Mr. and Mrs. John Walters's company is appearing in an excellent production of Babes in the Wood. The piece is well staged, and the dresses are most elaborate. Miss Kitty Chester and Baby Blyth make very attractive Babes; and Miss Bertha Cousins, a sprightly Robin Hood, sings in taking style. Maid Marion is ably sustained by Miss Fanny Adamson; Miss Jessie Yonde is a charming Dolly Dimple; and the comic element is safely entrusted to Mr. Ally Benson as Dame Flossie, Mr. Ernest Thirlway as the Baron, and Messrs. Traynor and O'Connor.

LEEDS.—GRAND THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager, Mr. Edward Cadman.—The Sleeping Beauty goes on its journey merrily here, and capital business is still to record. The splendour of the scenery, the dressing and staging, are the theme of much admiration nightly, and the efforts of the company to make the production an unprecedented success, are as strenuous as ever.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; General-Manager, Mr. R. Ernest Liston.—A second edition of The Forty Thieves attracted a big crowd here on Monday. New songs and drolleries have been introduced by the principal comedians, which prove very mirth-provoking, and make for increased popularity.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Moss' Empires, Ltd.; District-Manager, Mr. T. Gerald Morton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Alex. Galley.—The Football Match, by Fred Karno's company, is uproariously funny. Additional interest is aroused by the appearance of some real stars from the football firmament. That versatile and popular artist, Albert Whelan, is having the usual heavy success; Sam Elton is doing his very amusing acrobatic speciality; and Horace Jones, the new Welsh comedian, makes a favourable impression. A humorous acrobatic act by the Tupps is enjoyable; Albert Christian is an excellent vocalist with a good selection of songs; Kate Cohen also shines as a vocalist; whilst Marie Empress and Kathleen Cogan are each successful as song and dance artists.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Lessees, Messrs. Dottridge and Longden; General-Manager, Mr. C. H. Longden; Acting-Manager, Mr. Chas. Bush.—The Moody-Manners company opened their week of grand opera on Monday with the novelty of the répertoire, Nicolai's Merry Wives of Windsor, and a bright and sparkling presentation was witnessed by a large and enthusiastic house. Mr. Charles Manners depicted the portly and humorous Falstaff with rare fidelity, a vocal and histrionic triumph being achieved; Mr. Lewys James used his fine voice to advantage in the rôle of Ford; and a really clever portrayal of Mr. Page was done by Mr. Charles Magrath. Mlle. Zelie de Lussan and Miss Kate Anderson were very successful as the merry wives, both singing and acting being of a high order; Mr. John Child, Mr. Bailey, Mr. Moppett, and Miss Garland also did exceedingly well in big parts. Under the bâton of Mr. Richard Eckhold, a well-balanced chorus and orchestra acquitted themselves admirably. The week's répertoire includes Faust, Carmen, Romeo and Juliet, Maritana, a matinée of Lily of Killarney, and, for the first time in this city, the Parisian version of Tannhäuser, with Mesdames Fanny Moody and Toni Selter and Messrs. Joseph O'Mara and William Dever in the cast.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Barrasford; General-Managers, Mr. Chas. Weldon and Mr. Claude Shayler.—A most excellent programme is in evidence here. Frederic Voelker, the renowned violin virtuoso, leading with a refined entertainment; Ernest Montefiore and company are presenting their well-known speciality, The Little Colonel, with good success; a farcical sketch, by J. H. Darnley and company, arouses considerable merriment; Reynolds' Minstrels are a quintette of really clever artists in song and dance; Bertisch does some remarkable feats of strength and endurance; and the Jansons are seen in a novel gymnastic act. Sibb and Sibb are trapeze artists of rare ability; Harry Tomps scores as concertinist and comedian; Frank Boyce and Dick Kendall are popular comedians; and the Two Rubies, vocalists and dancers, are to the fore with good work.

LEICESTER.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; General and Business Manager, Mr. Henry Dundas.—The boards are held this week by Mr. J. B. Mulholland's company, in the farcical play, The Electric Man, which proves thoroughly amusing. Mr. Stanley Cooke fills the principal part of Walter Everest in a manner calling for the greatest praise; and as Jack Strange, Mr. Archie Selwyn is very good. Mr. Lloyd Townrow as Mr. Jobbins is capital; and Mr. E. Vivian Willis does well as General Pomeroy. Miss Gladys Jesson is a success as Stella Pomeroy; and Miss Sybil Brooke as Mrs. Everest, Miss Lucy Edwin as Mrs. Anderson, and Miss Amy Francis as Mary, are also deserving of special praise for delineations of much merit. The comedietta, A Matrimonial Advertisement, precedes.

THEATRE ROYAL. — Sole Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Milton Bode and Edward Compton; Business-Manager, Mr. E. R. Beaumont.—A return visit is being paid here this week by Mr. Charles March's company, in the sensational play, The Gamester of Metz. Mr. Charles March is a conspicuous success as Paul Baldot, and in the third act is seen in a number of remarkably clever quick changes. Excellent support is forthcoming from Miss Eva Lyndhurst as the Countess Baldot, Miss Una Lane as Lucia Baldot, Mr. Wilfred Prothero as Captain Badaire, Mr. W. G. Dudeney as Louis Badaire, and Mr. Fred Aldworth as General de Monparesse.

PALACE THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; District-Manager, Mr. Hatton Wharton; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. Finch-Hatton; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Bertram G. Iles.—Ernest Shand, who stars here this week, gives a most enjoyable turn, which keeps his audience in the merriest of moods; the Vetter Brothers, in an equilibrist speciality, entitled The Page's Recreation, achieve some remarkably clever feats in a manner that arouses much enthusiasm; C. St. John Denton and George Rowland's company of juveniles, including Little Marjorie Lawrence, in The Punch and Judy Girl, are seen and heard to considerable advantage; the Two Bostons, as the novelty showmen, create the heartiest laughter, and score their usual success; the Bandurria Troupe of mandolinists are always appreciated here, their delightful playing and well-selected music affording the utmost pleasure; Michael Nolan, one of the most popular of Irish vocalists, returns with new songs; and Agnes Hazel, comedienne, is as smart as ever. Dot Hardy is a clever character comedienne; the Bioscope is a feature, with "The Little Blind Girl," &c. Kate Traill, being indisposed and unable to appear, Miss Helen Neville, with illustrated songs, proves an excellent substitute.

PAVILION THEATRE. — Proprietor and Director-General, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter Lapworth.—Fredk. Maxwell and company are again retained, and are scoring a well-deserved success with the episode, The Heathen and the Christian. Harry Wright, vocal and extempore comedian; Nellie Gannon, descriptive vocalist; and Peggy Fame, quaint comedy artist and dancer, are again meeting with a gratifying reception. Bandoni, the one-man orchestra, scores with an entertaining turn; Walter H. Pallister's Bioscope is maintaining its popularity; Frances Ferina and John Hitchins are presenting with success the pathetic duologue, Pity the Blind.

LEIGH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietor, Mr. J. W. Cragg; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Rousby.—Mr. Fred Karno's Saturday to Monday company opened here on Monday night to a full house. Mr. Roland Martin submits a mirth-provoking portrayal of John Willie Jaggs; Mr. J. W. Bradbury creates much amusement as Mr. Blake; Miss Amy Rogerson is captivating as Clorinda, the bride; Mr. J. Melville is very successful as Mr. Potts; as is also Mr. C. Herbert Summers as Tom Freeman; Miss Daisy Stone presents a good character-sketch as Aunt Skinner. The remaining parts are all in capable hands.

LEITH.—NEW GAIETY THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. R. C. Buchanan; Resident-Manager, Mr. John Darlison. — The pantomime season is now closing with a revival for one week only of Jack the Giant Killer, which had a most successful run last year. The company is a good one, and the piece has lost none of its mirth and attractiveness. Mr. Gilbert Payne, in his old part of Simple Simon, increases the popularity he previously attained; Miss Pattie Fairley is as happy as ever in her impersonation of Queen Caressa; and King Fad finds a humorous representative in Mr. Harry Farrow. Mr. W. S. Stevenson appears once more with great effect as the Giant Blunderbore; and the comic element is further well developed by Mr. Johnny McElroy as Dame Gabble, Mr. George Helm as Donal', Messrs. Harris and Worth as Spareribs and Brisket, and Mr. George Dix, a truly wonderful cow. The leading ladies include Miss Eily Helene and Miss Emmie Cozens, both excellent in their respective rôles of Jack and Margery Daw; with Miss Evelyn Robson a lively Mephisto, and Miss Winifred Murray a dainty Daisy. Clever speciality turns are given by the Girton Girls, the Two Sparks, and little Jenny Taylor; and Terpsichore's Dream is a very weird and extraordinary spectacle.

LIVERPOOL. — ROTUNDA THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery.—During the week Mr. Tom Taylor's company has been here with The Female Swindler. In the titular rôle Miss Grace E. Leslie acted with discretion; Mr. Joseph Millane afforded every satisfaction as John Coulson; Mr. Stanley Radcliffe brought out all the bad points of Geoffrey Warden with effect; Mr. Henry Wright and Miss Mary Dawson acquitted themselves admirably in the comedy parts; Mr. John Belton handled the rôle of Abraham Mikestein with every satisfaction; and other artists who lent strong support were Mr. D. Winstow and Miss Edith Gray.

LYRIC THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry C. Arnold; Directors of Entertainments, Messrs. T. Barrasford and F. Willmot; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred Coles.—A programme of excellent merit is this week billed with Clarence Corri's company in a musical comedietta entitled Office Hours. The piece is well played, and receives deserved applause. Belle Davis and her Pick Chicks create a favourable impression with their well-rendered songs; Tiny Arnold is a pleasing little comedienne; Mlle. Pollo's gymnastic performance is loudly applauded; Matweef-Hogeston troupe of Russian dancers and singers are favourably received; and other artists worthy of mention are Joe Dale, De Vere and Kenwick, and The Carlyles.

STAR THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Harris Fineberg.—Life's Sweetest Sins, presented by Mr. T. Arthur Jones's company, has been the attraction here this week. Mr. Jones made an admirable Captain Marston; Miss Marie Daventry displayed ability as Doreen Rivers; Mr. Oswald Douglas stood out prominently in the rôle of Dr. Colbrooke; and the comedy work was in the good hands of Mr. Edgar Morgan as Bob Tanner and Miss Elsie Walton as Bess Grayson.

QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Carson and Kendall; Resident-Manager, Mr. Fred L. Arthur.—A Woman Worth Winning, which is new to Liverpool, has proved eminently acceptable. Mr. Percy Norman brings a very competent all-round company, while the staging is of a high order. The play, which deals with life in Russia, comes from the pen of Mr. A. B. Mackay, who in the rôle of Fergus Lovinskie, acquits himself with credit; Mr. Percy Norman is an imposing General Borinski, and acts with much dramatic strength; Mr. E. Hall Eldon proves exceedingly humorous as the foppish newspaper correspondent; Mr. E. C. Edwards makes a lively Peter Popples, and is ably assisted with the comedy by Miss Ida Mackay as Kâterina; Mr. Gilbert Standing submits a manly Amos Pauloff; Miss Maud Buchanan is sympathetic as Roma, and a capital picture of Lela is given by Miss Iris Daventry.

ROYAL HIPPODROME.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford; Manager, Mr. Walter Hassan.—Tiller's pantomime, Dick Whittington, remains here another week, and is much enjoyed. That quaint comedian, Sam Mayo, is making everybody laugh; the Los Rupertos are particularly clever equilibrists; as a coster comedian Phil Bransby is a treat; Hinton and Wooton present a most interesting football match on bicycles, and Charles Ulrick, the barrel king and trancka wonder, also appears.

ROYAL PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Manager, Mr. M. Montgomery; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank O'Toole.—The Price of Sin is being played by the Royal Stock Dramatic company. Mr. Percy Boucher proves exceedingly humorous as the Rev. James Small; Mr. Sydney Grant makes a villainous Frank Foster; as Lieut. Cecil Roy, Mr. Harry Tresham acts most creditably; Miss Florence Palmer infuses much feeling into the rôle of Nancy Crawford; and other well-held parts are Major Crawford (Mr. Cecil Ravenswood); Kate Crelyn (Miss Ravenswood), and Jake Foster (Mr. Robert Wilton). The Royal Bioscope supplies the latest pictures.

PADDINGTON PALACE.—Lessee, Mr. M. Montgomery.—The Soldiers of the Queen from the pen of Max Goldberg, is being played here by the Royal Stock company. Included in the cast are Mr. Wallace Campbell (Jack Willoughby), Mr. Frank S. Strickland, Mr. H. Hesslegrave (Hans Müller), Mr. H. G. Brandon (Tom Pinch), Mr. Francis E. Wybert, Mr. Charles Herberte, and the Misses Lina Nazeby, Gladys Hastings-Walton, Florence Barnes, and Evelyn Kington.

PARK PALACE, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. Walter de Frece; Director of Entertainments, Mr. Fred Wilmot.—The popular south-end place has this week abandoned variety and gone in for two shows a night of drama. The theatre has been thoroughly renovated, some excellent scenery erected on the stage, and everything done to invite public patronage. On Monday evening the holding capacity was strained to its utmost, a contrast to former times; while the class of audience showed a decided improvement. The stock company has been chosen with care, and contains artists or sound ability. Mr. Albert Sember, a young actor possessing high qualifications, is the stage-manager and producer, and credit is due to him for having within a very short period put on The Master Criminal in perfect fashion. As Ben Beaudy, he carried the house with him; Mr. Henry L. Osmond, an accomplished artist, made a capital Telforde; Mr. Walter Foster did the most with the part of Mr. Manners; Miss Winifred Chalmers as Cecile played with power; Miss Violet Barley Clarke proved a humorous Peggy Perks; and the rest of the cast included Messrs. Albert Guyon (Philip Manners), Duncan Bell, Will Percy, George Liddle, and the Misses Lillian Burns, Violet Macfarlane, and Jessie Paterson.

WESTMINSTER.—Lessee, Mr. Fred E. Weisker; Acting-Manager, Mr. G. Montgomery.—The greater part of the entertainment here this week consists of the Bioscope picture of the Nelson v. Gans fight. In the variety section are Jack Hylton, character comedian; Kid Gwynn, ball-puncher; and Little Pete, eccentric vocal comedian.

EMPIRE.—Proprietors, Moss' Empires, Ltd.—Biggest item this week is Dean Tribune's pantometta, Bo-Peep, in which appear that artist and Ethel Lonsdale, Estella Tribune, Medley Barrett, David Denard, and Harry Tribune. The Dandies, presented by Henry J. Corner, go through a popular show of song and dance; the Solari Duo sing some choice operatic selections; Irve Hayman and little Marie Montague have a neat sketch, entitled Christmas Eve; Cliff Ryland proves as funny as ever; some remarkable head and hand balancing is performed by the Fergana Trio; and other excellent turns are those by Winnie Derson, comedienne; Harry Anderson, comedian; and Ethel Donna, comedienne and dancer.

LONDONDERRY.—OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Proprietor, Mr. W. Payne-Seddon. — Mr. Montague Beaudyn's company is here this week with A Beautiful Fiend and All that Glitters is Not Gold. In the first-mentioned play, Miss Sidney Crowe fills the title-rôle with great power; and as Nadine Karateff, Miss Irene Munro is very good. Mr. Harry Oates as Crackles supplies the lighter element in the play in lively fashion; Mr. Beaudyn and Mr. J. P. McBride as Russian officers are excellent.

LOUGHBOROUGH.—NEW HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. W. Payne-Seddon and George Robertson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Lindsey Edwards.—An excellent all-round bill is provided here this week, the place of honour being held by the Wulfrunas, in their side-splitting acrobatic scena, Fun in a Café; Blanch and Diacoff, in their sensational cycling feats, are worthy of special praise; Alf. Berg performs some wonderful feats of strength; and others entertaining are Tripello, in a musical turn; Wisper, in a juggling act; Mr. J. T. Daniels, clog dancer; Miss Molly Maverne, vocalist and dancer; and Miss Beattie Bloom, comedienne.

LOWESTOFT. — MARINA.—Managing-Director, Mr. E. A. Smith.—Mrs. Morton Powell's company is here in When It Was Dark. The acting all round reaches a high standard of excellence. Mr. Geo. H. Pitt is powerfully cast as Constantine Schuabe; another praiseworthy effort is that of Mr. Cyril Austin Lee, who scores a decided success as the Rev. Basil Gortre; Mr. Francis Cairns is well placed as Lucifer; Miss Elizabeth Watson as Gertrude Hunt submits a highly-finished performance; and Mrs. Morton Powell leaves nothing to be desired in her presentment of Helena Byars.

LUTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietor, Mr. R. Graham Falcon; Manager, Mr. Louis J. Beard.—Mr. John Gerant is paying a return visit with his company in At Duty's Call. Mr. Gerant as Harold Alison, an Anglo-Egyptian, is well suited, and he is ably supported by a good all-round company.

MACCLESFIELD.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. W. K. Gattey.—An immense audience accorded a hearty reception on Monday to Mr. Chalmers Mackey and company in The Wearin' of the Green. Mr. Mackey as Barney was responsible for much merriment; Mr. A. Mervyn as Shamus interpreted the part capably; Mrs. Mackey was a delightful Norah; and Miss Nina Flensberg a capital Biddy.

MAESTEG. — TOWN HALL. — Lessees, Messrs. Poole Bros.; Manager, Mr. J. H. Stephens.—Mr. F. R. Benson's Shakespearean company (South) opened a three nights' engagement here on Monday in The Taming of the Shrew. Mr. Bernard Limpus gave a powerful and convincing portrayal of the part of Petruchio, and was well supported by Miss Christie Laws as the Shrew. Miss Kathryn Stocks was a charming Bianca; Mr. Charles Maunsell was a much-admired Lucentio; and Mr. Frank Darch an amusing Gremio. Mr. John Cairns ably filled the rôle of Baptista. Romeo and Juliet was performed on Tuesday; The Merchant of Venice (matinée) and Macbeth on Wednesday.

MAIDSTONE.—HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. S. Baskerville. — A good programme is being submitted here this week. The Marvellous Craggs having pride of place, their clever acrobatic work, combined with a lot of funny business, in the sketch, Billy, is received with much applause nightly; the Five Musical Palmers are clever instrumentalists; the Celtic Trio sing harmoniously, and introduce some good comedy into their act; Allis and Cassiti, duettists and dancers, are popular; Prof. Fuller's illusion, Astarte, is one of the best seen here for some time; Jack Lane is an excellent entertainer; and Miss Effie Stuart dances herself into favour.

MANCHESTER. — GAIETY THEATRE. — Acting-Manager, Mr. H. M. Thorburn.—Mr. John Hart's pantomime of Mother Goose, played excellently and to good houses last week, still occupies the boards at this theatre, and is meeting with hearty appreciation nightly.

ROYAL OSBORNE THEATRE.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Mr. T. Morton Powell's company is the attraction here this week in the successful drama, Honour Thy Father. The play is well presented, and includes some striking and realistic scenes, notably the houseboat scene, the asylum, with the mechanical chair in which the villain eventually loses his sight, and the tableau preceding the final curtain. Mr. Walter M. Cameron as Gabriel Garth is a great success, and Miss Kate Newton as Gertrude, his wife, is also strong and sympathetic; while satisfactory support is rendered by Miss Muriel Dean, Mr. Bertram H. Ross, Mr. W. H. Melrose, Miss Ada Salmon, and Miss Mabel Coleman in interesting parts.

Metropole Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The top turn here this week is the sensational racing act, Animal v. Cyclist, by Kramer and Braun, a very exciting show; the second place of honour is occupied by a clever company who present a Japanese love story called A Night in Japan, the principal parts in which are filled by Tina Franks and Messrs. Stephen Harland, W. S. Power, and Fred Cooper. Excellent business is provided also by Johnson and D'Evere, American trick cyclists; George Rae, Scotch comedian and dancer; George Foyle, comedian; the Casino Girls, brass instrumentalists; Yorkshire Tom, a clever mimic; and Nellie Navette, comedienne and dancer. Levarni did not appear. The animated pictures are good.

Grand Junction Theatre.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The remarkably sensational drama, Driven From Home, is the attraction here this week. It is compounded of many parts, four acts, and twenty tableaux; the story is interesting and pathetic, the rendering is excellent, and the scenery pretty and realistic. The scene in the sawmills is especially exciting. The company includes Mr. Felix Pitt as Anthony Raybrook—a fine study; Miss Beatrice Western as Laura Raybrook and Walter Hatherley—an excellent dual performance; Mr. Leonard Aardale as the outcast, Willie—a highly appreciated impersonation; a powerful rendering of Geoffrey Waring by Mr. Frederick Sandy; and, among other commendable contributory efforts of the cast, Mr. Harry Cornwall in an excellent depiction of Jabez Thomas and Mr. F. C. Imbert as the lively John Anderson, Raybrook's stable-boy.

Queen's Theatre.—Manager, Mr. R. Flanagan; Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Berry.—This week Mr. Harcourt Williams has entered upon the impersonation of the title-part in Mr. Flanagan's opulent revival of Othello, in place of Mr. Matheson Lang. His reception on Monday was enthusiastic. The production shows every sign of an exceptionally long and prosperous run.

Empire.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. Hall.—Much laughter accompanies the performance here this week of The Dandy Thieves, by Fred Karno's company of comedians. Esta Stella, who figures next in prominence on the bill, is highly successful in her chic style and extraordinarily smart dancing; and a very natural and appealing little playlet, Crystal Gazing, is presented by William H. Day and Laura Dyson. George Young, a blind musician, is well received; Stewart and Morgan are capital in their vocal speciality; much good fun is provided in a sketch by Fred Cullane's Four; the Kurios are excellent in their concoction of comical surprises; the Mascotte Trio of lady gymnasts are graceful and expert; and Mlle. Sylvia's vocal tableaux present the novelty of living figures in a series of illustrated song-pictures. The Bioscope shows an amusing series, as usual, and the whole forms an excellent programme.

Palace.—General-Manager, Mr. Walter de Frece; Secretary, Mr. Peter Watson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Nelson Barry.—The famous Battling Nelson tops the bill here this week, and spars three rounds at each performance. In addition the Bioscope shows the great Nelson-Gans fight, which recently took place in America. A prominent item in this week's programme is Spessardy's Bears, exceptionally well-trained animals; and Bert Coote's Irish-Indian Maids are excellent dancers and singers. Ormonde Penstone and Tsaon-ngo are neat illusionists; Horace Wheatley is capital in song, dance, and story; the Athos troupe of ball manipulators and acrobats are wonderfully clever; the Musical Schafers present their instrumental novelty; and Fred Villars, vocal comedian, contributes a song. Up-to-date pictures are also shown.

Hippodrome.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. E. P. Morgan.—That sensational spectacle, The Earthquake, remains the big attraction here. Prominent also is Hilda Jacobsen, a favourite musical comedy artist, in an original operetta, entitled 10 p.m.; the Ten-Ji troupe of Japanese magicians make their first appearance in Europe, and go through an astounding performance; the Three Merrils are marvellous trick cyclists; and De Witt, Burns, and Torrance are decidedly entertaining in a mirthful creation, The Awakening of Joys. Madge Robertson, of the Choir, sings "When the heart is young" (illustrated song) with great success; Frank Darwin is a good actor-vocalist; Gertrude Bradshaw sings in a pleasing manner; the Choir render "The Chase" effectively; and the opening of the new Irish route, Fishguard to Rosslare, is depicted on the American Bioscope.

Tivoli.—Managing-Director, Mr. Charles A. Wilkes; Manager, Mr. Arthur B. Wilkes.—Robert Perris and company are here this week in a screamingly funny sketch, entitled A Trip to Chinatown, and are deservedly well received. La Rochelle, the artist's model, poses prettily; R. P. Roberts, vocalist, sings two catchy songs to pictures, and is well received; and the Onetti Sisters are neat, daring, and graceful gymnasts. Other good turns are contributed by the Maitland Trio, in an absurdity entitled The Picture; Beatrice Lindley, in songs at the piano; Massona, juggler; and Frank Weir, comedian. Raymond's Vivagraph pictures, as usual, are excellent. The Donna Trio, who figure on the programme, did not appear on the occasion of our visit.

King's, Longsight.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Messrs. Holland and Wood's pantomime, Aladdin, is here this week, and doing good business. Miss Frances Haskoll, refined in style, makes an excellent Aladdin, and sings nicely; and Miss Florence Wood as the Princess, also a good singer, is pleasing. Considerable amusement is caused by the efforts of Nash and Noel as the Imperial Police; Percy Curry as Abanazar; George Reeves, a capital Widow Twankey; and Walter Watson as Wishee-Washee; whilst the Misses Dolly, Bibby, and Portia Tree, and Kendrick and Laura are prominent from time to time in spirited dances and agreeable singing. Others who appear with success are the Misses Phyllis Wardroper, Poppie Holland, Louis Bishop, and May Harvey. The chorus is satisfactory, and the scenery and general effects all that can be desired.

Queen's Park Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—Bert Bernard's company in a pantomime sketch, entitled The Brewery, is the chief attraction here this week, and good houses accord it a hearty reception. J. W. Rickaby is a capital comedian, and his efforts are greeted with rounds of applause; the Saxonias are very successful in their grand musical mélange; and the Danvils (George and May) render songs, effectively illustrated with living tableaux, in excellent style; the Two Almos are smart equilibrists and tumblers; Pueblo and Cropp are capital Creole singers and sand-dancers; Standring, the singing mill lad, has a sweet voice; and good turns are also those of Charles Lestree, a clever juggler, and George Russell, comedian. The Bioscope pictures are most enjoyable.

Hippodrome, Hulme.—Manager, Mr. W. B. Broadhead; Acting-Manager, Mr. P. B. Broadhead.—The Tan-Kwais, Asiatic marvels, are prominent here this week, and give an exceptionally clever performance in juggling, spinning, and acrobatics. Fred S. Peake and company are seen to great advantage in a dramatic sketch, entitled Adrian, the Gambler; and Diana Hope and Monte Bayly are particularly amusing in their comedy duologue, The Wish-Bone. The Bon-Bons are good singers; the Simpsons contribute a delightful musical act; Harry Briggs, the triple-voiced vocalist, is well received; Douglas and Gordon are smart in a novel comedy act; and Lottie de Abbey is a good character impersonator. "The Dog Smugglers," depicted on the Bioscope, is very interesting.

Mansfield.—Grand Theatre.—Proprietors, Mansfield, Sutton, and District Theatres, Ltd.; General-Manager, Captain Cecil Clayton.—Messrs. Garside and Knowles's company occupy the boards here this week with The London Fireman. Admirable work is done by Mr. J. Forbes Knowles and Mr. Edward L. Garside. Miss Nellie Shirley gives a capable rendering of Ida Curtis; Miss Beatrice Sinclair is excellent as Grace; and Mr. Philip Renouf as Bill Stinger is appreciated. Miss Nellie Garside plays effectively as Polly Bramble.

Margate.—Theatre Royal.—Exclusive Manager, Mr. Edward Michael; Business-Manager, Mr. A. Austin-Leigh.—Hardie and Von Leer's company has been the attraction here this week in The Two Little Vagabonds, which has drawn very good audiences. Mr. Arthur E. Melbourne does well as George Thornton; Mr. Sidney Vautier is a success as Capt. Darville; Mr. Lionel Ellis is exceptionally good as Bill Mullins, and is ably seconded by Miss Evelyn Shaw as Biddy. The boys, Dick and Wally, are cleverly portrayed by Miss Edie Martin, who is especially talented, and Miss Josie Beltham, who is also remarkably good. Mr. Frank Gordon capably sustains the part of Dido Bruce; and Mr. Dick Winslow is amusing as the Cough Drop. Miss Grace Heywood enlists sympathy in her impersonation of Marion Thornton; and Miss Rosslyn Vayne plays forcibly as Barbara Scarth. The remaining parts are all in capable hands.

Hippodrome.—Joint-Proprietors, Messrs. Frederick Mouillot and Walter de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Resident-Manager, Mr. C. F. Bawtree.—The programme this week is an all-round good one. The Sisters Denton are sprightly and vivacious singers and dancers, and make themselves general favourites; Harry Cotton is a particularly lively comedian and most amusing; whilst the Idento Brothers, eccentric jugglers, are excellent in their especial line. Daisy Cordelia, comedienne and dancer, makes a decided hit; Sivronis, the burlesque duo, in their comedy creation, create roars of laugher; Prince and Milner, in the comedy wire-walking and hoop manipulating pot-pourri, give a clever and at the same time amusing show. The pictures again depict droll events.

Middlesbrough.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Charles Imeson.—Mr. Robert Courtneidge's production of The Blue Moon is the attraction here this week, and the piece owes its acceptance in no small degree to the excellent work of Miss Clarice Lockstone, who is charming as the singing girl, and admirably fulfils all the requirements of the part. Mr. Reginald Switz is the Private Taylor, and his natural and unforced fun is responsible for much laughter. Millicent Leroy finds a pretty and graceful expenent in Miss Florence Imeson, who dances and sings very charmingly. Mr. Alfred Beers acts with marked distinction as Moolraj; and Miss Hilda Lockner as Miss Lovehill and Miss Florence Foster as Miss Sparrow are all that can be desired. Mr. Leslie Gaze gives an admirable representation of Major Callabone; and Mr. Thomas Halding is exceedingly good as the Prince. Mr. George Mudie, jun., is seen to advantage as Bobbie Scott; and Mr. Edward Fraser does full justice to the part of Capt. Ormsby. Mr. Frank Haylett and Mr. Edward Noble are also entrusted with interesting rôles; and Miss Mabel Lowell figures with great effect as Lady Brabasham. Miss Maud Schwitz and Miss Christie Ferris are delightful as Omah and Ramah respectively.

Opera House.—Acting-Manager, Mr. W. Ker Chatto.—Miss Maud Hillyard and company are this week appearing in the domestic play A Great Awakening. This talented lady sustains her old part of Lola Selby with all her wonted dignity and power; Mr. Gordon McLeod makes a handsome Capt. Lambert; and Miss Doris Digby scores as Molly Merton. Mr. A. C. Hardie acts with marked distinction as James Selby; and Miss Lilla Mordon is charming as Selina Worts. Mr. Willie Scott is amusing as Billy Brass; and Mr. Frank Liston in the rôles of Sir Hy. Merton and Jack Merton is exceedingly good. Mr. Stephen Langton is excellent as Guy Rogan; and Mr. Eric Dane does well as Sergeant Brue. Other members of the company who add to the attractiveness of the piece are Mr. J. Booth as Richard Wilson, Mr. Tracy Brarow as Antoine, Mr. James Lewis as Gibbs, Mr. Godfrey Sheldon as Doctor Lang, and Mr. Edward Gordon as the newsboy.

Oxford Palace.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Alf Graham.—Arthur Reece tops the bill here this week, and scores a great success in his song "When there isn't a girl about." Hall and Wilson provide some neat, daring, and clever bicycle feats, their novel bicycle race causing much excitement. Griff is an excellent comedy juggler; and J. W. Reed and Miss J. Stevens score in their dramatic episode The Right Road. Ted Cowan, comedian, does well; and Blanche Marion, comedienne and dancer, pleases. Other turns are provided by Amy Sullivan and the Palascope

Neath.—Castle Theatre.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Will Haggar, jun.—The attraction here this week is The Avenging Hand, ably presented by the Castle company. Mr. Will Haggar gives a fine rendering of Frank Lomond; Mr. Jack Desmond is at home as Rupert Dashwood; as Jim the Waif Miss Frances Giddings is good; General Lomond is in the capable hands of Mr. Geo. Stanley; Mr. Harry Templeton is well placed as Peitro Mascar, as is also Mr. Arthur Stanley as Benjamin McManus, and Mr. James Haggar is good as Theophilus Jones. Mrs. Will Haggar is charming as Alice Lomond; Miss Kate Sylvester is seen to advantage as Kitty O'Kay; and the remaining parts are in very capable hands. The scenery and effects are excellent.

Newcastle-on-Tyne.—Tyne Theatre and Opera House.—Lessees, Messrs. Howard and Wyndham; Acting-Manager, Mr. Fred C. Sutcliffe.—All too quickly is Messrs. Howard and Wyndham's lavish production of Aladdin drawing to the close of its unprecedentedly successful run, and Monday evening next will see the last fortnight entered upon. Mr. Harry Lauder, still the hero of the show, has introduced a new song, "I'm aye wakin', Oh," in place of "Gilt-edged Bertie." It is interpreted in a manner only Lauder can accomplish in the Scottish dialect, but still is hardly likely to catch on as well as the song it displaces. Mr. Dan Crawley's songs and dances still create great merriment; and Mr. Imro Fox, Mr. Harker Nicholls, and Mr. George Ide continue to win favour. Miss Jose Collins has a new song in place of the "Hyacinth" ballad, which at once proved a success. Miss Beryl Somerset, in the title-rôle, is proving a great favourite.

Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. F. Teale Lingham.—Notwithstanding that Aladdin at the Royal has entered upon its eighth week, the well-balanced company play with a vigour and freshness suggesting a first performance. In many respects will Mr. Robert Courtneidge's splendid production be remembered. In magnificence of scenery it has never perhaps been excelled in Newcastle, its comedy is sound and merry, and the musical element in it is of a standard not often met with in pantomime. Miss Florence Smithson, the dainty Princess, delights the large audiences with her excellent vocal contributions; and Miss Lily Morris makes an admirable and popular principal boy. Then a very strong quartette of comedians are Messrs. Neil Kenyon, Chas. Harvey, Fred Allendale and Alfred Clark. All the minor parts continue to be well-filled, and a word of praise must be accorded the excellent chorus.

Grand Theatre.—Lessees, Messrs. Bacon and Bolam; Managing-Director, Mr. Sidney Bacon.—Messrs. Edmunds and Dipple's pantomime, The Babes in the Wood, finishes a successful run on Saturday evening. It is unanimously pronounced to be one of the funniest shows presented in the city, and Miss Rose Hamilton, the principal boy, has become a very great favourite.

Empire Theatre.—Proprietors, Messrs. Moss' Empires, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Redell.—Mr. George Gray and company with Parson Gray, V.C., is winning high honours here this week. A distinctly diverting turn is that supplied by Billy McClain and his company of coloured people, who dance and sing with spirit and humour; Professor Bartle renders several selections on his English concertina with fine expression, and earns much applause; the Maningos are two young and clever head and hand balancers, and are well applauded; Sylvesta, the mysterious, scores heavily; whilst a fine musical comedy turn is that of the Strads, who earn frequent recalls. Others are Carlos Cæsaro, Ruth Davis, Charles Vincent, and the Bioscope pictures.

Pavilion Theatre.—Managing-Director, Mr. Thomas Barrasford.—The Tiller pantomime, Aladdin, stays here for one week more owing to its popularity. Miss Jessie Wilton is brisk and spirited as Aladdin, and Miss Clara Beck as the Princess captivates her audience. An original widow is Mr. Fred Dark's portrayal; Harry Ellis-ton is impressive as the wicked uncle; and Little Britton as his familiar spirit is one of the most grotesquely humorous characters in the cast; the novelty dances of the Tiller Quartette are exceptionally smart and up-to-date; Oakdene supplies a capital comedy ventriloquist sketch, entitled The Stowaways; and other turns are introduced by Carr and Rose (the humorous singing duo), Gus Hindell (comedian), and Katos (in their automatic theatre).

Northampton.—Opera House.—Proprietors and Managers, Mr. Milton Bode and Mr. Edward Compton; Resident-Manager, Mr. Frank Seddon.—The management have provided a rich dramatic treat for their patrons this week by securing Mr. George Alexander's principal company in Pinero's great comedy, His House in Order. Large and enthusiastic houses have welcomed it every night, and have fully recognised the talents of the artists engaged in it, foremost being Miss Dorothy Grimston, who achieves an artistic success in the varying rôle of Nina. Mr. Stephen T. Ewart plays the important part of Hilary Jesson with a firm grip of its possibilities, and his clever acting quickly gains him the sympathies of the audience; Mr. J. Edward Pearce endues the part of Filmer Jesson with the necessary coolness and loftiness; Miss Doris Champion is clever and natural as the boy Derek; Mr. Herbert Lomas as Sir Daniel Ridgeley is the canting hypocrite to the life; and the rest of his family are played on well-defined lines by Mr. Ernest R. Holloway as Pryce Ridgway, Miss Auguata Haviland as Lady Ridgeley and Miss Elaine Sleddall as Geraldine Ridgway. Mr. Charles Tyrel is effective as Major Maurewarde; Mr. Luke Foster is most excellent as Dr. Dilnott; Mr. Langford Browne as Harding, Mr. J. Douglas Campbell as Forshaw, and Miss Jean Cadell as Mlle. Thome make the most of their parts.

Palace of Varieties.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Fred H. Anderson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Thos. A. Evans.—Barnard's Mannikins give a show far in advance of the usual type, and are a big success here. Rita and Roma are versatile entertainers, the lady's speciality being a very clever acrobatic dance, which is nightly encored; Grace Bard is a vivacious comedienne, who is highly welcomed; Acland (novelty painter), Nellie Nora (in a musical act), the Elgars (in an Irish song-scena), the Two Wedburns (singers and burlesque instrumentalists), and C. Vincent with a fresh supply of Palace pictures, complete a good all-round programme.

North Shields.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur Jefferson; Acting-Manager, Mr. Horace Lee.—A large audience assembled here on Monday to welcome Mr. Charles Chard's company with Cinderella, which had a cordial reception. Miss Nancy Newell gave a capital interpretation of the title-rôle; Miss Kitty Phelps proved herself to be a bright and spirited Prince Charming; Miss Cecilia Kent made an admirable Ethel; and the Sisters Terry made the most of Dandini and Eglantine. As Pimples, Mr. Harry Pleon caused much genuine fun; Yorick and Yorick as the Broker's Men created plenty of mirth; Mr. Allen Amber was good as Maudie; and specialities were introduced successfully by the New York Quartette, who made a great hit; the Sisters Terry, vocalists; Mr. Harry Pleon, the popular comedian and mimic; and Messrs. Yorick and Yorick, tale-tellers and tumblers.

Central Palace.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Wm. Mould.—The Brothers Attilla, Grecian gladiators, in their feats of strength, are proving a great attraction here; Hess and Lisbon, comedy skaters, are clever; and the Bendons, in their comedy song-scena, have made a hit. The Sisters Poole, duettists and dancers, meet with favour; Mr. Harry Barker, comedian, goes well; the Treedons, song illustrators, are popular; and the Bio-photoscope completes the programme.

Norwich.—Hippodrome.—Proprietors, Messrs. E. H. Bostock and F. W. Fitt; Manager, Mr. Councillor F. W. Fitt.—Heading the bill this week is G. H. Chirgwin, who is delighting the audiences with his quaint and unique performance, and receives much appreciation. Bob Hutt's No. 1 company in their comedy absurdity, Welcome Home, create roars of laughter; the De Breans do some clever juggling tricks and shadowgraphy; Cambo, the "musical man-monkey," is a capital turn; Raymond and Colbey are well received as comedy artists; whilst George Steeley and Jenny Dowton are successful as vocalists and eccentric dancers; Blanche and Powell are pleasing in their musical and comedy act. The Hippodrome Bioscope is showing delightful scenes of Niagara, &c.

Nottingham.—Theatre Royal.—Managing-Director, Mr. Robert Arthur; Acting-Manager, Mr. Howard Finney.—The Catch of the Season pays its first visit here, and a capital house on Monday gave Mr. George Dance's company a warm welcome. Miss Moya Mannering played Angela with a charm and brightness that evoked spontaneous applause, also singing tastefully the song, "I was only teasing." Miss Florence Lee acted commendably as Honoria Bedford, and scored with a smart coon song; Miss Belle Napier played admirably as Lady Caterham; Miss Isobel Dickens was altogether satisfactory as Sophia Bedford, and Miss Maud Davies made a dignified and stately Duchess of St. Jermyns; Miss M. Carew as the Princess, Miss Lillian Wesson as Miss Caw, and Miss Emily Mellon as Lady Crystal added much to the general success. Mr. Frank Lincoln has an excellent part in the Duke of St. Jermyn, and throughout the evening he rattled off his patter, sang his songs, and kept the fun going in a manner that called many manifestations of approval; Mr. E. H. Kelly stuttered cleverly through the part of Lord Dundreary; Mr. G. Dickens did well as the conventional Higham Montague; Mr. Alfred Miles was quite at home with his flock of Gibson girls, the latter getting a tremendous ovation for their dance; Master Grata, well described the precocious page, and the scenic arrangements left nothing to be desired.

Grand Theatre.—Manager, Mr. Chas. P. Cooke.—Cinderella, a pantomime written by Fred Locke, with music by E. T. de Banzie, is the attraction here this week. It is produced by Mr. Harry Fischer's company, and the organisation is in every respect quite up-to-date, the whole production reflecting great credit upon the genial acting-manager, Mr. Collingwood Hope. Miss Empsie Bowman is responsible for the rôle of the heroine, and acquits herself admirably; whilst the dashing style of Miss Julia Bassett makes her a splendid Prince Perfect, she being ably assisted by Miss Adele Lincoln as Dandini; the Baron is portrayed by Mr. Johnny Johnstone, and his daughters find able exponents in Messrs. Chas. Tempest and Chas. May as Flipper and Flopper respectively; Messrs. Conan and Doyle have ample opportunities for their boisterous humour, and Mr. Ernie Mayne causes a great deal of fun and laughter as Jack Pickles; Miss Nancie Campbell, Miss Louie Danby, Miss Grace Olivia, and Mr. Guy Fenton help largely towards success; and a large chorus, which has been well trained, do their work well.

Empire Theatre of Varieties.—Managing-Director, Mr. Oswald Stoll; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles H. Bowmaker.—The appearance of Mme. Alice Esty and her company has drawn large audiences here, who have listened and applauded to the echo the famous artist in her scena production, Betta the Gipsy. Her delightful voice rang out with all its old sweetness and power on Monday night, and she was accorded a great demonstration at the close. Auto Atlas supplied a unique turn as a specimen of a well-made man, his feats of strength drawing hearty applause; Gladys Huxley, who has just finished at the Theatre Royal pantomime here, rendered a couple of songs to the delight of her admirers; Lilian Lowe's charming voice was heard to perfection in a song; whilst Parker and Parr were well received for capital duets. Charles Coborn came in for a gratifying reception, his rendering of the song, "Four fingers and a thumb," caling forth many interesting reminiscences; Hurley and Cole proved acceptable in a song-scena; and the Robertys, whirlwind dancers, offered an excellent item; Dusty Rhodes, comedian, and the American Bioscope closed a really interesting programme.

Nuneaton.—Prince of Wales's Theatre and Entertainments Co., Ltd.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Walter J. R. Bryan.—Pantomime is the attraction here this week, Mr. Edwin C. Jazan's company appearing in Cinderella. Miss Louie Hurman infuses plenty of dash and spirit into the part of Prince Brilliant, and receives well-merited applause for her song, "My soldier boy"; Miss Flo Melville makes an excellent Cinderella; Mr. Chas. Preston as Arabella and Messrs. Alf Brooks and Fred Pearce (Isabella and Buttons) cause considerable mirth; Miss Madge Bridge (Dandini) Miss Marie Harding (Marquis of Taxes), and Miss Florrie Burnette (Queen Bountiful) all do well. Mr. Ian Aubrey appears as Baron Crooked and Miss Ada Ward as Dorothy; the introduction of the electric coach, drawn by a pair of ponies, meets with applause. The specialities comprise Pearce and Ward (boxers), Onda and Leon (triple bar performers), Mr. Stan Aubrey (legmania artist), and Harding and Preston (dancers). On Thursday evening Mr. A. F. Cross took his sixth annual benefit, when there was the usual well-filled and enthusiastic house, testifying to the esteem and popularity of the managing-director in Nuneaton and surrounding district.

Oldham.—Empire Theatre.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. J. Hulme.—Mr. J. F. Elliston's pantomime, Mother Goose, entered on its last week on Monday. The Bros. Rich as Mother Goose and Jack keep the ball rolling merrily, being ably seconded by H. O. Wills and Leonard Maitland as the Dandies and by W. Fullbrook as the Mayor. Miss Lola Patey (Gretchen), who sings as well as ever, is ably assisted by the Eight Tiny Tots; Miss Isabella Dillon is well placed as Colin; Miss Pauline Hague is good as Jill; and Miss Violet Ashcroft (the Fairy) and Chas. Homer (the Demon) are excellent.

Royal Theatre of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. W. Howgate.—Herbert Lloyd, the King of Diamonds, causes much laughter with his comedy act; the Three Amaranths are marvellous acrobatic dancers; F. V. St. Clair has to respond to several recalls for his songs and recitations; Richardson Taylor is a capital whistling venriloquist and mimic; Keen and Waller are a clever pair of eccentric acrobats; Master May, boy vocalist, sings sweetly; the Avigny Trio show some capital juggling; Charles Ashdowne is a good comedian; and an interesting picture, "Whaling," is shown on the screen.

Hippodrome.—Manager, Mr. E. Dottridge; Assistant-Manager, Mr. Nuttall.—The Tennesse Guards give a good lightning drill act; Les Rallis, in The Artist and the Monkey, give a clever acrobatic display; Maxwell and Frances are well received in a clever comedy act; the Bros. Lawrence are smart vocalists and dancers; the Lillian Bros., silver chain experts, are very good; Fox and Melville provide an interesting turn with their vocal pictures; and Billy Burns sings well. The Dottoscope is showing new films.

Paisley.—Paisley Theatre.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. J. H. Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Bentz.—Mr. Charles Macdona's company, under the managership of Mr. Frank Withers, is paying a welcome visit in The White Chrysanthemum. Mr. Shirley Lea as Admiral Sir Horatio Armitage is highly appreciated; Lieut. Reginald Armitage is played with conspicuous ability by Mr. H. Langdon Bruce; Mr. H. E. Garden portrays the part of Lieut. Chippendale Belmont very funnily and successfully; Sin Chong is embodied in capital style by Mr. Richard Telford; and Private Perks is well represented by Mr. Jamie Dallas. Miss Muriel George as Sybil Cunningham deserves the highest commendation for her graceful acting and exquisite singing; Miss Wilmot Karkeek makes a most vivacious and engaging Cornelia Vanderdecken; and Miss Dorothy Sephton essays with considerable success the part of Betty Kenyon. Mr. J. Hutcheson controls with ability a full chorus and an augmented orchestra

Empire.—Lessee, Mr. J. H. Savile; Manager, Mr. Tom Foy.—Miss Lilian Levey, who tops the bill here, is rewarded with a hearty reception, all her songs being delightfully rendered. In addition, there are Harry Jeff, speciality dancer; The Percys (Harry and Lillie), duettists and dancers; Harry Plowden, eccentric facial and patter comedian; George Bernard, actor-vocalist; and the Brothers Allison, comedy artists and speciality dancers.

Pentre.—Lyceum Theatre.—Sole Owners, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Resident-Manager, Mr. Harry Counsell.—A large and appreciative audience attended here on Monday evening to give a warm welcome to Mr. Wm. Greet's company, in The Sign of the Cross. Marcus Superbus is cleverly portrayed by Mr. Frank E. Petley; Mr. C. Yorke is imposing in the rôle of Nero; Tigellinus is in the capable hands of Mr. Chas. Aldred; Miss Mary Newcombe looks charming in the rôle of the Empress Poppœa; Miss Marie Leonhard earns the approbation of the audience by her clever portrayal of Mercia; and Stephanus is ably impersonated by Miss Dulcie Greatwich. Songs and dances by Miss Beatrice Felstead and Miss Pauline Emeric relieve the heavy parts of the piece.

Perth.—Theatre Royal.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. J. H Savile; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Aldridge.—Mr. Wentworth Croke this week presents My Sweetheart, in which Miss Minnie Palmer and Mr. Robert H. Howard adopt the leading rôles of Tina and Tony Faust with much acceptance, and are accorded the unstinted approbation of the crowded audience. Mr. Fred W. Leonard vividly depicts the unfortunate Joe Shotwell; Mr. Richard Elliott gives us a pleasing portrayal of Dr. Oliver; Mr. Leslie Tyler's forceful impersonation of Harold Bartlett is seen to advantage; Mr. Alfred Ibberson's Dudley Harcourt is highly amusing; and Mr. Alfred May is suitably adapted to the part of Farmer Hatzell; Miss Mildred Sylvestre displays exceptional talent in the forceful daring adopted by the unscrupulous Mrs. Fleeter; Mrs. H. E. Russell's Mrs. Hatzell is an amusing study; and Miss Elsie Forster is specially attractive as Peek-a-Boo.

Plymouth.—Theatre Royal.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. J. Langdon Lee.—The Spring Chicken, as presented by Mr. George Dance's company this week, accentuates the favourable impression it created on the occasion of its first visit to Plymouth about a year ago. As Mr. Girdle, Mr. Fred Payne is excellent, his wheezes and interpolations being immensely relished; Mr. J. S. Durant as Babori assumes the foreign accent effectively; Mr. Edwin Dodds as Felix is amusing; and Mr. Harry Averell as Boniface is a smart dancer. Miss Florence Wix as Mme. Babori has an attractive stage presence, and her song, "Come down gently," receives a triple encore; Miss Chrissie Ralland is a gay and vivacious Rosalie; Miss Nellie Kavanagh is a droll Mrs. Girdle; and Miss Clarice Cartner a graceful Baroness Papouche.

Palace of Varieties.—Manager, Mr. Jack Field.—The leading turn at the Palace this week is the Poluski Brothers, and their contribution, Laughs, is most appropriately named; the Great Stowes go through some clever feats of hand-balancing; Albert Wyndham and company submit a Shakespearean sketch, entitled Clarence's Dream, rendered in commendable fashion; Mollie Doone is an attractive and versatile little comedienne; George Collins, in a humorous skit on a Gibson Girl, is warmly received; Yeager and Yeager are accomplished dancers; and the Three Persians are skilful horizontal bar performers. Vowles and Bryan, and Vernon's Bioscope, complete the bill.

Grand Theatre.—Lessee, Mr. C. F. Williams; Manager, Mr. Percy Williams; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ernest Grant.—Preceded by A Kiss in the Dark, the stock company present a creditable version of Trilby. Mr. Edward Beecher gives an interesting portrayal of Svengali; Miss Elaine Vanbrugh in the title-rôle is most convincing; Messrs. Harry Stuart, C. A. Melton, and Walter Ferriss are capable as the three Students; and Mr. Arthur Beaufort is amusing as the Rev. Mr. Bagot.

Princes's Theatre.—Licensee and Manager, Mr. J. W. Boughton; Acting-Manager, Mr. T. E. Agate.—Mr. George Testo Sante and company are here this week with the drama, The Life of a Showman. Mr. Sante as the circus acrobat, Brian Leader, displays great physical strength combined with admirable acting; Mr. Aurele Labat is very forcible as the villainous Hendrick Marias; Mr. Charles Osborne, in the dual rôles of Sir Noel Hartland and Stickers, the bill-poster, is clever; Mr. Edward Warden makes an incisive, manly Rev. Cyril Arliss; Agatha Winter is played by Miss Amy McNeill with considerable power and great sympathetic feeling. The lighter side of the drama is most amusingly taken by Miss E. Lewis as Angelina Mutton, and Messrs. Frank Tante and Will Lindsey as Tommy Allthere and Ben Tin-Tac. Some good variety turns are introduced in the second act.

Radcliffe.—Grand Opera House.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Geo. T. Sante; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Boothman.—Mr. Bert Coote's The Fatal Wedding company is here. Mr. E. Owttrim gives a striking and effective rendering of the rôle of Howard Wilson; and Mr. Guy Hastings contributes an excellent performance as Robert Curtis. Mr. C. H. Hughes is funny as Toto; and Mr. Cyril Melton adds to the success of the evening as Peter Schwartz. Mabel Wilson is pathetically presented by Miss Katherine Clarke; and the part of Cora receives full justice from Miss Leah Marlborough. Miss Julie Temple is thoroughly at home as Bridget, and plays the part in a manner that shows marked ability; and Miss Marie Wilson makes a charming Jessie. The singing of Miss Dolly McCalla and Miss Marie Wilson is much appreciated.

Rawtenstall.—Grand Theatre.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Arthur de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. George Dickinson.—Messrs. E. H. Knight and G. Denham's company is here again this week in The Grip of Iron, and opened on Monday evening to a capital house. Mr. Fred Powell was as powerful as ever in his portrayal of the Strangler, and contrived to infuse some grim humour into the part; as Loustalot, Mr. George Denham was very amusing; Mr. Wallace Curnock made a capital Paul Blanchard, and Mr. A. G. Polson-Turner a clever Lorentz de Ribas. Miss Rosabel Dodd was an excellent Cora Simmonet, and as Marie Guerin Miss Maggie Stewart gave an admirable impersonation; Mr. Norman Tracy was a capable Robert de Bolford and Miss Muriel Inglis an acceptable Sophie Blanchard.

Reading.—Royal County Theatre.—Proprietor, Mr. Milton Bode.—The pantomime of Aladdin is being played here this week in first-class style by Mr. Milton Bode's company. Miss May Marton impersonates the title-rôle in a piquant manner; Miss Janet Reynolds is a fascinating Princess Yo-San; Mr. Clifford Morgan works hard in the character of Abanazar, and is exceedingly well received. The Widow Twankey who, this time, poses as a suffragette, is amusingly impersonated by Mr. Tom Owen; the Slave of the Lamp and Genie of the Ring are well portrayed by Miss Addie Love and Miss Amy Winn; Mr. Walter Crouch as the Emperor and Mr. Frank Couch as the Grand Vizier are both good; Mr. Tommy Nelldon is funny as a Chinese laundry man. The specialities include Leo Sterling, the musical marvel, who gives a finished performance on the cornet, and the Royal Welsh Meister Singers, who are greatly appreciated. The Stella troupe of dancers also appear with success.

Rochdale.—Theatre Royal.—Proprietors, The Northern Theatres Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. W. Robinson; General-Manager, Mr. Otto Culling; Resident-Manager, Mr. J. Hague.—The appearance of Mr. Edmund Tearle and company is always eagerly awaited here, and on Monday they had a hearty reception in The Three Musketeers. Mr. Tearle distinguished himself in the part of D'Artagnan. On Tuesday Jeanie Deans was submitted, Miss Kate Clinton taking the title-rôle with conspicuous ability. Mr. J. A. Keogh finely portrayed the part of David Deans; Mr. J. Cooke Hinton, with typical Scotch humour, was heard to advantage as the Laird o' Dumbledykes; and Mr. Edmund Tearle effectively sustained the duties of

Hagen, comedians; Miss Maud Gwynne, ballad vocalist; Charlie Bayman, the darkie sage; and the Olympian Trio, in plantation melodies, complete a highly-attractive programme.

EMPIRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Thomas Hargreaves; Acting-Manager, Mr. Frank Hargreaves.—Terry and Lambert, in character studies from life, submit some clever acting; the Three Royal Dreadnoughts contribute a clever exhibition of rifle shooting; and other enjoyable items on the programme include Jack Martin, actor-vocalist; Ada Parker, coon songstress and dancer; Tony Iveson, the ragman at the piano; Billy Hobbs, coon comedian and dancer; Lecardo Brothers, comedy acrobats and balancers; A. E. Clifford, vocalist; and the Empire Bioscope.

ROTHERHAM.—THEATRE ROYAL, LTD.—Managing-Director, Mr. F. Macnaghten; Resident-Manager, Mr. Holbery Hardy.—Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Kimberley's company is here this week with the sporting drama Bound to Win. Mr. F. G. Kimberley is seen to advantage as Harry Lyndon, and Mr. Edward Bekker scores as Squire Forbes. Mr. George Steel gives a capable rendition of the part of Philip Ayre; and Mr. J. Franklin succeeds as Ned Oakley. Mr. Dick Seddon is deserving of mention as Willie Winkins; and Mr. Sidney Rudge does well as Joe Blake. Miss Effie Macintosh is a sprightly Winnie Oakley; and Mrs. J. Franklin wins applause as Harriet Forbes; Miss Violet Langley is very pleasing as Marion Forbes; Miss Lottie Addison gives a clever portrayal of the part of Gladys Orme; and Mr. Arnold H. Allen is very amusing as Horatio Buffit.

RUGBY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. A. F. Cross; Acting-Manager, Mr. Geoffrey Fulton.—Messrs. Beaudyn and Livesey's company are presenting The Traitor Prince here this week. Mr. George M. Montanini as Prince Rao Dalmirez gives an excellent rendering; Mr. Dudley Wynton is manly and artistic as Lieut. Frank Derrick; and as Billy Bright, Mr. Harry C. Momber causes much amusement; Mr. Jack Musgrove is good as Hon. Bobby Dalyrmple; Mr. James Sherwin as Cara, Mr. Austin Langford as Richard Vane and Colonel Vane, Mr. Henry Francis as Sergeant Bucket, and Mr. Richard Roberts as the High Priest all do well. Miss Rosa Routledge is charming and sympathetic as Lola Vane; Miss Metta Mitchell is clever and amusing as Pansy Blossom; Miss Alice N. Livesey is capital as Vasliti, and Miss Clara O'Grady is well placed.

SALISBURY.—COUNTY HALL.—Proprietor, Mr. Arthur Whitehead; Business-Manager, Mr. T. Brinsmead.—After a long absence Mr. Bannister-Howard's company paid us a visit in The Christian, and received a warm welecome from large audiences. As John Storm Mr. E. Stanton-Sharp gave a most powerful rendering; Miss Laura Walker in the rôle of Glory Quayle won golden opinions for her faultless portrayal of the part; Mr. P. Gedge Twyman was distinctly good as Lord Ure; and the same may be said of Mr. H. Colbeck as Father Lamplugh. Miss Constance Stephens made an admirable Mrs. Callander; and Miss Ethel Savory gave a pathetic rendering of Polly Love. The remaining parts were all creditably enacted.

SEACOMBE.—IRVING THEATRE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. James Kiernan.—The pantomime Cinderella is the attraction here this week, the comic element being strongly in evidence. Prince Peerless is played in dashing style by Miss Iris Banfield, who receives excellent support from Miss Mabel Ashton as Dandini. Miss Helen Raye gives a pleasing rendering of Cinderella; Miss Louie Davies plays and dances well as Princess Pearl; Mr. Charles Martell gives an extremely comic impersonation of Baron Pebblybeach, and Mr. John Bennett is funny as Pimple. These two gentlemen are especially good in their comic specialities. Mr. Edwin Garth and Mr. Howard Ward give general satisfaction as Arabella and Dulcibella respectively. Plenty of knockabout fun is caused by Putemin and Kickemout (Messrs. Earlo and Melville); Miss Maud Ray, Count Caramel; Miss Nance Bowden, Earl Comfit; and Miss Ivy Burton, Chloris, all do well. Margery is suitably depicted by Miss Phillis Hay, and Miss Marie Montague is an acceptable Rosalind. The Starlight Quartette introduce a number of pretty and clever dances.

SEAHAM HARBOUR.—NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietor, Mr. A. C. Harrison; Manager, Mr. Sidney Beltram.—The Chas. W. Poole's new Imperial Myriorama forms an agreeable change here this week. A fine series of views is interspersed with capital animated pictures. Varieties are introduced by the Avondale Four, very pleasing vocalists; the Three Almos are daring and graceful horizontal bar performers; cycling by the Swift Trio; Le Brun and Irene, in a successful turn; and Little Edie, a charming child-vocalist. Mr. C. T. Couper makes an efficient guide.

SHEERNESS.—THE PALACE.—Proprietor and Manager, Mr. Phil Raymond.—At this popular little hall the present company is fully up to the usual standard of excellence. Mr. G. Daniels is a versatile comedian and descriptive vocalist; the Queen of Costers causes lots of fun, and is loudly applauded; Miss Topsy Levane scores nightly as a clever comedienne; Mr. Phil Reymond is a popular and hard-working comedian; and the Arundel company cause roars of laughter with the comedy sketch Taming a Tartar.

SHEFFIELD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The delightful musical play Veronique, under the management of Mr. George Dance, was again performed to a large audience on Monday. All the artists acted and sang with great humour and vivacity; and the piece was sumptuously mounted.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. John Hart; General-Manager and Treasurer, Mr. J. E. B. Beaumont.—The interesting plot and thrilling episodes of the Lyceum drama, Sherlock Holmes, kept the close attention of a good house on Monday, and the members of Mr. Stewart's company all acted with fine esprit de corps. Mr. Hamilton Stewart acted with consummate ease and finish as the redoubtable Holmes; Mr. James Skea submitted a good study of character as the arch-criminal, Prof. Moriarty; Mr. Stanley Logan made a good foil to the character of Holmes as the brisk, healthy young medico, Dr. Watson; Mr. Leslie Hall was amusing as Billy, the page; and Mr. Fred Bell acted in a characteristic manner as John Forman. The rôle of Alice Faulkner was made interesting by the charm and intelligence of Miss Gladys Harvey; and the other artists were all good.

ALEXANDRA THEATRE.—Managing-Director, Mr. W. D. Forsdike; Acting-Manager, Mr. C. W. Ramsey.—For many years a very pleasing annual function here has been the visit of the aged inmates and children of the local Unions to see the pantomime, and on Shrove Tuesday afternoon the auditorium was bright with happy faces, and re-echoed with the laughter and applause. After the first act the visitors were regaled with refreshments, and at the finish each person received a useful present. All the artists did their best, from Miss Alma Obrey, the popular leading boy, to the drummer in the band, and Dick Whittington never had a more enthusiastic audience.

EMPIRE PALACE.—Proprietors, The Moss Empires Co., Ltd.; Acting-Manager, Mr. Alan D. Dunbar.—The following talented artists contribute to the programme this week:—Mr. J. G. Graham's company, in the Chinese episode, The Yellow Fang; Miss Marie San Toi and her charming girls in A Japanese Tea-House; Mr. Harry Leybourne, vocal comedian; Miss Lizzie Fletcher, comedienne; Mr. Johnny Mackay; the clever Rohda Brothers, in a novel act; Mr. Godfrey Jones; Florence, a talented lady mimic; and the celebrated vocal comedian, Mr. Arthur Lennard, in new songs and old favourites.

GRAND PALACE.—Proprietor, Mr. Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Richard Ralli.—Miss Lillie Soutter, Mr. Andie Burn, and Mr. Johnny Holland's dramatic combination, Mr. Bert Brantford, Burns and Bentley, and the favourite comedian, Mr. Tom Bass, are here. In addition, there is Pallister's Bioscope, with up-to-date pictures.

SHREWSBURY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Licensee and Business-Manager, Mr. W. C. Dornton.—Miss Florence Glossop-Harris, supported by Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., and a talented répertoire company, is here this week with Much Ada About Nothing, Twelfth Night, Romeo and Juliet, Camille, and Carmen, all admirably mounted, and enacted in a creditable fashion. In the first-mentioned play Mr. Frank Cellier, jun., is seen to advantage as Benedick, his easy and scholarly diction being very marked; Miss Florence Glossop-Harris is refined as Beatrice; Mr. Percy H. Vernon makes a fine Don Pedro; Mr. A. Cotton-Holmes a successful Don John; Mr. Duncan Yarrow as Claudio acts carefully and well; Mr. David Santley merits praise as Leonata; and others are Mr. A. Wilson-Wynne as Antonio, Mr. Stanley Roberts as Friar Francis, Mr. Basil Dean as Borachio, and Mr. Edward Landor as Dogberry. Miss Kate Turner is effective as Hero; and the Misses Nita Ashby and Ethel St. Barbe play their respective parts of Margaret and Ursula extremely well.

SOUTHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. Fred Mouillot; Resident-Manager, Mr. Arthur Weston.—Crowded houses have assembled to witness Mr. F. R. Benson's company, in A Midsummer Night's Dream, which was superbly produced on Monday under the direction of Mr. Hugh Moss. The scenery was attractive, and the augmented orchestra, under Mr. P. Herbert Smith, A.R.C.M., did full justice to Mendelssohn's beautiful music. Mr. George R. Weir as Nick Bottom was splendidly cast, the broad humour of the part being never over-emphasised; Mr. F. R. Benson gave a sound impersonation of Lysander; and Mr. Clarence Derwent was equally successful as Demetrius. Mrs. F. R. Benson was a spirited Titania and Mr. George Buchanan an imposing Oberon. The Misses Tita Brand and Helen Haye are both excellent as Hermia and Helena respectively; Miss Leah Hanman invests the part of Puck with much cleverness; and Miss Estelle Stead is a queenly Hippolyta.

PALACE.—Sole Proprietor and Director-General, Mr Frank Macnaghten; Manager, Mr. Wm. Trussell.—Miss Josephine Colona and company are appearing in a dramatisation of Faust, in which Miss Colona (Marguerite) and Mr. Arthur St. John (Mephisto) score huge successes. The Harwood Juveniles are remarkably clever singers and dancers; Max Duffex, musical contortionist; Keith and Merson, acrobats; Two Kays, vocalists; Chas. Williams, big boot dancer; and Mona McDonald, comedienne, also contribute to the evening's entertainment.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. F. Mouillot and W. de Frece; General-Manager, Mr. J. de Frece; Acting-Manager, Mr. H. P. Howell.—Tom Costello, Harriett Vernon, Dutch Daly, Will English, and Lloyd Morgan are drawing big houses. Ross, Rose, and Rosert appear in a scena, Always Moving; Bromley and Fontein excel as vocalists in A Musical Birthday; and Leslie Race, vocal comedian, is also programmed.

PHILHARMONIC.—Manager, Mr. W. C. Burns.—The Mahatmas possess wonderful powers of telepathy, and their amazing performance mystifies large audiences. Peter's pictures are also very interesting.

SOUTHPORT.—OPERA HOUSE, WINTER GARDENS.—Proprietors, the Southport Opera House and Winter Gardens Co., Ltd.; Secretary, Mr. R. Singleton.—A visit from Mr. Martin Harvey is viewed with more than usual interest in local theatrical circles, and the reception accorded him by a large audience on Monday was in keeping with the distinguished actor's popularity. The Corsican Brothers, which was splendidly mounted and played, was selected for the opening performance, Mr. Harvey appearing in the dual rôles of Fabien and Louis Franchi, which he depicted in a brilliantly realistic and polished manner. Mr. Vincent Sternroyd submitted an admirable delineation of Château Renaud; Miss Mary Rorke sustained the part of Mme. dei Franchi with eminent success; Miss Coleridge merited unstinted praise for her commendable portraiture of Emilie de Lesparre; Montgiron was well played by Mr. Albert E. Raynor; Mr. George Cooke presented a good study of Martelli; Mr. Alfred Mansfield characteristically impersonated M. Alfred Meynard; Mr. Charles Cameron assumed the part of M. Favrolles in good style; M. Beauchamp had a creditable representative in Mr. Paul Barry, and Mr. Fred Wright, sen., Mr. Philip Hewland, and Mr. P. Alexander as Colonna, Orlando, and Roissec respectively were well cast. During the week Hamlet and A Cigarette Maker's Romance are billed.

SOUTH SHIELDS.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. John and Fred. Coulson.—Mr. Fred. Granville's pantomime The Babes in the Wood is here this week. The leading parts are well accounted for, the Babes being smartly represented by Master H. Boden and Miss Edie Bell, their singing and dancing being one of the features of the show; the Robin Hood of Miss Cissie Bodina and the Maid Marian of Miss H. Lind are both highly creditable performances. The fun and frolic is chiefly contributed by Mr. Norman Hall as the Wicked Baron, Mr. Joe English as Ariminta Koffcake, the dame, and the Kimberley Boys, clever comedians and knockabouts, as Burgling Bill and Gentle Georgie. Excellent specialities are introduced by the Three Graces, living statues in classical poses; the Three Bodinas, in a vocal and instrumental mélange; the Four Clancy Girls, expert dancers; and the Brothers Leith, speciality comedians. The augmented orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. Wilfred Knowles.

EMPIRE PALACE THEATRE.—Proprietors, The South Shields Empire Palace, Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Richard Thornton; General-Manager, Mr. Frank Allen; Resident-Manager, Mr. Geo. F. Thompson.—The top of the bill is Park's Eton Boys, who, in both songs and choruses, delight the audience. Examples of smart training are shown by Marzella's birds; Thorp and Coe contribute a good comedy episode, My Burglar; Rhoda Paul, male impersonator, is very successful; The Ploughboy and Lady Guide is a smart sketch ably represented by the Camerons. Other attractions are Paul Dow, clever athlete; Ed. E. Ford, Australian sundowner; Jas. Brady, comedian; and the Bioscope.

STAFFORD.—LYCEUM THEATRE.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Elphinstone.—A triple bill is presented here this week in Saints and Sinners, Judah, and The Middleman. In the first-named piece, which was the attraction on Monday, Mr. Harding Thomas gives a clever and natural study of Jacob Fletcher; as Captain Fanshaw, Mr. Edgar Kent plays with marked effect; Mr. E. Ravson-Cousens is capable as George Kingsmill; and as Samuel Hoggard, Mr. John J. Hooder has a character to which he does every justice. Miss Ruby Roma is clever as Fanny Partridge, and Miss Elaine Verner as Letty Fletcher plays her part in a manner that proves her to be a talented actress.

STALYBRIDGE.—GRAND HIPPODROME.—Lessee and Manager, Mr. James Fioni; Resident-Managers, Messrs. W. A. Jackson and Eugene E. Hardie.—Ackashima, a champion Ju-Jitsu wrestler, heads the bill; and other clever turns are contributed by Hulbert, ventriloquist; the Lynches, illustrated songsters; May Zant and her juveniles; Georgina Leonard, an excellent singer of some rollicking songs; Mons. De Lil, conjurer; the Ringling Trio, American eccentrics; and the Donatos, the one-legged wonders.

ST. HELENS.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE, LTD.—General-Manager, Mr. McLeod Loader.—Messrs. Dottridge, Longden, and Livesey's company is paying a return visit here with The Village Blacksmith, and is meeting with great success. The company is a good all-round one, and includes Messrs. Sam. Livesey, Joseph Carter, G. V. Campbell, E. Maydew, George Wilton, T. E. Marshall, G. Ratcliffe, M. Halstead; Misses Maggie Edwards, Bertha Hanbury, Edith Giddens, Cassie Le Grande, and Mrs. T. C. Livesey.

HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, Messrs. Barrasford, Sley, and Willmot; Resident-Manager, Mr. A. M. Carnell.—An excellent bill here includes Mr. Henry Herne, Miss Ida Millais, and company, in the sketch, Blackmail; the Orleans, acrobats; Miss Rose Cabina, vocalist; Terry and Bentley, comedy duo; the Ramlos, gymnasts; Miss Sadie Seymour, comedienne; Mr. Charles Rutland, comedian; and Larola, "the clever man with the funny ways."

STOCKPORT.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Sole Owner and Manager, Mr. Charles Revill; Acting-Manager, Mr. Charles Revill, jun.—Mr. Wm. Greet's company in The Earl and the Girl has been heartily welcomed here this week by large and delighted audiences. The comical antics of Jim Cheese in the hands of Mr. Alfred Donohoe are a source of much laughter; as Dick Wargrave Mr. Thomas Kennard acts and sings in good style; A. Bunker Bliss is capitally played by Mr. Greville Hayes; and the Hon. Crewe Boodle has a capital representative in Mr. Leslie Owen. Miss Gertrude Simpson is charming as Elphin Haye, and sings delightfully; Miss Lina Hicks is amusing as Liza Shoddam; Miss Winnie Plumpton makes a stately Virginia Bliss; and Miss Kathleen Gerrard as Mrs. Shimmering Black acts the part with satisfactory ability.

STOCKTON-ON-TEES.—HIPPODROME THEATRE.—Proprietors, Messrs. Geo. and Robt. Nicholson; Manager, Mr. W. Ainsworth.—The Brothers Luck are here this week in their highly amusing comedy act, The Grand Hotel. Erneste is very clever in his imitations of various orchestral instruments; Hallam and Stanton present a sketch called The Broken Journey, in which high-class comedy is combined with good singing; Billy Farrell is very amusing with his patter, and his excellent dancing is appreciated; Tom Stuart is a high-class actor, and gives illustrations from popular plays; La Lola is worthy of praise in her speciality act; Joah Heteb's illusion acts are well received; Burg, Haud, and Wise are very amusing in their sketch, Ye Browne Cow Inn; and the Five Vernons receive a magnificent reception for their musical act.

GRAND THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietor, Councillor J. Batty; Manager, Mr. W. Batty.—Harry Pleon, with The Club Raid, heads the bill, and is very amusing. Emlyn Jones and his troupe of International singers are highly appreciated; Marie Collins, high-class comedienne, is very well received; Ryde and Beeman are exceptionally clever acrobats; Sisters Desmond deserve favourable mention for their duet singing; Lade Henderson is a character vocalist of a high order; Fanny Humber scores greatly in her humorous songs, and the pictures, as usual, are interesting.

STOKE.—HIPPODROME.—Proprietor, Mr. T. Allan Edwardes; Manager, Mr. H. Miller.—The Elliotts and Savonas head the bill here in their cycle and musical act, and are heartily appreciated; Elonina in her trapeze act is expert and daring; Nelson and Thomas are seen in a capital farce; Walter King keeps the house in roars of laughter; Eric Graham is a coster comedian with good songs; the Three Moxons are jugglers and equilibrists of real merit; and the Society Quartette supply high-class music.

SUNDERLAND.—AVENUE THEATRE.—Director and Manager, Mr. Chas. E. Machin.—After a week's interval pantomime again reigns supreme here, an extra strong attraction being provided by Messrs. C. and F. Renad's production, Puss in Boots. Miss Rita Everard makes a dashing principal boy, her delineation of Corin standing out conspicuously; Miss Marie Neilson, who is responsible for Princess Florine, proves a smart and pleasing heroine; Miss Mabel Spencer as Eric renders the all-popular "Zuyder Zee" in an excellent manner; and Miss Ivy Moore at once finds favour as Felina. Mr. Fred Lyne succeeds in keeping the fun rolling with his humorous enaction of the part of Lachrymose; Mr. Rowland Hill is no less successful as Dame Deborah; Messrs. Cribb and Cribb have some really amusing patter as Rufus and Urian respectively; Mr. Gilbert N. Oakes as the cat Mouser must not be forgotten; neither must Mr. Harwood Cooper as Fleecem. The Edene troupe of dancers are also in evidence. Special mention is deserved by the Flying Ballet, with its fine electrical effects.

KING'S THEATRE.—Managing-Directors, Messrs. Stevens and Buchanan; Acting-Manager, Mr. Harry L. Carlo.—Mr. Stanley Rogers's Cinderella, which is here this week, is among the best of the many excellent productions of the kind, and a packed house greeted its opening night. Miss Daisy Revett, who sustains the title-rôle, has a pleasing personality, and sings with considerable ability; Miss Ellaline Thorne as Prince Casimar plays with grace and dash throughout; Miss Dollie Harcourt as the Snow Queen proves popular by means of her vocal efforts; the fun is largely contributed to by Mr. George French, whose impersonation of the Baron is excruciatingly funny; and Mr. Tom W. Conway, as Tiny, the baron's wife, is no whit less successful as a mirth-provoker. Dandini is in the hands of Mr. Harry Welchman, and the male innovation proves most successful. "Cinders'" sisters are represented in up-to-date style by Miss Adelaide Gracey and Miss Florence Desmond as Araminta and Elvira respectively; Mr. Wm. Pringle works hard as Capers, and, along with Miss Revett, has a smart duet and dance. Miss Madge Allan is pert as the Duke of Whistbridge; and the Doreen Girls are a quartette of fair terpsichorean artists. The dressing is on a lavish scale, and the scenery leaves nothing to be desired.

THEATRE ROYAL.—Managing-Director, Mr. Chas. E. Machin; Acting-Manager, Mr. Jas. Hemingway.—Miss Annie Bell's Sapho company provides acceptable fare here. Miss V. St. Lawrence is responsible for the important rôle of Fanny Le Grande, to which she does every justice. Mr. Otto Minster lends a strong colouring to the rôle of Jean Gaussin; and the rest of the cast is efficient.

PALACE OF VARIETIES.—Lessees and Managers, Messrs. Rosen and Bliss; Acting-Managers, Messrs. Browne and Stringer.—The programme here includes Leonard Barry, in the song-scena, "The Mouchers' Walk"; the San Carlos, Italian operatic artists; Fred Collins, Scotch comedian; Lozelle, gymnast; Ramoniers, in their double-balancing act; the Chronophone pictures; the Nettas, in vocal scena, "Home Again"; Maud Esmond, burlesque artist; and the usual animated pictures.

SWINDON.—QUEEN'S THEATRE.—Proprietor and Responsible-Manager, Mr. Alfred Manners.—Pantomime is again the attraction here, Mr. Harry Graham's successful show, Little Red Riding Hood, under the personal supervision of Mr. J. S. Graham, opening on Monday to a full house. Miss Mabel Kessler is a genuine success as Boy Blue; Miss Grace Stafford is a charming Miss Mumt; Miss Rosie Juden a winsome Red Riding Hood. Mr. James Wood as Baron, Mr. Will Gane as Sammy, and Messrs. Grant and Kelly as Johnny-Stout and Johnny Green respectively contribute the fun, which is plentiful. Mr. Arthur Drew stands out prominently as Dame Trott; and Mr. Will Raglan proves most effective as the Wolf. The specialities include Miss Mabel Kessler, a cornet, horn, and bugle soloist; The Four London Belles, clever dancers; and The Great Escaladors.

TON-Y-PANDY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Carlton and Duckworth; General-Manager, Mr. Sam Duckworth; Acting-Manager, Mr. Ridgewood Barrie.—A large audience accorded a hearty reception to the pantomime, Babes in the Wood, as presented by Mr. John A. Thomson's company. Miss Beatrice Wadham's Robin Hood received hearty applause, and she was soon installed a favourite; Miss Claire Wadham was excellent as the Fairy Gloworm, and sang charmingly; Miss Dena Druid was an ideal Maid Marian; a capital representation was that of Miss Bertha Hall as Will Scarlett; the Misses Connell and Hazen, as William and Daisy (the Babes), had many admirers; Mr. Bob Lord was exceedingly funny as Baron Graball; Mr. Henry Eglinton was a very good Dame Dandini; and in the parts of Dusty Rhodes and Casual Ward it would be difficult to find the equals of the Two Randsfords.

WAKEFIELD.—ROYAL OPERA HOUSE.—Proprietors, Sherwood and Co.—Pantomime again holds the sway here, the attraction this week being Messrs. Carson and Kendall's company in Babes in the Wood. Miss Rose Tilley makes a dashing Robin Hood; Miss May Grayce a dainty Maid Marion; Mr. Hugh Brady proves very humorous as the Baron; Messrs. H. Roberts and J. McGrath create endless laughter as Grabem and Nabem; Little Tim is effective as Billy, the page; Mr. I. Gagan does full justice as Friar Tuck; Mr. Oliver Conroy is a capital Dame; Miss Nell Renie is quite at home as Will Scarlet; Miss Beattie is smart as Little John; Miss Dolly Marsden as Fairy Crystal and Miss Mabel Fare as Diavolo fill their respective rôles creditably; and Miss Doris Myddleton and Miss Dot Moss are clever as the Babes. Other principal parts are efficiently undertaken by Mr. F. Remmington as Pete, Miss Clara Moore as Molly, and Miss Lowe as Phyllis.

CORN EXCHANGE.—Miss Florence Baines and company are paying a first visit this week in Miss Lancashire, Limited. Miss Baines gives a fine portrayal of the part of Mary Ellen Thompson, the Lancashire operative, which causes much merriment; Mr. S. C. Leslie proves highly diverting as Isodore Moses; Mr. Burt Burton ably sustains the part of Harry; Mr. R. C. Hicks is good as the solicitor, Fox; Mr. David Donaldson achieves success as John Higgins; Mr. Payne Fletcher gives a finished rendering of Mr. Thompson; and Miss Pattie Groves is admirable as Bridget Thompson. Miss Kitty James is pleasing as Eva Lancashire.

HIPPODROME.—Lessee, Mr. Alfred Selwyn; Manager, Mr. Sydney Tolfree.—Mr. Charles Morritt, hypnotist and illusionist, with A Man in a Trance provides a novel and interesting exhibition; Mr. Charles Vandyke and company create much hilarity in a comical absurdity, entitled Nicodemus; Mr. Fred Casburn, in a dramatic song-scena, An Actor's Revenge, acts well; the boy Sampson displays much strength; Arnott and Beevers, comedians, are well received; the Blind Man, with his marvellous feats of memory, and Miss Florence Hill, comedienne, also contribute.

WALSALL.—HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE OF VARIETIES.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—Madge Grey, dialect comedienne, is here this week, and prove most popular, others being Arthur Melrose, whistling comedian; Glenroy Troupe of international dancers; the Vasilesen Troupe of eccentric pantomimists; E. W. Selman, character comedian; the Bohemians, comedy artists; and Syd May; the American Bioscope concluding.

GRAND THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Walsall Theatres Co., Ltd.; General-Manager and Secretary, Mr. W. H. Westwood.—We have Mr. Chas. H. Lester's company in The Bank of England. Mr. Lester ably portrays the character of Sherlock Holmes; Stephen Hartley and Sir Sidney Barraclough are in the capable hands of Messrs. G. Clifton Boyne and J. H. Firman respectively; Mr. C. Herman Pullen as the Hon. Bertie Burlington is also well placed; and Margaret Dane is cleverly acted by Miss Marjorie Davenport; while Miss Gertrude Godart admirably plays the part of Aminta J. Beane.

WEST BROMWICH.—THEATRE ROYAL AND OPERA HOUSE.—Lessee, Mr. Harding Thomas; Manager, Mr. Herbert Vere.—Mr. Stanley Carlton and company opened here on Monday with the society drama A Marriage of Vengeance. Mr. Stanley Carlton makes an able and striking Paul Earnscliff; Mr. Tom Henshaw in the rôle of Bob Shorner has a popular part that suits him admirably; Mr. Sidney Finnes plays Geoffrey Vannock in capital style; Glynne Earnscliff, the banker, is personated in a telling manner by Mr. Edwin Beverley; Mr. Edward Fryer is a fine Max Rheinhardt; Mr. William Annesley does well in the character of Guy Vendom; Stella is admirably sustained by Miss Rubie Maude; Miss Daisy Humphreys is all that could be desired as Elsie Dean; Miss Maggie Forster is well placed in the part of Amelia.

NEW HIPPODROME.—Manager, Mr. H. W. Player.—A strong programme is topped by Wilbur Hill and Willette Whitaker, who gain repeated applause for their exceedingly pretty turn; Mr. Charles Clark gives some smart songs; Mr. Reginald Leyland, the three-voiced comedian, is applauded; Mr. Geo. Davis and company submit a very funny sketch; the well-known comedian, Mr. Charles Bignall, contributes some very humorous songs; Miss Nellie Cotter is well received, and sings her coon songs with credit; some smart illusions are shown by Cussac-Talma, assisted by Mlle. Yvonne De Forge. The Hippodrome pictures close a most enjoyable evening.

WEST HARTLEPOOL.—GRAND.—Sole Lessee, Mr. Fred Granville; Manager, Mr. H. E. Feather.—Baron H. Harriss on Monday, to a house exceptionally well filled, presented his company (including Miss Sophie Harriss and Mr. Harry Kilburn) in The Prince of Pilsen. The magnificent dresses and scenery were the admired of all beholders, and the sparkling songs and choruses and pretty dances were repeatedly and persistently encored. To Mr. Kilburn is entrusted the rôle of Hans Wagner, and his delineation of it is irresistibly droll. A decided success is achieved by Miss Harriss as Mrs. Maddison Crocker, her fine voice and figure and charming dresses being especially effective. Mr. Frank Crimp is an ideal Carl Otto, his excellent rendering of the several numbers allotted to the part calling forth the warmest appreciation. Comedy has an able exponent in Mr. Sidney Russell; as Sidonie, Miss Connie Leon is bright and vivacious; Nellie Wagner has an attractive exponent in Miss Alice Nixon; Mr. Roy Sidney sings and acts well as Lieut. Tom Wagner; François is well played by Mr. Ernest Giffard; and Miss Ada Watson as Edith Adams and Miss Mollie Wynne as Jimmie are deserving of praise.

WESTON-SUPER-MARE.—KNIGHTSTONE PAVILION AND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager, Mr. W. Payne.—Mr. Charles Macdona's A Country Girl company attracted a large audience here on Monday. Mr. Martin D. Pitts, a talented actor, used his fine voice to advantage as Geoffrey Chaloner; Mr. Bernard Vaughan made an extremely good Rajah; Mr. W. O. Billington gave a quaintly humorous interpretation of Sir Joseph Verity; as Douglas Verity Mr. W. Besley Bertram was lifelike; Mr. Arthur Staples worked indefatigably as Barry; Mr. C. H. Biddulph was excellent as Lord Anchester; and the Granfer Mummery of Mr. George Stone deserves nothing but eulogy. Mr. F. Wormac was good as Lord Grasmere; Miss Edith Maynard sang and acted with distinction as Nan; a handsome Marjorie was found in Miss Violet Leslie; Miss May Florence made a delightful Mme. Sophie; and Mrs. St. Quintin was most charmingly portrayed by Miss Florence Brewster. Miss Harding's Princess of Bhong was all that could be desired; and Miss Kitty Stone was praiseworthy as the Nurse. The Chorus is a powerful one, and well trained.

WEST STANLEY.—THEATRE ROYAL.—Proprietors, The Stanley Theatre Co., Ltd.; Managing-Director, Mr. Mark H. Lindon.—Messrs. Matthew H. Glenville and Fred Osmond's company in The Still Alarm is here this week. Mr. M. H. Glenville gives a manly portrayal of Jack Manley; Mr. Geo. Arthur is good as John Bird; the rôle of Willie Manley is cleverly handled by Mr. T. Beasley; Doc Wilber is finely presented by Mr. F. Osmond; Miss Mabel Veriton is responsible for a well-played Mrs. Manley; Miss Maud Warburton sweetly enacts the part of Elinor Fordham; Mr. Lewis Gordon's Franklyn Fordham is an interesting piece of acting; Mr. J. Sutton Pateman treats the house to an able representation of Joe Jones, fireman; and Miss Gertie Reid is commendable as Carrie Wilber.

WIGAN.—ROYAL COURT THEATRE.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Wilson Barrett's last play, Lucky Durham, is produced here this week by Messrs H. Armitage and Arthur Leigh's company. Mr. Edmund Kennedy as John Durham, the strong-willed millionaire, plays the part with great power and firmness; Mr. Robert Forsyth well assumes the rôle of Lord Mountfallon; and the part of the good-natured ne'er-do-well, the Hon. R. Steighton, is very cleverly enacted by Mr. Arthur Leigh, Miss Alice Esther Belmore as Helen Vallerton gives a natural representation of the character; and Miss Frances Wolviston as Lady Mountfallon is stately and autocratic, as befits the part.

THE HIPPODROME.—Proprietors, The Wigan Entertainments Co.—Aunt Matilda is a most amusing sketch, by Frank Elliston and company; and Haley's Juveniles are well-trained singers and descriptive dancers. The Gladenbacks give a very fine gymnastic display, the lady performing marvellous feats of strength gracefully; Jean Seul is styled an Indian conjuror; J. H. Greener, singing pit lad, is recalled nightly; and Gillin is a skilful ventriloquial humorist. Good comedy is also furnished by France and Francis (acrobats), Bert Bowden, Little Zola, and Walter Stanton.

WOLVERHAMPTON.—GRAND THEATRE.—Lessees and Managers, Mr. E. H. Bull and Mr. Milton Bode; Acting-Manager, Mr. Percy Percival.—A return visit after a few years' interval of the successful musical play Florodora is being much appreciated. The production is by Mr. J. Bannister Howard's No. 1 Company. The part of Anthony Tweedlepunch is taken by Mr. Alf. E. Passmore, who keeps the audience in continual laughter by his admirable interpretation; Mr. Stanley White is a satisfactory Cyrus Gilfain; Mr. H. V. Cropton is a very effective Frank Abercoed; and Mr. Harold Perry does well as Captain Arthur Donegal. Miss Daisy Lake essays the part of Dolores, and sings and acts with great success; Miss Lilly Gullick is a charming little Angela Gilfain, her vocal efforts being capitally rendered; Miss Kate Leicester does admirably as Lady Holyrood; and the other characters are all in good hands.

YORK.—ROYAL.—Lessees, Messrs. Waddington; Acting-Manager, H. J. Dacre.—The Soldier's Wedding, admirably played by Mr. Walter Melville's company, has drawn large audiences during the week. Mr. Wingold Laurence's impersonation of Jack Brown is at once a strong and manly effort; Mr. Beresford Whitcomb makes Colonel Graham a popular and interesting personage; as Tommy Sprat Mr. A. Gambier Melford has unlimited scope, and proves an able comedian; Miss Marie McAulay's fine stage presence is exactly suited to the part of Julie de Beauvrals; and Miss Ettie Carlisle is dainty and amusing as Lizzie. A more natural and sympthetic rendering of Nancy Lee than that given by Miss Jessie Winter could not be wished for. Special praise is also due to Little Albert, Miss Georgie De Lara, and Mr. Frederick Biron for their able renditions.

OPERA HOUSE.—Managing-Director, Mr. Wm. Peacock; Acting-Manager, Mr. Sidney Brooke.—Mr. Jack Haddon's merry pantomime Jack and the Beanstalk has done good business during the present week. As Jack, Miss Kitty Upton is lively to a degree; her songs are rendered in sprightly fashion, and her success is as great as it is deserved. Miss Nellie Burdette looks charming as Dora, and gives a delightful impersonation; Mr. Hal Forde as the Dame is once more quaintly amusing; and Mr. Alfred Maynall extracts a lot of fun out of Silly Billy. Mr. Haddon uses his fine voice to advantage as the Baron; Messrs. Barrett and Knowles as Dip and Dap are genuinely funny in all their business, and must be complimented upon a very neat and enjoyable performance.

ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

An organ recital was given at the Royal Academy on Monday afternoon. In memory of Mr. Thomas Threlfall, director and chairman of the Committee of Management, who died Feb. 3, 1907, the Introduction and Funeral March (Coriolanus), organ, by A. C. Mackenzie, was played by Mr. Ralph Letts, during the performance of which the audience remained standing. Bach's Adagio and Vivace, from Sonata in D minor for organ, was performed by Miss Kathleen Robinson; and Mackenzie's Andante from Concerto (violin) was neatly executed by Mr. Henry O. Parsons, the organ being ably played by Mr. Montague F. Phillips. A not particularly interesting Allegretto and Presto comodo for ogan from E. Elgar's Sonata in G was cleverly rendered by Mr. George Swidenbank

LONDON & SUBURBAN THEATRES.

THE MARLBOROUGH.

On Monday, Feb. 11,
"THE GONDOLIERS."

The renaissance of Gilbert and Sullivan's operas should command the generous support of all who appreciate pungent humour wedded to tuneful music. The Gondoliers, as presented on Monday evening, has, it was evident, lost none of its original attractiveness. Mr. Charles R. Walenn as the Duke of Plaza Toro reminded one very forcibly of the original representative of the rôle, and the audience were quick to catch the subtle humour of his interpretation of the character. Mr. Fred Billington as the Grand Inquisitor gave just the right amount of pedantic pomposity to the part to render it amusing. Through the regrettable indisposition of Mr. Pacie Rippte, the rôle of Marco was played by Mr. Stafford Moss, whose rendering of that favourite song, "Take a pair of sparkling eyes," was heartily appreciated. As Luiz, Mr. Leicester Tunks played and sang with marked ability. Mr. Albert Kavanagh as the gondolier, Giuseppe, furnished a skilled representation of the character, and sang with effect both in duet and solo. The parts of Duchess of Plaza Toro and her daughter, Casilda, were skilfully filled by Miss Theresa Rassam and Miss Mabel Graham. The acting and singing of Miss Hope Hastings as Gianetta reached a high standard of excellence. Miss Lulu Evans as Tessa played with care, and achieved success. Mr. T. Silver, the musical director, richly earned the rich encomiums which were expressed on all sides at the able manner in which the various numbers were presented. The chorus were always well in hand. The week's bill includes Iolanthe, Patience, The Mikado, H.M.S. Pinafore, and other old favourites.

KING'S, HAMMERSMITH.

On Monday, Feb. 11,
"HIS HOUSE IN ORDER."

The first suburban production of such a typical Pinero comedy as His House in Order, with a reputation of over a year's run, was bound to prove a decided attraction at the King's, and on Monday night a crowded and delighted audience received with acclamation Mr. George Alexander's specially-selected and evenly-balanced company in this latest St. James's success. From principal character to the smallest speaking part every detail had been well studied, and the representation should make Mr. Alexander feel proud of his provincial company. Mr. Frank Fenton as Hilary Jesson had a part which fitted this talented actor to a nicety. His diplomacy and good humour in the delicate domestic situations wherein he takes a hand were portrayed with all the finesse of an Ambassador. In the unsympathetic character of Filmer Jesson, M.P., Mr. Cyril Harcourt succeeded admirably where many an actor would have failed. A clever little girl, Miss Moyna Hill, gave a decidedly good rendering of Derek Jesson. Mr. George Fitzgerald's delineation of Sir Daniel Ridgeley caught the fancy of the audience immediately. Pryce Ridgeley was in the very able hands of Mr. George Silver. Mr. Lloyd Lowndes undertook the part of Major Maurewarde with satisfactory results; and Mr. A. E. Benedict scored largely as the pushing Dr. Dilnott. Mr. Langford Browne was praiseworthy as Harding. Miss Auriol Lee appeared as Nina, not for the first time, as she played the part at the St. James's during the temporary absences of Miss Irene Vanbrugh. Nothing but praise could be bestowed upon Miss Lee for her performance, and the audience fully recognised her exceptional ability. Mrs. Kemmis, an experienced actress, capitally emphasised the acidity of Lady Ridgeley. As Geraldine Ridgeley Miss Audrey Campbell acted with telling effect. Miss Lilli Kehr sustained fascinatingly and with spirit the character of the French governess, Mlle. Thome. The scenery and appointments were in every respect admirable.

THE SHAKESPEARE.

"THE LITTLE MICHUS."

The visit of Mr. George Dance's company in the delightful comic opera, The Little Michus, had been eagerly anticipated by patrons of the Shakespeare Theatre, and, therefore, at the opening performance on Monday it was not surprising to find the house packed from floor to ceiling with an appreciative audience. That their expectations were fully realised was very evident by the enthusiasm which prevailed throughout the play; and, indeed, they could hardly have been otherwise, for the sparkling music and witty lines, together with a capital company, fine scenery, and magnificent costumes, made the performance as bright and attractive as could be desired. The acting and singing all round was excellent. The Little Michus were represented by Miss Alice Coverick as Marie Blanche and Miss Gipsy Dale as Blanche Marie, their artistic presentation of the rôles quickly winning the favour of the audience. They were heard to advantage in several songs, and gained an encore for their pretty rendering of the duet, "St. Valentine." An interesting and clever impersonation of Mme. Michu was given by Miss Mary Young, who acted her part with marked ability, and rendered her songs with taking effect. Miss May Marshall as Mlle. Herpin also contributed a good performance. Mlle. Marjorie as Mlle. St. Cyr gained much applause for her speciality dancing, which was executed with grace. Much of the success of the play was due to Mr. Foster Courtenay, whose clever delineation of the eccentric General des Ifs was irresistibly funny, and kept the audience in uproarious laughter whenever he was on the stage. He was well supported by Mr. Gilbert Childs, whose droll antics in the rôle of Bagnolet greatly added to the fun. Some excellent work was put in by Mr. William Everard, who gained several well-deserved encores for his excellent singing. Mr. Robert C. Harcourt was satisfactory in the part of the lovesick Aristide Vert; and Mr. Leon Simkin gave a very natural impersonation of Pierre Michu. The minor parts were capably sustained, and the augmented orchestra, under the direction of Mr. Otto Manns, rendered good service. Mr. Herbert Dunbar is manager, and Mr. Leon Simkin stage-manager, for Mr. George Dance.

GRAND, WOOLWICH.

On Monday, Feb. 11, the Musical Play,
"THE GIRL BEHIND THE COUNTER."

Following his commendable custom of supplying his patrons with everything in turn, Mr. Clarence Sounes, after drawing crowded houses last week with a stirring melodrama, this week presents his friends with a bright musical entertainment in the shape of Mr. Mouillot's well-selected company in The Girl Behind the Counter. For the title-rôle a charming representative has been found in Miss Norah Brocklebank, who acts easily and naturally, and at the same time with a grace and distinction all her own. Miss Brocklebank is the happy possessor of a beautifully modulated speaking voice, a particularly happy effort being her flower-song duet with Mr. Arthur Cartwright. The last-named actor is excellently suited as Charles Chetwyn, his straightforward, manly style and fine presence being thoroughly in keeping with the part, and his resonant voice enabling him to give his songs with great effect. Miss Olivia Eltone plays Millie Mostyn with charming propriety, and is soon on excellent terms with her audience, notably clever being her portrayal of the Manageress's careful self-restraint, combined with a determination to make the most of her chances. As Ninette, Miss Rose Helene sings and dances her way through her part with delightful gaiety and insouciance. Miss Doris Langdon is a thoroughly efficient representative of Susie, and her evident good-humour doubles one's pleasure in watching her performance. As the General, Mr. H. B. Clarke Chadwick is a great success, and keeps his audience continually amused by his comic actions and witty delivery of his lines, while his "Sir Walter Raleigh" song is one of the hits of the evening. Mons. Jules Charmettes, as Duval, plays with a strength of characterisation unusual in musical comedy, and is warmly applauded. Viscount Gushington is admirably portrayed by Mr. Howard Cridland, who enacts the dandified young nobleman to the life, and is the cause of much amusement. Mr. Frederick Parks puts in a lot of good work as the office-boy, and is responsible for a good deal of laughter. Miss Winnifred Knightley does exceedingly well with the rather meagre part of Lady Willoughby; a delightful bit of character-acting is submitted by Mr. A. M. Moore as the Waiter; and Mr. Geoffrey Allsop is amusing as the Commissionaire. The chorus is well drilled and unusually tuneful, the concerted numbers being rendered with particularly good effect.

CORONET THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 11,
"THE NEW ALADDIN."

Close on the heels of the pantomime season Mr. George Edwardes's Gaiety company is appearing this week at the cosy Notting Hill Gate Theatre in the musical extravaganza, or panto up-to-date, The New Aladdin. Another link in the chain is the highly successful impersonation of Lally by Miss Cressie Leonard, who created such a favourable impression in the recent pantomime of The Forty Thieves here. The piece is beautifully staged and mounted, and the new lamp burns with dazzling brightness and displays a bewilderingly beautiful and ingenious design, which quite takes away the breath of the conventional pantomime patron. The scene of the Palace in Far Cathay, by J. and P. Harker, and the Ideal London by Hawes Craven are scenes of beauty and a joy to all lovers of artistic and picturesque setting. A capital cast interprets the merry theme of this modernised version of the fairy story. As aforesaid, Miss Cressie Leonard plays the part of Lally, and she is very smart, active, and alert, as well as handsome and graceful in the rôle, and materially enhances her already high reputation as a first-rate male impersonator. Her song "Good-bye, Mr. Elephant," with its pretty dance to follow, is rapturously encored. Miss Ida Rene as the Princess is full of sparkle and animation, and her rendering of descriptive songs is distinguished by a je ne sais quoi which is most effective and engrossing. Her songs, "Buy a big balloon," "Married three days," and the charming "Grandmamma" song and dance," are delightfully rendered. Mr. George Gregory is the essence of comicality as Tippin, the page boy, and a tireless comedian ever ready to meet any emergency in the matter of fun-making. His duet and dance with Lally, "Down in Covent Garden," is splendidly rendered, and his singing, acting, and dancing throughout is everything that could be desired. Mr. Fred Leslie, jun., is well to the fore as the Genie of the Lamp, and proves himself a worthy follower in his father's footsteps by his versatility and ability in the rôle. His songs, "Rub the lamp," "The gay no-hat brigade," and "Waltz me around, Willie," and the dances which follow them are most divertingly delivered. Miss Jessie Lonnen is most fetching as the Charm of Paris, and her rendition of the naughty little French song and her dainty dancing are vociferously encored. Miss Nellie Lonnen also scores in the calisthenic line as Loaloh, a dancing girl; and Mr. Ernest Mahar's capital rendering with her of the famous Fragson ditty is much appreciated. Mr. John Brabourne is delightfully droll as the slow-thinking, slow-moving, lost policeman, and the scenes in which he appears supply some of the most novel and excruciatingly funny incidents in the piece. Miss Irene Verona has caught the Connie Ediss manner to a nicety, and as the amiable and adipose spirit of the ring she is immensely absurd. Her song "Back to the Strand" is capitally sung. Mr. Frank Hector acts with animation, and makes his mark in the small part of Cadi, a disgraced ambassador; and last, but not least, Miss Mary Fraser creates a most pleasing impression as the comely Scotch lassie with her song about "Dougal," and some smart costumes and dainty dancers. Miss Edith Denton also deserves commendation for her graceful and dexterous dancing. Great praise is due to a bevy of pretty maidens, too numerous to mention, who, together with their male supporters and the children who take part in the piece, materially assist in its success. Mr. Trueman Towers acts as stage-manager, with Mr. Herbert Cathcart in the front of the house and Mr. Ernest Vousden wielding the conductor's bâton.

THE CROWN, PECKHAM.

"THE WHITE CHRYSANTHEMUM."

Mother Goose having concluded her very successful career, we are now having a great musical treat in the Criterion success, The White Chrysanthemum. Needless to say Mr. Frank Curzon's principal No. 1 Company represents the production to the best advantage. Miss Dorothy Court makes a dainty Japanese maiden of the White Chrysanthemum, and her voice is of very fine quality and well trained. Her song in the second act is admirably rendered, and accompanied by some pleasing lighting effects. Mr. O. E. Lennon causes great amusement by his quaint impersonation of the almond-eyed Celestial Sin Chong, and his two songs, in which he is ably assisted by the chorus, are very successful. Mr. F. Pope Stamper looks and acts well as Lieutenant Armitage, and has a good singing voice. Miss Maisie North makes a fascinating young widow of Betty Kenyon, and her song, "Hints," is archly delivered. Miss Gracie Sinclaire looks very prepossessing as the American heiress Cornelia Vanderdecken, and her song and dance in the third act are most effectively rendered. Mr. Davy Burnaby plays well as the dude, Lieutenant "Chippy" Belmont; and Mr. Harry Paulton, jun., proves that he inherits his father's talents by his mirth-provoking assumption of Private Perks. Mr. St. John Hamund is good as the amorous Sir Horatio Armitage, and his topical song, "The latest news," is one of the hits of the piece. The scenery is extremely pretty, and the orchestra is under the able direction of Mr. Leonard Hornsey. There is also a very tuneful and well-drilled chorus, consisting of pretty Geisha girls and Jolly Jack tars, the whole production being very favourably received.

TERRISS, ROTHERHITHE.

"MARITANA."

This week we have a rare musical treat in the presence of Mr. J. W. Turner and his well-known company in a repertory of English opera. The piece selected for Monday night was the old favourite, Maritana, which was beautifully staged and excellently performed. The title-rôle was admirably represented by Miss Kitty Brownlees, who gave her various pleasing musical numbers with much ability, and her song, "Scenes that are brightest," was splendidly rendered. Her acting also merits considerable praise. Mr. J. W. Turner one again repeated his well-known impersonation of Don Cæsar, giving his famous songs, "Memories of the past" and "Let me like a soldier fall," with such excellent effect that encores were loudly demanded. Miss Jessie Dennis sings very sweetly, and made a very favourable impression as the page, Lazarillo. Mr. John Ridding was a picturesque Don José, and was loudly encored for his principal song, "Happy moments day by day." Mr. Tom Griffiths was good as Charles II. Miss Maud Esdale ably assisted in the humorous portions of the opera as the Marchioness; Mr. R. Cummings gave an able character-sketch as the senile Marquis de Montefiore; the Alcade was well played by Mr. R. Thornley; and Mr. George Ridding made a capital Captain of the Guard. There is a large and admirably trained chorus. The whole performance was received with much enthusiasm. During the week, in addition to Maritana, The Bohemian Girl, The Lily of Killarney, Daughter of the Regiment, and Faust are included in the bill.

CRYSTAL PALACE THEATRE.

On Monday, Feb. 11, the Play, in Three Acts, by Jerome K. Jerome, entitled "TOMMY."

Throughout the whole of this charming play, which is this week interesting and amusing Mr. Bannister Howard's patrons in Sydenham and neighbourhood, runs a pleasant literary flavour, contrasting effectively with the love-interest and the strong dramatic developments of the second and third acts. The dialogue, too, is full of sparkle and repartee, none of which is lost in the clear rendering given by the small, but efficient, company assembled by Miss Annie Hughes. Mr. Evelyn Vernon as the too conscientious and consequently struggling editor of the alleged comic weekly journal, Good Humour, is so quietly effective that at times one is led to forget that he is acting, and to sympathise with him when worried by business failure and when deprived of the great solace of his snuffbox. The practical views and common-sense of William Clodd as the manager of the paper are in striking contrast to his chief's unworldliness. He is the embodiment of a smart business man, with an eye to the main chance, and yet not without an underlying vein of sentiment where the heroine is concerned. The attributes of the character are realistically suggested by Mr. Willie Hartill, whose performance is very meritorious. Flipp, the office boy, in the hands of Mr. Robert F. Beach, is a typical impersonation of the cheeky junior, with plenty to say and a good sense of humour. As Dick Danvers Mr. Rupert Lister is quite equal to the heavy calls on his powers made by the character of a reformed rake, his discreet suggestion of a cultured Irish brogue having much charm, while his lighter scenes and love-making are equally as effective as the more sombre parts of the character developed towards the end of the play. We do not remember ever having seen Miss Annie Hughes to greater advantage than in the title-rôle of this play. In her characterisation there is girlish fun and animation, changing to real pathos and intensity under the trials and disappointments she has to meet, and her natural embodiment reached a high order of dramatic art, and fully deserved the plentiful rounds of applause accorded her. Miss Winifred Pearson as the "villainess" of the piece is unmistakably in earnest, and looks the part eminently well. Her scenes with Tommy, her rival for the hand of Dick Danvers, are full of force and conviction. Miss Ida Richardson is entrusted with the sad part of Honour, the little daughter of the adventuress, and her experienced acting was most useful to the play. The dresses worn by the ladies are rich and varied, and altogether the engagement gave every evidence of a real success.

KENNINGTON THEATRE.

"THE BEAUTY OF BATH."

A large and appreciative audience assembled at the Kennington Theatre on Monday to welcome the first visit of Mr. George Dance's principal company in The Beauty of Bath, one of the brightest and most mirthful musical plays of the day. Mr. Dance's production has been brought completely down to date, so that those who witnessed The Beauty of Bath's début at the Aldwych Theatre some twelve months since were delighted with new songs and fresh business. The changes are all for the best, and as a result the piece is thoroughly topical, and assured of a great reception on its provincial tour. The music is lively and tuneful, and the lilting melody, "Betty, the Beauty of Bath," lingers long in the memory. The dances are tricky and clever, the libretto full of genuine humour, and the staging and accessories are of the highest order. Gay and picturesque is the scene in the first act, when the foyer of the Mascot Theatre is filled with beautifully-gowned ladies and well-groomed men, whilst the Ball Room in the second act forms an effective set. The company is composed of artists of the front rank, and is particularly strong on the comedy side. Mr. Leslie Holland is a manly and sailorly Lieut. Richard Alington, acting with consummate skill, and infusing a rollicking dash into his love-making, which makes him a warm favourite. Miss Gladys Guy is winsome and fascinating as the Hon. Betty Silverthorne, the Beauty of Bath, putting a lot of vivacity into her interpretation of the part, and singing well. In the song, "Au revoir, my little hyacinth," she is joined by Mr. F. H. Pedgrift, a young baritone with a splendid voice. The hyacinth song, with its haunting refrain, proves the hit of the evening. As Lord Quorn, Mr. Reggie Grey makes a big hit; whilst Mr. Sheriff Clunes is very good in the character of Mr. Beverley. Sir Timothy Bun, in the skilful hands of Mr. Jack Crichton, is the mainspring of the comedy, and is a genuine humorist; and Miss Ida Laurie is quaint as Mrs. Goodge. Miss Jessie Fraser proved herself a sweet singer and nice dancer as Miss Truly St. Cyr; whilst the charming Miss Maggie White, in the part of Dorothy Bun, obtained a double encore for her clever vocalisation of a comic song to ballad music. Mr. F. Leister was a stately Viscount Bellingham; Miss Edith Cruikshanks made an ideal motherly Mrs. Alington; and Miss Florence Hilton deserves mention as Lady Bun. The following ladies made an attractive octette of Bath Buns:—Misses F. Fowler, N. Wood, M. Hay, E. Vivian, E. Edwards, E. Lee, P. Clifford, and A. Burton, and they were all good dancers. Mr. T. E. Clarke took the part of the groom; and Mr. F. H. Pedgrift scored by his excellent singing as the Hon. Mr. Gorst. Mr. Gordon Seamford is in charge of the orchestra, and the entire production is in the hands of Mr. Leslie Holland, who is as proficient in stage-management as in acting.

COUNTY THEATRE, KINGSTON.

On Monday, Feb. 11, the Farcical Play,
"THE ELECTRIC MAN."

Mr. J. B. Mulholland's company is appearing this week at the Royal County Theatre in this ingenious and amusing production, and a most favourable reception has been accorded it. Mr. Bernard Copping plays the dual rôle of Walter Everest and "the electric man," and in the latter capacity especially contributes largely to the success of the play. A capital impersonation of the part of Dr. Strange is given by Mr. Sydney Lynn; and Mr. Legai Robinson acquits himself admirably as the amateur detective, Mr. Jobbins. Miss Dorothy Hullah makes a stately and dignified Mrs. Everest; whilst Mr. Chris Grace is an admirable General Pomeroy. A word of commendation is deserved by Miss Amy Fanchette, who scores successfully as the landlady, Mrs. Anderson; and Miss Isa Bellington is an engaging Mary and Miss Gertrude Tate is an acceptable Stella. The farce is preceded by the comedietta An Obliging Friend, in which the parts were taken as follows: Frank Dutton, Mr. Sydney Lynn; Julius Wopper, Mr. Legai Robinson; Mrs. Wopper, Miss Amy Fanchette; Ellen Audrey, Miss Gertrude Tate; and Susan, Miss Dorothy Hullah.

THE PAVILION.

On Monday, Feb. 11, the Drama, entitled
"SATAN IN PARADISE."

The Jewish Operatic and Dramatic Company, with their combination, gave a performance on Monday evening of Lateiner's drama, Satan in Paradise, which was evidently well appreciated by the audience assembled at the Pavilion in large numbers. They followed the play with keen attention, and evinced great interest at the pathetic incidents throughout the piece. Although the title may appear to be somewhat startling, yet there is no glamour of legendary romance in the story, which is of a very simple character, dealing entirely with the domestic side of life. Mr. C. Natanson's fine voice and dignified manner were well fitted for the representation of Yosele, which he played with firmness and determination. Mme. Natanson realised the dramatic possibilities of the part, and gave an impersonation of Henele which was natural, sympathetic, and at times powerful. Mr. J. Fineberg emphasised the malevolence of the malformed Leizerke with conspicuous success; and Mr. J. Goldsmith enacted with skill and care the part of the Minister. Mr. Isaacowitch must be awarded all praise for his clever handling of Alikum. Mr. S. Schilling as Binom and Miss R. Bryh as Zisele, with their duets and dances, created unbounded delight, the audience being vociferous in their demands for encores. The Malke Khane of Mme. Goldstein was meritorious; and able assistance was rendered by Mr. N. Hamburger as Banka and Miss Lubritzky as a child. During the week, Thirty Years Under the Earth, Menasha, Esther and Haman, Anna Karenina, The Jewish Hamlet, and Holy Sabbath have been billed.

THE WEST LONDON.

"WOMAN AND WINE."

Nearly ten years have elapsed since this drama, written by Messrs. Arthur Shirley and Ben Landeck, was produced at the Pavilion Theatre, Mile End; and the Zola-like realism of some of the scenes caused considerable sensation. It will be remembered that the hero, a weak-willed law student, is drawn into the meshes of a Parisian Phryne, named Marcel Rigadout. She, however, has not been quite able to swamp his better nature or his nobler resolves by her pretended love, and fearing the influence of the young man's good genius, Mary Andrews, she compromises her in the eyes of her lover. At a later stage of the story we see the sensational results of the rivalry between Marcel and the demi-mondaine known as "La Colombe." The last-mentioned is bent upon revenge; and the women after a ball meet in the market-place at the break of dawn. At first La Colombe's bold challenge to fight with knives is laughed at by Marcel, but stung beyond endurance by the taunt hissed in her ear, she strips off her ballroom dress, and in bodice and petticoat, with bare arms and neck, clasps the knife that the ghoul-like Crucru has just sharpened; La Colombe follows her example, and the women face each other for a fight to the death, Crucru and the bully Beaudet being the only witnesses of the scene. Marcel is stabbed to the heart by her furious antagonist, and falls dead. The body is placed by the two men in a large coffin-like box, and covered with roses. Presently the heroine comes to buy her daily stock of blooms, and while making up her poses uncovers to her horror the face of the murdered woman.

The drama is admirably performed by the members of Miss Mary Austin and Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds' company. The hero, Dick Seymour, is played with much earnestness and power by Mr. E. Vivian Edmonds, who in the scenes of stress and passion makes a very vivid impression, his excellent acting evoking the hearty applause of the audience. Miss Violet Sims as Mary Andrews presents a striking contrast to the two women just mentioned, and quite realises the gentle, lovable character of the heroine. Her terror and horror when she catches a glimpse of Marcel in the rose-littered box are expressed with harrowing fidelity, and she again scores where Mary in a dream assists at the trial of her lover. There is much to commend in Miss Cissie St. Elmo's portrayal of the dangerously fascinating Marcel Rigadout, and she avails herself of all the opportunities the part presents. Miss Joan Pereira puts passion and purpose into her decidedly telling impersonation of La Colombe. Both ladies engage in the sensational fight with spirit and determination. Mr. Fred W. Goddard deserves every credit for his very effective handling of the part of the bully, Alphonso Beaudet. Mr. John S. Haydon plays well as Hugh Seymour, Dick's father; and the part of Professor Santer is sustained with considerable humour by Mr. George H. Child. Mr. Harry Harrop does good work as Charles Santer, and Miss Ethel Vinroy acts the rôle of the young widow, Janet Marlow, with vivacious energy. Miss Gladys Osborne is suitably placed as Mme. Perinet. Mr. E. Edmonds supplies a neat character-sketch of Pierre Crucru; and Mr. Frank Thomas as the Duc d'Arnac, and Mr. Charles Hilton as the jockey, Bob Tipton, also deserve favourable mention. The various minor characters are all carefully played. Special mention should be made of the Lottie Stone troupe of whirlwind dancers, who are responsible for some clever work in the ballroom scene. The play is mounted in elaborate style, and special mention may be made of the ballroom and flower market scenes. The drama has been received with rapturous applause by crowded houses at the West London Theatre.

LYRIC OPERA HOUSE, HAMMERSMITH.

"THE ASSASSIN."

The Lyric's patrons this week have before them the above-named highly successful drama on Russian life. The play is presented by Mr. Augustine Knight, who also takes the leading part, Prince Demetri, exceedingly well. He is greeted with prolonged hissing whenever he appears on the stage. As Ivan Ipanoff Mr. Edward E. Ashby looks every inch a soldier, and is particularly good; the aristocratic Anarchist, Duke Karl, is successfully portrayed by Mr. Theo Balfour; Mr. Edwin Jenner, who also acts as general-manager, is good as the lazy Irish officer, Captain O'Neil; and Mr. Chauncy Morris makes a capital General Nicol, the Chief of Police. Miss Ella Vane cleverly performs her part of Countess Wanda, her duet with Prince Demetri being very effective; Miss Frances Waring is pathetic as Nita; as Connie Jonathan, the bluntly straightforward American visitor, Miss Hettie Senior is very popular; and the comedy is well supplied by Mr. Cecil H. Raymond as Baron Alfonso, Mr. Tom J. Taylor as Peter, and Miss Marie E. Robertson, a pretty and smart Katrina. A word of praise must be added for the way the play is costumed and staged. The military uniforms look very smart, and the scenery (by Mr. E. Egerton) is particularly effective.

GRAND, FULHAM.

On Monday, Feb. 11, the Comedy, entitled
"THE FREEDOM OF SUZANNE."

A good Hutchison company, with Miss Mabel Love in the title-rôle, has been attracting good houses to the Fulham this week. Miss Mabel Love is proving herself a very capable performer in light comedy, and the part of the wayward Suzanne suits her to a nicety. She acts with charming brightness and spirit, and shows a capital sense of humour, as well as plenty of feeling in the tender passages. The difficult part of the husband, Charles Trevor, is well undertaken by Mr. Templer Powell, and he quite succeeded in the second and third acts in enlisting the sympathies of the audience, in his efforts to regain the affections of his lady. The attractive rôle of Sir Horace Hatton is cleverly played by Mr. Patrick Quill; and Mr. F. G. Thurstans raises many a laugh by his humorous study of Suzanne's giddy old uncle, Harding. Mr. J. H. Batson gives a skilful sketch of the antique ladykiller, Lord Batchet; and Mr. Richard Neville puts a lot of good work into the rôle of Tommy Keston. Mr. Townsend Whitling plays the evil genius, Captain Cecil, in a sombre style, but with some power; and Mr. Bruce Smith is an efficient Butler. Miss Annie Stalman does well as Lady Charlotte, the mother-in-law, making the very most of the part; and Miss Florence Harwood is humorous as the companion, Minching. Miss Dorothy Lait does what is necessary as Mrs. Tustall; and Mrs. F. Turner is effective in the character of the Charwoman. Miss Violet Ley acts quietly and effectively as Lady Isabel, and adds to the effect of the impersonation by great personal charm. The dresses are exceedingly handsome, notably those worn by Miss Mabel Love and Miss Violet Ley, and the scenery contains some excellent sets. The Freedom of Suzanne is preceded by a little piece called Her Dearest Friend, capably acted by Miss Annie Stalman, Mr. P. Quill, and Miss Violet Ley.

THE ELEPHANT AND CASTLE.

On Monday, Feb. 11,
the Drama, in Four Acts, by Arthur Shirley, and Benjamin Landeck, entitled
"SAVED FROM THE SEA."

The popular stock company is, after a long run of pantomime, again holding the boards here, and with Mr. J. M. East's judicious selection of really popular dramas, excellent business is being done. Saved from the Sea, which is being presented this week, is full of intensely pathetic dramatic situations and thrilling incidents, which are extremely well balanced by a deal of excellent comedy; and the stock company, headed by that experienced and popular actor, Mr. Albert Ward, is entirely successful in both departments. Mr. Ward gives a fine, sterling embodiment of the young fisherman, Dan Ellington; Mr. W. H. Hatchman plays Peter Scalcher, the rascally inquiry agent, in a cool, calculating manner, whilst later, when as a convict he is answering for his misdeeds, he almost evokes the sympathies of the audience; Mr. Frank Stone submits a fine performance as the villain, Richard Fenton; Mr. Horace Hunter gives one of his carefully thought-out character studies as the surly Jim Weaver, attention to every little detail in dress and make-up being evident throughout; Mr. Teddy Coleman plays Billy Snooks in a rollicking vein; Mr. Frank Harrison is extremely funny as a lovesick young farmer, Jennings; Miss Marie Wright is full of life and fun as Polly Blake; and that experienced actress, Mrs. Calhaem, as Mrs. Blake gives a performance of remarkable merit. It was replete with all the best qualities of the old school of sterling acting. Miss Beaumont-Collins as Nancy Ellington acts with great emotional ability, her deep, thrilling voice being exactly suited to the portrayal of extreme mental anguish. In the scene where Nancy is parted from her husband the actress rises to a great height of dramatic expression. Miss Millie Reeves makes a refreshingly natural boy as Jack Ellington, Dan's child; Mr. C. Groves, jun., fills the part of Inspector Murphy with much credit, and as the venerable chaplain of Barchester gaol Mr. Bran Daly is successful, the Governor of the gaol being effectively impersonated by Mr. Francis Lyle. Other minor characters are safe in the hands of Miss Ettie Godfrey, and Messrs. Walter Pounds, Arthur James, Tom Parkes, and E. Godfrey. The scenery and effects are quite adequate.

THE STANDARD.

On Monday, Feb. 11, the Drama, entitled
"THE CONVICT'S DAUGHTER."

The intensely interesting drama, The Convict's Daughter, has been proving a powerful draw at the Standard this week. Nightly the theatre has been packed with an appreciative audience. This is largely due to the substantial and praiseworthy efforts of Mr. Ashley Page as Michael Grahame and Convict 89. He performs his arduous duties with ease, playing with force and skill throughout, and frequently with a touch of humour which is quite irresistible. Mr. W. Felton submits a telling impersonation of Frederick Neville; and Mr. Ernest E. Norris creates a favourable impression, and is convincing as Harold Trevalyen. As the rascally nephew, Jasper Thorn, Mr. J. C. Aubrey depicts the character with striking force, his assumption of the rôle being worthy of high praise. Mr. John Sargent plays to perfection as Frederick Harper, the superintendent of Blackmoor Gaol; and Mr. Johnny Chippendale as Patrick O'Laragan does much to enliven the proceedings of the evening. Miss East Robertson plays with sincerity and feeling as Marian Thorn, and Miss Mattie Everett is a lively and able Betty Hyne. Much praise is due to Miss Marion Denvil for her fine portrayal of Edith; she presents a capital example of high histrionic ability, and the part is very creditably sustained throughout. The mounting of the piece has received every attention, and the production is in every way a conspicuous success.

DALSTON THEATRE.

"AT CRIPPLE CREEK."

Lovers of realistic drama are this week being greatly delighted by the representations which the members of Miss Ida Molesworth and Mr. Mark Blow's company are giving at the Dalston Theatre of the exciting play At Cripple Creek. One of the chief characters in the play, the interest of which centres in a gold-mining camp in America, is represented by Mr. Stanley Bedwell, who appears as Joe Mayfield, and admirably plays the part of the rough-and-ready miner. Miss Agnes Verity as Dynamite Ann, who is very popular among the mining community, becomes a favourite with the audience. Mr. Eric Hudson as Martin Mason, the terror of Cripple Creek, and Mr. Oscar Power as Manuel Alvarez, a bully, represent a species of villain apparently indispensable in such plays; while a faithful Indian named Wahketah is effectivelp portrayed by Mr. Arthur D. Layland. Miss Lily Beagle as Belle Gordon, "the luckiest girl in the Creek," Miss Norah Dillon as Sarah Lively, and Miss Daisy Carlton as Maggie Mason each do well. It should be added that Miss Dillon takes part with Mr. Will Hook (Reggie Harwood) in a most amusing duet, entitled "Mr. Crocodile." The excellent company also includes Mr. Harry Leander, Mr. Charles Watson, Mr. Tom Sharp, Mr. Alfred Cooper, and Mr. Edward Rochester. The scenery and general effects are well managed.

COVENT GARDEN BALL.

The Shrove Tuesday ball held at Covent Garden was by far the most successful of the season. The proceedings were enlivened by the presence of the members of the Automobile Association in full force, and a souvenir, in the form of a fitted morocco satchel, was presented to each lady visitor. A handsome diamond star, the first prize, was taken by an artistic costume, "Real Wedgwood," a remarkably pretty dress, being an exact replica of the china figure. A costly fur coat was taken by "An English Rose." The following were some of the winners of the many other special prizes:—"Olden Days," "A Darkie Cake-walk," "A Garland of Gibson Girls," "The Jamaica Disaster" (with electrical effects), "Star of Ireland," "A Dutch Girl," and "Valentine's Day." "Pancakes" was the title of a "creation" in rich yellow satin trimmed with spangles, and with chiffon painted in imitation of pancakes, and surmounted by a head-dress constructed chiefly of electric lamps, but in the form of a frying-pan with a pancake inside. "London Day by Day" was quite up to date with a white satin dress on which were panels representing the opening of Parliament. A lady in red and black, with a large Mephisto hat and plenty of spangles, called herself "Red-and-Black Devil"; "Monte Carlo" was pretty in white, blue, and pink, with painted representations of gambling materials; and a variety of more familiar dresses, such as "Toreador," "Charles II.," "Swiss Peasant," and "Mephistopheles," as well as several handsome dominoes, added to the diversity and gaiety of the scene.

Dan Godfrey's band delighted the company with its usual well selected programme of popular dance music.

The next ball will be held on Friday, March 1.

MR. MULHOLLAND ON THE SUBURBAN THEATRE.

Mr. J. B. Mulholland delivered an address, entitled "A Straight Talk and Several Hobby Horses," to the members of the O.P. Club at the Criterion Restaurant on Sunday evening. Mr. Alfred R. Robbins presided, and there was a large attendance.

The chairman introduced Mr. Mulholland as an old friend of the Club, and a good friend to every playgoer in London. A straight talk generally meant something unpleasant, but he hoped that Mr. Mulholland would agreeably disappoint them on that occasion.

Mr. Mulholland said he had promised to deliver a straight talk, and he thought he might begin with a straight question, which would indicate the nature of at least one of his hobby-horses. This question was—what magic was there in the charmed circle of the half-mile radius that prevented the recognition of achievement in any direction outside that charmed circle? He hoped that this straight question would be answered by some of the fervid playgoers present, as he considered it was a very regrettable thing in the interests of play making and play producing. This had not always been so. He had been credited with being the founder of the suburban theatre. In the suburban theatre he built some thirteen years ago one of the foundation-stones was the discovery of the new author, the production of new plays, and the manufacture of new audiences from the great army of the indifferent or the hostile. Notwithstanding what one had heard in some directions, there was no doubt that the first-night Press criticisms had a very great effect with regard to the success or otherwise of a new play, especially if it was put on for a short run. In those early days the first nights at the suburban theatre were on a level with those in the West-end, the only difference being that in the suburbs they had a genuine paying audience. But he believed that in the success achieved lay the germ of failure, because, as these theatres increased and multiplied, inferior melodramas were produced, the result being that the leading critics ceased to attend, and their journals were represented by sub-deputy-assistant critics, who had neither the courage nor the experience to praise strongly or to blame strongly. They asked for fair criticism, not for praise, for when blame was well administered it was often more stimulating and helpful than praise. He was not sure whether as these suburban theatres increased some influence was not brought to bear, because certain managers in the West-end felt that these outlying theatres, instead of being helpful in creating new audiences—as he had already suggested—were in the nature of opposition, and, instead of being outposts of the dramatic army on the frontier, were placed there to cut off the supplies. As time went on indifference set in, which, in certain directions, gradually drifted into hostility. Mr. Mulholland then proceeded to read extracts from an article from the pen of Mr. William Archer, which appeared some weeks ago in the Tribune, and in which the present theatrical system was criticised, reference being made to the suburban theatres. It was stated that these theatres should be training schools for actors, but that not one of them had any independent life of its own, except the Standard at Shoreditch. It was also alleged by Mr. Archer that the suburban stage feebly mirrored the West-end productions, and a mimicry was practised which scarcely deserved to be called acting. Mr. Mulholland went on to say that he was asked by Mr. Archer to give his views on the article. Well, he did give his views to Mr. Archer's representative, but they were unfit for publication. He, however, pointed out the discrepancies contained in the article, and next week Mr. Archer said it was with amazement he learned that his remarks had given acute displeasure to one of the suburban managers. At the very time the article in question appeared such well-known actors as Mr. John Hare, Miss Lillian Braithwaite, Mr. Seymour Hicks, and others were appearing at the suburban theatres. The speaker then read a list of well-known plays that had within the last few years been produced at suburban houses, and pointed out that Miss Wynne-Matthison was scarcely noticed when she appeared in one of the first problem plays in the suburbs, but later, when she appeared in a poor part in the West-end, her great talents were recognised in all directions. Then, again, Mr. Workman, the Jack Point in the recent Savoy revival, had been seen in the suburbs for the last ten years. Why was he not discovered? The speaker also referred to Mr. George Thorn, and to Miss Ellen Terry, who appeared for the first time in The Good Hope, in the suburbs. On that occasion one of the most important of the daily papers declined to send a representative, because it was only a suburban production. All present were professing playgoers, but how many were going on the following evening to see the new play at the Camden Theatre? He asked those who were going to put up their hands. Only one hand—that showed he was justified in his remarks. Mr. Mulholland next referred to the conversion of the Grand Theatre, Islington, the Brixton, the Stoke Newington, the Richmond, and the Ealing theatres into music halls. While appreciating the admirable artistic work one witnessed at the halls, he thought that most of them had a higher opinion of the destinies of the theatre than that it should become a two-houses-a-night music hall. The question to be considered was, how could they put this thing right. Forty years ago they had the resident-manager at the provincial theatres, and he was surrounded by a stock company, and these stock companies were composed of excellent, hard-working, experienced actors and actresses. And then, too, the managers were actors first and business men afterwards. He was afraid that the opposite was now the rule; the theatres were largely controlled by trusts, the managers being mere figure-heads. Now, there was only one producing centre—London, whereas there used to be from twenty to a hundred producing centres in the provinces. The author had in those days a better chance of getting his play produced. He believed that, with one exception, all the new plays he had himself produced had been hawked round to every West-end manager, who, however, could not afford to risk trying an unknown author. Of course, there were a few exceptions to this rule. The West-end theatre was frequented by the late-diner and the passive digester. The piece played only two hours, but when it went into the provinces that did not satisfy the provincial playgoer, the first piece being only a time-killer. He therefore preferred the music hall entertainment, which he got at a lower price. The West-end successes were often played by inferior travelling companies, the actors' salaries having been cut down as low as possible. He estimated that a generation of playgoers was not more than seven or eight years, and unless help was forthcoming the music hall would in that period become universal.

After a few remarks from the chairman, Mr. Johnson, a member of the committee of the Club, said he thought that the majority of those present would agree in the main with Mr. Mulholland, but he himself did not altogether agree with the reasons he set forth for the present state of things.

Mr. James Glover followed with a racy speech, pointing out that Mr. Mulholland had told the audience nothing new. He did not know what that gentleman wanted the dramatic critic or the O.P. Club to do.

Other speakers followed, and Mr. Mulholland having replied, the meeting closed with a vote of thanks to him and to the chairman.

"MAJOR JENNINGS."

Original Farce, in Three Acts, by F. A. Besant Rice, Produced on Monday, Feb. 11, at the Camden Theatre.

John Steadman ..... MR. PERCY MARSHALL
Mr. Philip Stephens .... MR. ARTHUR G. BROWN
Mr. Prince ..... MR. JAMES R. LA FANE
Hewett ..... MR. ROBERT BOTTOMLEY
Miss Rosalie Adelaide Phelps ..... MISS EUGENIE VERNIE
Mrs. Iddles ..... MISS KATHARINE STEWART
Miss Charlotte Grover ..... MISS NELLY GRIFFEN
Mrs. O'Shea ..... MISS AUDREY STAFFORD
Miss Williams ..... MISS BEATRICE MARSDEN
Samuel Iddles ..... MR. E. M. ROBSON

Mr. F. A. Besant Rice bears two names whose literary partnership as novel-writers during the Victorian era was almost as famous as that of Erckmann-Chatrian, and it was therefore with peculiar pleasure that we heard on Monday evening, at the Camden Theatre, the hearty welcome accorded by a popular audience to an original farce from his pen. Many productions of the kind that have been given on the London stage have been taken from the French, and, as we have often complained in these columns, the abstraction of the Gallic naughtiness has resulted in the whittling away of the fun. Mr. Rice owes nothing to a Parisian original, but has utilised simple material with no little dramatic skill, and mostly with a sense of humour. His comic situations show, too, that he has the instinct of the theatre; and it is only necessary for him to cut the lengthy dialogue in places and to pull the piece together to make it entirely acceptable to a popular audience. Major Jennings is decidedly promising.

The action of the piece takes place on three consecutive days in June, and the scene of the three acts is the offices of the Infallible Matrimonial Agency, Duke-street, St. James's. Mr. John Steadman, the proprietor, deplores the dulness of business to his friend Samuel Iddles. People now go in for motoring instead of marriage, complains Steadman, and little Iddles regrets that he did not adopt a chauffeur instead of taking a wife. Iddles happens to be the very man that Steadman wants to see. Would he just take charge of the office during his absence? Iddles reluctantly consents, and from that moment is plunged into a maelstrom of trouble. He sends his first applicant, a long-haired versifier who desires a rich alliance, to an irate widow, who hates the very name of poet; he is made violent love to by Mrs. O'Shea, an Irish widow; and is taken aback when his wife's sister calls and wishes to be placed among Steadman's clients. The situation is compromising for both, and a compact between the two to say nothing about it is sealed with a kiss.

This osculation contributes further to the undoing of Iddles. His forward conduct with a lady client is reported by the typewriter to Steadman, and that unscrupulous bounder makes use of his knowledge to coerce Iddles into a temporary impersonation of Major Jennings from India, in order that Mrs. Rosalie Adelaide Phelps, the violent-tempered widow, may not be disappointed. The return of the poet, bruised and battered, from an interview with Mrs. Phelps, adds to the fun, the climax being reached in the last act with the arrival of the very large wife of the diminutive Iddles, who is threatened with divorce but eventually taken back and forgiven. As the curtain is falling for the last time the arrival of the real Major Jennings is announced.

Mr. E. M. Robson, whose name is in large type on the programme, is an admirable farce actor, and the comic terror, exaggerated strut, and amusing swagger of little Iddles as represented by him always make for laughter. He introduces genuine comic business, which he will no doubt much increase during his association with the character. Mr. Percy Marshall, an actor of whom we see too little in London, lies with admirable sangfroid as John Steadman, the ready resource of the impecunious proprietor of the matrimonial agency being admirably suggested by the actor, who plays throughout with a light-hearted gaiety that is infectious, and does not miss a point in the dialogue. Mr. Arthur G. Brown as Philip Stephens, in make-up and manner, reminds one of Archibald Grosvenor, the idyllic poet in Patience, and makes the part stand out by his excellent treatment. Miss Eugenie Vernie as Mrs. Phelps gives droll effect to that lady's paroxysms of despair and outbursts of middle-aged tenderness; Miss Katharine Stewart, by her stature and "firmness" of manner, realises the wife who makes little Iddles "sit up"; Miss Audrey Stafford is a fascinating Mrs. O'Shea, anxious for a second essay in matrimony; Miss Beatrice Marsden makes an attractive Miss Williams, the typewriter; Mr Robert Bottomley is a smart page boy; Mr. James R. La Fane contributes a neat bit of character as Prince, a bailiff; and Miss Nelly Griffen adds to the success as Miss Charlotte Grover.

GUILDHALL SCHOOL OF MUSIC.

At the students' recital on Wednesday evening the first item on the programme was a piano solo by Miss Edith Ballard, of Paderewski's "Allegro Agitato." Miss Jennie Watson played Wieniawski's "Legende" for her violin solo, and produced a good tone, but the work is beyond her executive power at present; and Miss Elizabeth Weiss, a very youthful performer, was fairly successful in Raff's piano solo "Tambourine." A mandoline solo on "Russian Airs" (De Beriot) was one of the most attractive instrumental performances of the concert; it was played by Miss L. Ida Cooper, a clever pupil of Mme. Waldahoff. Next in order of merit was Miss Gladys Beable's rendering of Chopin's "Polonaise in A," and a neatly-executed violin solo, "Petit air varié," Op. 89, by Dancla, by Miss Gwenllian Richards. The vocal pieces were two songs by Mallinson, "Let them not vanish" and "The Servian Maid," sung by Miss Jessie Larkin; while Miss Evelyn Roberts was only moderately successful in "Connais-tu le pays?" from Thomas's Mignon. Mr. Herbert Stuttle was heard in Adams's song "By the Fountain," and Miss Helena Spicer in "Purple Heather," by Kate Stainer. Miss Spicer has a sympathetic voice, but must cultivate style. Mr. E. Dacre has a most pleasing voice, and displayed good sense in choosing "Eleanor," by Mallinson, a song well within his power. The last song was "Golden Days," by Sullivan, in which Mrs. G. Mitchenall was much applauded. Mr. Herbert H. Holliday, a pupil of Mr. Cairns James, gave a recitation from Dickens's immortal "Pickwick," the selection being "Mr. Winkle's Misadventure at Bath." It was a happy idea of Mr. Holliday's to give this extract in place of the usual hackneyed recitation. The accompanist was Miss Jenny Hyman.

ROYAL CHORAL SOCIETY.

At the Royal Albert Hall on Wednesday the Royal Choral Society performed Sir E. Elgar's striking and artistic setting of Newman's "Dream of Gerontius." In the past Gounod's "Redemption" was usually given by theRoyal Society in their Ash Wednesday concert. Last Wednesday's concert proved interesting, as Miss Edith Miller and Mr. Gervase Elwes were new-comers who greatly distinguished themselves, Miss Miller singing the part of th eangel remarkably well. This singer will also appear at the next concert, when Elgar's last work, "The iKngdom," will be given. Although Mr. Elwes is new to these concerts, he has sung the music of Gerontius before, and with excellent results; while Mr. Ffrangcon-Davis gave a familiar rendering of the Priest and the Angel of Agony, and they both, therefore, sang the music woth experience and conviction. The chorus was on Wednesday more than usually good, the chorus of Angelicals being sung with fine effect. Sir Frederick Bridge conducted the orchestra with much success and to the manifest enjoyment of a numerous audience.

DEATH OF MR. W. CHEESMAN.

We regret to record the death early on Sunday last of Mr William Cheesman, an actor of great experience and considerable ability. The deceased was seriously ill only a few days, a cold developing into pneumonia, which quickly had a fatal termination.

Mr. Cheesman was born in Islington in 1850, and made his first appearance in London as old Stanley in Paul Pry at the opening of Toole's Theatre in February, 1882. He remained under the management of Mr. Toole during the next four years, playing many parts, and twice appearing at Sandringham on the occasion of Prince Albert Victor's birthday. After a tour with Mr. Chas. Grove in Confusion, Mr. Cheesman was engaged by Mr. Edgar Bruce for the production of Messager's La Béarnaise at the Opéra Comique. When Alice in Wonderland was produced at the Prince of Wales's on Dec. 23, 1886, Mr. Cheesman appeared as the Mock Turtle. Subsequently he went on tour with La Béarnaise. He played Mr. Jenkins in The Barrister, produced at the Comedy Theatre on Sept. 6, 1887. In the spring of 1887 Mr. Cheesman joined Mr. Edouin at the Strand, playing, among other parts, Lord Drummin in Airey Anne, produced on April 4; Goodman Gay in His Wives, produced on May 23; and Burrows in Run Wild, produced on June 30. Mr. Cheesman was the Job in the tentaive performance of Tares at the Prince of Wales's on Jan. 31, and the Rev. Jacob Mordaunt in the Seebohm version of Little Lord Fauntleroy at the same theatre on Feb. 23. When Mrs. Kendal and Mrs. Oscar Beringer organised the first tour of The Real Little Lord Fauntleroy, Mr. Cheesman was selected for the part of Havisham. In December, 1888, he was engaged by the Carl Rosa Light Opera Company for the part of Don Trccadero in Paul Jones, and for eighteen months continued to play this character. On Nov. 8, 1890, Miss Violet Melnotte, being the temporary tenant of Toole's, produced The Two Recruits, with Mr. Cheesman as Colonel Gunning. At Christmastide Mr. Cheesman played Glumboso and Paledda in The Rose and the Ring, dramatised by Mr. Saville Clarke from Thackeray's story, and produced at the Prince of Wales's on Dec. 20. In the spring of 1891 he appeared under Sir Augustus Harris's management in the burlesque of Venus. In July, 1891, Mr. Cheesman appeared at the Princess's as Tom Woollett in Fate and Fortune. Then he was engaged by Sir Chas. Wyndham to understudy the late Mr. David James in Miss Decima at the Criterion. In June, 1892, he succeeded to Mr. Arthur William's part in The Noble Art at Terry's. He joined Mrs. Langtry for her season at the Haymarket, appearing in The Queen of Manoa, produced on Sept. 15, as Mr. Wildrake, and in Agatha Tylden, produced on Oct. 17, he played Jabez Thompson. In February, 1893, Mr. Cheesman again joined Mr. Horace Sedger, this time to play Mr. Harry Monkhouse's part in The Magic Opal. He came to the Adelphi in May, 1894, to play the Doctor in The Two Orphans, then revived. In the revival of Jack Sheppard at the Gaiety, shortly ensuing, he appeared as Sir Roland Trenchard. In the autumn of 1895 he succeeded Mr. Anson as Bill Feltoe in Vanity Fair at the Court. More recently Mr. Cheesman appeared in many popular musical comedies, including The Girl from Kay's and Mr. Popple. He was with Mr. Cyril Maude for some time, playing in That Brute Simmonds, which preceded Beauty and the Barge, and later at the Waldorf in Shore Acres.

Mr. Cheesman's genial disposition made him popular and highly esteemed amongst a large circle of friends, and the news of his unexpected decease has been received with feelings of deep regret. The funeral took place yesterday at Mortlake, the carriages leaving 28, Aldenburg-gardens, Lavender Hill, at eleven o'clock.

THE DRAMA IN VICTORIA STREET.

The bijou theatre of the Amateur Players' Association was filled to overflowing by members and friends on Wednesday evening, when three little pieces from the pen of Miss Bertha N. Graham, who may be described as the playwright laureate of the Association, were given—two of them for the first time. Proceedings were rather slow at first, only a short one-act play and a terpsichorean item being got through during the first two hours. As "Big Ben" chimed ten, however, the curtain was induced to go up on a monologue by Miss Graham, entitled In Furnished Rooms. It is a gruesome tale of a struggling lady journalist, who comes home to her poor apartment, which she shares with her invalid mother. She sits down to write a fashion article for a periodical, taking care not to disturb her mother, who lies asleep. An ominous silence seems to pervade the room, and at length the young girl goes to the bedside and finds her mother dead. A note left on the coverlet shows that the invalid, unable to bear her affliction, has taken an overdose of laudanum to put an end to her sufferings. The little piece was effectively acted by Miss Edyth Olive, who led up to the final poignant scene with rare dramatic skill. Elocutionary grace was apparent throughout, and the display of grief at the close was heart-rending. Miss Olive's acting exercised a remarkable influence throughout, and the applause bestowed upon her finished rendering was deservedly loud and prolonged. The other novelty by Miss Graham was a play in one act, entitled

"PITCH AND TOSS."

Andy Withacomb ..... MR. ERNEST HOWE
Mrs. Ellison ..... MRS. TEIGNMOUTH SHORE
Tessie Wilson ..... MISS AIMEE FOWLER

An author is also the chief figure of the above piece, but in this case proves to be a writer for the stage. For years Andy Withacomb has been striving with little success to earn a livelihood by writing plays. At length he gets a commission from a lady whose arrival he awaits with impatience. He first receives a visit from his cousin, Mrs. Ellison, who tearfully laments that her husband is neglecting her for a typewriter engaged in his office. Andy soothes her with promises of help, and her departure is followed by the arrival of Tessie Wilson, an actress with whom Andy had been acquainted in former years. The girl has found a "protector" in a well-to-do City man, whom she has induced to take a theatre for the purpose of exploiting her in a play which she wishes Andy to write. Andy, remembering an occasion when Tessie helped herself to some money belonging to him, receives her without enthusiasm, but when he learns that she is the patroness he is expecting he snatches at the chance. In the course of negotiations, however, Andy learns that Tessie is no other than the objectionable typewriter by whom his cousin's happiness is impaired, and not only refuses to take up the commission, but threatens to hand Tessie over to the police on account of her former theft unless she promises to sail by the first boat to America. The girl eventually gives the required undertaking, and Andy, having preserved his cousin's happiness, is left to ruminate over his shattered hopes. Despite the improbabilities of the piece, it is well written, and the dialogue contains no little humour, especially in the enumeration by the aspiring actress of her desires regarding her part. The rôle was acted with much skill by Miss Aimée Fowler, who cleverly assumed the affectations of the character. Mr. Ernest Howe well maintained the arduous part of the author, taking it perhaps a little too seriously; and Mrs Teignmouth Shore was a sympathetic and well-spoken Mrs. Ellison. Other items of the programme were The Rose with a Thorn, also by Miss Graham, a series of speciality dances by Miss Nancy Borrett, whose clever and varied performance revealed the existence of a peculiar "coster dance," and guitar songs by Miss Aimée Fowler.

"NIGEL."

Romantic Opera, in Two Acts, Composed by Stephen R. Philpott, Written by Percy Pinkerton, Produced, for the First Time in London, at the Shakespeare, Clapham, on Friday, Feb. 8.

Nigel ..... MR. F. J. HARGRAVE
Geoffrey ..... MR. TOM GRIFFITHS
Colin ..... MR. G. RIDDING
Margery ..... MISS JESSIE DENNIS
Winnifred ..... MISS CHRISTINE GOMEZ

The stock of English opera was added to agreeably on the 8th inst. at the Shakespeare Theatre, where the Turner Opera Company had been fulfilling a most successful week with Faust, Maritana, The Bohemian Girl, and other famous works. The new opera may not challenge comparison with those mentioned, but it is melodious and dramatic and contains one or two numbers which deserve to gain extended popularity by reason of their effective setting. The scene of the opera, of which we gave an extended notice on its production at Birmingham on Jan. 25, is laid in Devonshire at the period when Cavaliers and Roundheads were in conflict, and the story set to music is that of a love tragedy. The plot was fully detailed in our issue of Feb. 2, so that its recapitulation is unnecessary. It is enough to say that the merits of the opera gladden the popular ear by its telling melody, and stimulates by thrilling details of its tale. The orchestral effects are finely balanced, and a certain quaintness in the music well befits the theme.

The work had the benefit of an artistic interpretation at the hands of Mr. J. W. Turner's company. Mr. F. J. Hargrave led the way in brilliant fashion with his rendering of the title-rôle. He has a tenor voice of rich quality, and takes the upper notes especially with power and sweetness. His most effective solo was Nigel's "Ballad of Lucasta," which he sang with fine power and expression, "Love, like the sunset," a duet which he shared with Winnifred, also revealed his cultivated voice to great advantage, and a drinking song with chorus was given with admirable vigour and spirit. Nigel's sweetheart Winnifred was pleasingly presented by Miss Christine Gomez, whose treatment of the ballad "O, sacred love" was emotional and inspiring. Her share in the duets with Nigel was also invaluable, more especially in the scene where Nigel lies wounded in the barn. An effective trio results in this scene, in which Geoffrey, the vengeful Roundhead captain, joins. The latter part had a typical exponent in Mr. Tom Griffiths, who sang "For honour and country" with the expression well adapted to its invigorating lilt. His resonant baritone voice was effectively utilised in the concerted pieces. The difficult part of Margery, the self-sacrificing maiden, whose love for Nigel is unrequited, was sympathetically sung by Miss Jessie Dennis, whose finely-modulated contralto was of excellent service. Her first number was a love ballad of an old English character, which she sang with admirable phrasing. The air "Heigho for the heart that is broken," too, was sung by Miss Dennis with such charm and effect that it was rapturously encored. Mr. G. Ridding's part of Colin is not an enviable one, but he made it conspicuous by his intelligent rendering of the rôle, and by his striking rendering of "Sing ho for the bold Cavalier," in which he was accompanied by the chorus. The work of the chorus, it should be added, is arduous throughout, and well did they sustain their responsibilities. The harvesters' chorus at the opening is exhilarating, and was done full justice to. Similar excellences were to be found in the chorus outside the church, the mournful cadences of which were rendered with pleasing variety, while the "Alleluia" of the choir within sounded rich and harmonious. Nigel is altogether a most welcome addition to the works of native composers, and, staged as it was at the Shakespeare, should add to the fame of the Turner Opera Company, which has just reached its majority. The opera was preceded by the one-act farce Old Knockles, set to music by Caldicott.

"A MATRIMONIAL BUREAU."

Charles Raymond ..... MR. FRED LYNDON
Archibald Montressor ..... MR. H. FORREST
Mike Byrne ..... MR. JAMES O'BRIEN
Mlle. Babette ..... MISS CECILIA DARE
Minnie Raymond ..... MISS MADELINE HURST

A Matrimonial Bureau; or, A Wife Wanted, is an extremely funny farce, by an author whose identity is disguised under the nom de plume of "Sparrowdrop," and, judging by the manner this little piece was received, more will be heard of its author. The scene is laid in an office, where we find a matrimonial agent, who, by the way, unknown to his wife, is carrying on the bureau, though she believes he is an insurance agent. He advertises for a servant, and chooses an Irish one, who is looking for a wife. Many complications ensue before the curtain rings down. The new production can be recommended as a bright, cheery, and funny farce. The author was lucky in getting some of Mr. J. W. Whitbread's company of Irish players to appear in it. Mr. Fred Lyndon acted the part of the manager, Charles Raymond, admirably; and as his wife, Minnie Raymond, Miss Madeline Hurst filled the rôle with satisfactory results. Mr. James O'Brien, in the humorous character of Mike Byrne, caused much laughter with his happy-go-lucky style; and Miss Cecilia Dare was all that could be desired as Mlle. Babette.

PROFESSIONALS AND CHARITY AT GLASGOW.

The readiness of theatrical and music hall artists to assist in the good cause of charity was never more notable or prominent in Glasgow than has been the case this winter. On Tuesday afternoon the Pavilion Theatre was crammed in every corner, at increased prices, to aid the cause of the Glasgow Jewish Board of Guardians. The audience was a fashionable one, and a brilliant programme was presented. A strong party of principals and a large chorus came from the Royalty Theatre, by permission of Messrs. Gatti and Frohman, and gave a number of excerpts from The Belle of Mayfair, and had a splendid reception. The leading artists were Miss Alice Russon, Miss Joan Keddie, Miss Christine Rayinski, and Messrs. Wensley Russell and Percy Yorke. A long programme of variety turns followed. Those contributing from the various pantomimes and the Pavilion Theatre were Misses Florrie Gallimore, May Mars, Luna Love, and Aimee Grey, and Messrs. Foreman and Fannan, Williams and Warden, T. E. Dunville, Fred Kitchen, and the Harmony Four. Mr. W. F. Frame also appeared, and made a short complimentary reference to the occasion. Mr. Howard W. Galpin conducted a large orchestra in selections from Tannhäuser and Lohengrin, and was well received for a violin solo from Faust, with Mr. Fred F. Meaten at the piano. These artists appeared by the generous permission of Messrs. Rich. Waldon, R. C. Buchanan, and Fred Karno, and the directors of the Pavilion Theatre.

PRESENTATION.—Miss Gwladys Elvey was presented with a choice basket of flowers on the stage of the Edinburgh Theatre Royal on the evening of the 8th inst. in recognition of having collected the largest sum—£9—at the sports on the previous day. Mr. Mark Sheridan made the presentation on behalf of Messrs. Howard and Wyndham.

MISS RUBY RAY, at present playing in The Belle of Mayfair at the Vaudeville Theatre, has scored a great success in the revised version, a charming duet and dance between Miss Ray and Mr. Angelo eliciting an enthusiastic encore. Miss Ray's graceful dancing is a decided acquisition to the piece.

A JUVENILE "BEAUTY OF BATH."

An early bloom of talent manifested itself at the handsome Hicks Theatre on Monday afternoon, when the youthful members associated with The Beauty of Bath, which is nearing the end of its brilliant run, took up the parts which properly belong to their elders. The programme gave the information that "Charles Swanson, the call-boy, presents Miss Marjorie West and Master Albert Valchera and the juvenile members of the company (Stedman's Choir) in The Beauty of Bath by kind permission of Seymour Hicks." A houseful of invited guests, including Mr. Hicks, hailed the production with delight, and were kept in constant merriment, frequently tempered by admiration, throughout the afternoon. Levity began immediately the bevy of comely young girls who adorn the picture in the foyer of the Mascot Theatre trouped down the staircase dressed in the long frocks of the Bun Girls, and accompanied by boys in immaculate evening dress. Each oddly-attired character was greeted with a roar, and when Master Swanson, bearing on his brow the luxuriant silver locks of Mr. William Lugg as Viscount Bellingham appeared, he received an ovation. His performance, indeed, was admirable, his assumption of the strident tones of the Viscount and his attempts to appear dignified being irresistibly comic. Master Roy Jeffries, too, made a capital imitation of Mr. Laurence Caird as Lord Quorn, and was throughout a favourite.

A near approach to the original was made by Miss Marjorie West, who reproduced with charming fidelity many of the captivating graces of Miss Ellaline Terriss. She sang the various numbers allotted to Betty with rare vivacity and point, beginning with "When a girl's in love," which she gave with proper demureness, and ending with "My Little Hyacinth," the refrain of which was exquisitely echoed at the wings. Master Valchera, who has attained such an enviable reputation as the Lemon Goodge of the regular production, essayed a difficult task in trying to assume the alertness and buoyancy of Mr. Seymour Hicks, but he copied the popular comedian as closely as might be, and succeeded in giving many original touches in the rôle of Dick Alington. His singing of the "Bridge" duet had decidedly fresh treatment, and his rendition of the Chamberlain song was also distinguished by novelty, two additional verses referring felicitously to Mr. Seymour Hicks, who "slept three hours and worked the rest," and to Miss Ellaline Terriss, who it was hoped "wouldn't go away any more."

No attempt was made to obtain a double of Master Valchera for the part of Mr. Beverly, the actor, but a vivid contrast was secured by substituting a pretty little girl, Miss Ethel Evans by name, who played the part very daintily. Miss Ivy Sawyer was one of the chief successes of the afternoon as Mrs. Goodge. So faithfully did the child—perhaps the youngest of the company—reproduce the whimsical ways of Miss Sydney Fairbrother as the Bloomsbury lodging-house keeper, that every movement and every utterance of the clever performer was greeted with a roar of laughter. The Lemon Goodge of Miss Connie Bethel also reflected many of the comic characteristics of Master Valchera, and the duet "Hearts of Bloomsbury" was sung with its customary comical effect. Yeoman service was done by Miss Doris Macintyre, who made a fascinating Lady Bun, and also danced cleverly as Jane Topit, the pas de deux with Miss Elsie Sawyer as Tattersall Spink being redemanded. The volatile Truly St Cyr was played with pleasant vivacity by Miss Hetty Bullen; and Miss Eupham MacLaren preserved all the lovable qualities of Mrs. Alington. Master Reginald George, made up after the manner of Mr. Murray King as Sir Timothy Bun, reproduced many of his eccentricities; and Master Archibald McCaig made the rôle of the Earl of Orpington agreeably conspicuous. The Countess of Orpington was played by Miss Mildred Rouvier; and as the Hon. Dorothy Quorn Miss Florence Arnold provoked what proved to be an epidemic of bouquets and bonbons by the singing of a song with the refrain "Does she love me?" An agreeable interpolation into the piece was made by the introduction of little Carmen Sylva, who enthralled the audience by her singing of "Spring is coming." The voice of the pretty little maiden has all the freshness of youth allied to careful cultivation, and her singing was rapturously encored.

Flowers and sweetmeats were liberally bestowed on the young performers, Miss Marie Studholme, who occupied a private box, joining enthusiastically in the bombardment. The stage staff and electricians gave their services gratuitously for the production, the orchestra was under the direction of Mr. Haarnack, and Mr. Joseph Cornish, representative of Stedman's Musical Agency, supervised the front of the house with tact and courtesy. No omission seemed to be made in the performance, at the conclusion of which speeches were demanded, and both Master Swanson and Master Valchera expressed their thanks for their reception, and hoped to see them all at Mr. Hicks's forthcoming production of My Darling. Mrs. Goodge was also called upon for a speech, and Miss Sawyer, who had won the hearts of all, completed her conquest by lisping, "Thank you very much for listening so intently."

ROYAL COLLEGE OF MUSIC.

On Wednesday afternoon, at the Royal College, the programme began with Schumann's fine Quintet for Piano and Strings, in E flat, the executants, Mr. Edgar Macgregor, Miss Lorna Downing, Miss Marjorie Beer, Mr. Frank Bridge, and Mr. F. Gershom Parkington, being particularly happy in the second movement, "In Modo d'una Marcia," and the lively "Scherzo." After Schumann's quintet, Mozart's Quartet for Strings in B flat sounded slightly thin, although Miss Florence Jennings, Miss Marjorie Beer, Mr. F. Bridge, and Mr. F. G. Parkington are to be awarded praise for a bright and finished performance. "Like unto the damask rose," by Sir Edward Elgar, was carefully sung by Miss Florence Atkin, whose good quality soprano voice admirably suited the subject. In A. Scarlatti's seldom-heard "Toglietemi la vita ancor" Miss Dorothy Purser was much applauded; and also in her second song, "Chanson de Mai," by G. Huberti. The concert ended with Brahms's Trio for Piano, Violin, and Horn, in E flat, Op. 40, well executed by Mr. James Friskin, Miss May Harrison, and Mr. Ernest Button, the more sustained passages of Brahms's clever work being given with the best effect. The accompanist was Miss Alice Cotton, A.R.C.M.

MISS WINNIE VOLT.

AT THE PRINCE'S THEATRE, BRISTOL. CONSIDERABLE SKILL, NATURAL BUOYANCY AND CHARM OF MANNER.

Last evening there was a temporary change in the cast, still the play went with its wonted smoothness and spirit, and the large audience applauded their heartiest. Miss Winnie Volt, the dainty Cherry, appeared as principal girl, filling the rôle with considerable skill, apparent ease, natural buoyancy and charm of manner. Particularly successful was she in the captivating and difficult dance in the pier scene.—Bristol Mercury, Feb. 5.

A DAINTY LITTLE ARTIST. GREETED WITH LAVISH APPLAUSE.

General appreciation was expressed at the manner in which Miss Winnie Volt deputised for Miss ——. This dainty little artist has all along pleased with her "Grow little mushroom," but last night she had something bigger than little mushrooms to look after, and she did so with tact, grace, and cleverness, and as a reward she was greeted with lavish applause. Humpty Dumpty once more went well from start to finish.—Bristol Times, Feb. 5.

THEATRICAL GOSSIP.

MR. BEERBOHM TREE has selected Richard II. with which to begin his conquest of Berlin at the Royal Opera Theatre on April 12. Arrangements for the momentous event have been perfected by Mr. Henry Dana, Mr. Tree's business manager, whose visit to the German capital for the purpose of making the necessary preparations was a highly agreeable one. Antony and Cleopatra will constitute the bill for the Royal night, when the Kaiser will be present, and The Merry Wives of Windsor, together with The Man Who Was, Hamlet, Twelfth Night, and Trilby will also figure in the list of performances.

LADY BANCROFT will grace the occasion and speak a few words at the morning performance to be given at Drury Lane on Tuesday, March 5, on behalf of the Lord Mayor's Cripples' Fund. Miss Winifred Emery will recite a specially-written address, and, among the other items already determined upon, will be the last act from Macbeth by Mr. Arthur Bourchier and Miss Violet Vanbrugh; the Trial Scene of Pardell v. Pickwick, in which Mr. Edward Terry will appear; the second act from The Beauty and the Barge, in which Mr. Cyril Maude and company will play; a potpourri from the pantomime Sindbad; and a combination of the leaders of the musical comedy world, who will present a new spectacle, specially arranged by Mr. E. T. Reed, of Punch, entitled A Prehistoric Lord Mayor's Show.

OTHER distinguished artists who have kindly promised to contribute to the phenomenal programme are Mr. Beerbohm Tree, Mr. Lewis Waller, Mr. H. B. Irving, Mr. Henry Ainley, Mr. Huntley Wright, Mr. Walter Passmore, Mr. Harry Randall, Mr. Fred Emney, Mr. Harry Fragson, Messrs. Drew and Alders, Mr. Otho Stuart, Mr. Wilhelm Ganz, Mr. George Grossmith, jun., Mr. Edmund Payne, Miss Gertie Millar, Miss Denise Orme, Miss Queenie Leighton, Miss Marie George, Miss Florence Warde, Miss Margaret Cooper, and Mlle. Genée. Applications for seats should be made to the Secretary, Cripples' Fund, Mansion House, or to the box-office at Drury Lane.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER'S campaign as candidate for South St. Pancras in the interests of municipal reform is shaping well. He addressed a large and enthusiastic meeting at the St. John's School, Tottenham Court-road, on the 8th inst., and urged his hearers to dismiss from their minds the work he was generally engaged in. He offered himself as a plain business man, and he had justification for doing so. He had received a good commercial education, and when he came to London he had no friends and no money. Any little position he might have achieved and any friendships he had made with the great public had been made off his own bat. When he decided to stand for the London County Council he searched history to find a precedent. He found one in Richard Brinsley Sheridan, who, when appealing for the support of the electors, issued a card bearing his name and the words, "Promises to pay 5s. 6d. in ale."

MR. E. S WILLARD recently celebrated the fourteenth anniversary and the eleven hundredth performance of The Professor's Love Story. It is a remarkable fact that since the first production of Mr. Barrie's charming play at the Star Theatre, New York, on Dec. 18, 1892, it has always formed part of Mr. Willard's répertoire, and has been played every year he has been acting. Mr. Willard returns to England in April to rest for a while before once more commencing active work. He will abandon his American tours altogether, although he expects to pay farewell visits to New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Baltimore, and Canada before many years are over. He is saying "farewell" to Pittsburg and all cities west of the Allegheny Mountains during his present tour

MISS MARION TERRY is to be the heroine of The Hypocrites, the new play by Henry Arthur Jones, which has exerted such wide influence in America. Mr. Charles Frohman will produce the piece in London at the beginning of next autumn, when Miss Terry will be supported almost wholly by English artists, including Mr. Leslie Faber, who is now taking part in the successful performances in the States.

A SLIGHT improvement is reported in the condition of Mr. Lionel Brough, as he is now able to sleep, but we regret that a more definitely hopeful report of his illness cannot be given. The popular veteran, it will be remembered, was obliged to retire from the cast of The Bondman shortly after its revival at the Adelphi owing to a breakdown in health, brought about by a cold. Mr. Brough is seventy-one years of age, more than fifty of which have been spent in the service of dramatic art.

WE record with sincere regret the death of Mr. Guy Waller, which took place at Frognal Mansions, Hampstead, on Feb. 5. Mr. Waller, who was only thirty-four years of age, and was very popular in theatrical circles, was associated with the management of The Money-makers, produced at the Royalty in the May of 1894.

MR. MARTIN HARVEY has just concluded arrangements to appear in London in May, and during his season will produce a new play, from the German of Carl Rössler, at present entitled The Rich Youth. His répertoire will also include The Only Way, The Breed of the Treshams, Hamlet, A Cigarette-maker's Romance, and his revival of The Corsican Brothers, which he has not as yet presented in London. In conjunction with this play Mr. Harvey will appear in The Spell, which made such a marked impression in Manchester last November. The revival of Richard III., as has already been announced, will take place in Dublin in October.

THE Advisory Board of Actors' Day Fund, at their meeting this week passed the following resolution, proposed by Mr. H. B. Tree and seconded by Mr. A. Bourchier:—"That of the amount contributed on Actors' Day, 1906, there shall be given to the three theatrical charities, namely, the Actors' Benevolent Fund, the Actors' Orphanage, and the Theatrical Ladies' Guild, such sums as will make up to them any deficit in subscriptions by which they may have suffered in the one year through the institution of Actors' Day, such deficit in subscriptions to be estimated on the average of three preceding years; and that the balance available be placed in the hands of the trustees to be dealt with by a scheme which shall be discussed by the Advisory Board, assisted by expert advice, and which shall be based on the principle that contributors only shall be entitled to benefit."

IN tendering advice as to the apportionment of the money collected at the initial Actors' Day, the Advisory Board have been confronted with a very signal difficulty, arising out of a radical difference of opinion amongst the subscribers regarding the destination of the money relinquished by them on October 18, 1906. That there has been a variance of opinion no attempt is made to deny; but it is recalled that benevolent and provident schemes of such wide reach as this one have nearly always been confronted by initial difficulties.

THE Board, strengthened by expert advice, is at present preparing a scheme, which it is hoped will satisfy the views of both sides, as to the allocation of the funds in future years. The result will shortly be submitted to the profession.

MR. CHARLES CARTWRIGHT has conceived a new and interesting idea with regard to the touring system. His scheme provides for the engagement of six "stars" who should be equally divided between three companies, each with a répertoire of the same three plays. Each company would remain a week in the same town, giving a triple change of bill, but the "stars" would exchange into the companies playing the pieces with which their names were identified. The advantage thus gained seems to be that the principal actors would have only to keep one part in study; but against that lies the alarming increase of travelling that would be involved. Moving from town to town is not the least among the discomforts of touring, and the prospect of making three railway journeys every week with the necessity of playing in the evening can only be faced with a shudder.

MR. OSCAR ASCHE and Miss Lily Brayton are starting in management for themselves, having secured the entire production and company that supported them at the Adelphi. Mr. Robert Arthur has arranged for them to open at the Camden for the week commencing Feb. 18 in The Taming of the Shrew. On Feb. 25 they go to Kennington, again playing The Taming of the Shrew, and producing Othello at the matinée on Thursday, the 28th.

MISS ROSINA BRANDRAM'S illness is giving cause for grave anxiety. Latest information from Southend states that she is "a shade better," but is still in a very critical condition.

REASSURING news may be given of Miss Bella Pateman, who on Sunday underwent a severe operation, from which serious results were feared. A telegram received yesterday from her husband, Mr. Robert Pateman, gave the welcome report that the invalid was progressing favourably. Miss Pateman has been identified with the best dramatic work in London during the past thirty-seven years, and sincere sympathy will go out to the popular actress, whose recovery, we trust, may be speedy and complete.

THE funeral of the late Mr. Arthur Wood, whose death we announced last week, took place at Forest Hill Cemetery on Monday. The family desire to express their thanks for the many expressions of sympathy that have reached them from private and professional friends.

MISS ROSINA FILIPPI will on Monday next begin a series of matinées at Terry's Theatre, the performances being given by students of her well-known dramatic school. Scenes from Romeo and Juliet will be given on Monday, with a new "masque in one act," entitled The Idyll of New Year's Eve. Other attractions will comprise The School for Scandal, and a scene from Don Juan; The Shadow and Miss Hobbs; Belinda and The Dancing Lesson; Eliza, A Country Mouse, and The American Widow.

MR. ALBERT CHEVALIER, supported by a specially-selected company, will start at Easter a tour with a triple bill. Among the new pieces presented will be Atonement, a drama in one act, written by him, and in which he plays a strong emotional part, and The Dream of His Life, a fantastic musical play, in one act, also from his pen, the music composed by Mr. A. H. West. In this Mr. Chevalier will appear as a professor who is mysteriously doomed to become his own Cockney servant. The triad of plays will be completed by J. M. Barrie's Pantaloon, presented by arrangement with the author and Mr. Charles Frohman. In this Mr. Chevalier will repeat his fine performance of the title-rôle.

MR. FRED BOWYER'S new version of Aladdin has caught on at the Grand, Birmingham. Mr. Robert Crossman's production from the Shakespeare, Clapham, is doing excellent business with Miss Winifred Hare as the hero. The pantomime is booked for a fortnight's run.

MR. ROBERT ARTHUR has arranged with Mr. Lawrence Brough to produce at the Fulham Theatre, next week, that bright and sparkling comedy The Lady of Ostend. Mr. Brough will play his original character of the Baron, supported by his admirable company of comedians, who have so long been identified with the piece.

MISS MABEL PALMER, one of the most promising pupils of Miss Edith Gibbs, the accomplished teacher of singing and elocution, was given a chance of again displaying her abilities at the King's Theatre, Covent Garden, on Saturday evening, when she played the part of Mrs. Ralston in Jim the Penman. The young actress acquitted herself creditably, and acted very finely in a difficult rôle.

THE proprietor of the Grand Theatre and Opera House, Eccles, has organised a company to commence a tour in that town on March 30 in the new musical play The Pet of the Embassy. The cast will include the well-known comedian, Witty Watty Walton.

THE Empire Theatre, Oxford, recently closed by the drastic action of the local authorities, who refused without explanation to renew the licence, is to be reopened on the 25th inst. under the title of the East Oxford Theatre by Mr. Charles Macdona's company in Three Little Maids. The stage will be greatly improved, and many other alterations are being effected by the new lessee in compliance with the demands of the city magistrates.

MR. MILTON BODE'S pantomime of Red Riding Hood terminated a brilliant career at the Royal Opera House, Leicester, on Saturday last. Seldom before have such crowded matinées been held in Leicester, the building being packed to suffocation, and many hundreds having also to be turned away. This is no doubt owing to the excellence of the performance and the business-like manner in which Mr. Henry Dundas, the general-manager, is working in the country districts, many places having been placarded and billed which had never been touched before. Next year Mr. Bode will produce a pantomime at the Royal Opera House on a similar lavish scale.

MME. LUCILE HILL, the famous dramatic soprano, who has just recovered from illness, will rejoin the Royal Carl Rosa Opera Company for their visit to Scotland, commencing at the Grand Theatre, Glasgow, on Monday, Feb. 25. The gifted artist sends from Switzerland the welcome news that she is in better health and voice than ever. Mme. Hill will appear in Tannhäuser, Lohengrin, and The Marriage of Figaro, and will sustain for the first time the part of Fidelio in Beethoven's opera of that name.

THE report of the Sunderland Charity Carnival Committee, submitted at the winding-up meeting for the year, showed that the total receipts for the event brought to a close with a matinée performance in the Avenue Theatre on Wednesday last week, had amounted to £138 15s. 7d., or £1 more than last year. The expenditure was less than ever, viz., £17 9s. 10d. This left a net balance of £121 5s. 9d., or £17 12s. 3d. more than last year. It was agreed to distribute £120, and carry £1 5s. 9d. forward to next year. Out of the proceeds £5 was allotted to the Actors' Benevolent Fund, £5 to the Amalgamated Musicians' Union Benevolent Fund, and £5 to the Music Hall Artists' Benevolent Fund.

MR. STEWART D. WRIGHT, late manager with Mr. George Dance's principal companies, has been engaged by Mr. J. Bannister Howard to advertise his principal Oliver Twist company, now on tour.

FOLLOWING the usual practice adopted during Lent, the forthcoming matinées of Sindbad at Drury Lane will be on Wednesday and Saturday only during the remainder of the run of the pantomime. New songs and dances have been added, chief among the former being "Canoodling," by Arthur Wimperis, with music by Fragson, by whom it is sung. The music-hall war has also been taken advantage of by Fragson with a new version of "Tom, the Piper's Son," while the popular Anglo-French comedian still sings "La Petite Tonkinoise," the ballad of the boulevards, with which England's King and Queen were last week greeted by Parisians.

Two new plays will be produced next week by the Répertoire Theatre Syndicate, operating at the Theatre Royal, Margate, under the direction of Mr. Edward Michael. One is a four-act comedy called Terence, by Mrs. B. M. Croker, and is an adaptation of her own successful novel of the same name; and the other is a one-act comedietta entitled The Radical Candidate, by Hugo Ames.

THE King and Queen honoured the Apollo on Tuesday, when they witnessed the performance of The Stronger Sex, and the following evening saw the Prince and Princess of Wales at the same theatre. On the previous Saturday the Duke of Orleans was present at the performance of the Verkaufte Braut at the Royal Opera, Covent Garden.

MR. EDWARD CADMAN, general-manager of the Grand Theatre, Leeds, was entertained to dinner by a number of friends at the local Imperial Hotel on Sunday. The gathering was presided over by Dr. B. G. Heald, who spoke of the guest's popularity, and of the position which the Grand Theatre held as the county playhouse. He thought the Leeds public, and especially the shopkeepers, did not always realise how much they were indebted to that theatre management for the thousands of visitors who were brought into the city every year. Dr. Heald estimated the number at nothing short of a quarter of a million.

MR. HARRY HAMPSON, after having enjoyed a brief but well-earned rest, rejoins The Lady of Ostend at the Grand, Fulham, on Monday next, playing Dick Whortles.—Miss Jeannie Holmes has been engaged by Mr. Alec Flood and Mr. Aubrey Fitzmaurice for the tour of The Angel of Unrest.

THE pantomime of Dick Whittington at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, finished its run amidst great enthusiasm on Saturday last. All the principal ladies were the recipients of floral tributes, and the gentlemen had overwhelming receptions. Mr. Percy Humphrys, acting-manager, and Mr. Alfred Carpenter, conductor, were presented with handsome gifts by the members of the pantomime company. At the conclusion "Auld Lang Syne" was sung in recognised fashion, with hands crossed, those in the stalls joining the artists at the corners of the stage.

THE many friends of Miss Kitty Cavendish, who has been appearing so successfully in Mr. Courtneidge's Aladdin pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Newcastle, will regret to hear that during the performance last week she unfortunately met with a bad accident, resulting in a severe dislocated shoulder. Under careful medical attention, we understand she is progressing as favourably as possible.

OWING to the indisposition of Miss Florence Imeson, the part of Millicent Leroy was most successfully sustained by Miss Florence Foster in Mr. Robert Courtneidge's Blue Moon company at the Theatre Royal, Halifax, last week, and was highly complimented by the management.

THE regular visitors to the Lyric, Hammersmith, will much regret the departure of Mr. Fred S. Jennings, who for nearly two years has been the acting-manager there for Mr. Samuel James. His kind and obliging manner made him immensely popular, and the sincere wishes of his Hammersmith friends follow him on his return to the ranks of actors. Mr. Samuel James has filled the vacancy by transferring Mr. Newman Maurice, his manager at the Grand, Islington, up to the time of the disposal of that house, and Islington's loss is Hammersmith's gain.

MR. SAMUEL JAMES, having disposed of the Grand Theatre, Islington, has now transferred his headquarters to their original home, Warwick House, 8, Warwick-court, Gray's Inn, W.C.

"HUMPTY DUMPTY," after a nine weeks' successful run at Kennington, was taken off on Saturday, and a bumper house assembled for the closing night. The utmost enthusiasm prevailed throughout, and at the end the curtain was lowered no less than eight times. The audience joined in the singing of "Auld Lang Syne," and then called for speeches from Mr. R. H. Douglass, the stage-manager, and Mr. H. B. Brandreth, the manager, Mr. Robert Arthur, the proprietor, being unfortunately unable to attend owing to illness. Mr. Brandreth explained that the management were obliged to terminate the run of the pantomime owing to the number of attractions previously booked, although the last week's business had been more overflowing than any. The principal ladies were all presented with bouquets during the evening.

THE "Follies," whose comedy and vocal talents in concert hall and variety theatre have been so highly relished, have taken a more ambitious step by engaging the New Royalty, where they begin operations on March 19 with a triple bill. In addition to their vaudeville répertoire, these favourite artists will present two new burlesques, and also have in view the revival of their diverting pantomime travesty.

A STRIKING tribute was paid last week to Mr. Bernard Copping's machine-like movements as the automaton in Charles Hannan's clever farce, The Electric Man. At the conclusion of the first act on Saturday night a member of the audience approached Mr. Howard, Mr. Mulholland's manager, and said: "Excuse me, sir; I am very interested in this play. Would you mind telling me, is that figure worked by clockwork?"

MR. EDWARD COMPTON will have one of the most notable "first nights" of his career on Friday next, when he will produce at the Lyceum Theatre, Edinburgh, a new play by his elder son, Mr. Montague Compton. The piece is an eighteenth century comedy in three acts, and bears the distinctive title of The Gentleman in Grey. It is the first play yet produced by the new author, and the première should prove a most interesting one.

MR. T. EDWARD WARD was on Tuesday last the recipient of a little presentation from the "boys" of his Man and Wife company in the form of a very handsome pipe, the occasion being that of his birthday. Needless to say, that both the present and the bon camaraderie it denotes are alike much prized by Mr. Ward.

MR. FRED REEVES is much improved in health, and will leave London next week for a short sojourn on the South Coast.

MESSRS. VEDRENNE AND BARKER intend reviving Prunella; or, Love in a Dutch Garden, by Lawrence Housman and Granville Barker, for a series of eight matinées on the afternoons of April 9, 12, 16, 19, 23, 26, 30, and May 3, with practically the same cast as last year, including Mr. Graham Browne as Pierrot and Miss Dorothy Minto as Prunella.

MR. BANNISTER HOWARD announces the visit of another charming actress to the Crystal Palace Theatre next week, during which Miss Emma and Mr. Percy Hutchison's company will appear in The Freedom of Suzanne. Miss Mabel Love, who will be supported by Mr. Templar Powell and a well-selected company, will be the central figure, and probably in no other play has she been seen to such advantage.

MR. LENNARD MACKAY, the Yen of Mr. George Edwardes's See-See company, is unable to act this week owing to a bad attack of laryngitis, and is at present under doctor's orders. The part has been taken up by Mr. Francis Rayne.

THE next of the social evenings which are becoming such agreeable features of the Managers' Club will take place on Sunday, Feb. 24, which has the added distinction of being a "ladies' night." Mr. C. St. John Denton will take the chair, and is organising an interesting programme. Members are cordially invited to bring one or two lady or gentlemen guests, but should notify the number to Mr. G. B. Lamber,t the hon. sec., in order that arrangements for their reception may be made.

MR. ARTHUR BOURCHIER'S company travelled to Bristol on Monday, when they gave a matinée performance of The Morals of Marcus, at the Prince's Theatre. The company left Paddington at 9 a.m., and returned by the 4.45 p.m. train from Bristol, which runs to London, 120 miles, without a stop, in 125 minutes. The same evening saw the excursionists in their places at the Garrick Theatre, using the same stage properties as at Bristol.

MISS ISABEL JAY, the charming impersonator of the title-rôle in Miss Hook of Holland, at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, is the victim of a malicious persecution of some person at present unknown who persists in sending the popular actress letters and postcards of a defamatory character. The libellous epistles have been placed in the hands of Miss Jay's solicitor, who is empowered to pay a reward of £50 to anyone sending him the information which will lead to the conviction of the offender.

THE perennial Peter Pan is once more to be revived at the Duke of York's next Christmas, when Miss Pauline Chase will again play the title-part. Proof of the wide popularity which Mr. Barrie's fantasy has acquired is to be found in the announcement that a leading Parisian manager is contemplating its early production in the French capital.

MR. H. W. ROWLAND enters this week on the nineteenth year of his engagement as general manager of the Folkestone Pleasure Gardens and Theatre, the progress of which has been one of continually increasing prosperity. In 1905 Mr. Rowland was also appointed manager of the Gaiety Theatre, Hastings, which he speedily rehabilitated, both with the local audiences and the profession. The Hastings and Folkestone theatres now rank amongst the leading South Coast "dates."

MR. CHARLES BUSH, the popular and courteous acting-manager at the Queen's Theatre, Leeds, enjoyed a thoroughly successful benefit on Wednesday, the 6th inst., when, in addition to the pantomime Cinderella, many artists from the other theatres and halls in the city appeared. It is a matter for congratulation that Mr. Bush's services have been retained as acting-manager for this house when it reopens under the new régime as music hall a month hence.

MISS RUTH VINCENT has been secured for the heroine of Tom Jones, which is to be produced at the Apollo in April, and no happier choice could have been made. From the Egyptian Queen of Amasis to the heroine of Fielding's novel is a wide step, but Miss Vincent is eminently fitted by her refined methods and delicacy of style to put the vivacious Sophia in the most attractive light, and there is every reason to anticipate that her brilliant achievements in Amasis and Veronique will be equalled in her newest essay. Tom Jones, which is by A. M. Thompson, with lyrics by Charles Taylor, and music by Edward German, will have a preliminary canter at the Prince's, Manchester, on March 30.

MR. PHILIP BROZEL has been engaged for the Hof Theatre, at Vienna, for the next five years, being selected out of thirty tenors picked from the best opera houses in Germany without even a "gastspiel!"—a most unheard-of occurrence. Mr. Brozel is a naturalised Englishman, and was engaged by Sir Augustus Harris direct from the Royal Academy for Covent Garden, where he scored notable successes in Siegfried, Pagliacci, &c. For the last two years he has been engaged in Germany, and last season sang Tristan and also Radamis in Aida at the Royal Opera in Berlin; also appearing with remarkable success at Cologne, Frankfurt, and Maine—amongst other operas, as Herod in Straus's Salome, and Die Liebesgeige, by Alick Maclean, an English composer, and musical director for Sir Charles Wyndham, in whose work a second Pagliacci is said to have been discovered.

MR. GRAHAM MORRISON, who concludes to-night a short engagement as general-manager for Mrs. Michael Gunn's pantomime company at Cork, has been retained by Mr. Charles Frohman as business-manager-in-advance for his forthcoming tour with Miss Ellaline Terriss and Mr. Seymour Hicks in The Beauty of Bath.

MR. CHAS. DODSWORTH, who has just returned from a successful tour in America with Mr. H. B. Irving, has been re-engaged by that gentleman for his spring tour.

MR. CHARLES CAREY will open his tour of The Pick of the Bunch on March 11, in conjunction with Mr. Harold Wantage. Mr. Fred Eastman will be in the cast, and once again Miss Sadie will be Nancy. The company, indeed, is an excellent one all round.

"CHARLEY'S AUNT," the comedy of undying fame, opens at the King's Theatre, Hammersmith, on Monday. Mr. Brandon Thomas will play his old part of Sir Francis Chesney, and will also sustain his original rôle of Tammy, in the charming little play, A Highland Legacy, which precedes Charley's Aunt. The company also includes Misses Lena Macnaughton, Bertha Northam, Katherine Vereker, Elsie Robertson, Ruth Nightingale, and Ida Vynall, and Messrs. Spencer Trevor, Walter Beaumont, Sydney Compton, Hastings Lynn, Richard Mason, and M. A. Wetherall. Mr. Cecil Barth has been retained by Mr. Thomas as his general-manager.

BARON HARRISS'S No. 1 Prince of Pilsen company celebrated its 200th performance at the Opera House, Wakefield, on Saturday last, amid a scene of excitement rarely witnessed in that historic city. Long after the theatre had been filled at early doors, and "House Full" placards exhibited in front, a crowd clustered around the building, in the vain hope of securing admission; so much so, that an enterprising local photographer, quick to seize the opportunity, shortly appeared upon the scene with a flash-light apparatus, and took a number of photographs of the novel spectacle. Miss Sophie Harriss, as the heroine of the evening, was the recipient of many handsome bouquets, and received a very flattering ovation at the fall of the curtain.

MISS DOROTHY CACEY, the leading lady of Mr. Charles Carey's Little Lord Fauntleroy company, engaged at the Brighton West Pier Theatre this week, met with an unfortunate accident on Sunday evening. She was dressing in a boarding-house in Regency-square when she fainted and fell against a water-jug, knocking it to the floor. The jug was smashed, and Miss Cacey fell upon the fragments, sustaining some severe cuts on the face. Medical aid was summoned, and it was found necessary to perform an operation, for which the sufferer was placed under chloroform. The accident will necessitate Miss Cacey's absence from the stage for some time.

No understudy was available for Miss Cacey's part of Mrs. Errol ("Dearest"), which was read at the Monday's performance by Miss Gertrude Netterville, who sustains the part of Mary. On Tuesday Miss Netterville appeared as "Dearest" playing the part in an admirable manner, her perfect command of her lines giving strong evidence of an exceptionally clever and quick study. Miss Katherine Brook also came to the assistance of the management by studying up that of Mary, and doubling that character with her own rôle of Minna in a skilful manner.

A NEW one-act comedy, called The Boatswain's Mate, adapted from a short story by Mr. W. W. Jacobs by the novelist himself and Mr. Herbert Sargent, will be put on before When Knights were Bold at Wyndham's on Monday, the 25th inst. Mr. Charles Frohman, it may be added, has just secured Miss Harriet Jay's whimsical farce for America.

THE New Theatre at Ilford will be opened in the autumn. A site in Ilford-lane has been acquired by a strong syndicate, and plans have been prepared by Mr. Bertie Crewe and passed by the local authorities for a place of entertainment to accommodate some 2500 people. The house has been designed so as to be used either as a theatre or as a variety palace. Building operations will be started in the course of next month.

THE Irving Memorial Committee held a meeting on the 8th inst., when there were present Mr. H. Beerbohm Tree (in the chair), and Messrs. George P. Bancroft, Acton Bond, Lewis Casson, Norman Forbes, Edward Terry, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). After some discussion as to an arrangement of details, the meeting was adjourned until the 15th inst.

THE rumour that Mr. Bernard Shaw is writing a play on the subject of George Washington has no foundaiton in fact. The "Irish-English playwright," as he is described in the report, thus contradicts the statement:—"I have heard nothing of it. George Washington's qualities appear to be extinct in New York nowadays."

OUR readers will remember the sad plight of Mr. Fred Locke, the well-known pantomime librettist, who was stricken down by paralysis a year ago, and on behalf of whose family subscriptions have been acknowledged in our columns at various times. By courtesy of Mr. Rich. Waldon, a benefit is being arranged for the "Fred Locke Fund," and will be given on Friday, the 22nd inst., in the Royal Princess's, Glasgow, for which theatre Mr. Locke wrote twenty-seven consecutive pantomimes. The artists of Mr. Waldon's Mother Goose pantomime, and also of Mr. Fred Karno's House that Jack Built at the Grand, have kindly volunteered their services, and most of the leading variety performers in Glasgow that week will also assist.

THE choristers engaged at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Birmingham, held their annual "smoker" on Wednesday, when the Lyric Quartette, who have proved one of the successes of the pantomime (Crusoe's Adventures), again distinguished themselves not only by their musicianly part-singing, but also by the able manner in which they had arranged the programme. Mr. Bert Browne, of the Rockets, was in the chair, and made "calls" on the Misses Georgina Delmar, Louie Collier, Lulu Valli, Nell Emerald, and Messrs. J. F. McArdle, Fred Wright, jun., Geo. Robey, Edward Lewis, T. A. Shale, Geo. Miller, The Haytors, Bros. Obo, Fred Barnes, &c., who gave of their best. Mr. J. F. Graham was present, with many others, and the proceedings, which were kept up till a late hour, were voted most enjoyable.

THE annual benefit of Mr. C. W. Ramsay, the acting-manager of the Alexandra Theatre, Sheffield, was celebrated by a packed house on the 7th inst., when the performance was under the patronage of the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire and other notabilities. Selections from Dick Whittington were given, and vocal contributions by professional and local artists varied the well-arranged programme. Mr. Ramsay was enthusiastically applauded when he made his appearance to express his thanks, and was the recipient of over forty souvenirs of the occasion—some very costly, and all useful—from Mr. W. D. Forsdike and other admirers.

THE supper and concert in connection with the Edinburgh Theatrical Fête took place at the Carlton Hotel on the 8th inst. Mr. Geo. T. Minshull, of the Lyceum Theatre, presided over a gathering of more than a hundred artists and guests, and in a felicitous speech intimated that the fête of the previous day had been highly successful, a sum of nearly £350 having been received. Mr. Dan Rolyat responded to the toast of "The Artists," and Mrs. Dare to that of "The Ladies." The contributors to the concert programme included Miss Edna Loftus, Miss Lilian Lea, Miss Lilian, Miss Katie Butler, Mr. Mark Sheridan, the Brothers Egbert, Mr. Dan Rolyat, Mr. Harry Conlin, Mr. Leonard Mackay, Mr. A. W. Ashdowne, Mr. George Leyton, and Mr. Gus Merriman.

"THE BELLE OF MAYFAIR" went into another new edition at the Vaudeville on the 8th inst., when fresh features of interest were imported into the successful piece. Miss Billie Burke, showing no sign of her slight motor-car accident in the afternoon, made a most effective addition to her répertoire with "Come back to Pierrette, Pierrot," which received an encore. She also secured honours with "The Pine Girl," a lyric described as by Mr. Leslie Stuart, assisted by Mr. Sydney Mannering, but the music of all the numbers is by Mr. Leslie Stuart. One of the most charming is "Do you waltz?" rendered in his best style by Mr. Courtice Pounds, and Mr. Farren Soutar caused a great deal of fun by his rendering of "The girlie in the goggles and the veil." The words of both numbers are by Mr. George Arthurs. A dance in the first act was cleverly executed by Miss Ruby Ray and Mr. Charles Angelo.

MISS EDNA MAY'S engagement to Mr. Oscar Lewisohn, which has been confirmed this week, is declared to be a "love match" pure and simple, and the fact that her fiancé is the son of the "Copper King" of America who left a fortune of about £5,000,000 to be divided among his nine children has had no influence in her choice. Mr. Oscar Lewisohn is a brother of Mrs. C. S. Henry, the wife of the Liberal Member for the Wellington Division of Shropshire.

MME. SARAH BERNHARDT has been appointed Professor of Dramatic Elocution at the Paris Conservatoire in succession to the late Professor Laugiero. A distinct step towards the obtaining of the Legion of Honour is thus made by the great tragedienne, from whom the decoration has hitherto been withheld on the ground that she was simply an actress; but now that she will be able to write Professor of the Conservatoire after her name the honour is practically assured.

ITEMS OF INTEREST.

Miss Neilson as a Mechanic.

MISS JULIA NEILSON played a very important part in a busy thoroughfare in Knightsbridge the other day, and its result was as gratifying as if the part had been thoroughly rehearsed, which it certainly had not. A motor-omnibus had struggled gamely from its starting point in Hammersmith, in spite of a very faulty mechanical interior, and, after an alarming series of unwarranted explosions and snortings, it eventually crawled itself to a standstill, and refused to budge an inch further. The passengers left the 'bus, and stood disconsolately by, whilst the driver and conductor searched and probed the interior of the motor for the cause of the stoppage. They had covered themselves with dirt, but not with glory, when a smart motor occupied by a lady and her chauffeur came up; and the lady, seeing the difficulty of the two motor-'bus men, stopped her car, and jumped down to their assistance. She took a survey of the machinery, and almost immediately, with a smile, pointed out something to the mystified 'bus driver that seemed to give him new heart. He followed out her directions and rectified the fault she had drawn his attention to. In a trice the man was on his box again, the passengers had entered the 'bus, and it went careering on its way once more. The crowd that assembles on all such occasions gave the lady a grateful cheer as she re-entered her car, but no one recognised who the clever mechanician was, except a small urchin, who remarked to his companion, "I sye, Bill, ain't that Julia Neilson, wots on them pictur' post-cards?"

Compensation for Disturbance.

MR. CYRIL MAUDE writes:—"I have just had a remarkable letter from a dramatic author (a budding one), which I feel it my duty to tell you about. He sends me a one-act play for consideration, and at the end of his letter says—'And if, having read it, you should decide that I have wasted ten minutes of your time unnecessarily, I shall be pleased to forward you a guinea for the Actors' Association.' Is it possible that the kindly example of this generous author might be followed."

Only a Dream.

MR. ALFRED LESTER, who plays the Lost Constable in The New Aladdin, has been telling Woman's Life of a curious experience he had when enacting a wicked father in melodrama. The scene was supposed to be aboard ship, 'tween decks, not a set scene, but merely a cloth lowered, with the cabin painted on it. The thunder was rolling, the rain could be heard swishing down in torrents, the man with the wind-box at the back was creating a lovely hurricane, and every now and then timbers were heard to crack. It was Mr. Lester's great scene of the evening, and, in frenzied tones he was recounting and repenting his past life. But he noticed that the more he raved the louder the audience laughed. He could see nothing to laugh at, and felt discomfited; but he kept right on. Then he turned his head, and out of the corner of his eye noticed the cause of the laughter. The scene-shifter had, instead of "'tween decks," lowered a peaceful country scene, with a rose-covered cottage! Mr. Lester preserved his presence of mind, and, to save the situation, cried, "Thank Heaven, it was only a dream!"

A Cue and a Curse.

MR. EDMONDS sends us the following:—Poor Cawdery, who was with Phelps at Sadler's Wells, was an excellent master carpenter, but he did not get on at all well with Barry Sullivan. It was during a rehearsal of Macbeth, and one of Sullivan's black days. Cawdery's life had been made a burden to him, and he only wanted an excuse to say something nasty to the great actor. "Do you," enquired Barry, when they were rehearsing the first scene of Act IV., "know the cue to sink the cauldron?" "Well," said Cawdery, "considering I've been master carpenter for——" "I'm not asking you that, sir!" thundered the "star." "Do—you—know—the cue?" "Yes!!!" said the maddened carpenter, "an eternal CURSE fall on you, 'Mr. Sullivan!'"

Not Proteus But Portius.

THE Daily Telegraph has exhumed from the memoirs of the old-time actor, John Bernard, the following anecdote of a certain Jack Barnshaw. Playing Leander one evening in The Padlock, Barnshaw addressed the heroine, Leonora, with the words "Beauteous Leonora! have you not often observed a pilgrim at your gate who has often watched you. I am that pilgrim—one that would change shapes as often as Portius to gain a sight of you." When he came off Bernard stopped him with a demand for an explanation. "What did you mean," he asked, "by that curious reference to Portius, and who was he, by the way?" "Don't you remember," replied the actor, "The Merchant of Venice, in which there is a Portius who is first a woman, then transformed into a man, and, changing shapes once more, appears as a woman? That is the meaning of the phrase."

Non-Playgoing Parties.

MR. E. A. BAUGHAN, writing on the Drama in the Daily News, says:—"The stage is suffering at present from the indifference of two important classes. Go where you will in London, you meet clever men who are disposed to be interested in drama, but never attend theatres, partly because the plays do not appeal to them as a representation of life, and partly because the importance the player has arrogated to himself, the gossip of actors and actresses, and the ceaseless exhibition of their portraits have disgusted them with the theatre and its ways. That is one class. The other is composed of the section of society who still discuss such questions as those my correspondents have put to me, and abstain from attending theatres on ethical and sectarian grounds. And so the poor drama is fashioned to give amusement to a middle intellectual class. Happily there are signs of a renaissance of interest in the theatre."

Singing His Hair Off.

APROPOS of the music hall war and the difference between ancient and modern variety artists, is an anecdote introduced by Toole into his speech on the last night of his engagement at the Theatre Royal, Edinborough, in 1883. "Some years ago," said the comedian, "I dropped into a music hall in Portsmouth, just to study a little character. There was a gentleman there who always wound up the entertainment by singing that exciting song, 'The Wolf.' When he was called upon to favour the company with it he began it something in this fashion. (Mr. Toole here, amid much laughter, sang in a husky voice the first line.) The audience had been a kindly and indulgent one, but his style was more than they could stand, and some hissing was heard. The performer tried it again, with the same result. Then the performer, pulling himself together, said: 'Ladies and gentlemen, I am not surprised at your indignation. The fact is I have sung this wolf hundreds of times; and I have sung all the air off him.'"

The Glovers.

IN reply to our recent querist re the Glovers, Mrs. Michael Connelly, formerly Miss Georgina Glover, can give him all the particulars required. Mrs. Connelly is a niece of the late Mrs. John Bland, who was, before her marriage to Mr. Bland, Miss Georgina Glover, one of the daughters of the celebrated actress, Mrs. Glover. Mrs. Connelly's address is 54, Casewick-road, West Norwood, S.E.

"THE CASSILIS ENGAGEMENT."

A Comedy, in Four Acts, by St. John Hankin.
Produced at the Imperial Theatre, on Monday, Feb. 11.

Mrs. Herries ..... MISS K. M. ROMSEY
The Rector ..... MR. F. MORLAND
Watson ..... MR. RALPH HUTTON
Lady Remenham ..... MISS FLORENCE HAYDON
Lady Mabel Venning ..... MISS ISABEL ROLAND
Mrs. Cassilis ..... MISS EVELYN WEEDEN
Lady Marchmont ..... MISS GERTRUDE BURNETT
Geofrey Cassilis ..... MR. LANGHORNE BURTON
Mrs. Borridge ..... MISS CLARE GREET
Ethel Borridge ..... MISS MAUDI DARRELL
Dorset ..... MISS MARGARET MACKENZIE
Major Warrington ..... MR. SAM SOTHERN

Mr. St. John Hankin, the author of The Charity that Begins at Home and other Stage Society plays, has added another to the list of his successes by the production of The Cassilis Engagement. The piece has nothing eccentric or ultra-intellectual about it, being a clever comedy of upper-class country life. The "atmosphere" is that of hundreds of comfortable mansions in the agricultural districts. The action takes place at Deynham Abbey—there is much significance in the "Abbey"—in Leicestershire. The society is that of well-left widows, clean-bred, well-groomed, conventional clergy, authoritative old maids, and old family servants. Geofrey Cassilis, an ingenuous youth, is dependent upon his mother, Mrs. Cassilis, for present and future income. He will have to live on her during her lifetime, inheriting from her after her death. In such circumstances it would only be prudent to marry by her advice; but, relying on her affection for him, Geoffrey falls in love with an utterly unsuitable person, the daughter of a bookmaker. The late Mr. Borridge died of drink, leaving a small annuity to his wife, Mrs. Borridge, who lived with him for some years previous to the marriage which made Ethel legitimate. Her sister, Nan, has "gone to the bad"; and Ethel's most disinterested tastes are restaurant suppers and other Cockney delights. Mrs. Borridge is constantly in difficulties with her "h's" and her grammar—the great "gulf" which, as Mr. Middlewick said, lay between him and the educated. Mrs. Cassilis is determined that her son shall not marry the girl; but, having the wisdom of the serpent as well as the affection of the pelican, she determines to employ diplomacy. She dissembles her dislike for the Borridges, invites them to Deynham Abbey, throws Geofrey into the society of his young and charming friend, Lady Mabel Venning, and leaves matters to work themselves out.

This they do gradually and steadily. Ethel is sufficiently acute to appreciate the view taken of her and her mother by Mrs. Cassilis and her circle, and not being a horsewoman or a lover of nature, the life at Deynham "bores her to death." She soon begins to grow jealous, too, of the growing friendship between Geofrey and Lady Mabel; and a man-of-the-world visitor to the Abbey, Major Warrington, explains to her what her life as Geofrey's wife would be. She would perforce be buried down in the country all the year in a house purchased for Geofrey by his mother. The prospect horrifies the girl; and, in a moment of excitement, she asks Warrington to run away with her to Paris. He is scandalised at such a suggestion, and refuses. Ethel, after Mabel has sung a little German song very sweetly, goes to the piano and rattles off a "coster" ditty of music-hall origin, which terribly shocks the assembled guests, and deeply grieves Geofrey. He remonstrates with her, and she resents his lecture. Ethel redeems herself in the eyes of the audience by her behaviour in the last act. Her mercenary old mother has always urged her to "get something in writing" from Geofrey, so as to be able, if necessary, to make him the defendant in a breach of promise case; but Ethel breaks off the engagement of her own accord. She tells the young man straightforwardly that the idea of their marriage was a mistake; that they are quite unsuited to each other, and that he himself must now be aware of it. Geofrey protests, rather feebly, against this statement; but Ethel persists, and goes off to pack her and her mother's boxes. Mrs. Borridge makes a "scene," weeping and scolding bitterly in the intensity of her disappointment; but the pair depart eventually, and Mrs. Cassilis's diplomacy triumphs.

With all the absurdity of the Borridge pretensions there is a certain tragic and pathetic element in the adventures of this mother and daughter at the Abbey—especially about those of the daughter. The good qualities of the girl, her intelligence, her energy, and the honesty which triumphs over her natural impulse to jealous revenge, make her struggles in her hopelessly unfit environment almost painful to witness. We can hardly laugh with comfort, either, at the egregious unconsciousness of Mrs. Borridge's vulgarity—we feel that it is cruel to derive amusement from such dire density. So, though on the surface an ordinary social comedy, The Cassilis Engagement really touches a deeper chord, and justifies its selection for performance by the Stage Society.

The piece was played with the artistic and "level" excellence which was required by its nature. The characters, with one exception, are painted in "half-tones," and require to be treated accordingly. Miss Evelyn Weeden looked exactly the refined and rather subtle personage that the text represented her to be, and acted with just the delicate aristocracy of style demanded by the character. Miss Maudi Darrell showed keen perception and acute discrimination as Ethel Borridge. She handled the rôle very cleverly, looked it remarkably well, and "came out strong" in the scene of rupture in the last act. Altogether Miss Darrell may be congratulated upon her success in the performance of a very difficult task. Miss K. M. Romsey gave a neat and finished embodiment of Mrs. Herries; and Mr. F. Morland did all that was necessary as the Rector, Mr. Ralph Hutton being quite successful as the butler, Watson. Miss Florence Haydon was bright, crisp, and quietly comic as Lady Remenham; and Miss Isabel Roland was a pretty and pleasing Lady Mabel Venning, Miss Gertrude Burnett doing good work as Lady Marchmont. Mr. Langhorne Burton was a presentable, well-bred Geofrey Cassilis, and acted with much quiet expression; and Miss Margaret Mackenzie was efficient as Dorset, Mr. Sam Sothern contributing a smooth, natural, and polished performance of the part of Major Warrington. Miss Clare Greet as Mrs. Borridge evoked roars of laughter by her broadly comic exposition of the good lady's absurdities and eccentricities. The play, produced as it was by Miss Madge Macintosh, went without a hitch, Mr. James Anning's stage-management being of valuable assistance.

ACTORS' UNION.

A number of earnest and enthusiastic members of the Actors' Association, who have been nominated for the Council, offer themselves together as a body for the purpose of securing certain administrative reforms. In an address just issued they advocate a smaller council, which should be made more directly responsible to the members by reviving the original custom of annual election. It is held that a council of forty-two is too large for administrative work, and that the present inability to influence the policy of the executive by a popular vote in less than two years discourages many members of the Association from taking any interest in its affairs. It is also desired to take a step in the direction of abolishing low salaries by insisting that the Association Agency shall not deal with any offers of engagements for speaking parts carrying less than £2 per week. As the adoption of the first proposal would necessitate another Council election in the near future, the question of further reforms is held over till then. The manifesto is signed by Messrs. Henry Ainley, H. Granville Barker, Cecil Brooking, Lewis Casson, C. F. Collings, H. Athol Forde, C. V. France, Fred Morland, and Kenyon Musgrave, and Misses Clare Greet, Georgina Hamilton, and Wynne Matthison.

The above ladies and gentlemen will be candidates at the annual general election of the A.A., at the Playhouse on Tuesday next, and call themselves the "Reform Party." They are all pledged to such general reforms in the organisation and management of the Actors' Association as may tend to make it a more effective means of protecting the interests of the actor; to advocating that all ordinary members of the Council shall retire annually, and their number be reduced to twenty-five; and that the Agency Department shall be forbidden to deal with any engagements offering a salary of less than £2 a week for a speaking part.

At a meeting at 3, Bedford-street, Strand, on the 8th inst., for the purpose of forming an Actors' Union, Mr. Lawrence Grant moved that no new society should be formed, but that all support should be given to the Reform party. After considerable discussion, it was agreed that a conference should be held with the Reform party.

Mr. Arthur Bawtree, who took the chair at a meeting at 3, Bedford-street on Tuesday afternoon, read, from a letter from Mr. Fred Bentley, the following suggested rules:—That an entrance fee of 2s. 6d. and a weekly subscription of 6d. should be paid by each member, and each member should have a card and receive a stamp for each week; that a levy of 6d. per member should be made for each death; that no actor should be installed as paid secretary, but a proper independent secretary be engaged; and that no manager (acting or business) or stage-manager, carpenter, baggage-man, should be a member of the Union. The chairman then asked those who wished to join the Union to sign their names, and those who did not wish to join to leave the room. These requests having been complied with, a provisional secretary and committee were elected, to canvass the members of the profession as to the formation of a Union. The committee included Miss Nellie Howitt, Miss Rouir, Mr. Robson Paige, Mr. Francis Chamier, Mr. J. Bentham, Mr. Arthur Bawtree, Mr. A. Y. Rae, Mr. Rawson Buckley, Mr. W. Ruddle Brown, and Mr. Oswald Marshall, Mr. Peet Leslie being elected secretary.

At the Salisbury Hotel, Manchester, on the 8th inst., a meeting of actors was held to discuss the project of an Actors' Union, upon lines designed to improve the financial conditions of the profession in general, and of provincial actors in particular. There was not a very large attendance, but the deficiency in point of mere numbers was amply balanced by the vigorous expression of views and experiences. These latter were quoted to prove that the adoption of a scheme upon strict "trade union" lines was absolutely necessary for the welfare of actors who have to get their living in the provinces. It was stated that the Actors' Association did not help the case of provincial actors, whose requirements might have been met rather by the scheme put forward some time ago by Messrs. H. B. Irving and Seymour Hicks, and subsequently withdrawn.

It was proposed that the new amalgamation—christened for the present the "Provincial Actors' Union"—should include none but bond fide artists; that in no circumstances should a manager be admitted, though due provision should be made for the case of the actor who becomes also an acting-manager; that stage hands should be excluded from taking any part in the representation of a play, the resource of "doubling" being held to meet all possible exigencies; that instead of submitting to the managers' demand for free rehearsals, the actor should be paid at the rate of half his salary; and that the minimum salary of any responsible actor should be not less than £2 per week, for a limit of six performances. On these lines it was proposed that the Provincial Actors' Union should be established and put into operation; that a vigorous appeal should be made to the profession by those members who have the opportunity of being first upon the list with their names. Stimulus was supplied by several members of the V.A.F., who, fresh from a hopeful meeting under the same roof, were present to make encouraging comment and to offer practical advice.

Mr. Phil Herman, one of the first to start the A.A. in Manchester, strongly urged a solid adhesion of actors to the proposed Union as being the only means of self-defence against the encroaching evils. He averred with emphasis that the local manager and the printer were getting the cream of the actors' brains, and that pictorial printing especially was a curse to the profession.

Mr. Tom Costello, expressing his sympathy with the scheme, advised, above all, amicable relationship with each other to the exclusion of personal jealousies. He thought that the Union should get well prepared upon a system of levies, that should be small, but certain and cumulative, and that actors who were in work should resist, on principle, the temptations to step into the breach of the music hall war.

Mr. Charles Coborn added some genial advice to the effect that the members of the Union should have faith in their cause—do the right, and after it is done, do right again—feeling sure that the constant effort to achieve good for the deserving must inevitably reap its reward.

Among the revelations made was one that there are leading juveniles at present who do not receive more—some probably less—than the proposed minimum salary of the Union; while others, suffering under a process of gradual reduction, are being thrown out in favour of cheaper men. The stress of evil conditions and the need to live are, it was stated, responsible for this state of affairs, to which also the amateur, in some degree, contributes.

It was eventually agreed that a Provincial Actors' Union should be formed, with an entrance fee of 2s. 6d., and a weekly subscription of 6d.

At a meeting on Thursday at the Salisbury Hotel, Manchester, it was resolved that the entrance fee should be 2s. 6d., with a levy of 6d. per week, and a death levy of 6d., as in (or similar to) the case of the V.A.F.; that five years' experience should be required to constitute eligibility for membership, and that every new member should be introduced and vouched for by at least two responsible associates; that subscriptions should be paid by the method of a book and stamps, on the lines of the V.A.F., and ten weeks' grace be allowed in the matter of arrears; that the Union should be its own agency, capable of supplying every requirement of managers, and guaranteeing the efficiency of every actor or actress sent out; that the operations of the Union should include portables and fit-ups, but on a basis modified to suit the conditions and scope of same; and that proved incompetents, after reasonable tests, should be excluded from membership.

It was finally agreed that the organisation should fall in as much as possible with the scheme of the reform party of the A.A., though the latter's title—the Dramatic and Musical League—did not commend itself to the meeting. It was also considered that an immediate amalgamation presents a great difficulty in the way of the majority of provincial actors, in respect of the necessity of paying 25s. 6d. before a voice in the scheme of reform now going on can be had.

THE A.A. ELECTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As certain statements concerning the forthcoming A.A. election may be misleading, would you allow me to put plainly before all those who intend to vote the exact facts of the case?

A certain number of members are retiring from the council this year, but a certain number of those offer themselves for re-election. If you vote for these you vote for the present policy of the council, with which many of us disagree, because we consider it lacking in enterprise, energy, and appreciation of the needs of the times.

If you vote for the Reform Party, you had better discover, first, what this party desires. It has issued a circular which contains only two propositions. The first is that the council shall be reduced in number, and shall retire annually. With this proposition many people agree. Its second proposal is that the agency of the Association shall not negotiate engagements for less than £2 a week. If the Reform Party really mean that they want to establish a minimum wage, why don't they boldly say so? And why don't they honestly announce that upon this point at least they are going the genuine "Trades Union ticket"?

I say this because it is stated that the Reform Party will only vote for those candidates who have acquiesced in its test questions, and the suggestion seems to be that those who do not agree exactly with this Reform Party are not reformers, and do not desire any sort of reform.

I assert most emphatically that this is not so.

I did not acquiesce in all the demands of the Reform Party, not because I am opposed to reform, but because I am most distinctly opposed to following blindly an indefinite policy.

It is the dilatory, dilettante spirit, which is the curse of the Actors' Association. Half and half measures, half and half proposals, hair-splitting formality, red tape, and delay—these are the things that have turned many members from us in disgust. To-day there is a new spirit in the air. New hopes have arisen, new determinations have been made, and it is because I am loyal, and most truly loyal, to the Association that I say it will be left to die of inanition in a ditch of dilatoriness if it does not soon display a keen and proper sympathy with the bitter wants of our calling.

Apart from its "lemon-squash" programme, the Reform Party alludes in discreet and demure terms to general reforms such as, I am sure, would not offend a maiden aunt in a Berlin wool shop. If it has anything real and practical in view, let the Reform Party, through its leaders, state on Tuesday exactly what it wants and what are its ultimate ambitions. Then we shall know what we are voting for.

What I personally want I do not hesitate to say. I want to see the council made more of a business board and less of a debating society—ends which would be achieved by decreasing its numbers, and by having an annual re-election. I want to see the blackleg labour of the premium-paying and no-salary-receiving amateur absolutely prohibited. I want to see a minimum wage of £2 per week made compulsory for all speaking parts. This last clause is the most important of all. When employers are compelled to pay £2 a week at the bottom of the ladder, they will certainly prefer to take experienced people for their money, instead of paying inexperienced amateurs. The minimum salary should be established in the interests of art as well as in the interests of necessity.

I put it, Sir, frankly, to all those who are going to vote on Tuesday: Is our calling in a deplorable condition or is it not? Are many people nearly starving or are they not? Let them ask themselves the question, and then make up their minds whether they will vote for those who have the courage of their opinions, and who advocate real remedies, or for the lavender-kid-glove leaders of a rose-water revolution. — Yours faithfully,

LUCY SIBLEY.

"AT HOME" AT THE ST. JAMES'S.

Her Royal Highness, Princess Christian, with her daughter, Princess Victoria, Lady Bancroft, and Mr. and Mrs. George Alexander, assisted at a very charming at-home, held at the St. James's Theatre on Friday afternoon last week, in aid of the funds of the Maternity Hospital at Windsor. All the stalls and other seats were removed from the ground-floor of the theatre for the occasion, and special carpets were laid down, while ornamental chairs and flower-stands and ferns were arranged in an artistic manner in the space thus made available. The stage itself was very prettily decorated. The scene in the background was a river or lake, flanked by a sylvan glen—a picturesque setting for the lovely dresses and hats, not to mention the personal attractions, of the ladies who assembled before the footlights for tea. Mr. George Alexander was complimented on all hands upon the beautiful appearance of his theatre.

Well-known ladies took charge of the tea-tables, the principal one being presided over by H.R.H. Princess Christian and her daughter, assisted by Mrs. Alexander. Others who performed a similar goodly service were Princess Alexandar of Teck, Countess Fitzwilliam, Lady Edward Churchill, Dorothea Countess of Chesterfield, Lady Mary Pepys, Lady Borthwick, Lady Ingestre, Lady Herbert, Lady Parratt, the Hon. Mrs. Hanbury-Lennox, and Mrs. Seymour Cochran.

The most interesting portion of the proceedings was the delivery by Lady Bancroft of a little speech on behalf of the Hospital. After referring to Mr. George Alexander's candidature for the London County Council, she went on to say that the Maternity Home originated in the desire of Princess Christian to found an institution which should be open to the wives of soldiers who were fighting for their country in South Africa. It was undoubtedly conferring a great boon on poor humanity, and an effort should be made to help it. Thanks were due to Her Royal Highness for the deep interest she had taken in the scheme.

An interesting little programme of song and music followed, during which Miss Louisa Dale, deputising for Mme. Clara Butt, who had been announced to appear, but was unable to turn up, gave a delightful rendering of the song, "To-morrow," from The Vicar of Wakefield. The talented juvenile violinist, Miss Vivien Chartres, submitted an altogether pleasing performance. The band of H.M. 2nd Life Guards played numerous selections in a way that gave proof of the wonderful efficiency of all the instrumentalists.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. J. O. Shepherd, the conductor of the orchestra of the Royal Court Theatre, Liverpool, was the other afternoon entertained to luncheon at the Adelphi Hotel by a few friends, who presented him with a valuable armchair, as a mark of their esteem.

SOUVENIRS AT HIS MAJESTY'S.

Admirers of Mr. Tree—and their name is legion—are agreeably exercised in their minds at the special honour that will be paid to the actor-manager in Berlin shortly, and there could be no doubt that a feeling of congratulation dominated the large audience that celebrated on Friday, the 8th, the fiftieth performance of the sumptuous revival of Antony and Cleopatra. On that evening Mr. Tree, with that graciousness and perfect taste that characterise him, presented each member of the audience with a very neat souvenir in the form of a prettily-bound and beautifully-printed copy of his acting version, illustrated by portraits of the chief characters and photographs of scenes from the tragedy. Of course, Mr. Tree had to yield to the strenuous demands for a speech. He expressed his gratification at being able to run such a production so successfully for fifty nights. It was indeed something to be proud of, and he hoped that the little book he had placed in the hands of his patrons would keep them in pleasant remembrance of the event. He and the ladies and gentlemen of his company were very thankful for the generous encouragement given to their efforts, and on his return from Berlin, where, as they all knew, Shakespeare was held in high favour, he hoped to provide a fortnight's Shakespearean festival, which he trusted would meet with the public approval.

The sensuous beauty of the production, with its wonderful realisation of Oriental pomp, power, and luxury, will live in the memory of the playgoer, and Mr. Tree, who in his "foreword" gratefully recognises the "expert and graceful hand" of Mr. Percy Macquoid in the colouring and archæology, as well as the inspiring co-operation of Mr. J. Comyns Carr, need not trouble himself further about the controversy that has raged round his production, but thank the "gods" and the pit and the stalls for their whole-hearted appreciation and patronage.

In his impersonation of Antony in the story of the tragic collapse of Roman nerve and stamina in the arms of the Greek enchantress, Mr. Tree has had this advantage—he has had no great predecessor in the part within living memory. His conception of the character has broadened and deepened since the first night. He realises by many fine touches the whole-hearted devotion of Antony to Cleopatra, and there is a sense of impending doom in the utterances of the outmanœuvred and despised triumvir in the later phases of the play. The growing sorrow and unavailing regret previous to suicide are most pathetically expressed, and the final scene is mournful and deeply impressive.

Miss Constance Collier is endowed with personal attributes that make her a beautiful queen indeed. The coquetry of the character is cleverly suggested, and its caprice and cruelty firmly "lined in." The cruelty of the Egyptian sorceress is effectively insisted on in the famous scene with the messenger, and the actress gives a reading that is full of seductive charm in the earlier, and instinct with dignity in the final catastrophe. In Cleopatra's most wilful and wanton moods Miss Collier is always the Queen.

Mr. Basil Gill is the level-headed, calm, determined Octavius to the life, and reaches a high level of excellence in the scene wherein the young triumvir describes Antony's honouring of Cleopatra, and expresses his indignation at the desertion by the adulterous Roman of the chaste Octavia.

Mr. Lyn Harding's Enobarbus has evoked universal praise. It is one of the most telling parts in the play. Enobarbus chronicles each stage of Antony's weakness with caustic precision, and his glowing description of Cleopatra's majestic voyage up the Cydnus—one of the really poetic passages of the play—is very finely delivered by Mr. Harding, who evokes several tributes of applause for his fine elocution.

The character of Lepidus receives excellent treatment from Mr. Norman Forbes, who is at his best in the Aristophanic humour of the banquet on Pompey's galley, where, as a writer has very truly remarked, the masters of the world, hand in hand, go round in a tipsy Bacchanal.

Mr. Julian L'Estrange as Sextus Pompeius gives effect to the warlike but chivalrous nature of this ambitious opponent of the triumvirs.

The yielding, unsophisticated nature of Octavia is skilfully indicated by Miss Maud Cressall, who plays the rôle with gentle dignity and an impressive air of resignation.

Miss Alice Crawford's Charmian is full of Oriental colour, and spontaneous gaiety marks her acting in the scene with the Soothsayer—the pathos of her death scene being in strong contrast.

Mr. J. Fisher White's work is always distinguished by earnestness, care, and artistic aim; and his rendering of the Soothsayer is both mystic and impressive.

The terror of Mr. Charles Quartermaine's Messenger is unmistakable; and Mr. Egerton Hine as the messenger from Sicyon makes the part stand out. Effective work is contributed in the parts of Eros and Menas by Mr. Hugh C. Buckler and Mr. Herbert Grimwood; Mr. Bruno Holmes as the clown gives the necessary touch of grim humour to the part; Mr. J. Cooke Beresford and Mr. Robert Atkins as Alexas and Ventidius respectively do particularly well in those parts; and praise may be given to Mr. A. B. Imeson and Mr. Harry C. Hewitt as Scarus and Demetrius. Others who aid in the poetic beauty of this fine production are Mr. Edward Ouston as Mecænas, Mr. Alfred Goddard as Agrippa, Mr. A. Corney Grain and Mr. S. Yates Southgate as Proculeius and Thyreus, Mr. Clive Currie and Mr. C. H. Sworder as Menecrates and Varrius, Mr. James Smythe as Euphronius, and Mr. Henry Williams as Mardian.

ALEXANDRA PALACE.

On Saturday evening a largely-attended and highly successful promenade concert took place in the Central Hall. The instrumental portion of the programme was undertaken by the Band of H.M. Coldstream Guards, numbering their full strength, under the conductorship of Lieut. J. Mackenzie Rogan. An important feature was the primal introduction of the new set of six silver trumpets just presented to the Coldstream Guards by Mr. E. Christie Miller. Amongst the numbers were Wagner's overture "Die Meistersinger" and Raff's Cavatina, which had been specially arranged for the band by its able and accomplished conductor. The descriptive piece, "The Turkish Patrol," was more than usually attractive by the introduction of a Turkish order on the march delivered with fine elocutionary effort by the member entrusted with the task. Other meritorious items were the Grand Military Tattoo, as written and first performed by the massed bands of the Brigade of Guards at the Royal Naval and Military Tournament in 1905, and the selected xylophone solos by the musician Borland, whose reception was most flattering. The vocal numbers assigned to Miss Gertrude Lonsdale were rendered with excellent taste and care, the song "I think" deservedly obtaining an encore. Miss Violet Ludlow instantly scored in Guy d'Hardelot's "Thoughts of you" and Stephen Adams' "Father of Light," with organ obbligato by Mr. G. D. Cunningham. The commencement of the second part was Tschaikowsky's grand overture, "Solennelle," better known as "1812." The pyrotechnical display given by Messrs. James Pain and Son in the Italian gardens adjoining the hall greatly added to the realistic effect of the musical performance.

"THE TATTOOED MAN," a comic opera, in two acts, book and lyrics by Harry B. Smith, and music by Victor Herbert, was produced for copyright purposes at the Victoria Hall, Bayswater, on Monday.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE MIDDLESEX.

New items of interest are ever to be discovered in Mr. J. L. Graydon's bill, which this week contains an appreciable addition to the rapidly-increasing list of dramatic pieces. It takes the form of a sketch, in one scene, by Bert Danson, given for the first time on Monday, and entitled

"A WOMAN'S HONOUR."

Jack Anstead .....Mr. Arthur Bawtree
Harvey Stone .....Mr. Lionel Gadsden
Mabel Anstead .....Miss Maud Holland

The new playlet, the author of which is responsible for Hobbs' Vendetta and other pieces which have attained popularity, has the first essential for success in the power to arrest attention. The dialogue is forcible and direct, and no time is lost in arriving at a dénouement which is thrilling and unexpected. Two men, who have been rivals for the hand of the same lady, remain apparent friends after her marriage to Jack Anstead, at whose house Harvey Stone, the unsuccessful suitor, is a welcome visitor. Jack, however, has ruined himself by gambling, one of his liabilities being due to Stone, who has won a sum of £1,000 at poker. The debt represents only a small part of Jack's pecuniary difficulties, but his wife, unaware of the extent of his losses, determines to ask Stone to allow the money to remain until Jack's fortunes have improved. Her request is met by a passionate avowal of love by Stone, who promises to accede to it only at the sacrifice of her honour. Mrs. Anstead rejects the suggestion with contempt, and Stone is becoming violent when Jack enters, and learns of his faithless friend's infamy. The husband insists on a duel with pistols, and as he is a crack shot he makes the chances equal by arranging that the wife shall count three and switch off the light, so that both shall fire in the dark. The men face each other; but only two has been told off when Stone treacherously fires and wounds his opponent in the hand. Instead of shooting him down Jack produces another revolver, and handing it to his wife, bids her kill his adversary if he should fire before the given time. The opponents again get into position, Stone being covered by the lady's revolver. The fateful three is reached, the room is momentarily plunged in darkness, two shots ring out, and when light is restored the villain is lying dead. Such novel conditions for a duel can assuredly never before have been invented, and the scene had an intense and thrilling effect which enthralled the house. The sketch is played by Miss Maud Holland's company, who work together with a just appreciation of their responsibilities. Miss Holland is a fascinating exponent of Mabel Anstead, and plays with agreeable lightness, which gives place when required to dramatic intensity. An effective rendering of Jack Anstead is given by Mr. Arthur Bawtree, an actor of fine appearance and finished methods, who adds to the realism of the character by neat touches of pathos as well as by vigorous declamation. Harvey Stone is made sufficiently contemptible by Mr. Lionel Gadsden, whose villainy is none the less pronounced because it is refined. Deep silence on Monday accompanied the piece, the dramatic climax of which provoked loud applause.

At a later period of the evening a sketch which bubbles over with mirth is provided by Mr. C. H. Doughty and company. It is called Captain Cupid, and deals with the misadventures of an army officer who makes love first to one fair lady and afterwards to another equally charming. A warm time is in store for the Captain when his duplicity is discovered, and both ladies prepare to horsewhip him. The gay deceiver gets out of the difficulty by pretending to be mad, and thus escapes marrying either. Mr. Doughty is unfailingly comic as the amorous Captain, evoking constant bursts of laughter, while his assumption of madness is also very clever. Serious work comes at the end of the programme when The Prodigal Wife, an emotional episode produced a few weeks back, is played. Pretty and talented Miss Lois Du Cane appears in the title part, and plays it with her customary grace and dramatic skill. She is thoroughly supported by a well-selected company.

Among the varied items of the bill Messrs. Cedar and Elgar figure prominently with a whimsical interlude, done in the character of a knight of old and a baron bold, the patter of the pair being well-written and delivered. Hughes and Elliott supplement a coon duet with some novel rag-time stepping, and in their sand dance exhibit a precision and skill that is much admired. "Annie Laurie" is sung with much feeling by Miss Florence Deighton, who is also able to render the chorus of "Geneviève" in two voices, giving one in a deep contralto and the other in a high and powerful soprano. The Pasquali Brothers accomplish with ease the task of ascending and descending a high staircase head to head, while noteworthy among other feats is that of balancing in the same precarious fashion, their heads, however, being separated by a lighted lamp. Feats of rare skill are also performed by Francis, who has long enjoyed the distinction of being a "cannon-ball" king. His fondling of that unwieldy missile is startling in the extreme, and his expert juggling, to which a comic turn is given by the funny Alfred, creates a furore. Mr. Robbie Roy causes a great diversion as a comedian in kilts; Elsie Hill and company exert a comic influence in a humorous sketch; Natalia and Diana are comely and clever gymnasts; and in the programme are also the Brothers Lowenwirth, Miss Lily Albert, Mr. Ernie Williams, Miss Jenny Venton, O'Doyle and Dempsey, and the New Bioscope.

ROYAL ALBERT.

Within a comparatively short time from now Mr. Arthur G. H. Hunt, the proprietor of the Royal Albert, will be able to claim for his establishment that it is one of the architectural features of the locality. The West Ham Borough Council have, after several months spent in the consideration and reconsideration of plans, at last passed the designs submitted by Mr. Hunt's architect, and the work of reconstructing the entrance and frontage of the house will now be proceeded with.

The young gentlemen of the neighbourhood who fancy they have predilections in the way of the "noble art" should find plenty to engage their attention in the boxing exhibition at the Albert this week. Ben Jordan and Johnny Summers, described as the retired feather-weight champion of the world and as the 9st. champion of England respectively, offer to meet all comers, and certainly when the comers come the two champions give them a pretty exciting time of it. A silver cup is offered for the best show made during the week. An attractive electrical act is that presented by the two Marconis, who pass many thousand volts of electricity through their bodies without injury to themselves. There is much that is pretty and, at the same time, amazingly daring in the demonstration, notably where the flames are brought into existence by electrical contact. Raymond's Bio-Tableau is worthy of special mention. The pictures descriptive of a wedding by cycle are particularly vivid and particularly amusing, and the same remarks may be made in regard to the series entitled "My wife won't let me." Mr. Harry Desmond is hugely entertaining in his comedy business, and his song "Now I'm getting one-and-six a week"; and Miss Carrie Victoria has a taking ditty, which she sings with much spirit, the lines of which practically amount to an invitation to the audience to make love to her. Clown Charlton submits a pleasing eccentric musical act, during which he plays on the banjo and the concertina, giving us on the latter instrument a capital performance of "Put a little bit away for a rainy day." Miss Violet Francis is a most engaging comedienne, and her rendering of "You're a nice young man" quite takes the fancy of her hearers. She possesses an excellent style and delivery. The Bouncing Dillons (Hilda and Willie) are seen in a laughable gymnastic show, in which they give evidence of wonderful agility. The bouncing competition on the spring sheet evokes uproarious merriment. The Three Sisters Thurban present an altogether praiseworthy vocal and instrumental act, in which they perform on cornets, bugles, drums, mandolines, and banjoes.

SHEPHERD'S BUSH EMPIRE.

Another fine programme is to be found at this popular variety house this week. The bill is headed by Carl Hertz, who is assisted by Miss Emeline D'Alton and company. In addition to his many other wonderful tricks this fine performer is also presenting his latest sensation, "The Bridal Chamber." A raised platform is placed in the middle of the stage, hung on each of its four sides with curtains. The audience has a full view of three sides, top and bottom, and there is apparently nothing unusual about the back. The platform is empty, the curtains are rapidly drawn round it, a brief pause, the curtains are drawn away again, and the platform is found to contain a large bed with a charming young lady asleep in it. A wonderful trick indeed.

Lieut. Travis provides his well-known ventriloquial entertainment, which is very much to the taste of the audience. The sensation and discussion caused by the performance of the Zancigs at the Alhambra has more or less naturally produced quite a crop of similar turns. One of these is to be found at Shepherd's Bush this week, billed as the Collier and his Child. The feats performed by this couple are of the usual nature, names of articles, dates of coins, &c., being given with such perfect ease that the interest of the audience is thoroughly aroused. Kitty Wage sings very brightly a new song, entitled "The Penny Bazaar Girl," and the Wartenberg Brothers supply a neat and clever foot balancing act. Frank Bernard and company appear in a farcical sketch called Hello! which provokes roars of laughter. The piece deals with the efforts of a couple of needy rascals to utilise a disconnected public telephone for the purpose of raising money, and is full of funny situations. A little lady always sure of a welcome is My Fancy. This clever artist's dancing seems smarter and brighter than ever, and she thoroughly deserves her popularity. The Four Schwarz Bros. are apparently recent arrivals from the Continent. Their turn, only lasting about four minutes, is not one that is likely to compete very successfully with our home products. Sinclair and Whiteford appear in a comedy sketch, entitled Getting Even. A young fellow and his wife quarrel, and each of them attempts to play a trick on the other by impersonating a member of the opposite sex. The situations arising out of this medley are obviously ludicrous, and the sketch is played to a running accompaniment of laughter. That very popular and now apparently permanent item, the American Bioscope, this week illustrates a village fire, and the humorous attempts of the local brigade to put it out. The programme is completed by Fred Poplar, an excellent comedian, who sings a couple of songs, one a parody on current popular tunes, and the other entitled "How I wish that I could lose her."

THE BRITANNIA.

The feud now existing between the managers and artists in no way affects the performance at this popular house of amusement. On the night of our visit the vast auditorium was crowded in every part to witness the excellent programme submitted by the management. Undoubtedly the greatest attraction is the champion wrestler of the world, George Hackenschmidt, who issues nightly a challenge to any strong man or wrestler to throw him in ten minutes or give a prize of £10. On Monday evening two competitors submitted themselves; the first the challenger soon overcame, but the second, George Strong, was a more stubborn foe, and it took all Hackenschmidt's skill to throw him, which he eventually succeeded in doing in about seven minutes, after a splendid exhibition of scientific wrestling.

Sketches occupy a prominent position on the bill, the first being a highly dramatic one, entitled The King of Crime. The man who is known by this title is being tracked by a police spy, and is eventually discovered at his own house, but owing to the warning of a confederate is enabled to make his escape by donning several disguises, and he thus manages to throw his pursuers off the scent. The spy, who is in love with the criminal's wife, tries to persuade her to run away with him, but she refuses, and eventually her husband kills the would-be betrayer at a bal masque. The sketch is performed by a powerful company headed by Mr. J. H. Brownson, who gives a vigorous interpretation of the title-rôle, and must be congratulated on his cleverness in the disguises he assumes, and in which he thoroughly loses his personality. The confederate is humorously played by Mr. J. McMahon, who causes amusement by his impersonation of Mr. Busoni. The police spy, M. Le Loup, is successfully represented by Mr. Leonard Clarke. Miss Amy B. Ellis sympathetically plays the persecuted wife, whose son, Henri, is admirably embodied by Mr. J. Ellis; and Miss Marie Tree assists in the character of Fanchette.

The well-known sketch by the late G. H. Macdermott, entitled My Landlord, receives adequate treatment at the hands of Mr. Fred Lawrence and company, the amusing incidents exciting much merriment. A good turn is that submitted by Messrs. Davis and Gledhill, in their motor-paced cycle racing. Harry Sims, who has evidently taken another well-known comedian as his model, introduces some good songs, and receives abundant applause for his rendering of "In the sunshine it is delightful." Pery Johnson, billed as a new comedian, has a style of his own, and introduces a capital parody on "In the shade of the old apple tree." Windermere and Mansfield are well received in their comedy duologue, "A Narrow Shave." The remainder of a successful programme is contributed to by Ethel May, a charming comedienne; Thornbury, who wins applause by some excellent crayon and smoke drawings; and the Treshams in a new comedy sketch, entitled Roads Up. The orchestra, under the bâton of Mr. Carl Hamin, renders some excellent selections during the evening

HOLLOWAY EMPIRE.

Rip Van Winkle is paying a visit to Holloway this week, and the famous character created by Washington Irving has extended the circle of his friends. In spite of his very human weakness, the good-hearted rascal is a universal favourite, and never fails to win the sympathy of an audience. The dramatic version of the story in its condensed form makes a capital music hall sketch. Mr. Fred Storey continues to give a very telling representation of Rip, quickly making a favourable impression in the scene with the children, Heidrich and Meeni, where the boy's announcement of his intended marriage with his little sweetheart sends her father into fits of laughter. In the encounter with the spectres who haunt the Katskill Mountains and the awaking from the sleep of twenty years Mr. Storey's performance is characterised by a welcome humour that is greatly appreciated by the audience, who are also unmistakably touched by the real pathos of the situation in the last scene, where the white-haired old man with the long, flowing beard returns to the village and discovers that his daughter Meeni has grown into a woman and Gretchen has become the ill-used wife of old Derrick. Miss Lilian Holmes is an excellent representative of Gretchen; and Miss Gwendolen Burney does well as the grown-up Meeni, the little girl being prettily embodied by Miss May Rousby. Master Reginald Connor is also good as the boy Heidrich; Mr. Keith Fraser being the manly exponent of the same character in the last scene. Mr. A. Maitland Stapley ably impersonates Derrick, the villain of the piece. A notable feature of the production is the scenery, painted by Mr. Fred Storey, the pictures of the Katskill Mountains and the Village of Sleepy Hollow being much admired.

The vaudeville entertainers known as the Courtiers, under the direction of Mr. Paul Mill, give a musical performance, the leading characteristics of which are its refinement and the excellence of the singing. One of the lady members has a capital song in "The little boy next door," and a topical ditty by the leader of the company is also well received. All the choruses are admirably rendered, and the troupe meet with a hearty reception. The Musical Jees are here in their latest comedy sketch, The Scarecrow, in which the comic business introduced evokes abundance of merriment. One of the characters takes the place of a scarecrow, and plays pranks with a picnic party. A timid curate is the favourite victim of his practical jokes, and his comic terror caused by the eccentric behaviour of the supposed scarecrow makes everybody laugh. The sketch is briskly played throughout, and concludes with a clever musical performance. Moon and Morris, comedians, who recently appeared in the Camden Theatre pantomime, are amusing in their cross-talk, and also win applause with a novel dance. The combination known as Les Uniques, consisting of two ladies and one male performer, win favour in a gymnastic act upon a double ladder, their graceful exercises being watched with interest. Mr. Chas. Norton succeeds in cleverly mimicking many of the leading music hall stars, who are supposed to meet on the occasion of a big race. Mr. Percy Honri has reached the highest rank as a concertina player, and his contributions are among the most acceptable and successful in the programme. He is rewarded by enthusiastic applause. Miss Kitty Marion sings a ballad, "Mignon," in pleasing style; and the American Bioscope presents a very amusing picture in "The Policeman's Little Run." The Hadj Abdulla Troupe of Arabians do wonders as sensational pyramid builders, and their remarkable performance receives its due meed of recognition. Mr. Chas. W. Adams, the acting-manager here, gives careful supervision over affairs in front of the house, and Mr. Forbes Russell is the able musical director.

"THE LIGHT IN THE WINDOW."

A Dramatic Episode, in One Act, written by Frank Dix, Produced at the Empire, Camberwell, on Monday, Feb. 11.

Jim Wishart .....Mr. George Cockburn.
Bob Wilson .....Mr. T. Blackdock
Mercy .....Miss Agnes Paulton
Mrs. Wishart .....Miss Daisy England

Mr. Frank Dix, whose name has been so long associated with pantomime books and fairy stories, has made a most successful essay as dramatic author. The Light in the Window is one of the best written, and as played by Mr. Fred Winn's company here, one of the best acted dramatic sketches seen for some time on the variety stage. The story is so full of deep, tender feeling and domestic pathos that it got a firm hold on the audience, and achieved a well-merited and instantaneous success.

It is Midsummer Day when we find Mrs. Wishart and her granddaughter Mercy in their pretty little cottage on the edge of the moors, within sight of the county jail. Mrs. Wishart is telling Mercy that it is over twenty years ago since her son Jim went away, leaving his child to her care, and every 21st of June—Jim's birthday—she puts a light in her window and prepares a supper for the wanderer's return. Bob Wilson, a warder in the jail, comes to see Mercy, and while prevailing on her to become his wife within the month, the boom of a gun is heard, which Bob knows is a signal that a prisoner has escaped. Bob tears himself away to join in the chase, while Mercy retires for the night. Mrs. Wishart, before following Mercy, puts the light in the window and lays the supper, still strong in the faith that her son will come back to his home. Once again the signal gun is heard, and the escaped convict peers in through the window. He sees the supper laid, the temptation to appease his hunger is too strong for him, and he enters the cottage and partakes of the good things left for the wanderer. Before leaving he looks around, and many articles of furniture and the ornaments seem familiar to him, and he is quickly convinced that this is his old home, when he sees his portrait on the wall decorated with yellow roses. Mrs. Wishart has been disturbed, and on coming into the room recognises the man as her long-lost son, but his convict garb being hidden by an overcoat she does not know he is the escaped convict. After a most affectionate meeting between mother and son she tells him that his daughter has grown to womanhood and is living with her, and is engaged to be married to Warder Wilson. She questions her son, and he tells her that twenty years ago he went on a voyage on board the ship Gambler and was wrecked on an island called Temptation. He was caught by the tide and cast on a desert isle, where he had been ever since. Again the signal gun booms forth, and Jim Wishart knows that every moment he loses is narrowing his chances of escape, and he tells his mother he must be going. She clings closely to him, beseeching him to stay with her, and in his efforts to loosen his mother's frantic embrace his coat is torn open and his convict garb revealed. His mother realises it all, and with a heart-rending cry drops dead at her son's feet. Bob Wilson rushes in and covers the convict with his carbine, but the sight of his dead mother has robbed the convict of all desire to escape. His daughter Mercy enters and finds her grandmother dead, and realises that the convict is her father. Bob says he will aid his prisoner to escape, but Jim asks Bob to look after his daughter, and, blowing Bob's whistle, gives himself up to the warders, who crowd around the door ready to take their prisoner back to jail.

As the mother Miss Daisy England imbues her part with all the loving faith and motherly devotion that the character demands, and in the scene with the convict she wins the hearts of her audience by her deep pathos and tenderness. Miss Agnes Paulton as Mercy has little to do, but does that little thoroughly and well. The same may be said of Mr. T. Blackdock as the warder, Bob Wilson. As the convict, Jim Wishart, Mr. George Cockburn delineates the character in a manner worthy of all praise. The incidental music by Mr. Julien H. Wilson was most effective throughout, and added not a little to the general success.

"UNCLE OBADIAH."

Clarice Racket .....Miss Edith Madelle
Mrs. Tolman .....Miss Emily Kelsey
Katey .....Miss Winifred Stone
Bob Racket .....Mr. Langford Reed
Timothy Tolman .....Mr. Tom Squire
Obadiah Dawson .....Mr. Chas. Dixton

This is the title of what is described as a "comic concoction of cleverly contrived complications." To put the matter briefly, it is a sketch, and a most laughable one at that, which is being presented by Mr. Charles Dixton and company at Sadler's Wells this week. Uncle Obadiah stands in much the same position in some respects to his nephew, Bob Racket, as Charley's aunt was to Charley in Mr. Brandon Thomas's play. Obadiah has come from afar to pay Bob and his wife a visit, but it appears that he is not really aware as to the identity of the lady that Bob had taken unto himself in holy matrimony. Two or three years previously Uncle Obadiah had himself fallen, or imagined himself fallen, in love with a pretty woman, and he sends Bob, a young doctor, to the fair creature, with the object of getting the said Bob's opinion. Bob's opinion is highly complimentary to the lady, for he marries her, at the same time writing to his uncle to say that Clarice, as the lady is called, was a woman whose personal behaviour was most outrageous. She swore like a trooper, drank like a fish, smoked like a chimney, and did the high kick like a ballet girl. These qualifications are, of course, sufficient to condemn the girl in the old man's eyes, and he makes no attempt to continue her acquaintance. Such an attitude on his part is precisely what Bob desired his uncle to maintain, while he himself takes the girl to be his wedded wife. Now, after a lapse of time, Obadiah visits his nephew, Bob is anxious not to disabuse his mind as to Clarice's conduct, and, on the other hand, he wishes to prevent a meeting between the two, as he has given his wife a most exaggerated account of Obadiah's alleged peculiarities. The complications which happen when Uncle Obadiah does arrive on the scene are extremely amusing, and can be better imagined than described. Mr. Charles Dixton is excruciatingly funny as Uncle Obadiah, and the state of perturbation which overcomes him after he has been led by Clarice to believe he has taken poison helps to make the character still more absurd. Mr. Langford Reed acts in good style as Bob Racket, and there is a charming representative of Clarice in Miss Edith Madelle. From Miss Emily Kelsey we get an amusing sketch of an eccentric, middle-aged woman, who has married a young man; Miss Winifred Stone is brisk and vivacious as the maidservant. The cast is completed by Mr. Tom Squire's appearance as the empty-headed noodle who married for money. Uncle Obadiah is certainly one of the merriest music-hall farces we have seen for some time.

Mr. Fred Storey, who is appearing in Rip Van Winkle this week at the Holloway Empire, showed a predilection for the stage almost from infancy, and at the age of thirteen was manager of his own theatre—a room at his home, in which he fixed up a stage, and used the dining-room chairs as the stalls. He had three fires, and was nearly burned out each time, greatly to his delight, but hardly to the satisfaction of his parents. Mr. Storey was destined for either the Army or the Church, but he did not like either, and entered the profession in which he has gained an enviable reputation.

He first became celebrated as a dancer, and his first appearance was at the Prince of Wales's Theatre, Tottenham-street, under the Bancrofts. In the same company was Albert Chevalier, who was also making his début. Mr. Storey since then has been associated with the late Sir Augustus Harris and Wilson Barrett, George Wyndham, Harry Dundas, Mrs. Langtry, Arthur Roberts, Fred Leslie, George Edwardes, Kate Vaughan, and other notable people. He has visited America and Australia, and his record also includes the production of seven or eight pantomimes, for which he painted the scenery. Mr. Storey is a fine scenic artist.

The Empire directors have submitted the report and balance-sheet for the year ending Dec. 31, 1906. After allowing for depreciation, amounting in the aggregate to £8,170, with an additional sum of 3,330 0s. 1d. charged to renewals and repairs, and also the interest on debenture, the net profit (including balance of last account) is shown at £10,210 2s. 3d. It is proposed to pay a dividend in respect of the year 1906 of 2s. on each "15s. paid" share, and of 1s. 4d. on each "10s. paid" share respectively, being at the rate of 13⅓ per cent. per annum, absorbing £4,166 13s. 4d., and carrying forward to next account a balance of £6,043 8s. 11d. This dividend will, if approved by the shareholders, be paid on or before March 9 next, free of income-tax. A leasehold redemption policy has been effected for the return of the capital at the expiration of the lease in the year 1958. Mr. Frederick Hurdle is the director retiring in accordance with the Articles of Association, and, being eligible, offers himself for re-election. The auditors, Messrs. W. B. Peat and Co., retire, and also offer themselves for re-election.

THE ERA

THE OLD "STOCK."

We were watching the other day the departure from a London railway station of a provincial company on tour. Nothing could be better arranged for the comfort and convenience of travellers. Each grade of the company had a separate carriage allotted to it, neatly labelled; and the porters, as we arrived, were putting congenial foot-warmers into each compartment. In imagination we saw the party arrived at the town in which they were to appear, and separating, the principals to the local hotel, the others to various boarding-houses whose addresses appear weekly in the advertisement columns of The Era. We saw them acting at one of the up-to-date provincial theatres, with hot and cold water laid on in all the dressing-rooms, the "accommodation" in which was up to the high standard of the modern architect. We fancied them performing on a smooth and well-swept stage, lighted by electricity, and free from the noxious fumes of gas; and we visioned them also with the manners and customs of educated folk—sober, clean, and perfect in their parts and business.

What a contrast is this, we thought, with the old stock company system of sixty years or so since! The late JOHN COLEMAN left behind him in his memoirs a complete picture of the life of an actor under the old régime—a life full of adventures and "ups and downs"; of fighting and drinking, of squalor and semi-starvation; a life which could only have been endured by demi-savages or fanatical devotees of the drama.

First there was the stock company manager, a strongly marked type of which was ALEXANDER, of the Theatre Royal, Glasgow, who had erected, in the portico of his playhouse, a life-sized statue of himself, standing, like GARRICK, between Tragedy and Comedy. He was a regular slave-driver, at work morning, noon, and night, absolutely living in the theatre, and seeing no reason why the members of the company should not do likewise. His mania was that it was his special mission to teach everybody everything; and it was rumoured that he essayed to teach EDMUND KEAN Othello, CHARLES KEAN Hamlet, and MACREADY Virginius. He could not certainly sing or play upon any instrument; and his dancing was limited to a Highland reel, popularly known as "ALICK'S lilt." Whenever a breakdown occurred, or there was a hitch in the scenery or the lights, the "gods" would yell, "ALICK, ye auld de'il, gie us the lilt!" Holding what was virtually a monopoly, he ruled his actors with a rod of iron. For six days in the week he was rigidly abstemious; but he devoted the seventh to imbibing as much "wine of the country" as he could carry, turning up perfectly ready for work, however, on Monday morning.

The relations between audiences and actors were, to say the least, familiar. The galleryites knew the words of most of the stock plays by heart; and if a favourite actor "stuck," they good-naturedly supplied his absence of memory. Thus it was that T. P. COOKE, after playing in Black-eyed Susan for two or three thousand nights, broke down at last, and accepted assistance from the "gods," remarking, "You see, messmates, a man's memory can't last for ever!" When CHARLES KEAN "dried up" in the last act of Macbeth at Newcastle-on-Tyne, the King of the Gallery "gave him the word" in the dialect of the district. CHARLES readily accepted the help of his rough-and-ready prompter, bowing his grateful acknowledgments.

Nor were the relations between stars and utility actors more distant. On one occasion, when KEAN was playing Macbeth at Belfast, a minor actor named RICKARDS was entrusted with the part of Seyton. When his cue came in the fourth act he was absent, telling funny stories in the green-room. KEAN was furious, and prowled up and down the stage like a tiger, growling "Where is the brute? Send him on that I may kill him!" After a prolonged delay the representative of Seyton appeared. "What's your grace's will?" he enquired in trepidation." "Saw you the weird sisters?" enquired KEAN, fiercely. Trying to make matters agreeable, Seyton answered, nervously, "Yes, my lord!" instead of the negative in the text. "The devil you did!" gasped KEAN. "Where are they then?" Utterly unmanned, the wretched Seyton replied, "I'll show your majesty if you'll deign to step round the corner!" An actor in those days had to be a "man of his hands." A player named PAUMIER, while enacting Brutus in Julius Cæsar at Glasgow, was, in the midst of the quarrel scene, insulted by a drunken fellow in the boxes. With a brief "Excuse me, brother Cassius," he leaped into the boxes, took the man by the scruff of the neck, dragged him into the lobby, and downstairs into the vestibule, whence he kicked him into the gutter; then, returning to the stage, PAUMIER coolly resumed his part. On another occasion, while acting in Durham, some youths from the college took it into their heads to "guy" his fencing in Hamlet. The after-piece was Katherine and Petruchio, and PAUMIER played the latter part. The "guying" being repeated, he pulled the principal offender out of the stage-box, dragged him on the stage, horsewhipped him soundly, and threw him into the orchestra, afterwards making a little speech to the audience.

The private life of the provincial actor was rude. On the smallest excuse the men came to blows, and rolled over each other, cursing and pomelling. When MACREADY was acting at Edinburgh, his American rival FORREST went into the boxes and hissed him in Hamlet. The audience addressed the artists frequently and freely. An actor named BENNETT had a very pronounced nasal organ. At the end of HOWARD PAYNE'S drama of Brutus; or the Fall of Tarquin, in which the stern parent condemns his son to death for treason to the Republic, at the supreme moment a person in a box cried, with simulated emotion, "Oh cruel Roman father! How could you have the heart to doom to death a son with such a—Roman nose?" In a performance of Hamlet in Liverpool, an incompetent amateur, as the Player King, substituted for the lines—

Anon he finds him

the slightly altered version—

Anon he finds him
Striking at two short Greeks!

VANDENHOFF, who was playing Hamlet, came to the rescue with "'Tis well. I'll have thee speak out the rest of this soon"; whereupon an auditor in the pit exclaimed, "God forbid. We've had enough already!" When a player lost his head he often punched the prompter's; indeed, the last appeal was always to fisticuffs.

What a contrast between this sort of life and the pleasant, gentlemanly progress of a modern travelling company through the provinces! When once the initial difficulty of acquiring the part is got over, the actor or actress is able to devote all his or her spare time to self-improvement, mental and physical; to the study of literature or the pursuit of golf or cricket; to the investigation of local antiquities or the dolce far niente. Is it surprising that the stage is overcrowded when it offers so many attractions, and involves so few "disagreeables"?

ROYAL OPERA, COVENT GARDEN.

The production of Tannhäuser at Covent Garden on Wednesday night was of special interest, as it was the twenty-fourth anniversary of the death of Richard Wagner. Tannhäuser has long been a popular opera, and not without reason, as the fine scene of the Hall of Song, with its wealth of melody and stirring dramatic episodes, the womanly and pathetic character of Elisabeth, so finely drawn by the great master, and the manly, romantic figure of Wolfram—which so completely atone for the somewhat weak hero—and the fine overture, stamp the opera as a work of genius, although ardent Wagnerites do not consider this opera comparable to the master's later productions. It was unfortunate that through indisposition M. Van Dyck was unable to appear. The character of the hero, swayed by every passing emotion, has always been considered one of his finest creations. Tannhäuser is not an easy opera to mount, and it was evident that more than usual pains had been taken. Herr Zeller made a fairly satisfactory hero, and although somewhat weak in the opening portions of the opera, improved greatly in the later scenes, while the Elisabeth of Frau Aino Ackté was a poetical and beautiful creation difficult to surpass. It was quite a triumph for Frau Ackté, and a great pleasure to the audience to hear the music sung so artistically. Frau Minnie Nast also sang the shepherd's song with much charm. Herr Feinhals displayed much talent in the grateful part of Wolfram, and Dr. Von Krauss made a dignified Landgrave. Miss Agnes Nicholls, in the part of Venus, was entirely successful, and all the minor characters were most adequately filled. The grand finale to the second act was finely sung, and produced a great impression, in no small degree due to the fine orchestra and the able conducting of Herr Franz Schalk, who, with the principal artists, was called on after each act and loudly applauded.

AN important disclaimer to which all publicity should be given was made in the Divorce Court on Tuesday in reference to the recent matrimonial case of Gagen v. Gagen, in which the respondent was a curate at Shepherd's Bush. The respondent was charged with misconduct with Miss Skinner, whose stage name was "Alice Gordon." Unfortunately there was another lady acting at His Majesty's Theatre whose name was Alice Gordon Skinner, but who had nothing to do with the person mentioned in the matrimonial suit. Counsel was requested to state that Miss Alice Gordon Skinner was the daughter of the Rev. J. S. Skinner, late chaplain of St. Pancras Infirmary.

Mrs. Joliffe	MISS ST. CLAIR SWANZY
Arabella	MISS VICTORIA MAY HARRIS
Harriet	MISS DOROTHY MASLIN
Marjorie Lovel	MISS MAY PALFREY

Mr. Arthur Law's new light comedy has had a trial trip in the provinces. It was produced at the Theatre Royal, Margate, on July 30 last, and certain alterations have been made by the author since the first performance. The most important of these occurs at the end of the second act, which has a different ending to the original version.

Three Blind Mice belongs to that class of play which is dependent for its attractive qualities upon clever, amusing character-sketches and witty dialogue. A "light comedy" is quite the correct description. It possesses all the simplicity of a drawing-room play written for a cheery Christmas entertainment. One need not be an experienced theatre-goer to foresee from the beginning how the simple tale will end. We have met before that middle-aged but well-preserved gentleman who, when it comes to the capture of a young girl's heart, carries all before him, and even triumphs over a rival who has all the formidable attractions of youth and good looks on his side. The heroine of the story, Marjorie Lovel, is a girl of twenty. It is only her godfather, Julian Shuckburgh, who calls her by the nickname of her childhood—"Little Miss Muffet." Her aunt, Lady Clarisforde, informs Julian that Marjorie has three suitors—Peter Ricketts, a conceited youth who is working up for an Army examination; Rawson Guest, a stout individual who generally confines himself to monosyllables; and Andrew Lavender, a sickly-looking, middle-aged widower, with two little girls. These love-lorn gentlemen are the "three blind mice" who run after Marjorie, and she, being a born flirt, gives encouragement to all of them. At the request of Lady Clarisforde, Julian has a straight talk with his god-daughter, but little comes of it, and they are interrupted by the arrival of Lady Marrable, who, it appears, some time ago, broke off her engagement with Julian Shuckburgh to marry Sir Richard Marrable, a wealthy man, whose hobby is books. The scene of the second act is the coffee-room of the "Red Lion." A thunder-storm is raging, and Marjorie and her lovers, who have been to a circus performance in the neighbourhood, seek the temporary shelter of the inn. Everybody is wet through, and Lavender's two little girls are put to bed. Lady Marrable, evidently intent upon rekindling the embers of Julian's dead love, and jealous of Marjorie, tells the girl that her godfather is anxious to see her engaged to one of her three suitors. Marjorie, in a moment of pique and disappointment, consents to become the wife of Lavender, to the great delight of Lady Marrable. Of course, matters are put right in the third act. Lavender has in his employ a governess, Miss Tippings by name, who, with the determined demeanour and insistence of a Suffragette, claims the timid widower for her own, and, having dismissed her two other suitors, Marjorie is left free to accept the man she really loves, Julian Shuckburgh.

The fate of a play of this description depends almost entirely upon the acting; and Mr. Arthur Law is indeed fortunate in this respect. In the part of Julian Shuckburgh, Mr. Julian Kerr gives us another of those delightful studies of the "man of forty" for which he has gained a reputation in previous plays. Easy and natural in every movement, Mr. Kerr gets the utmost value out of his lines. He is the man of the world who has seen life and has a good-natured contempt for such feeble creatures as Andrew Lavender; but beneath the surface there is a vein of genuine feeling, which finds expression in his love for "Little Miss Muffet." That young lady has a very bright and attractive representative in Miss May Palfrey, whose return to the London stage is a very gratifying event. Miss Palfrey is able to infuse a girlish charm into the character, and to assume a quite bewitching air of coquetry in her dealings with her several suitors, all the time revealing by certain little tokens her love for Julian. Exceedingly clever is Mr. O. B. Clarence's embodiment of Andrew Lavender, the nervous, hesitating manner, the gushing style of his love-making, which is comically mixed with a fatherly concern for his two girls, and, in the last act, Andrew's hopeless struggle against the combined attacks of the terrible Miss Tippins and a cold in the head—all these eccentricities proved delightfully amusing. Mr. Hubert Druce did all that was possible with the part of Rawson Guest, a laughable but somewhat impossible character. Mr. Max Leeds—a newcomer to London, we believe—was most successful in his portrayal of Peter Ricketts, the student, who thinks more of cricket than "exams.," and boasts that all he "doesn't know could be put under a thimble." It was a capital performance. Miss C. Granville also scored in the rôle of Lady Marrable, doing all that was possible with a rather unsatisfactory part. Miss Kate Serjeantson cleverly hit off the peculiarities of the chronic invalid, Lady Clarisforde; and Miss Annie Hill was duly austere and determined as Miss Tippings. Miss St. Clair Swanzy did well as the landlady of the "Red Lion"; and Miss Dorothy Edwards deserves a word of praise for her neat rendering of the Jessop, Lady Clarisforde's maid. The Misses Dorothy Maslin and Victoria Harris, as the two children, had only thinking parts; Mr. Littledale Power was good as an ostler; and Mr. Hugh Ardale as footman, and Miss Sheba Brozel as Polly, a waitress, completed the excellent cast. At the final fall of the curtain there was a call for the author, and Mr. Frederick Kerr, who produced the play, came forward and announced that Mr. Arthur Law, who was unwell, was not in the house, but he would convey to him the favourable verdict of the audience.

The new piece was preceded by Mr. Hartley Manners' one-act drama, A Queen's Messenger, which was originally produced at the Haymarket Theatre. It is the story of how a Russian diplomatic lady cleverly duped an English officer, and afterwards repented and saved him. Miss Granville appeared in her original character of the Russian lady, and again created a most favourable impression; and Mr. Wilfred Forster played well as the English officer.

THE ACADEMY OF DRAMATIC ART.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Will you kindly allow me to remove an erroneous impression conveyed in your leading article of last week? The Academy of Dramatic Art is not now under Mr. Tree's control, and, therefore, can no longer be correctly described as "Mr. Beerbohm Tree's Academy." The institution was taken over from him in March, 1906, and then reconstituted by a corporate body, now forming the Council, as follows: Mr. John Hare, Mr. Tree, Mr. George Alexander, Mr. Forbes Robertson, Mr. Cyril Maude, Mr. Arthur Bourchier, Mr. Pinero, Mr. J. M. Barrie, and myself as president.—Yours faithfully,

SQUIRE BANCROFT.

THE ACTORS' ASSOCIATION.

The usual weekly meeting of the council of the Actors' Association was held on Tuesday, when there were present Mr. C. Aubrey Smith (chairman), Mr. H. W. Mote (hon. solicitor), and Messrs. Cecil Barth, J. Cooke Beresford, Clarence Blakiston, Acton Bond, Burton Cooke, F. Cremlin, William Devereux, Herbert Shelley, A. B. Tapping, Brandon Thomas, Spencer Trevor, Frank Vernon, and Charles Cruikshanks (secretary).

The hon. solicitors reported they had advised several members. Richard Hatteras, Edwin C. Buffum, Emma Stockley, Ada Roscoe, Maud Hoffman, Elsie Roberts, Cecil du Gué, Henry J. Ford, Chas. P. Ingham, and Leslie Rea were nominated for election, and Mabel St. James, George Barrett, and Philip Cunningham for reinstatement. A question of alleged insanitation at a provincial theatre was dealt with. A case of alleged bogus management was reported to the council, and some of the company having attended before the council, the hon. solicitors were requested to obtain from them the fullest particulars of their respective claims and report thereon.

The chairman read a letter from the Touring Managers' Association, in which it was stated that the arrangements suggested were approved of, subject to a modification, which was accepted, and that the whole matter would be placed before the touring managers for their final approval at their next meeting.

The report of the Finance and General Purposes Committee was received. Mr. John Fletcher, dental surgeon, 3, Pevensey-road, Eastbourne; Mr. Cecil R. Chaworth Lister, 70, Wimpole-street, W.; and Mr. W. Wyper, of Motherwell, were elected as hon. medical officers to the Association.

The Finance and General Purposes Committee held a meeting on Tuesday, when there were present Messrs. Acton Bond (chairman), J. Cooke Beresford, C. Aubrey Smith, and Chas. Cruikshanks (secretary). Several matters of importance were discussed, and the secretary received instructions.

CANDIDATES FOR COUNCIL.

The following ladies and gentlemen have been nominated to fill the fourteen vacancies which will be created on the council by the retirement of those who go out of office on Tuesday next:—

Ainley, Henry, proposed by H. Granville Barker, seconded by Clarence Blakiston.
Applin, Arthur, proposed by J. Cooke Beresford, seconded by Spencer Trevor.
Barker, H. Granville, proposed by Norman McKinnel, seconded by Frank Vernon.
*Bond, Acton, proposed by Laurence Irving, seconded by J. Cooke Beresford.
Brooking, Cecil, proposed by Rosamond Mayne-Young, seconded by Lewis Casson.
Brough, Fanny, proposed by Thalberg Corbett, seconded by J. Cooke Beresford.
Casson, Lewis, proposed by Michael Sherbrooke, seconded by Norman Page.
Collings, C. F., proposed by Rose Mathews, seconded by Lawrence Grant.
Collins, Frank, proposed by J. Cooke Beresford, seconded by Spencer Trevor.
*Cremlin, F., proposed by J. Fisher White, seconded by C. Aubrey Smith.
Dale, Welton, proposed by J. Cooke Beresford, seconded by Thalberg Corbett.
*Devereux, William, proposed by Beatrice Lamb, seconded by J. Cooke Beresford.
Forde, H. Athol, proposed by Fredk. Morland, seconded by H. Granville Barker.
*Gordon, Douglas, proposed by A. E. Drinkwater, seconded by C. Aubrey Smith.
Greet, Clare, proposed by Eric Lewis, seconded by W. Graham Browne.
Hamilton, Georgina, proposed by Rose Mathews, seconded by Frank G. Dunn.
Horniman, Roy, proposed by Walter Russell, seconded by Carlotta Addison.
Irving, Laurence, proposed by C. Aubrey Smith, seconded by C. Hayden Coffin.
*Lamb, Beatrice, proposed by J. Cooke Beresford, seconded by Carlotta Addison.
Matthison, E. Wynne, proposed by Clive Currie, seconded by Michael Sherbrooke.
Morland, Fredk., proposed by Lawrence Grant, seconded by S. D. Allan Wade.
Musgrave, Kenyon, proposed by E. Vivian Reynolds, seconded by Austin Melford.
Sibley, Lucy, proposed by Cecil Barth, seconded by Eric Scott.
*Tapping, A. B., proposed by Algernon Syms, seconded by Edward Terry.
Whitby, Arthur, proposed by C. Aubrey Smith, seconded by J. Cooke Beresford.

Those marked * retire in rotation, and, being eligible, offer themselves for re-election.

A NUMBER of earnest and indefatigable members of the Actors' Association, who have been nominated for the Council, offer themselves together as a body for the purpose of securing certain administrative reforms. In an address just issued they advocate a smaller council, which should be made more directly responsible to the members by reviving the original custom of annual election. It is held that a council of forty-two is too large for administrative work, and that the present inability to influence the policy of the executive by a popular vote in less than two years discourages many members of the Association from taking any interest in its affairs. It is also desired to take a step in the direction of abolishing low salaries by insisting that the Association Agency shall not deal with any offers of engagements for speaking parts carrying less than £2 per week. As the adoption of the first proposal would necessitate another Council election in the near future, the question of further reforms is held over till then. The manifesto is signed by Messrs. Henry Ainley, H. Granville Barker, Cecil Brooking, Lewis Casson, C. F. Collings, H. Athol Forde, C. V. France, Fred Morland, and Kenyon Musgrave, and Misses Clare Greet, Georgina Hamilton, and Wynne Matthison.

PRESENTATION.—Mr. C. A. East, the producer of the Elephant and Castle pantomime Cinderella, was, on the last night of the production, presented by the principals of the company with a handsome kit bag. Mr. Edward Godfrey, his stage-manager, was presented with a case containing two pipes. Miss Gracie Taylor, principal boy, made the presentation, and on behalf of her colleagues wished Mr. East the best of luck.

ON Thursday, Feb. 7, a matinée performance was given at the Crown Theatre by the Hanover Park Dramatic Club of Hop-o'-my-Thumb and Confusion in aid of the Lord Mayor's Crippled Children's Fund and other charities. Both pieces were very creditably represented, and the popular manager, Mr. Cecil Paget, Mr. H. J. Brett, and the hon. sec. of the dramatic club, Mr. Charles Lane, deserve great credit for their successful efforts in an excellent cause.

THE souvenir of Antony and Cleopatra, so graciously presented to each member of a large audience at the fiftieth performance on Friday evening, the 8th, will be a welcome addition to the playgoer's Shakespearean library, and will form a companion volume to The Tempest. Bound in white, with gilt edges, the book is beautifully printed, and is illustrated by photographic portraits of Mr. Tree and Miss Constance Collier, in the title-rôles, and reproductions of famous scenes from the play.

MR. MICHAEL NOLAN writes that he contributed to the funeral expenses of the late Albert Hall, the song writer, and there were others.

VARIETY GOSSIP.

The strike has ended; the pickets are withdrawn; Mr. George R. Askwith, it is understood, has accepted the position of arbitrator; and all artists have been notified that they may resume work on Monday, Feb. 25. It is not stated whether the arbitration proceedings will be of a public nature or not, but the general feeling is in favour of publicity.

Miss Marie Lloyd is sailing from Liverpool today on the Saxon for Madeira, to which delightful health-giving resort she has been ordered for a few weeks' rest. She telgraphs to us: "Could not go before on account of strike, but now happily peace is tending. Au revoir. Your always, Marie." We join with thousands of others in the wish that the popular comedienne will soon be her own bright, vivacious little self again, and that her return to London will synchronise with a complete entente cordiale between managers and artists.

The Two McNaughtons (Fred and Tom) left Euston Station on Wednesday morning by the boat train for Liverpool, en route for New York. Members of the variety profession are not noted for their early rising propensities, but, despite the comparatively early time of departure—9.50—"everyone who was anyone" in the profession was present to bid bon voyage to the travellers, who open at Williams's Colonial, New York City, in a fortnight's time. Miss Alice Lloyd (Tom's wife), also under engagement at the same hall, was of the party.

A few compartments further down the train was seated Mr. Bryce, the newly-appointed Ambassador for the Court of St. James to the land of the Stars and Stripes. Much amusement was occasioned by late-comers to wish good-bye to Mr. Bryce stopping at the McNaughtons' door, and finding that the befurred artists (despite the strike!) were not diplomatists, scurried off to the other part of the heavy train. Marie Lloyd was early on the scene to bid good-bye to her sister, and travelled as far as Liverpool. Before the train steamed ont, a case of champagne was opened, and health drunk to the boys and "Alice."

Amongst those who were present were Miss Georgina Preston (Mrs. Fred McNaughton), Miss Jessie Preston and her husband (Mr. Jack Sterling), Miss Joanna Preston, George and Jock Preston (the McNaughtons' brothers-in-law), Wilson Hallett, and countless others. A costly and magnificent bouquet was received just before the train steamed away. The party arrived well in time at Liverpool landing-stage, and sailed later in the day on the Oceanic.

Mr. Bransby Williams, during the last week of his engagement at Glasgow, had the honour, with the Lord Provost, of assisting at the inauguration of a new Dickens Society in the metropolis of the Clyde, and was a fellow guest with Mr. Bram Stoker at the supper given by the Arts Club. Mr. Williams has just been offered the part of Romeo in the provinces, and several tours by Oswald Stoll. He will open shortly at the Empire with a new show.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Williams had something of a shock when they read in the papers of a bomb falling in Selsey, as a result of naval practice. Fortunately, the formidable missile fell in a field at the back of the chalet, which the popular actor built near Selsey Bill a year or two since, and Elsinore, as it is called, is quite safe.

Mr. E. W. Mackney, who recently took unto himself a wife, celebrated his eighty-second birthday on Monday. Another burnt-cork octogenarian is Mr. Pony Moore, who confesses to eighty-six, and still another is Mr. Joe Cave, who shares with Mackney the honour of being one of the first two Englishmen to play the banjo. After the usual vicissitudes incidental to the career of a varietor in the "fifties," Mackney was engaged by the late Charles Morton for the Canterbury, and the "father of the halls" was the first manager to dub him great. "The whole hog or none," his song, was written by George Ware, Marie Lloyd's first agent, who in the days of the early music halls used to appear in duologues with Mrs. Ware. The famous lyric stands as a record topical song, its verses—all told—reaching three figures. Mackney was a star at a single-figure salary, but he was as thrifty as he was accomplished, and is enjoying a green old age amid surroundings that suggest easy circumstances.

Mr. Albert Chevalier, supported by a specially-selected company, will start at Easter a tour with a triple bill. Among the new pieces presented will be Atonement, a drama in one act, written by him, and in which he plays a strong emotional part, and The Dream of His Life, a fantastic musical play, in one act, also from his pen, the music composed by Mr. A. West. In this Mr. Chevalier will appear as a professor who is mysteriously doomed to become his own Cockney servant. The triad of plays will be completed by J. M. Barrie's Pantaloon, presented by arrangement with the author and Mr. Charles Frohman. In this Mr. Chevalier will repeat his fine performance of the title-rôle.

After the many exhibitions of nude statuary the beautiful act of Ser Pharah, who will give an exhibition of sacred Hindu posing and dancing at the Tivoli on Monday, will come as a complete revelation. In the Buddhist religion, dancing is not a mere accomplishment, but an act of prayer, and Ser Pharah represents not the ordinary Nautch girl, whom any Cook's tourist can see, but the dancing girl specially reserved for religious worship, who is born, lives, and dies in the temples. To understand this performance it is important to remember that nudity is expressly imposed on its adepts by the Buddhist creed. Ser Pharah gives five tableaux representing the offerings of a maiden to the god, and subsequently some poses. She has a beautiful figure, and her movements are of the most graceful and artistic kind. The scene is laid in an Indian forest outside the Temple of Buddha.

The usual monthly meeting of the Committee of the Music Hall Sick Fund was held at the York Hotel on Wednesday afternoon, the chair being occupied by Mr. W. J. Wainratta (vice-president). There were also present Messrs. Tom Carney, H. E. High, W. Brisco, S. White, F. W. West. The treasurer, Mr. Frank Heath, was unable to attend through illness. The secretary (Mr. R. T. Baines) reported that the annual financial statement was being prepared, and it showed a considerable increase in the receipts as compared with last year. In fact, the position of the Society was steadily improving. The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

Mme. Wilton Davis's ladies' orchestra continues to give great pleasure and satisfaction at Collins's, Islington. It is a great success.

Sacco was unable to complete his fifty days' fast at Olympia, and on Saturday he was led from the hut where he had sat without food for forty-six days. He looked haggard and worn, and his clothes hung loosely upon him. Mlle. Janotha, the pianist, handed him a cup of coffee, but before that he seized a jug of water and would have drained it but for the restraining hand of the doctor. The remainder of his feast consisted of biscuits, Hermatogen, a veal cutlet, and some fancy pastry.

Mr. Cyril Chantler, our highly-esteemed Blackpool correspondent, has recently been chosen as captain of the North Shore Golf Club, in the famous Lancashire seaside resort. Mr. Chantler is always in the van of any charitable movement in the town, and is a welcome reciter. His friend, Mr. George Harrop, managing-director of the Palace and Tower, Blackpool, is also a member of the golf club named.

A large extension which has been recently added to the Birmingham Gaiety Theatre was formally opened on Tuesday night by a dinner given by the management. The new extension will greatly increase the comfort of patrons of the hall, and consists of a three-storied addition to the original premises, the ground floor of which is to form a large waiting hall, in which about 600 people can shelter from the weather. Long street queues will thus be avoided, and the necessity for a tiresome wait in wind and rain obviated.

A large company assembled at the dinner, Mr. J. M. Bruce presiding. Councillor Marsh proposed the toast of "The Gaiety," which was enthusiastically honoured. Among others present were Councillor Middleton, Mr. J. H. Rowell (trustee for the debenture holders), Mr. F. H. Badman (managing-director), Mr. Philip Rodway (manager of the Theatre Royal), Mr. H. E. Lewis (chairman of the Theatre Royal), Messrs. A. W. Matcham, Lester Collingwood, Albert Bushell (manager of the Gaiety), and J. M. McIntosh (secretary of the company).

The much-anticipated charity match organised by Mr. George Robey was played at Villa Park, Birmingham, on Wednesday afternoon. The popular artist was fortunate in selecting an afternoon which proved delightfully fine, and having in view the splendid team of international players which the great comedian had got together, it was not surprising that the crowd was a big one. There were about 7,000 spectators when the Villa opened the game.

At half-time, George's eleven had scored three goals to the Villa's two; but the superior combination of the famous Midland club told against the scratch team—excellent as it was—and after a game in which the players strained every nerve, the Robeyans were defeated by four goals to three, and the Aston Villa hold the Robey silver challenge cup for the next twelve months.

The players who accepted Mr. Philip Rodway's invitation to be present at the Theatre Royal in the evening were each presented with a gold medal. Local charities will benefit to the extent of £350 by Mr. Robey's enthusiastic exertions. He was well seconded by many prominent townsmen and sportsmen.

The promoters of the scheme for a hippodrome or theatre of varieties at Devonport have settled upon a site, which is in Princess-street, facing Fore-street and St. Aubyn-street, and will involve the demolition of a number of houses, for which favourable terms have been offered. At present the matter rests with the Lord of the Manor (Lord St. Levan), who, we understand, has, upon certain terms, been asked to grant a freehold of the site. Many local people are sanguine of the success of the venture, should the decision of his lordship be favourable.

In answer to some strictures from the Bench at the recent Licensing Sessions at Newport (Mon.), Major Gallagher, resident-manager at the Empire, said that, speaking for Mr. Stoll, and in a lesser degree for himself, they had no desire whatever to place anything improper before the public. On the contrary, they desired to give a pure and clean performance. As far as he knew, he could not honestly admit that anything approaching impropriety had been produced at the Empire during the last six years.

Frank Rushbrook, stage-manager of the Palace Theatre, Great Grimsby, was fatally injured on Sunday evening at the conclusion of the concert given at that house by the Grimsby Artillery Band. He set the fire-proof curtain in motion, and after descending steadily it fell with a crash. At the same time the ponderous counterweights also fell, and one of them, a large solid mass of iron, struck the unfortunate stage-manager. It first caught him on the back of the head, fracturing his skull, and then, as he fell, dropped across his legs and lower part of the body, thus pinning him to the stage. He never regained consciousness, and died about twenty minutes after the accident. He was twenty-eight years of age, and was the sole support of his widowed mother.

A most enjoyable theatrical dance was given in St. Andrew's Hall, Glasgow, on Thursday, the 7th inst. The fact that all the arrangements were made within a day or two before imparted quite an impromptu character to the affair, and the line on the ticket—"Penalty for wearing evening dress, 5s.," showed that no "side" was to be allowed.

About sixty couples were present, including Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kitchen, Mr. Albert Hengler, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Montague, Miss Madoline Rees, Miss Edna Morgan, Miss Mena Brae, Miss Ella Retford, Miss Ethel Campbell, Miss Sadie Wade, Mr. Harry Lappo, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whittaker, the Harmony Four, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mussett, Mr. Percy Humphrys, Mr. and Mrs. Christie Grant, Mr. D. Macfarlane, Mr. Harry Henderson, Mr. W. T. Frame, Mr. L. F. Durell, Mrs. Helier Le Maistre, Mr. T. Ellis-Buxton, and The Era's Glasgow correspondent. Dancing was kept up till after 4 a.m., and the affair was voted a huge success.

The numerous friends of Mr. Dan Noble will be sorry to hear that he is lying dangerously ill with acute pneumonia in Southport.

On Friday last week the annual meeting of the shareholders in the Eastbourne Pier Company was held. The directors recommended that a sum of £1,000 be placed to reserve; that a sum of £550 be transferred to a renewals suspense account; and that a dividend at the rate of £7 per cent. per annum be paid, free of income-tax, which will absorb £2,800; leaving a balance of £720 15s. 10d. to be carried forward to next account.

The chairman (Councillor C. F. Simmons), in the course of his speech, said:—"I would like to refer to the improvement at the stage-end of the Pavilion. It gives us twelve dressing-rooms. The addition was necessary, owing to the fact that we have had better companies, and consequently more star artists, during the past season." The chairman also spoke of the excellent work done by Mr. Hayes, the manager, during the year.

The annual general meeting of the Aberdeen Music Hall Company, Ltd., was held on the 6th. Mr. Alexander Webster, advocate (the chairman), in moving the adoption of the report, said the revenue last year had gone up to the highest point yet reached in the history of the company. It was almost £300 in excess of the highest previous record, which was in 1903. The result of this was that the balance at the credit of the revenue account at the close of the year was such that the directors, after making full and adequate provision for depreciation of buildings and furniture, and addition to the revenue account, felt warranted in recommending the payment of a dividend of 7½ per cent. The gross revenue of the year amounted to £1,948, of which £1,410 18s. 2d. arose from the letting of the large hall.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Nash (Miss Lil Hawthorne) sailed on Wednesday from New York for England on the White Star liner Baltic.

Mr. Harry Mountford, the chairman of the National Alliance of the Variety Artists' Federation, who was to have appeared in the sketch A Night with the Stars at the Scala Theatre on Monday night, is seriously ill at his residence.

Miss Rose Hamilton, the Prince Radiant of E. Edmunds' Babes in the Wood company, is repeating her Glasgow success at the Grand Theatre, Newcastle, her dialect song, "Going shopping," by Geo. Arthurs, being encored five and six times nightly.

After a most successful engagement at the London Pavilion, Charles Collette and Miss Joan Derry will appear next Monday at the Chelsea Palace, in their clever farce, Tea for Two. This amusing little piece, interpreted by the above artists, will be one of the interesting items at the matinée to be given next Thursday at the Hackney Empire, in aid of the Lord Mayor's Fund for Crippled Children.

The secretary of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund has received the sum of £5 from Mr. Geo. Bell, hon. secretary of the Sunderland Charity Carnival, the sum being part proceeds of the entertainment. The following amounts have also been received:—C D., 2s. 6d.; Sydney Hyman, 1s. 6d.; W. Payne, South London (pence box), £4 0s. 4d.; H. L. D., 2s. 6d.; Martin Adeson, 10s.; May Marton, £1 2s. 6d.; J. O. Brien (collected at "Rule's"), £2 2s. 4d.; W. J. Churchill, 5s.; Saker Harlow, 12s. 6d.; and Harry Talbot, 7s. 6d.

Mr. Charles Henderson, we are given to understand, is no longer connected with Tom Shaw's Agency. The vacancy has been filled by Mr. William (Billy) Armstrong, a gentleman who is well known to everyone connected with the variety profession.

Messrs. R Warner and Co., the well-known variety agents, who have been established for so many years in Wellington-street, open their new offices, Lyric Chambers, next to the Lyric Theatre, Shaftesbury-avenue, on Monday next.

Mr. James Pople, the stage-manager of the Empire, Stratford, had an unfortunate fall of twenty feet on to the stage on the night of Jan. 26, and sustained a fracture of the thigh and other injuries. He is now lying in the West Ham Hospital, and his friends will be pleased to hear that he is progressing favourably.

A new and brilliant series of "Urbanora" pictures, called "Euston to Erin," will be added to the Alhambra programme on Monday. The imaginary traveller will journey by L. and N. W. R. mail train and steamer, viâ Crewe and Holyhead, to Dublin, where, after a tour of the city, a glimpse of the Viceregal opening of the Horse Show, and a stirring march past of the R.I.C., he will take the coastal train that runs to Wicklow and Wexford, keeping to the picturesque coast line and, passing through Queenstown and Cork, visit every spot of interest right up to Achill Island (in Fair time), eventually reaching the Giant's Causeway. The trip will also embrace the Lakes of Killarney.

Presiding at the meeting of Moss' Empires, Ltd., at Edinburgh on Thursday, Sir Edward Moss referred to the music-hall strike. He was happy to say the matter was in a fair way of settlement, and it was not, therefore, desirable to dwell on details. The fact that none of the company's halls was involved went to show that the artists and employés had no fault to find.

At the same meeting, the chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, which recommended a final dividend at the rate of 10 per cent., stated that the directors had purchased the Grand Theatre, Birmingham, for £42,000.

The feature of the Palace programme next week is the first appearance in variety of Mr. Hayden Coffin. Contrary to general expectations, Mr. Coffin will not produce a song-scena, but will sing perhaps some new concert numbers in addition to old public favourites. "Queen of my heart" and "Tommy Atkins" are almost certain to be included.

There is no variety palace at Ilford; but capitalists may be informed that a valuable freehold site, eminently suitable for the erection of a first-class hall, is to be sold at the Mart by Messrs. A. C. Williams and Co., of 16, Finchley-road, N.W., on Thursday, March 7. The plot possesses a frontage to Ilford-hill of 98ft.; the average depth is 270ft. The property also has the advantage of being in the centre of the town, within three minutes' walk of Ilford Station, with electric trams passing every few minutes.

The New Theatre at Ilford will be opened in the autumn. A site in Ilford-lane has been acquired by a strong syndicate, and plans have been prepared by Mr. Bertie Crewe, and passed by the local authorities, for a place of entertainment to accommodate 2500 people. The house has been designed so as to be used either as a theatre or as a variety palace. Building operations will be started in the course of next month.

Captain Taylor, who puts Lockhart's wonderfully trained elephants through their manœuvres, had a little joke to himself the other week. The elephants were appearing at a South London hall during the time of the strike. Everyone appearing on the stage was greeted with cries of "blackleg." The versatile Captain Taylor, however, turned this cry into a prolonged laugh. As soon as the elephants' heads appeared on the stage loud cries of "blacklegs" were raised, but the "strikers" themselves had to roar with laughter, for the elephants' legs were painted a vivid white.

The adjourned annual general meeting of the Music Hall Benevolent Fund at 1, Durham House-street, Strand, will stand over till Friday, March 29, at 1.30 o'clock.

Mr. Archie Howells, musical director of the Canterbury, we regret to say, has been seriously ill with rheumatic fever and bronchitis. However, he is pulling round nicely and hopes to be in the chair in a week or so.

William Crocker, 40, carman, giving a common lodging-house address in Tooley-street, was charged at Tower Bridge on remand, before Mr. Cecil Chapman, with stealing a portmanteau and its contents, value £4, belonging to Joseph Archer, music hall artist, of South Lambeth-road. Police-constable Heard, 222 M, said he stopped the prisoner, who was carrying the portmanteau, in Tooley-street, and questioned him. The prisoner said the article belonged to him, and that he was a traveller, but upon being asked what he travelled in he replied, "Find out." The witness then opened the portmanteau, and, seeing that it contained a comedian's outfit, he arrested the prisoner. Detective-sergeant Darby, M division, said the prisoner bore an excellent character, and his employer was willing to take him back. The accused was released under the First Offenders Act.

It is understood that a great combine of the American music halls has been effected by Messrs. Oscar Hammerstein, Percy Williams, and B. F. Keith. All the principal halls in the States will now be controlled by the amalgamation.

To a crowded audience at the Palace Theatre on Tuesday night were shown many scenes and incidents of Tuesday's Royal procession at the opening of Parliament. A notable feature also was that depicting the Yeomen of the Guard returning from the search of the vaults—an incident which is rarely seen by the general public.

The annual ordinary general meeting of the Alhambra Company, Ltd., was held in the Alhambra Theatre on Monday, Mr. Alfred Moul, chairman of the company, presiding. The directors' report and balance-sheet, and a dividend of 10 per cent., together with a bonus of 2½ per cent., were unanimously approved and adopted, the meeting closing with a vote of thanks to the board.

Mr. Chas. M. Daly, the popular comedian, and his comedy company, in conjunction with Mr. Harry Taylor, produced I Must Have It on Monday at the Empire, Camberwell. It proved a laughter-raising hit, and kept the audience in a state of hilarity. The idea is good and novel, the acting smart, and it is a really welcome addition to the many comedy sketches now running.

Mr. Ernest Ch. Gittins's condensed versions of Il Trovatore, Bohemian Girl, and Maritana, having been booked solid for 1907, with the exception of three weeks, he has now in active preparation a condensation of Donizetti's popular opera, The Daughter of the Regiment, with Mlle. Adèle Prescott as Marie, supported by nine other well-known artists.

Jeapes's Animated Graphic, one of the many good things provided by Mr. Henri Gros in his bill of fare at the Metropolitan, has proved a very popular item, and the "Graphic's" superb coloured pictures, which for remarkable steadiness and brilliancy of illumination could hardly be surpassed, may be counted a feast for the eye. On Tuesday last, despite the hazy weather conditions attending the opening of Parliament by the King, Mr. Jeapes secured animated photographs of His Majesty's procession, and reproduced them at the "Met." in the evening, likewise at the Chelsea Palace.

"The Man in the Street," by Louis N. Parker, always an effective curtain-raiser at the theatres, is continuing its triumphant career in the halls, and is being rapidly booked for future dates by Messrs. G. Adney Payne, Frank Allen, Jesse Sparrow, T. S. Dickie, J. C. Coe, and others. In the part of Jabez Gover, originally played by Mr. James Welch at the Strand Theatre, Mr. Nevill Graham is scoring a most gratifying success.

Miss Daisy Dormer, the daintiest of coon singers, who is making such a success as principal girl in pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, will shortly produce a new song by Chas. Collins, the popular London author and composer. It is entitled "I've been dreaming," and is published by Messrs. Francis and Day.

At the theatrical fête in Edinburgh, which took place on Feb. 7, Miss Dormer was prominent, being the winner of two first prizes (a gold bangle and a silver-plated jam-dish), in the egg-and-spoon race and the fifty-yards sprint. A doll, dressed to represent Miss Dormer, was sold for £1 12s.; and that lady also kicked off for the football match. The fête, which was for local charity, was a big success.

Miss Daisy Dormer has had several offers to star in musical comedy, amongst them being one from Mr. George Edwardes; also several pantomime offers. After the run of Babes in the Wood she will open at the Empire, Edinburgh, with new songs and old favourites.

A benefit concert was held at the Co-operative Hall, Lancaster, on Saturday evening last, in aid of the artists who suffered loss in the recent fire at the Palace. It proved a decided success. The programme was made up by the Forsyths, the Prinellas, Mr. Picot, in his clever act, The Crazy Cook, and local artists. The chief sufferers through the fire were the Forsyths and the Prinellas.

Mr. W. F. Frame, who met with such marked success at the Royal pantomime in Glasgow with his new song, "Ma lassie is a wee Scotch fairy," appears at the Pavilion there next week.

Some little time ago Mr. Billy Williams, the Carnival King of Mr. John Hart's pantomime at the Theatre Royal, Bradford, and Mr. John Nunn, one of the Bradford City Association Football Club's directors, met and discussed the possibilities of a match between the artists of the Bradford theatres and the City Club's players in aid of the local charities. The response was hearty and instantaneous, and the match was played on the club's ground on last Wednesday, the 6th. Miss Florrie Ford, the principal boy of the Prince's Theatre, "kicked off" in the presence of 7000 people and the fun became fast and furious. The City eleven had hard work to prevent prolific scoring on the part of the numerous pantomimists who opposed them, the ladies of both theatres did a roaring trade in button-holes, programmes, sweets, and cigarettes, and the net result in aid of the charities was £102.

Miss Marie Elsie has taken the Finney Gardens and Pavilion, Hanley. Plans have been passed for extensive alterations, and an excise licence has also been granted.

Mr. George Gulliver, ventriloquist, was reluctantly compelled to retire for a time from any active work on account of throat trouble. About Christmas he was continually spitting blood, and on terminating his engagement at the Empire, Dublin, he returned home and had medical advice, resulting in his enforced absence from the halls. However, he is now glad to state that he has perfectly recovered.

A very dramatic sketch, Grip; or, the Fatal Hand, will be presented at Hackney Empire next week by Mr. George Kirk and company. This playlet was performed over 1,000 nights in New York, and but for contracts on this side of the Atlantic would still be playing in the Eastern capital of the United States. The sketch is full of thrilling incidents, and those who would see how Grip, the man with three fingers, comports himself in gambling dens and in the streets ought to visit the Hackney Empire next week.

The Howards, three in number, have this week been mystifying audiences at the Empire, Bristol, in their performances of second sight and mind-reading. Mr. Howard gives a brief introductory address, and then retires into the auditorium, leaving one of his daughters, blindfolded, on the stage at the side of a large blackboard. The most remarkable portion of their show on Monday was the concentration of two thoughts to one mind. For this the lady at the blackboard remained at her post whilst Mr. Howard's other daughter went into the body of the hall. A tram ticket and other papers bearing numbers were then handed to her, and upon two out of three occasions the blindfolded lady was successful in chalking up the correct number.

Little Tich entered upon his last week at the Palace Theatre on Monday, and has been secured for South Africa by Messrs. Hyman. He will depart from England in December.

Miss Constance Moxon, we regret to hear, will be unable to commence her engagement at the Putney Hippodrome on Monday in consequence of her doctor's imperative command to rest.

At the Oxford, during the present week the Three Golden Graces have been appearing with great success in a series of novel living pictures, which nightly secure for them an enthusiastic reception. The most effective is "A Patriotic Allegory," which is marked by skilful arrangement and genuine artistic beauty.

More than a passing word deserves to be said regarding the closing of Mr. John Henry Cooke's season at Edinburgh last Saturday evening. The veteran equestrian manager's benefit took place on the previous evening, and the circus was filled to overflowing by an enthusiastic audience. The feature of the evening was a cob and pony show, for which there were numerous entries of many beautiful animals. It is worthy of notice that several of the principal prizes went to Mrs. James Moss, a daughter-in-law of Sir Edward Moss.

Mr. John Henry Cooke had a rousing reception on entering the arena, and his speech, spoken at first under the influence of strong emotion, was worthy of the popular manager at his best. The Saturday evening was marked by equal enthusiasm, Mr. Cooke and his company being repeatedly recalled to receive the vociferous, affectionate applause of the audience. Mr. Cooke has done so much during his tenure of the circus in the Fountainbridge district to minister to the enjoyment of the inhabitants of Edinburgh, that the public feel like parting from an old friend when he bids them good-bye after his winter season.

Mlle. Celia Galley, a star recently risen from the French stage, is fulfilling a short engagement at the Empire, where she delights with her pleasant voice and humorous manner in imitations of Sarah Bernhardt, Yvette Guilbert, and other distinguished artists with whom she has been on tour. She is an immense favourite at the Casino de Paris.

Miss Emmie Morrison, serio-comic, who is playing with Harry Rickards at the Tivoli, Sydney, has made an instantaneous success, receiving good notices from several papers. She opened on Boxing Day.

Frankie Hartley, the marvellous boy juggler, sailed for Australia last week to fulfil an engagement made by Pacey and Reeves with Mr. Harry Rickards.

Mr. Will Merit and Miss Dot Moore, comedy duologue artists, who have recently arrived from Western Australia, are doing well with their double and two single turns, and intend to stay in this country for at least two years.

Horace Goldin and company are appearing at the Hackney Empire this week. Mr. Horace Goldin is of Russian birth, Jewish race, and American manners. He is short and broad-shouldered, with a shrewd, capable, somewhat heavy face, and large practised hands. Some years ago, in Tennessee, he was, to quote his own words, "clerking in a store; then he took to the road as a drummer for jewellery," and ultimately joined a magician as stage assistant. But before a month was over young Goldin had mastered all the magician's tricks, and obtained an engagement for himself at Gloster, New Jersey. He was engaged by the manager of a pleasure resort to give an hour's entertainment for a dollar a day; but at the end of a week the manager wished to break the contract. Goldin demanded to know the reason. "Your show is too good," he was told; "the people get so interested that they forget to buy drinks!"

The success of the Zancigs is responsible for the discovery of endless talent in the same line of business. A new turn to be seen at Hackney Empire next week has quite a romance attached to it. A Barnsley collier named Ritsell, who has recently been living in Sheffield, made such a hobby of thought-transmitting tricks that he sought to train each of his numerous children to join him in giving entertainments on a small scale. However, none of the little Ritsells took to the notion save Myra, now a bonnie Yorkshire lass of fifteen. She proved to be so apt a pupil that at the age of nine she mystified her school mates by doing business much on the lines of the Zancig's turn. Her fame spread, and at length it reached the ears of the showmen's auctioneer, Tom Norman. He was so impressed with the work of Myra and her father that he invited them to come to London, and, somewhat in fear of so bold a step, the Ritsells came, were seen, and have conquered

Mr. Alfred Butt gave the visitors to the Palace theatre a pleasant surprise last Monday. Engaged at the last moment, Mr. Jack Joyce, a cowboy lassoist, who had only arrived in this country the previous Saturday, made his début and scored a distinct hit. His entrance is similar to that of his predecessor in this country, Will Rogers, yet it was thought by some that he seemed more dexterous. Not the least singular part of his performance is the weird howl he sends up when a more than usual clever throw is made with the lasso, and perhaps it was the howl and the throw that so thoroughly caught the audience. Joyce lassoed his pony, bound the rider's head and feet, and finally made his exit leading the horse off in an improvised halter accomplished at the full length of the stage, thus showing how a galloping horse can be stopped and its rider "held up."

Mr. H. B. Marinelli has left for Berlin in order to open a branch in that city. Mr. E. Wollheim, of his London office, started for America on Wednesday, and will be replaced during his absence by Mr. Leo Maase, the head of the New York office.

The Brothers Howard, whose exhibition of silent mental telepathy at the Palace Theatre has excited so much comment, were unfortunately prevented from appearing before the Prince and Princess of Wales on Monday. It seems that James Howard had caught a severe cold in the treacherous London air, and, acting under his medical adviser's orders, kept his room on Monday.

Describing himself as a fireman, a young man named Harry Wilson, of no fixed abode, was charged at Lambeth on the 6th inst. with attempting to obtain charitable contributions by fraud. Whilst entering the Empire at Camberwell, Miss Lizette Kitchen, a music hall artist, was, she stated, accosted by the prisoner, who said he had come from Mr. W. Collins, general manager of Moss' Empires. The list purported to be on behalf of an orphanage, and on submitting it to her agent he found it to be a fraud. Mr. W. Collins stated that he did not authorise the man to make any such collection, and had previously received complaints about him. The witness has consequently adopted the course of advertising in the different theatrical papers, cautioning artists against him. The prisoner was remanded for further inquiries to be made, and Mr. Collins was complimented by the Bench on the action he had taken.

LONDON VARIETY THEATRES.

THE TIVOLI.

Mr. Joseph Wilson on Monday brought forward Miss Annie Purcell, the original singer of the "Zuyder Zee," a song that is being chortled from the Solway Firth to the Solent, and was to be found in every pantomime. Miss Purcell's success is as great as ever in the popular number; and she adds to her artistic triumphs by her introduction of a fresh selection by Castling and Murphy, which is entitled "On the Isle of Anglesey," a delightful corner of the United Kingdom. Miss Purcell's expressive features looked well under a Welsh hat trimmed with pale blue ribbons. Her dairymaid's dress of the same colour with dainty white muslin apron and short puffed sleeves, set off the svelte figure to great advantage, and one could easily conceive the devotion engendered in the hearts of any gallant Welshman by such a bucolic belle.

Miss Madge Lessing, who was the heroine of so many scenas at the Coliseum, has now been secured for the Tivoli, where her dainty style and versatile accomplishments find a very suitable environment. Miss Lessing, who is a "belle of New York," is seen in a dainty production called "Snowland," backed by a pretty woodland winter scene, painted by Mr. Bruce Smith. She is supported by a chorus in the prettiest of fur-trimmed costumes. Her concluding item is a quaint Dutch scena.

Another new comer to the Tivoli is Mr. Jay Laurier, another find of Mr. Joseph Wilson. He comes to town with a good provincial reputation. Mr. Laurier elects to appear as a zany of the turnip-field—a rustic of the stage type, to which such eminent comedians as John Baldwin Buckstone, Wright, and J. L. Toole accustomed our grandfathers. Bucolic stupidity, however, is always amusing, as Mr. Chevalier proves when he sings "'E can't take the roise out o' I," and Mr. Laurier's "Silly Billy Brown," if we mistake not, will become a favourite character with London audiences. The new comedian has an excellent voice, and his articulation is perfect.

Mr. Tom Clare as a piano entertainer has been pushed much to the forefront of late in consequence of the untoward events that have been agitating the music hall world; but his refined and clever entertainment needs no special circumstances of "placing," as it should be acceptable. He has an excellent burlesque song, "Love, had you only told me," the melody of which is founded on Capel's song, "Love, could I only tell thee."

The Prince and Princess de Broglie are in their last week. The romantic circumstances attending the marriage of these young people have been sufficiently dwelt upon. She was the beautiful Estelle Alexander, a Californian girl singing with the Opéra Comique Company in Paris when the Prince met her. A few days after they eloped and went to Milan, where they were married. The father of the Prince was furious, and immediately stopped the young man's income and disinherited him. Forgiveness, however, was promised if he would renounce his bride and have the marriage annulled according to French law. This offer was indignantly refused. The Prince conducts while his handsome wife sings such well-known numbers as "The Old Folks at Home" and "Annie Laurie," to which she gives much expression.

Early in the evening Miss Amy Clevere charms everyone by her rendering of "Borneo"; the Metropolitan Quartet give well-rendered selections from Il Trovatore; and Mr. Stuart James recites and ventriloquises with success. A great hit is made in the later portion of the programme by Miss Bertha Stuart in "Caller Herrin'," of which she gives an interpretation that is strikingly dramatic. She is called and recalled, and eventually appears before the tableau curtains. Other turns in the bill are contributed by Mr. Arthur Playfair and Miss Maud Wynter, in the sketch 327, Finsbury; Mr. Aubrey Fitzgerald, Mr. Nelson Jackson, a very amusing and clever raconteur at the piano; and the Romsakoff Troupe. Mr. James Howell, the acting-manager and treasurer, always adds to the pleasure of a visit to the cosy little Strand house.

THE LONDON PAVILION.

Mr. Frank Glenister is experiencing none of the excitement or inconvenience of the strike, and is welcoming large audiences nightly with a programme in which a number of stars shine. An old favourite here is Mr. Charles Collette, one of the few patterists we possess. Mr. Collette is particularly smart, and his acting has all the alertness and the diverting qualities of the light comedian of the very best type. He is, indeed, an ingenious and versatile farceur, and his comedy has an agreeable rattle that is pleasantly displayed in the duologue Tea for Two, in which he is well supported by Miss Joan Derry, a young actress with a fascinating style, who wears a very pretty gown. Mr. Walter Tilbury and Miss Daisy Forde scored such a success on their last engagement here that one is not in the least surprised at their re-engagement. Their sketch When's the Cat's Away has been much improved, and Mr. Tilbury scores palpably in his adaptation of "The Death of Nelson" to the views of the Tariff Reform League—views, by the way, that seem to be pretty generally shared by the audience. Mr. Ambrose Thorne, another Pavilion comedian who has been endowed with return dates, is seen and heard to much advantage in his impersonation of "Captain Reginald D'Arcy of the Guards." Reggy is quite a military exquisite, and is well supported by a galaxy of gallant lasses—the Pavilion Girls. Mr. Fred Hastings makes a hit with his cryptic song "Ha, Ha, Ha!" Miss Lily Lena is very appropriately described as a dainty singer of dainty songs; and Miss Emilie Hayes, who bears a name much honoured in the annals of English opera, sings acceptably as a soprano. Mr. Arthur Aldridge, who is called "the Pavilion tenor," adopts the excellent plan of varying his songs nightly. On the evening of our call he was heard to great advantage in "Roses," by Stephen Adams, whose versatile and accomplished pen supplies at least three of his numbers.

Miss Lily Harold, a former Gaiety girl, is presenting with great success the song-scena "Snowflakes," in which she is supported by a charming chorus of girls, who have been well drilled by Mr. Newman Maurice, the producer. In her second item Miss Harold, dressed in a principal boy's costume, which sets off to great advantage her perfect figure, touches on the topics of the day, which are amusingly illustrated by "extras."

Mr. Harry Ford has a new policeman song, which bids fair to become a success, and his "wonder" item is quaint enough to do him considerable service. Mr. Whit Cunliffe enlarges drolly on the theme of the inequality of the sexes, arguing that the ladies have the best of it, and finishes with the inevitable "Hello, Hello, Hello," which is chorussed vigorously. Nothing much funnier than the musical duologue of the Motramos could be possible. Tom Motramo as a comedian would be an acquisition to any bill; and Marie Motramo is a splendid "feeder" and a most attractive woman. Mr. Charles Rogers plays the banjo excellently; the Pavilion Girls manœuvre and dance prettily; and Graham, the human marionette, is worth waiting for, even if it be only to see him in his excellent impersonation of Harry Lauder. Miss Olga Seldom, the beautiful German girl who is sweet seventeen, poses as Phryne and Psyche, and assists in the presentation of two very fine specimens of statuary, "The Prize" and "The Sabines." Mr. Phil Ray is as popular as ever; and the Brothers Horne are also found in a programme of most engrossing variety.

CHELSEA PALACE.

The contingent of artists paraded at the cosy Chelsea Palace this week not unnaturally numbers names unknown at present to fame, but giving every promise of future advancement. One of the most happily inspired features of the programme is the sketch From London to Madrid, in which a diversity of comic effects are gained. Both the cities mentioned are represented in the sketch, the former by a corner of Trafalgar-square, where the lions become animate, and hurl defiance from eyes and mouth, and the latter by a bull-baiting arena. The sketch is played by Barney, Burke, and Bray, and the services of a bucking mule are utilised with humorous effect. The travesty is accompanied by roars of laughter and cheers that are well deserved.

A new miniature drama is found in an adaptation by Cecil Newton from a story of Sir A. Conan Doyle, entitled A Japanese Revenge. The scene is a trader's hut in Manchuria during the recent devastating war. A colonel of Cossacks is arranging with a spy for the capture of Major Jamasaki, a Japanese officer, whom he thinks he has got into his clutches. The spy, however, turns out to be the Major himself, who has taken possession of the hut, and makes a prisoner of the Russian officer. Jamasaki tells his captive a story told him by his son, who had been caught by the Russians, with whom he experienced at different periods both kindness and cruelty. The lad had escaped, but was retaken within a mile of the Japanese lines, and was sentenced to be shot. The rifles of the shooting-party were levelled, but a general came upon the scene, and seeing the prisoner's lips moving in prayer, released him, and bade him go. During the recital of the story the Japanese officer suits the action to the word by alternately loading the Russian with indignities and treating him with kindness, finally ordering his men to lower their guns, and bidding his prisoner depart. The little piece has some thrilling situations, and is admirably acted by Ferdinand Conti's company. Mr. Wilfrid Shine puts plenty of vigour into his rendering of the Japanese officer, and speaks his lines with excellent emphasis and elocutionary skill. The author is well made up as the Muscovite officer, and plays expressively, but though he has a powerful voice his delivery lacks distinctness, a fault which he should lose no time in correcting.

A novel and entertaining performance is submitted by Edith and Tommy Felix, who, as a clown and "clowness" execute some clever and amusing tricks. Hat-spinning, dancing on spades, and paper manipulation are among the feats performed, and, later on, the pretty pierrette embarks upon the tight wire, on which she does some neat tricks. Mr. Reg Low has a happy way of singing his songs at the piano, which brings out their humorous points. His rendering of "My idea of a girl" is consequently enjoyed, and "Father" also meets with approbation. Ballads are tastefully sung by Miss Louise Zetland, who wins great praise for her delivery of "Do you remember?" and "Sing me to sleep." Mr. Chas. Kay is a coloured comedian, whose humour is mostly to be found in his feet, his descriptive dances being novel and well executed. An encore on the night of our visit was insisted upon, and evoked a pedal imitation of a train leaving the station "early in the morning," though what difference there is between that and the same operation at night it is not easy to perceive. A dainty comedienne is forthcoming in Miss Dorothy Drew, whose singing is sweet and her dancing neat; and Terpsichore is also represented by the Czar's Royal Russian Troupe, who give a picturesque display of national dances, accompanied by weird music. The entertainment is likewise contributed to by Mr. Dan Filmer and Jeapes' Animated Graphic. Mr. Angelo Asher leads his orchestra with his accustomed ability at the Chelsea Palace, which has, apparently, no reason to complain of lack of attendance.

ISLINGTON EMPIRE.

One can, with every confidence, sound a note of praise in favour of the new sketch produced on Monday night at the Islington Empire, and entitled The Girl and the Tough. For in it we get an episode of absorbing human interest. The scene is the roof of a house in the Bowery district of New York. In an invalid's chair is reposing a girl, Norah Dalton, who, we learn, is a cripple. Suddenly an intruder, who gives signs of great mental perturbation, springs on to the roof and faces the frightened girl. He tells her that Dan Hartigan, the detective, is on his trail, and, true enough, they hear the approaching steps of the human sleuth-hound. At the suggestion of the cripple the "tough" lies flat on the roof by her side and is hidden by her chair. Hartigan enters, but on being assured that no one has passed that way, renews the search in another direction. In his absence Norah's womanly sympathy goes out to Tad Delaney, the hooligan, and she endeavours to create a better feeling between him and the detective. She tells Tad how Dan had befriended the child of a criminal, and she recites the history of the latter with a pathos that brings her strange visitor to her feet with tears and remorse, for the "tough" who had abandoned his child is no other than Tad Delaney. Tad is overcome with penitence as he realises the tragedy of his mis-spent life. He promises to abandon his previous intention of shooting the detective and try to go straight in future. As he is kneeling before her Dan returns, seizes him violently by the shoulders, and, anticipating vengeance from the criminal, shoots him. Norah's efforts to assure her brother-in-law of Tad's good intentions are lost in the excitement of the moment, and the curtain falls upon the pathetic spectacle of the tough saying good-bye to the girl, she believing that the shot has not proved fatal and that the farewell is not his last. Mr. John G. Brandon plays the part of the tough with conspicuous skill, and one can well imagine that one sees a characteristic type of the Bowery ruffian. Nothing could exceed in its delicacy of treatment the acting of Miss Ruth Nightingale as the cripple. We can sum up her work by saying that she is daintily sympathetic in the rôle. In the smaller part of the detective Mr. H. Agar Lyons plays in vigorous style; and the scenery, which has been specially constructed by Mr. Chas. Sharp, of the Adelphi Theatre, furnishes a capital picture of the house-tops of New York at eventide.

Miss Lottie Lennox is "starring" this week at the Islington Empire. The sprightly comedienne is heard to good effect in a couple of songs. Her expressive rendering of "Is the old home in the same place?" is greatly appreciated. Mr. Leon Russell's impersonations seem to find favour. His interpretation of the Mirror song from The Girl from Kay's and his imitation of an asthmatical lady singing "Come back to me" are distinctly commendable. From the Bowery Boys we get plenty of knock-about fun, and Mr. J. C. Lauri furnishes an entertaining comedy turn. A high degree of animal intelligence is displayed by Otto's dogs, and Prof. Graudmann, the "Russian man of mystery," performs several novel sleight-of-hand tricks. A bright and attractive young lady comes on the stage in the person of Miss Vicky Delmar, who sings and plays the bugle and drum in capital fashion. Her drum imitation of the noise created by the starting of a railway train is particularly commendable. "La Belle Parisienne" and "That's what the daisies say" are two songs with which Miss Evie Hamilton makes a decided hit, and she is, too, a most energetic and lively dancer. Lincoln and Warren are experts in the art of eyeling, and they introduce no little humour into a daring and astonishing performance. The Imperial Bioscope furnishes an interesting series of pictures.

DEATH OF SAM DE VOY.

We regret to announce the death, at the age of sixty-four, of Sam De Voy, for many years a prominent negro comedian, who flourished in the palmy days of Ethiopian sketches. These almost invariably formed a very popular item of the programmes given at the variety houses a quarter of a century since. The deceased comedian, whose real name was William Foy, was born near Manchester, and at the age of eighteen started as a sentimental vocalist. For several years he was associated with little George Le Clercq and Britannia's famous clown, Tom Lovell, in nigger farces, many of which had their origin in America. Among them may be cited A Dark Night Before

THE LATE MR. SAM DE VOY.

Us, The Burglar Alarm, and Black Justice. The constitution of the combination was altered when Tom Lovett joined Tom Rice (of Rice and D'Albert), and became known as De Voy, Le Clercq, Lovett, and Wardhaugh. Later George Le Clercq linked up with Ben Brown and "Jim" Newland, taking the place of Wallace; and De Voy formed another combination known as De Voy, Hurst, and Fredericks. Some fifteen or sixteen years since he went into business as a publican at the Lion, Lambeth-walk; but failed, and rejoined a sketch company. About five years ago he underwent an operation for an internal malady at Charing Cross Hospital, and has been in failing health for some time. In these circumstances he was unable to make any provision for his widow who, we regret to say, has been left in very needy circumstances. Poor De Voy's former partner, W. Hurst, trusts that assistance will be immediately forthcoming for the widow, as her case is a most deserving one. Mr. Joe Elvin, with his customary generosity, has made himself responsible for the funeral expenses. The deceased comedian was buried yesterday.

MUSIC HALL ARTISTS' RAILWAY ASSOCIATION.

Members of the M.H.A.R.A. celebrated the tenth anniversary of the formation of the Association at the Horns, Kennington, on Sunday evening, Mr. W. H. Clemart presiding, the vice-chair being occupied by Mr. Douglas White. There was not as good an attendance as there had been in previous years, but this the chairman attributed to the fact that they had had to maintain two imporant functions at the same time. As night wore on, however, several of the artists who had been present at the mass meeting of the Alliance at the Scala Theatre turned up at the Horns. The list of diners is as follows:—

Mr. W. H. Clemart (president), Mr. Joe O'Gorman (chairman of the committee), Mr. Harry Mountford, Mr. Charles Coborn, and Mr. Fred W. Millis (vice-presidents), Mr. Douglas White (hon. treasurer), Mr. Joe Elvin and Mr. J. W. Cragg (hon. trustees), Mr. John Alexander, Mr. Harry Blake, Mr. Harry Freeman, Mr. Fred Griffiths, Mr. Fred Neiman, and Mr. Harry Wright (members of the committee), Mr. A. H. Hoyle (London and South-Western Railway), Mr. W. Simpson (Great Western Railway), Mr. Frank Lunnon (Great Northern Railway), Mr. David Crombie (Bristol agent), Mr. Charles Evans (Margate agent), Mr. W. Colbrook (Grimsby agent), Mr. J. Halliday (Preston agent), and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ginnett, Mr. and Mrs. Foxe, Mr. and Mrs. Alf Abrahams, Mr. and Mrs. Eaglesfield, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bawn ("My Fancy"), Mrs. Douglas White, Mrs. John Alexander, Mrs. A. H. Hoyle, Mlle. Haydee, Mr. J. H. Winn, Miss Rose Harvey, Miss Lily Burnand, Mrs. Fred Karno, Miss Karno, Miss Anna de Grey, Mr. and Mrs. Venner, Mr. A. Venner, Mr. E. Brown, Miss Marie Thorne, Misses Burnand, Mrs. Wal Pink, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lester, Mrs. Charles Coborn, Miss Rita Resdan, Mr. Sid Cotterell, Mr. Joe Mac (New Macs), Mr. Barney Hyams, Miss Minnie Mace, Miss Kersey, Mr. Metzler, Mr. Rowley, Miss Marie Kendall, Miss Flo Kendall, Mr. Steve McCarthey, Mrs. Dan Leno, Miss Rose Chandon, Miss Ada Norman, Mr. Will Oliver, Mr. Albert Boisset, Mr. Brisley, Mr. Will Johnson, Mr. V. L. Granville, Mr. Tom Costello, Mr. W. Ferris, Mr. Claude Stuart, and Mr. C. Douglas Stuart (secretary).

Telegrams and letters were received from Mr. Barton, of the Great Central Railway, Mrs. Egerton of Liverpool, Mr. Bert Wilson of Birmingham, Mr. Walter Norman, Mr. Charles McConnell, Mr. W. Barton (Great Central Railway), Mr. Harry Speakman of Wigan Artists, Mr. Pat Carey, Mr. Carlton, and Mr. Tom McHugh.

An excellent dinner was served, under the superintendence of Mr. J. Kohl, proprietor of the Horns. After the loyal toasts had been duly honoured,

The CHAIRMAN, rising to propose "Our Association: Many Happy Returns of the Day," said: This is the first time I have had the honour of being at an M.H.A.R.A. dinner, and I hope it will not be the last. I hope the next time this dinner occurs that we shall be in happier circumstances than we are at the present time. The Association was never in a better position than it is in now. In the first place, our financial position is what it has never been before. We were able to give away at our last general meeting over six hundred guineas to charities, and during the last week your committee voted an additional one hundred guineas to the emergency relief fund. This will be the third year that the dinner has been held here, and you will recollect that there has been no dinner for two years. The Association, as we all know, for two years went through a fight. It seems somehow that everything has got to go through a struggle, and when that is over we settle down and become pals again. This is what has happened when you see Joe O'Gorman with his hand on Harry Mountford's shoulder. You could not possibly see a better sign when we have all buried our grievances. At the present time we are standing shoulder to shoulder in another fight, and I hope by this time next year that the artists will then be to the managers what we are to each other to-day. I therefore call upon you to drink "Many Happy Returns to the M.H.A.R.A."

MR. C. DOUGLAS STUART, in responding, said: On behalf of the M.H.A.R.A., I beg to thank you most sincerely for the hearty manner in which you have drunk this toast. The Association, whose birthday we are celebrating to-night, is ten years old, and ever since its birth its career has been one long spell of continued success. Year by year the membership has increased, the benefits for the members have been extended, and the funds have become richer and richer, so that we have been able to give away between the railway and music-hall charities nearly £2000. All this is, of course, due to the value of the concessions so generously granted by the railway companies, which, I know, have greatly benefited and assisted the poorer members of the variety profession. Our offspring, the V.A.F., now nearly a year old, is also strong and lusty. I am sorry that there are not more present to-night, but we have had several adverse circumstances to contend against—the strike, the illness of Miss Marie Lloyd, and the absence from London of Mr. Jack Collinson, one of our principal supporters. I wish to thank the committee of that excellent charity, the M.H.L. Guild, for their kind patronage. In conclusion, I ask you to "Dance and be merry. Let time fly.

Live while you may. Die when you die."

MR. DOUGLAS WHITE, in submitting "The Theatrical Representatives of the Railway Companies," said that they all ought to be very thankful to those gentlemen, who had secured many concessions for them. The theatrical railway representatives had been very kind to the Association. He coupled with the toast the names of Mr. Hoyle (South-Western), Mr. Lunnon (Great Northern), and Mr. Simpson (Great Western).

MR. HOYLE expressed thanks on behalf of his colleagues and himself for the manner in which the toast had been received. He would also congratulate them on the attainment of the Association's tenth birthday. The celebration of these anniversaries served a useful purpose in that they made new acquaintanceships and cemented old friendships. On behalf of the railway people he would thank them for their charity. This year the Association had carried out a very fine idea in connection with their charity, and that was the appropriation of small amounts to domestic institutions connected with the railways in addition to the amounts usually paid. The railway companies, bearing this in mind, would always do their best to meet the Association whenever the latter had a request to make.

MR. SIMPSON (Great Western) proposed "The Honorary Officers and Committee of the Association." On that occasion he supposed he was to consider himself in the position of an artist. They had that night heard something about fighting, but so far as the committee of the Association was concerned fighting, fortunately, did not enter into the question at all. The present committee of the Association and the committee which had preceded them had done much for the music-hall artist, and they could look forward with pleasure to their future work. But he wanted to give them a word of advice. The subject of refunds from the railway companies caused a great deal of trouble both to the committee and the companies. All that he would ask them to do was when they had a claim to make to put their names down on the list provided for the purpose. He was pleased to see that of the original committee there were present Mr. Harry Blake, Mr. Alexander, Mr. Millis, Mr. Wright, and Mr. Douglas White, the hon. treasurer. They had also the presence of Mr. Craig and Mr. Joe Elvin, original vice-presidents. He coupled the toast with the names of Mr. Joe O'Gorman, chairman of the present committee, and of Mr. Harry Mountford, vice-chairman.

MR. JOE O'GORMAN stated that when he was first elected chairman he was most assidious in his attention to the duties. During the past year he had been away from them a good deal, and if on his return he had neglected his duty to the Association it was because he felt that there was a higher duty before him. He kept popping in at times to see that everything was going on all right, and he popped in elsewhere, where his presence was even more necessary. He was glad to say that the business of the Association was now being carried through with better tact and better judgment, and with every evidence of a friendly spirit, which were not existent when he first became chairman of it. When they saw Mr. Mountford and himself arm in arm that was a good omen. They were firmly convinced that they were now fighting a battle which eventually would lead the profession to a goal which would result in the amelioration of their poorer brothers and sisters.

MR. HARRY MOUNTFORD jokingly remarked that he had heard Mr. Hoyle say something about a mysterious fight that was taking place outside. Mr. Hoyle had also said that the M.H.A.R.A. had started out with the object of getting something and they had done it. He presumed that Mr. Hoyle referred to recent developments on the variety stage. Finally, he would like to strike a keynote by making applicable to the struggle Tennyson's lines:

"I hold it truth, with him who sings
To one clear harp, in divers tones,
That men may rise on stepping-stones
Of their dead selves to higher things."

MR. HARRY BLAKE, in toasting "The Provincial Agents," said that those gentlemen were indispensable to the carrying out of the wishes of the executive committee from the London office. Since the Federation had come into existence the provincial agents had performed a double duty in finding them suitable quarters for deliberations in secrecy.

MR. FREDK. HALLIDAY, of Preston, and MR. MCCROMBIE, of Bristol, briefly replied to the toast.

MR. HARRY WRIGHT proposed "The Ladies" in an amusing speech, and replies thereto were made by Mrs. Ginnette, Miss Lily Burnand, and Miss Anna de Grey, the last-mentioned referring to the good work performed by the Music Hall Ladies' Guild during the four months of its existence.

MR. FRANK GERALD proposed "The Chairman," and paid a high compliment to that gentleman. Mr. Clemart and himself had worked hard in the music-hall profession for years, and so long as they had a man like him to steer their ship the Association would continue on its course of prosperity. Referring to the Scala Theatre, he wished to point out that the booking had been so heavy that there were only a very few seats left. He was sure that the public would heartily enjoy and appreciate the show, which would do credit to the V.A.F. and the Alliance. He would like to see the artists running their own shows, not in one place, but in a dozen or twenty. There was no reason why the system of co-operation should not extend to the music-hall profession as it did to other businesses.

The CHAIRMAN, in acknowledging the toast, referred to the useful work performed by their secretary, Mr. Stewart.

MR. FRED NEIMAN proposed "The Press," and Mr. Charles Berte responded.

LA MILO AS LADY GODIVA.

THE LIVING STATUE'S DARING RIDE THROUGH COVENTRY BY NIGHT.

LAST week, says the London Morning Advertiser (6/2/07), a curious incident occurred at Coventry, which has only just come to light. La Milo was seized with a desire to emulate Lady Godiva, and at two o'clock in the morning, in the attire in which she gives her performance, she rode through the city. No one saw the ride, and the only persons in which she confided were her manager, Mr. Cruickshank, and her chief dresser.

SAN CARLOS TRIO IN SUNDERLAND.

The San Carlos Italian Operatic Vocalists delighted those who can appreciate good music. Each possesses a beautiful voice, and their items were rendered most expressively.—Daily Echo, Feb. 12.

The San Carlos Trio of operatic vocalists, at the Aberdeen Palace, entered on their second week's engagement with marked success. These cultured singers appear in entirely different rôles this week, and, if anything, appear to better advantage. The Aberdeen public seem to appreciate them more the more they see of them, and last night they had a most cordial reception. — Aberdeen Free Press, Feb. 5, '07.

WHILST Miss Josie Mooney was preparing for her turn on Monday at the Palace Theatre, Porth, and was descending the stairs to the stage, she suddenly slipped and fell headlong down the whole flight. Though suffering great pain, she pluckily insisted on taking her place in the programme, and was an immense success with her new songs.

LAYCOCK v. ALLAN EDWARDES.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—As the paragraph in The Era of Feb. 9 in the Variety Gossip referring to my action against Mr. T. Allan Edwardes for wrongful dismissal is calculated to create wrong impressions and cast reflections on my character, I ask you in fairness to allow me to state that the reason the Deputy-Judge made the remark that the defendant had acted in a very upright and honourable manner was solely because he unreservedly withdrew all imputations against my character—a condition, too, on which the action was dismissed, and my chief object in taking action being thereby accomplished.

I should also like to express my regret that I was unable to avail myself of Mr. Edwardes' offer to go over to Derby and discuss the matter before any proceedings were commenced, as I feel confident if that gentleman had had an opportunity of thoroughly investigating it, it would have been settled amicably, at least so far as he and I were concerned. Thanking you in anticipation.—Yours truly, S. H. LAYCOCK.

THE MUSIC HALL DISPUTE.

The militant tone adopted by every one of the speakers at the Scala meeting on Sunday night made one quite prepared to read in Monday's newspapers that a settlement of the strike was as far away as ever. The following official report of the Conciliation Board was issued on Monday night:—

"The Board of Conciliation, consisting of Messrs. Henri Gros, Walter Payne, Oswald Stoll, and Henry Tozer for the managers, and Messrs. W. C. Steadman, M.P., Alderman I. Mitchell, L.C.C., Mr. Edmund Browne, L.C.C., and Mr. Arthur Roberts for the employees, met on Feb. 7, 8, and 11 at 7, Durham House-street. Mr. Wal Pink (artist) and Mr. Webster (stage-hand) attended as witnesses. It was declared on the part of the managers that they welcomed the intervention of Messrs. Steadman, Mitchell, and Browne, having been always ready to consider any grievances, to examine them in detail, to listen to any suggestions, and to endeavour in every way to restore harmony and goodwill.

"A general examination of all points advanced on the part of artists, musicians, and stage-hands was entered upon. The whole matter having been fully discussed, specific definitions and declarations on the part of the managers were approved for submission. It was unanimously resolved that the declarations and definitions arrived at be submitted to the respective parties. In the event of either of the parties not agreeing thereto, it was unanimously resolved that all matters in dispute be referred to Mr. George R. Askwith, Board of Trade arbitrator."

It was decided by the Board, both parties acquiescing, that the terms of settlement should not be divulged for the present; but it was generally understood that the Board agreed to a modification of the "barring" clause to secure that it should not apply to an individual artist receiving £5 or less per turn per week; that it should not apply in London to a troupe of two up to four engaged at £10 a week, or in the provinces at £15 a week. For turns engaged at higher rates than these the clause should be modified to a mile radius in Central London, two miles in Greater London, and five miles in the provinces. In regard to musicians, the Board agreed to recommend terms securing to each musician a minimum of 30s. a week, and an increase of 2s. a week on all wages at present below 36s. For stage hands a minimum of 25s. a week was agreed to, with an increase of 2s. a week on wages at present below 30s.

Mr. Joe O'Gorman, at the Scala, on Monday evening, said that he personally would welcome arbitration, and if the proposal to appoint Mr. Askwith, the official arbitrator to the Board of Trade, was agreed to, he anticipated that the war would come to a speedy end.

On Wednesday morning it was announced that both parties to the dispute had agreed to refer all matters to Mr. George R. Askwith, and arbitration by this gentleman has been accepted by both parties.

"Peace with honour" was announced at more than one music hall on Thursday night, when all pickets were withdrawn from the twenty-two proscribed halls. In the words of Charles Lever (slightly altered), we may now say—

The last tattoo is beating, boys,
The pickets are fast retreating, boys;
So let every man
Fill his cup or his can
And drink to our next merry meeting, boys!

HENRI GROS AND "THE PERFORMER."

The following letter has been sent to us for insertion:—

The Editor, The Performer, Feb. 11, 1907.
28, Wellington-street, W.C.

"BEGGING THE QUESTION."

Sir,—In your leader of the 7th inst. you state: "To quote Mr. Henri Gros, Mr. Stoll is here begging the question." I wish emphatically to state that neither in writing nor in speech have I criticised or spoken of Mr. Stoll and his business: it would be entirely outside my sphere to do so. I suggest you allude to my stating of you and Mr. Jesson re my controversy with the latter in your paper, "this is begging the question." You previously made the same remark on my observations re Mr. Lyons' music-hall scheme in the Referee, but neither you nor I have coined or originated the phrase, or patented it. Thus your coupling my name in connection with Mr. Stoll in this matter is purely meant to convey a false impression.—Yours obediently,

(Signed) HENRI GROS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—It is with surprise, disappointment, and regret that I read in your issue of to-day Mr. Henri Gros' letter (which he calls "a few lines," though extending to nearly a column and a half of your space!)

Mr. Henri Gros states that the Charter was signed by me without the consent of my board for the Empress, Brixton. Apart, however, from personally recognising the justice and fairness of the Charter, and apart also from practising sheer business economics, as well as from the precipitation of time, I beg to state that I had the full assent and even thanks of the shareholders to the course I adopted.

Mr. Henri Gros' further gratuitous remark with reference to the Putney Hippodrome, in connection with my position as managing-director, is—speaking charitably—a verbal meander.

Finally, I am at even a further (if, possibly, a greater) loss to understand how Mr. Henri Gros (Herculean in spirit though he be) could actually transfer his club and lion's skin, not to an Omphale in the cause of love, but discard it altogether by not "playing the game," instead of introducing a gratuitous reference to personal acts in connection with private business transactions and relations which govern the ordinary constitution of a directorate body.

Let me suggest that it would be more heroic and noble in Mr. Henri Gros to strive to extricate himself from the present Nessian mantle thrown around him by the V.A.F. (which is much less mythic than was Dejanira in this connection, as he will find), a feat which is as impossible and fatal to achieve as was the effort of his imagined prototype, the offspring of Zeus and the Nemean conqueror. Commending Mr. Henri Gros to Hamlet's philosophy,

"Let Hercules himself do what he may,
The cat will mew, the dog will have his day."

—Yours faithfully, W. J. GRIMES,
Director Brixton Empress, &c.

"BY THEIR DEEDS YE SHALL KNOW THEM."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—Under the above heading my name appears in the Performer of Feb. 7 amongst others, who, in "direct opposition to the wishes and requests" of the executive committee, worked proscribed music halls. Now, as I have never been associated with the Federation, I fail to see what the "wishes and requests" of the said committee have to do with me. This is a free country—too free in some things, certainly—and I am a free agent. Why should I refuse good work when it is offered? Besides, I have been a manager too many years myself not to sympathise with those who by the drastic action of the Alliance were placed in a temporary difficulty.

After twenty-five years' experience in the profession, my deeds are best known by the managers under whom I have served and by the artists who have been engaged by me.—Yours faithfully,

MATT. WILKINSON.

NATIONAL ALLIANCE MASS MEETING.

The meeting at the Scala on Sunday night (the fifth of the series) was called for six, instead of seven o'clock as usual, in order to allow the members of the M.H.A.R.A. to leave for their Annual Dinner at the "Horns."

The chair was again taken by Mr. Joe O'Gorman, who explained that, owing to the circumstances mentioned above, he would set an example by making his address as short as possible: First, let me convey to you that we are to-night in a very, very happy position. You have heard all about the Conciliation Board that has been sitting. They have made their report to us, and I say for one that that report which contains those so-called concessions will never be accepted by me. I don't believe in patching-up. I believe that what is worth doing is worth doing well, and that we should seize upon this opportunity as the opportunity of a lifetime, and insist upon our just demands being granted to the letter.

Mr. Frank Gerald: Our Chairman has said that the terms offered to us are unsatisfactory. We should remember that there are three of us, and that the demands of each one must be fully granted before we agree to any terms of settlement. It must not be a settlement that is satisfactory to one, or even two, and not to number three; it must be satisfactory to all three, and protect the interests of the three parties equally, and I think I may say that we are all thoroughly in accord when we say that the first principle of a settlement must be the reinstating of all who have come out on strike, and the abandoning of legal proceedings, and the withdrawal of all ill-feeling and bias against all concerned.

Mr. William Johnson: Mr. Chairman and Friends,—I wish to allude to a letter which has appeared in The Era, over the signature of Henri Gros. In this letter he implies that the struggle has been instituted without the sanction of the members of the Allied Societies, and it has not yet been endorsed by the members of the Allied Societies. Speaking as one who has had over twenty years' experience of movements of this kind, I venture to say there has been no struggle in the industrial world that has been so fully endorsed by the members whose interests are at stake as this movement has been. Let me just remind Henri Gros, through the Press (if the Press will kindly take note of the remark), that we have had four mass meetings, held week after week, at which the whole of the facts in connection with the dispute have been placed before the members, and their opinions have been invited; they have had every opportunity of submitting an amendment to every proposal made; they have had an opportunity of saying whether they approved of the actions we have taken or not, and there have been held throughout the country every week some eighty or one hundred meetings, at which the whole issue has been placed before the people directly interested, and they have always endorsed the action of the Alliance. I would ask Mr. Henri Gros and his friends to give their shareholders an opportunity of meeting their directors and saying what they think of the dispute. I venture to say that they will not enjoy that unanimous approval which we have had up to the present moment; but they have not ventured to consult their shareholders. I would like to make it quite clear that the representatives of the Trades Unions have approached the managers not as our official representatives, but as unofficial arbitrators, who have sought to elicit from the managers what they have to say in this dispute, and they have brought back to us the result of a number of meetings which have been held. The managers suggest that we should agree to all the men who are out being left to their tender mercies. That is the worst of all their proposals. I would rather resign my position, I would rather see the Association go to smash, than that we should contemplate for one moment the acceptance of those terms.

Mr. J. B. Williams: I must express some surprise and some regret at the somewhat despondent tones of the previous speakers. Personally, I am just beginning to like it, and, as far as I am concerned—I think I can speak for the majority of the people we are representing—this fight has only just commenced. I want to show you what the spirit in the provinces is. At a meeting I addressed at Manchester attended by a large number of people, the following resolution was passed: "That this meeting pledges itself to support any action the Committee take, as it fully recognises the unselfish and noble work they are doing for the good cause." They go a step further. The meeting was unanimous in the opinion that not an inch of the position assumed must be abandoned. We must extend the fight, and take it into the provinces on the lines of asking the Trades Unionists to boycott those halls. This is an opportunity that will never present itself in our lifetime again. The principles are principles that no one need be ashamed of. We have suffered long enough, and the conditions are unbearable.

Mr. Joe O'Gorman: I would like to inform you that, owing to the way in which our cause was prejudiced in the eyes of the public by certain newspapers, and the demands we received from some of our members in the provinces to know what was going on, we thought it was best to send some of our speakers into the provinces. Mr. Williams went to Manchester and Liverpool, and Mr. Mountford went to Leeds, Glasgow, and Newcastle. You will be able to hear first hand what our friends in the big provincial centres think of the stand we are making here in London.

Mr. Harry Mountford: My voice is somewhat weak to-night; but my spirit is as strong as ever. It gives me very great pleasure to move the following resolution: "That this meeting of members of the Allied Societies reaffirms its absolute confidence in the Alliance Committee, and strongly urges them to continue the fight until the demands set forth in the Charter have been conceded." You see, this is a reversion to first principles. At the last two meetings we have been talking about arbitration; but now, after three weeks, we have come back to exactly the same position as at the first meeting.

A suggestion was made by a member of the audience that the following addition be made to the resolution: "That no negotiations for a settlement of the dispute shall be authorised or recognised that do not provide for a reinstatement of all those out on strike, and the abandonment of legal proceedings against those affected by the dispute."

Mr. Tom Costello: Ladies and Gentlemen, and Brother and Sister Artists,—Since this grand fight began, myself and Mr. Coborn have tried to stimulate the provincial meetings, and have done our best to stiffen the backs of our weaker brethren. This, ladies and gentlemen, is battle, and I don't believe in scent and rosewater on the battlefield. We have stood iniquity to the breaking-point. Generals, when they go into battle, always allow a certain amount for wastage—we have calculated for that. Let me tell you that this fight is not possible without the aid of the musicians. I am a householder. If the strike is going to continue, there will be a certain percentage of artists in London who will have to pay for apartments. If the fight continues, I am going to fill my house with V.A.F.'s, and let them stop there till the fight is over. One point I will just mention: Twenty years ago, at a hall in Liverpool, Oswald Stoll wrote me a song for thirty shillings, which I paid in three instalments. I could not afford it all at the time. The title of that song was "The Dawn of Freedom." Is it going to be realised?

Mr. Harry Freeman supported the resolution. He said: We must win this fight because we dare not lose it. Mr. Stoll was kind enough to say he had paid him £2 a week; but that was Mr. Stoll's father and mother, and the period was just a little over thirty years ago.

Mr. Mountford: It gives me very great pleasure to see the interest that has been taken in the discussion to-night from the body of the hall. To-night one or two gentlemen have taken their courage by the forelock, and moved an addendum to the resolution, which I am very pleased to support. The resolution now is: "That this meeting of members of the Allied Societies reaffirms its absolute confidence in the Alliance Committee, and strongly urges them to continue the fight until the demands set forth in the Charter have been conceded, and that no negotiations for a settlement of the dispute shall be authorised or recognised that do not provide for a reinstatement of all those out on strike, and the abandonment of legal proceedings against those affected by the dispute." As far as I am personally concerned, I shall never be satisfied until they have all gone back, from the drummer to the first violin, and from the call-boy to the stage-manager. I don't want you to think that this fight can be won by passing resolutions. If we stick together we are bound to win.

Mr. Joe O'Gorman then asked the audience to vote on the resolution, all hands being put up in favour of it.

Mr. O'Gorman said: I take that as an answer to our opponents who say that we have forced this strike upon you. First at the "Horns," twice at the Surrey, last Sunday night here at the Scala, and again to-night, the votes have been absolutely unanimous. What more can we ask from our supporters? With the cause we have—and every man Jack in our business must admit we have a fair cause—there is no excuse for anybody to become a blackleg; and if we use a little salve with them at the present moment, I consider it is only encouraging others to do the same. I now wish from the bottom of my heart to thank you, ladies and gentlemen, on behalf of the Executive Committee, for the excellent organisation of the picket system.

Mr. Williams moved a vote of thanks to the Chairman, which was seconded by Mr. Joe Elvin.

Mr. Elvin said: It gives me very great pleasure, ladies and gentlemen, to second the vote of thanks, and I may say it gave me very great pleasure when I had to come out of the Chelsea Palace this week on strike. Henri Gros has been asking for it, and he got it. I was there making a speech on Chelsea Common. A little kid came running up to me, and said, "You have got nothing to worry about, Joe; there is only one-and-threepence in the gallery." We have got nothing to be downhearted about. Everything is going on all right.

FRAGSON ON THE STRIKE.

Mr. Harry Fragson, in his most popular item, "Received me most politely," at Drury Lane pantomime on Saturday night, introduced a number of topical verses on the music-hall strike, specially written by Mr. J. M. Glover and Mr. Arthur Sturgess.

He first calls upon Mr. Arthur Roberts, the champion "gagger," for advice as to how to succeed on the music-hall stage:

He received me most politely when I told my simple tale,
And said, "My boy, I'm out of work." His manly cheek turned pale.
"The halls don't speak the author: As from gags I hold aloof
I struck, although I'm playing still my good old part in spoof.
I'm ruined—but I fight because the band is underpaid!
Get a tip or two from Marie Lloyd, and then your fortune's made."

He proceeds to the house of Miss Marie Lloyd, where a voice sang loud and clear:—

If you're striking call me Hurley, call me Hurley, Alec dear.

He learns their reason for striking in the ensuing couplet:—

We're very strict; we've struck because bill-posters want more pay.
You call on Harry Lauder, boy, he knows the time of day.

Having "laudably" tried and succeeded in the quest:—

He received me most politely—then he softly murmured "Hoots!
"To strike mebbe's a canny trick, but, losh, mon, ah've ma doots;
It's for the men who shift the scenes that I'm prepared to fight,
But eh! ma pocket's sore; for bang goes saxpence ilka night."

He goes to Little Tich and Mr. Oswald Stoll, with no better result, and finally sees Mr. G. Adney Payne, but his halls are all "barred," and he can give him no encouragement.

THE STRIKING STAR.

What are we striking about, Sir?
To tell you the truth I don't know;
But they tell me the Strikers' Committee
Have lately discovered the "Pro"
Has been working for years on a pittance,
And you, as you sit in your stall,
Would never have paid for admittance
Had you known of the hardships that fall
On us, the poor stars of variety,
Who nightly appear on the stage,
Always in a state of sobriety
Or else they won't pay us our wage.

It's hard when you've done in at Epsom
A couple of hundred or so
To have to jump into your motor
And rush back to town for the show.
For what is a hundred a week, with
The wife and the kids, and the car,
A chauffeur, a maid, and a valet?
I tell you it doesn't go far.

And look at the strain on the system;
One artist for years, bear in mind,
Has been singing an ophthalmic ballad
About a poor boy that was blind.
They say there's a better time coming
For us downtrodden stars of the stage,
One hundred per night at each Empire
Is to be the new Union wage.
And we'll all be contented and happy
When justice is done to the poor
Downtrodden and overworked artists,
And that's what we're all striking for.

Clara Chirgwin.

OUTSIDE THE V.A.F.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

Sir,—In reading over Mr. H. A. Langlois' letter in your last Saturday's issue, it appears to me that he has rushed into print for the purpose of showing the salaries he has received. How can his salary interest anyone but himself? How many engagements does he hope to gain by his bold defiance of the V.A.F.? Does he imagine that managers will rush at him with open arms and say, "God bless you, Langlois, old boy, for fighting on our side?" He states he has topped bills at salaries ranging from £4 10s. to £60 weekly. I am fully assured that no recognised music hall in this country tops its bill with a £4 10s. a week turn. Mr. Langlois may have received that amount when playing his sketch The Bomb, but as to his getting £60 a week, it must be, as Shakespeare says, "in my mind's eye, Horatio."

Trusting you will give the above a space in your next issue, and oblige—Yours sincerely,

Manchester, Feb. 11. C. VERENER.

The Scala Theatre was reopened by the National Alliance on Monday evening, and there was certainly no lack either of patronage or enthusiasm for the new venture of the variety artists who are at war with the music-hall managers. The theatre being licensed by the Lord Chamberlain, it was decided to run it on ordinary lines and produce a piece which, however, would readily permit of the introduction of any number of variety turns. The first scene, representing the Caliph of Alibardora's Palace, was picturesque and pleasing to the eye, the stage being filled with the charming ladies of the Seraglio, slaves, and guests of the Caliph. The slight plot turns upon the abduction of an English girl, who, if those responsible for her capture have their way, will become the latest addition to the Caliph's many wives. But eventually Dick Darrell, a young naval officer, and Bill Breezy, a middy, come to her rescue, and the Eastern potentate's designs are defeated. In the meantime, however, the Caliph being informed that a company of English music-hall artists are in the neighbourhood, he invites them to give an entertainment at his palace. If the "stars" themselves did not appear, they had some remarkably clever imitators. Mr. Dion Wade could scarcely be distinguished from the real George Robey, and Mr. Charles Austin was equally good in his funny impersonation of Joe Elvin. Miss Clarice Mayne also gave clever imitations of Victoria Monks, Camille Clifford, and Marie Lloyd. Mr. Hal Forde, as Dick Darrell, lent most valuable assistance, working hard all through, and singing in capital style "My Japanesey Girl," "That's the girl for you," and "In London Town." Mr. Bert Byrne proved an active and energetic representative of the caliph, Ali Ben Hassan, whose ditty "Cheero" was well received; and Mr. John F. Preston did good work as O'Sullivan Pasha. Mr. Carl Lynn quaintly played the part of Sherlock Holmes, a policeman whose mission it is to "move on" all the other characters, informing them that if they want to give away bills they must go into the roadway. Mr. Lynn also introduced imitations of various animals. Mr. Harry Liddle as Tommy Twinkle and Miss Claire Romaine as Polly Twinkle, a couple of music-hall artists, made good use of their opportunities, and contributed a duet and dance, which were greeted with much applause. Miss Maude Walsh was a vivacious representative of the English girl Mabel Musgrove, and scored with a topical song, "A matter of opinion." Miss Marie Preston was a fascinating Kassi-Kassi, a Jap slave; and the Caliph's principal wives were represented by markedly attractive ladies, the Misses Evelyn Vaudray, Florence Darrell, Florence Harcourt, and Lilian Leonard. "Spot" as an Indian slave, Miss Nannie Goldman as a middy, and Mr. Harry J. Worth as Mustapha, a slave, completed the cast. In the text there were several allusions to the strike, one of the neatest being the Caliph's quotation from "Gibbons's Decline and Fall of the Holborn Empire." The orchestra, composed of strike musicians, was under the direction of Mr. William Neale, Mr. George Dyball was the stage-manager, and Mr. W. H. Barlow assistant stage-manager.

At the conclusion of the performance of the new production Mr. Frank Gerald, the general manager, appeared in front of the curtain, and thanked the audience for the hearty appreciation they had shown of the first piece produced by the National Alliance. He held in his hand telegrams and cables from all part of the world wishing them success in their venture. There were too many to read, but he should like to mention that one was from Mr. Harry Mountford, who was unable to be present through illness, but he hoped to be able to appear on Wednesday evening. It was only right to add that much of the success of the production was due to Mr. John F. Preston, (Max Goldberg) who had produced the piece.

Later Mr. Joe O'Gorman, having done a turn, was called upon for a speech. He said that Mr. Harry Mountford, by his desire, went into the provinces for the purpose of contradicting the reports that mutiny had broken out in their ranks, and was now laid up with influenza. It was a great consolation to see such a large audience. They had now been three weeks on strike, but financially they were in a much stronger position than when the fight started. It was not his intention to say any unkind words about their opponents, who were fighting for what they considered were their rights; but surely they should not object to the artists doing the same thing. He believed, however, that their opponents were yielding a bit, and would agree to arbitration. He personally would welcome arbitration, because if they had a good cause, as he believed they had, there was no need to be afraid of resorting to this means of settling the dispute. It was proposed that Mr. Askwith, the official arbitrator to the Board of Trade, should be appointed to act, and if this proposal was agreed to he anticipated that the war would come to a speedy end. In thanking the audience for their attendance he said that, after all, it was not the proprietors who were their masters, but the public. It was the patrons of the halls who were responsible for the big salaries that were paid to star artists. However, he hoped to see an early, an honourable, and amicable settlement of this unfortunate dispute.

In the variety concert which was also given Miss Ada Colley sang with charming effect "Sweet Nightingale" and "Star of Bethlehem." Mr. Whit Cunliffe gave with much spirit "It's a different girl again"; Miss Marie Kendal also sang, and Mr. Edgar Romaine gave his latest success, "Come along, little girl." It should be mentioned that in the Palace scene Mr. Michael Braham introduced his wonderfully intelligent dog "Micky." The entertainment was also contributed to by Les Belles Americaines and the Aroza Belles, whose dancing was loudly applauded.

The "Mysterious Cross" was exhibited, and pictures of the strike leaders were projected by Belle Braham.

The audience included Mr. Arthur Roberts, Mr. Joe Elvin, Mr. Tom McNaughton, Mr. Alec Hurley, and Miss Marie Lloyd; but none of these took part in the evening's entertainment. No charge was made for programmes, which were given away by Miss Nina Martino, Miss Alice Lloyd, Miss Daisy Wood, "Atalanta," Miss Gertrude Glenn, and other well-known ladies. Mr. William Holles was the business manager.

The second Fancy Dress Skating Carnival will take place on the asphalte skating rink at the Crystal Palace, on Wednesday evening next. Prizes will be given for the best couples in a waltzing competition, for ladies' and gentlemen's most handsome original costumes, advertisement class, comical class, and children's class. The last Fancy Dress Carnival of the season is fixed for Wednesday, March 20.

SONGS, WRITERS, AND SINGERS.

The highest encomiums have been lavished by the Press on Leslie Stuart's sparkling new numbers in The Belle of Mayfair, all of which are being issued by Messrs. Francis and Day. George Arthurs is responsible for the lyrics of five of them, the titles being "Come back to Pierrette, Pierrot," sung by Miss Billie Burke; "The English-girl and the French maid," sung by Miss Ruby Ray and Mr. Charles Angelo; "Do you waltz?" sung by Mr. Courtice Pounds; "Military Mad," sung by Mr. Sam Walsh; and "The Girlie in the goggles and the veil," sung by Mr. Farren Soutar.

Miss Alice Lloyd, who this week sailed for America to fulfil an important engagement in New York, will open with three of the Monte Carlo Publishing Company's publications, viz., "Bamboo Bungalow," "Queen of Old Samara," and "No thanks, Mr. Octopus!" The American rights of these three successful songs are vested in Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

On the occasion of the last performance of Mr. Brydon Phillips's brilliantly successful pantomime, Red Riding Hood, on Saturday night last at the Dalston Theatre, Mr. Henry De Solla (Lawyer Slyfox) sang the chorus of Maurice Scott's "Too Lazy to Live" no fewer than eight times. Mr. Tom Leo, who is the possessor of the music-hall rights, has met with great success with the item at Glasgow, Coventry, and Wolverhampton. It enjoys a steady sale as a "Sixpenny Pop."

Mr. Tom McNaughton, who in addition to his usual business as the "funny man" of the McNaughton duo, is a partner in the Monte Carlo Publishing Company, will, during his forthcoming engagement in America (whither he is this week journeying), "place" many of the newest publications of this wide-awake publishing house with American performers, and has gone away well-equipped with the very latest additions to the firm's "Sixpenny Successes" series.

Mr. John Smith has just added to Messrs. Francis and Day's catalogue of "Sixpenny Pops"—which now comprises 351 numbers, the following songs:—"All I want is a girl," "If those lips could only speak," "Be as you used to be," "It is the scarecrow!" "Alice, where art thou going?" and "Cheero!"

A third edition of the popular comic song "Birdseed" is in the press. For a song that has not yet been sung on the music-hall stage this is noteworthy.

Over seven thousand copies of Frank Leo's "I want you to notice my leggings" have been sold in a comparatively short time by the music trade. The song was written round a spontaneous remark from the well-known writer. One night he was sitting in a billiard-room hard by the Empire, Shepherd's Bush, with his somewhat lengthy legs encased in leather, stretched out. A player nearly fell over them, and asked whether he required all the room. Leo's reply was, "No; I want you to notice my leggings." This retort went so well that the song was decided on, and three verses were completed before the writer reached home.

Miss Vesta Victoria's comical lament, entitled "Never trust a policeman," is being issued in London and New York by Messrs. Francis and Day. It is the work of the brother of the fair artist, Lawrence Barclay, in collaboration with Mark Lorne.

Mr. Harry Bedford, fresh from his Australian triumphs, is singing with considerable success at the Hackney Empire a comic song, by R. P. Weston, entitled "A little bit of sugar on the top." It will be remembered that "A little bit of sugar for the bird" was the title of the famous topical song, by Fred Bowyer, which was written for The New Barmaid.

Indian subjects have inspired Amy Woodforde-Finden to write a pretty melody, and for a charming Indian romance Fred Godfrey and Harry Castling are responsible. They have placed it with the Star Music Company, and it is said to have a delightfully quaint and catchy melody. The title is "You shall have a Shalimar" (Indian Garden). A limited number of permissions only will be granted at present.

Mr. Harry Bancroft, who is this week appearing at the Putney Hippodrome, is featuring with great success Mills and Scott's popular song, "Sailing in my balloon." By the way, it will be good news to his numerous friends to hear that Mr. A. J. Mills is fast recovering from his recent indisposition and is already busy writing new lyrics. His latest novelty is a little gem entitled "Primrose." Bennett Scott, who has surpassed himself in "melodising" this number, is confident the same will become exceedingly popular. The Star Company are putting it out at once.

"By the Sunny Bay of Naples," written and composed by Bennett Scott, will shortly be produced at a prominent West End hall as a scena, with elaborate setting and effects.

"Your Number's Up" is the title of a new coon song, written and composed by the well-known writers, Messrs. Kenneth Lyle and Fred Godfrey, of which the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd., have just secured publishing rights. They will shortly issue the song in their popular sixpenny edition.

Mr. Ambrose Thorne has been featuring with great success this week at the Pavilion, assisted by the Pavilion Girls, a very attractive march song, entitled "Captain Reginald D'Arcy of the Guards." This will undoubtedly be a very popular seaside number during the coming season. The publishers are the Shapiro, Von Tilzer Music Co., Ltd.

Miss Vesta Victoria continues to win golden opinions from all sorts of people in America with her screamingly funny rendering of her latest triumph, "I've told his missus all about him," by Harrington and Tate (a sequel to "Waiting at the church"), and the song, which is published in this country by the Monte Carlo Publishing Company, is selling hugely in the States, in the edition published there by Messrs. Francis, Day, and Hunter.

Fresh from her pantomime triumphs at the Crown Theatre, Peckham, that dainty young artist, Miss Lena Verdi, opened at the Empire, New Cross, on Monday last, and scored an instantaneous success with Messrs. Mellor, Lawrance, and Gifford's irresistibly ear-arresting new German song, "I'm going back to the Fatherland," which was chorussed by the audiences in both houses to the full extent of their lung power, the singer being rewarded at the finish by persistent and deafening recalls. The Monte Carlo Publishing Company are to be congratulated on having launched yet another "winner" on the tide of public favour.

A charmingly-quaint new song, by Messrs. R. P. Weston and F. J. Barnes, entitled "Won't you drop me just one line?" which tells of the appeal of a forsaken lady-love to her recalcitrant miner sweetheart for a little epistolary consolation in his absence, is now in the press, and a few singing permissions will be accorded to prominent artists by the publishers of this "taking" chorus song, the Monte Carlo Publishing Company.

THE SHOWMAN WORLD.

OUR showman readers will be sorry to hear that the amicable negotiations with the Corporation of Rawtenstall concerning their Private Bill have fallen through. Every effort was made to arrive at a reasonable compromise and a solution of the difficulty. The Parliamentary agent has, therefore, been instructed to lodge a petition signed by local showmen against the Rawtenstall Corporation Bill.

WE made a reference to this matter in our Showman notes last week, but as it must now come before the Committee of the House of Commons it is necessary for us to put our readers in full possession of the facts of the case. Rawtenstall originally had a very commodious market and fair-ground, but some years ago the Corporation built a new town hall and absorbed a great portion of the market ground as its site. With the growth of the town in recent years the cramped condition of the available market and fair-ground space caused considerable inconvenience to both market and fair-ground traders; this was conspicuously so at the time of the annual fairs. Although every bit of the Corporation ground was fully occupied, showmen were compelled to supply the growing demands of their business by occupying private ground at the time of the fair, and we suppose that the same difficulty has been experienced by the traders attending the weekly markets, otherwise we cannot account for the proposals of the Corporation Bill.

THE Corporation proposes in their Bill to acquire power to let or lease for any term of years they may choose any part or the whole of their available market ground. This, it will be seen, would effectively block the holding of the annual fair, and would destroy the prescriptive right of the showmen at the time of the fair to draw on to the ground subject only to the prescribed tolls. If the Corporation had power to lease the whole of their fair-ground to one tenant or to a group of tenants for a term of years it would effectively destroy the rights of the market and fair-ground traders, and at the best would subject them to the unrestricted greed of the private lessee, who undoubtedly would exact rents that would give him the biggest possible return for his investment.

BUT that is not all that the Corporation are seeking powers to obtain; they also want a monopoly of markets and fairs, and if they got their Bill through as it now stands no showman would be permitted to open a private ground at the time of the fair, or, indeed, any other time, without the consent of the Corporation. The Showmen's Guild has successfully defeated monopoly proposals of important corporations like Halifax and Rotherham. We feel sure that the Private Bills Committee will throw out the proposals of Rawtenstall.

THERE are one or two considerations arising out of the Mitcham Fair dispute that we venture to put before our readers. The first and most important of these is the continued necessity of watching all private Bill legislation. In the year 1891, when the Mitcham Conservators passed their private Bill, giving them the extraordinary powers referred to above, there was no one, no society, no organisation whatever watching private Bill legislation. The Showmen's Guild, only just then organised, was engaged in a life-and-death struggle for the liberties of showpeople with the late George Smith and his friends in the House of Commons. It was not until seven years later, in the year 1898, that showmen were aroused to take acion against private Bills, and from that day to this all private Bills promoted by public bodies have been carefully scrutinised, and wherever extraordinary powers against showmen have been claimed, successfully opposed.

HAD the showmen of the United Kingdom been organised twenty years earlier there is no doubt that a great mass of restrictive powers obtained in private Acts would never have been allowed to pass into law. There is no doubt that such extraordinary powers as those possessed by the Mitcham Conservators would never have been granted had the showmen been as well organised as they are to-day. The second consideration of value is that individual showmen should take more pains and give more time to protect their business and to promote the common interests of all who travel the fairs. A considerable element in the determination to settle the Mitcham dispute as amicably as possible was that it was felt that men like Mr. Ball and the other defendants should not be called upon to run the risk of ruin because of their championship of the common interests of fairground traders. Again we emphasise the fact that, good as it is to support an organisation for trade defence, that is not enough; showmen must give more time and thought and be prepared to run more risks than hitherto has been their practice to preserve and defend their avocation in life.

ANOTHER important point is the strengthening of the Defence Fund, so that it may be able not only to carry on its necessary work of Parliamentary defence but also to extend the show business by making it better understood by the people who find their opportunities of amusement at our fairs.

To Mr. Ball in particular a great debt of gratitude is due; his decisive action secured the fair last year, and showmen would never have known what were the difficulties at Mitcham but for Mr. Ball's persistent hard work and enterprise.

THE Shrovetide Fair at Lichfield has been more successful than usual. The Town Council accepted the tender of Mr. P. Collins, who filled the Market-square with a really fine array of amusements. These included his excellent cinematograph exhibition, his magnificent motor-car roundabout, and his lighthouse helter-skelter. We hear that Mr. Collins has been accepted as the lessee for the famous old Whitsuntide Festival, Lichfield Greenhill Bower.

PLINSTON BROTHERS, with their whirling the whirl machine, and Dante, with high-fliers, shooting gallery, &c., are at Ebbw Vale.

THE committee of the Olympia showmen's banquet and ball held their last meeting on Sunday, Feb. 10, at the Beaconsfield Hotel, to hear how the financial funds stood. The hon. secretary and treasurer, Mr. A. Cardew, announced that everything was most satisfactory, and he trusted the event would be as favourably carried out in the future. The meeting closed with an oyster supper, at which all present thoroughly enjoyed themselves. The oysters were gratuitously supplied by the Barron Brothers; the brown bread and butter and bottles of stout (which always go well with the famous shell-fish) were given by Mr. A. Cardew, of the Beaconsfield Hotel; Mr. Joe Wentworth supplied champagne with his usual generosity. During the proceedings, Mr. Arthur Dashwood, chairman of the committee, made graceful allusions to the kindness tendered to the committee by Mr. B. W. Rose, chairman of the Fun City Company, Olympia, who has left no stone unturned to give every showman who was at Olympia this Christmas fair all the assistance he possibly could to insure success. The gentlemen present included the following well-known showmen:—Barron Brothers, Biddall Brothers, W. Sedgwick, Wallace Jones, W. Jones, T. Knighton, F. Willson, J. White, W. Le Neve, Joe Wilson, Joe Lynch, J. Allport, J. Osborne, Joe Wentworth, W. Cooper, W. Crawford, A. Cardew (hon. secretary and treasurer), and Arthur Dashwood (chairman).

PROFESSOR LLOYD, whose shooting-range is a permanent and interesting feature of Barry Dock, made an application to the Barry Justices for a music and dancing licence. Mr. Lloyd has secured a commodious room, immediately over the shooting-range, capable of accommodating 200 persons, and in every way suitable for a small variety entertainment. The application was supported by testimonials as to character by the Head Constable of Cardiff, and by the Superintendent of Police at Barry Dock. The latter officer said in support of the application that he had known Professor Lloyd for over twenty years, and had always found him a very respectable man. He had inspected the premises, and considered them suitable. He thought the exit was adequate. The Justices refused the application.

ON Saturday last Mr. F. H. Fowler, the popular and esteemed secretary to Mr. T. E. Reed, of the World's Fair, Royal Agricultural Hall, Islington, was the recipient of an unexpected surprise—the presentation of a testimonial, subscribed for by the staff and a few friends. The testimonial consisted of a handsome gilt marble and bronze centre clock and side figures, with an heraldic inscription as follows:—"Presented to Mr. F. H. Fowler, as a mark of respect, by a few friends and staff of the World's Fair, 1906-7." In thanking the subscribers, Mr. Fowler said the presentation had been sprung upon him quite unexpectedly, and he could not adequately express his thanks for so marked a feeling of respect and good wishes. He had, during his twenty years' association with the World's Fair, simply done his duty towards his firm and those under him, and endeavoured to lead his staff in the same direction. He much appreciated the form the testimonial had taken, because those at home could join in the appreciation. Again thanking them, he said it would be a lasting memento, prized far beyond its intrinsic value.

MESSRS. J. DOONER AND SON, with their Empire cinematograph and varieties, have just concluded a ten days' visit to Neath, and drew excellent houses. Many new pictures were shown on the bioscope, and humorous dramatic sketches formed a special feature of the show. Messrs. Dooner, with their usual kind consideration for the children, gave a long and humorous programme on the Saturday at reduced prices.

THE Swansea Watch Committee passed a vote of thanks to Messrs. Henry Studt and James Day for saving the life of a resident named Williams, who had fallen into the docks.

NEWPORT FANCY FAIR was attended by J. Shepherd's gondola motor cars, Mrs. S. Shepherd's steam yachts, Mrs. C. Shepherd's aerial flights, Cartwright's shooting saloon, cocoa-nut stall, Colenol's aunt sallies and juvenile horses, and Montgomery's patent whirling the whirl.

THE attention of all members of the British Roundabout Proprietors' and Showmen's Union is directed to the important meeting of that Society, at Lynn Mart, next Wednesday afternoon. See advertisement.

THE many friends of Mr. Charles Bertram, the popular entertainer, illusionist, and card manipulator, will be sorry to learn that he has been stricken down with serious illness. Mr. Bertram has been before the public for twenty-two years, his first professional appearance having taken place at the now demolished St. James's Hall in 1885. He went to school at Woolwich with the late Fred Leslie, and was a Boniface before he took to the boards.

MR. HERBERT SHELLEY, who opens on the Stoll tour on Monday at Walsall, presenting his successful protean Gaelic play, Dan the Outlaw, has received a very tempting offer to visit America with it; but his booking in this country will not admit of his acceptance of the offer for at least two years.

THE HORNS CARNIVAL.

IF evidence were wanting of the popularity of Mr. R. J. Brinkley's annual fancy dress ball and carnival, the crowds of merry masqueraders that filled every part of the Horns Hotel on Thursday evening, the 7th inst., would have convinced the most sceptical. After much dancing and gaiety and a most recherché supper—served in a style that reflects the highest credit on the efficiency of Mr. Jean Kohl, the manager, and his staff—the procession of the aspirants for the £200 worth of prizes took place to an inspiriting march by the Horns Quadrille Orchestra. It was at once seen that the allotment would be a difficult task for the ladies and gentlemen of the judging committee, for in elegance of design and original conception the competitors had surpassed all previous records. That they discharged their duties to the entire satisfaction of the company was evidenced by the hearty applause bestowed as the fair aspirants came forward to receive their costly prizes from the hands of Mrs. R. J. Brinkley, who in a most charming manner added to the pleasure of the receiver with a few cheery words and a bewitching smile.

The first ladies' prize (a silver tea and coffee service on tray) was gained by Mrs. Heller, who as "A Sweet Songster" wore an elegant costume of white satin. Around the bottom of the skirt were hand-painted a full octave of notes, while perched on her shoulders were many specimens of the feathered tribe, and on her head a miniature cage full of birds. The second ladies' prize (a drawing-room suite in green silk) was awarded Miss Ash as "An Aquarium." She wore a pretty costume of green paper, and had suspended from her shoulders, back and front, two large tanks of water in which were live gold and silver fishes, and around her neck and waist coiled snakes of brilliant hues. The third ladies' (a splendid silver and cut-glass fruit centre) was given to Miss Hall, whose costume, "A Study in Old Mosaic," beggars all description, for it might have been a piece taken from the old mosaic courts of Egypt. Fourth prize (a massive oxydised silver art table centre with cut-glass dishes) was presented to Miss Sagson, who as "My Rockery" looked quite realistic in a skirt and bodice composed of ferns. On her head was a tiny fountain. Fifth prize (a beautiful silver fruit centre with swinging baskets) was awarded to Miss Fergusson for a most ingenious "Collection of Goss China." On a black foundation was cleverly worked every conceivable article of china with the Corporation "coat of arms" of every borough in England. On her head was perched a pretty teapot, and around her neck a necklet of miniature china. Sixth ladies' prize (a silver triple melon biscuit box) was carried off by Miss Miller, who as "The Star of Arran" had a handsome hand-painted costume of Irish views. Seventh prize (a silver café au lait set on tray) was given Miss Horsam, who looked bewitching in a costume "Lovely June," covered with golden hues. Eighth prize (a silver cheese dish) was awarded Miss Wynn, who disguised her charming personality in a burlesque costume of "A Suffragette." With white stockings, a pair of old side-spring boots, and a black gown literally smothered in mottoes, such as "Shall Asquith Die?" "Not a fair Billington, but a fooligan Suffragette," and carried in her hand a red flag with "Votes for Women" on it. Needless to say, she got the judges' votes. The rest of the ladies' prizes were awarded as follows: Ninth (silver egg stand, with spoons), Miss Griffiths, as "By Silver Sea"; tenth (an oak and silver table gong), Miss Lederman, as "Catherine, in The Taming of the Shrew"; eleventh (an art silver claret jug), Miss Douglas, as "Grandmamma when Young"; twelfth (silver egg steamer), Miss Martin, "Gay Ostend"; thirteenth (silver revolving butter cooler), Mrs. Blake, as "A Golden Pheasant," a most elaborate confection; fourteenth (a case of silver buckles and buttons), Miss Helen Murray, as "Original," leaving others to judge the most appropriate title; fifteenth (silver and opal fruit basket), Mrs. Mackinlay, as the picture-"Desiccated Soup"; sixteenth, Miss Hilda Dixon won a ladies' dressing case in a most effective costume, "In the Snow"; seventeenth (a fitted writing case), Miss Palmer, as the picture-poster for "Holbrook's Sauce"; eighteenth (a handsome music case), Miss Godfrey, as "Juliette." The gentlemen in costume were not so numerous as the ladies, and the votes of the judges were unanimous for the first prize to be awarded Mr. M. Ferguson for an admirably conceived and constructed costume representing in the cleverest fashion "Britannia's Bulwarks." This gentleman's trousers were literally covered with the names of all the battleships in our Navy, while on his shoulders and headgear were facsimiles of our men-of-war, which in the march past showed their searchlights and fired off miniature cannon. A completely fitted suit case was his reward for what must have been a labour of patience and ingenuity. Second gentlemen's prize (a fitted kit bag) was awarded Mr. Harris, who same in a dual character of "Bookmaker and Backer." One half of his costume represented a typical racecourse bookmaker, all flash clothes and jewellery, while the other half was a replica of a poverty-stricken backer, in rags, with a saveloy for his dinner. Mr. Harris evoked throughout the evening much boisterous merriment. Third gentlemen's prize (a handsome fitted kit bag) came to M. E. Hunter, as "Popular Songs," his coat representing in some fancy article attached to it the title of the most popular songs of the day. Fourth prize (a gentleman's fitted dressing case) was won by Mr. Dancier as "Napoleon." Both in feature, mannerism, and costume this gentleman maintained the character with an artistic resource and conception beyond all praise. Fifth prize (a dress suit case) fell to Mr. Harry Davis, who both in deportment and costume was a beautiful copy of a Gainsborough picture; in fact, it was difficult to believe that he was of the sterner sex so complete was the deception. This happy combination of the man-woman had for its cavalier the whole time Mr. H. A. Thorpe, who as a gentleman of Louis the XIVth period carried off the seventh prize, a splendid silver-mounted Queen Anne claret jug. Sixth prize (an Empire centre fruit stand) was well won by Mr. Ash, who as "A Thing of the Past" was a screamingly funny study in flaming pink of the old-time ballet girl, and being both tall and slim of limb his awkward, gawkish appearance created roars of laughter. Eighth prize (a cucumber salad bowl and servers) was won by Mr. Edwards as "King Menelik," a most gorgeous and brilliant costume; while his attendant page, Mr. Peter, was awarded a trout salad bowl and servers.

Perfect decorum and sociability is a marked feature of the Horns carnival, and the hundreds of ladies in their elegant evening toilets added not a little to the general brilliancy of the scene. Mr. Selwood Geake (in Court dress) made a most efficient and courteous M.C., and kept everyone on their feet to the lively music of the Horns Quadrille Band, many of the dances being redemanded.

All that can be said has been said in praise of the admirable arrangements for the comfort of the guests, and the genial tact and bonhomie of Mr. Jean Kohl, the Horns indefatigable manager, who has won the respect, esteem, and confidence of the Horns patrons by his generosity and good qualities.

ON Monday last, at the Licensing Session at Thorpe-le-Soken, Mr. R. D. Hooper, one of the directors, was granted a full licence for the sale of intoxicating liquors for the Grand Hall of the Palace, Clacton-on-Sea. Although there was a good deal of local opposition, a full bench granted the application by a large majority. The monopoly value was fixed at £1500.

BOW PALACE.

Sexton Blake, the detective playlet presented by Miss Carlotta de Yonson and company, is the big item in the bill at the Bow Palace this week. The story reminds us somewhat of the adventures of another famous detective in fiction, and, to the credit of its author, Mr. C. Douglas Carlile, it can be said that it is well written and is of considerable dramatic interest. It is played, too, in a way that brings out in strong relief its best points. The plot concerns an attempt at blackmail by a brotherhood of three, the leading spirit of which bears the proud reputation of being the master criminal. These gentlemen, who occupy premises under the firm-name of Hanton, Carter, Brown, and Co., in Westminster—a rather clever subterfuge, it must be admitted—endeavour to get possession of certain incriminating Nihilist documents left to the heroine, Leah Coursell, by her late father. How the detective, Sexton Blake, circumvents their evil schemes, is explained in an engrossingly interesting manner. As the detective, Mr. C. Douglas Carlile presents us with an alert, self-possessed individual, and, it might be said, a clever quick-change artist. We can always look forward to a good characterisation from Miss Carlotta de Yonson in almost anything she undertakes, and it is a really pleasing impersonation she gives us of Leah Coursell. There is another experienced player of parts in Mr. Chas. A. Carlile, who, as the Master Criminal, convinces us that his prototype was rightly named. Mr. Lee Gilbert is comical as Tinker, and the three scenes are elaborately mounted.

Messrs. Stanley Damerell, Cecil Rutland, and company have an exceedingly laughable trifle in House Full. One cannot fail to be amused at the comedy of errors and misapprehensions as to the ownership of certain babies with which this sketch deals. Mr. Damerell, as a magistrate, and Mr. Rutland, as a butler, both in a state of perpetual bewilderment in an awkward and, at the same time, delicate predicament, are a source of the utmost merriment to the spectators. Mr. Harry Champion is a persona grata in the East-end, and his songs, "The funny father," "Oh, what a mouth!" and "The bobtail coat," are entertaining to a degree, while a word of praise can also be bestowed upon his dancing. There is a commendable quick-change artist in Miss Laurie Wallis, whose Irish, Scottish, and skipping-rope dances are executed with infinite skill and a proper appreciation of natural characteristics. The Bransbys have a delightfully absurd act, entitled Half-a-Quid, which is acted throughout with humour and spirit. Patter of the most entertaining sort is furnished by Messrs. Woodhouse and Wells, and the merry couple are to be congratulated upon their smart dancing. A feature of the programme which should not be missed is the haute école act of Miss Sylvia Martin, for in it we see to what a remarkable extent a horse can be trained to develop its intelligence. In Mlle. Haydee's miniature vaudeville theatre we are treated to a novel and ingeniously arranged marionette performance; and Mr. Arthur Royce is heard to advantage in a capital piano and comedy entertainment. Mr. Will Driscoll, the swell comedian and dancer, wins hearty and well-merited applause for his agreeable rendering of "The dicky bird" and "You've got to run after me"; and Raymond and Son's Bio-tableaux concludes with a number of realistic scenes of Niagara.

"IT IS THE CAUSE."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE ERA.

SIR,—Re the music-hall war. Perhaps many of the artists alleged to be struggling against capital, might have never for one moment stopped to study, or even consider, why that serious struggle ever originated. It is very simple. As a man of experience in many parts of the world for thirty years in all branches of the variety and circus professions, my candid opinion is that the agents have been the sole cause of this bad outlook. In this way. They have booked up artists of nearly every description for many years ahead, and the artists have been over eager to fill up their date books, and never once have given a passing thought to glance over the conditions stated in their contract forms. With the various music-hall magnates they could have remedied this barring clause by having Rule No. — scratched out of their agreements and a bond-fide agreement made on both sides. Since the days of Ambrose Maynard and Charles Roberts, both of York-road, S.E., things have been steadily getting worse, and yet artists have not had the conceptive brain power to foresee the storm that has been raging. The U.S.A. managers do not book up years and years ahead, and have always a vacancy for any good material that may come in their way, and so have Continental managers. Agents at 10 per cent. do not mind. Why should they? Like the company promoter, they are on the safe side of the question legally, but not always morally.—Yours faithfully,

FRED W. LAURAINE.

124, Camberwell-road, S.E., Feb. 12.

THE public examination was held on Thursday of Maurice Herbert Hoffman, who lately carried on business as a theatrical manager at the Palace Pier Theatre, Brighton. The statement of affairs showed liabilities £1,578, of which £1,188 were expected to rank, and assets nil. It appeared that the debtor had been engaged in the theatrical profession for the last twenty years, acting and managing and running touring companies. He took a lease of the Palace Pier Theatre in September, 1902. Other persons were interested with him in the venture, but it proved unsuccessful, and in March, 1903, the lessors took possession. He had since been occupied as an actor at the halls. The debtor attributed his failure to loss in connection with the theatre, and to his income since September, 1902, having been insufficient to cover his expenditure. The examination was concluded.

MR. GEORGE ALEXANDER, in addressing a women's meeting at the Battersea Public Baths on Monday afternoon, told them that the question of rates concerned them seriously; as, if municipal demands were reduced, they would have more money to spend on matinées. He also remarked that the late J. L. Toole once persuaded twenty ladies to follow John Sleeper Clarke about in a certain town and pester him with circulars bearing the name "John L. Toole." This did not worry Clarke much, but he was really annoyed when, waking up next morning, he found a piece of paper with Toole's name pinned to his pillow. Mr. Alexander urged the ladies, if necessary, to pin the names of Benn and Evans, the local municipal reform candidates, on the pillows of their brothers and husbands.

MISS LAURA JOHNSON, whose series of brilliant successes as a leading Shakespearean actress will be remembered by many, has been the victim of misfortune. For many months past she has been completely prostrated by illness, but lately she has improved in health sufficiently to allow her to strike out a line for herself, and during the week she is successfully appearing at the Eastbourne Hippodrome, in a number of Shakespeare's and Dickens's characters. Although Miss Johnson is not yet by any means fully recovered, she is possessed of any amount of courage, and she deserves every success in her new venture.

THE National Alliance, having received information that certain artists, including at least one notable "star," had been asked by one of the managers whose halls have been attacked to take up their engagement next Monday, has issued the following order: "That no member of the V.A.F. shall return to his, her, or their engagement at any of the affected halls until the Executive Committee issues an order to do so."
